(2) Surrender of property — For the purposes of this section, a property is surrendered at any time by a person to another person where the beneficial ownership of the property is acquired or reacquired at that time from the person by the other person and the acquisition or reacquisition of the property was in consequence of the person's failure to pay all or part of one or more specified amounts of debts owed by the person to the other person immediately before that time.

Related Provisions: 79.1(2) — Seizure of property by creditor; 180.2(1)"adjusted income" — No OAS clawback on gain to which 79(2) applies.

(3) Proceeds of disposition for debtor — Where a particular property is surrendered at any time by a person (in this subsection referred to as the "debtor") to a creditor of the debtor, the debtor's proceeds of disposition of the particular property shall be deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

$$(A + B + C + D + E - F) \times \frac{G}{H}$$

where

A is the total of all specified amounts of debts of the debtor that are in respect of properties surrendered at that time by the debtor to the creditor and that are owing immediately before that time to the creditor;

B is the total of all amounts each of which is a specified amount of a debt that is owed by the debtor immediately before that time to a person (other than the creditor), to the extent that the amount ceases to be owing by the debtor as a consequence of properties being surrendered at that time by the debtor to the creditor;

C is the total of all amounts each of which is a specified amount of a particular debt that is owed by the debtor immediately before that time to a person (other than a specified amount included in the amount determined for A or B as a consequence of properties being surrendered at that time by the debtor to the creditor), where

(a) any property surrendered at that time by the debtor to the creditor was security for

(i) the particular debt, and

(ii) another debt that is owed by the debtor immediately before that time to the creditor, and

(b) the other debt is subordinate to the particular debt in respect of that property;

D is

(a) where a specified amount of a debt owed by the debtor immediately before that time to a person (other than the creditor) ceases, as a consequence of the surrender at that time of properties by the debtor to the creditor, to be secured by all properties owned by the debtor immediately before that time, the lesser of

(i) the amount, if any, by which the total of all such specified amounts exceeds the portion of that total included in any of the amounts determined for B or C as a consequence of properties being surrendered at that time by the debtor to the creditor, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which the total cost amount to the debtor of all properties surrendered at that time by the debtor to the creditor exceeds the total amount that would, but for this description and the description of F, be determined under this subsection as a consequence of the surrender, and

(b) in any other case, nil;

E is

(a) where the particular property is surrendered at that time by the debtor in circumstances in which paragraph 69(1)(b) would, but for this subsection, apply and the fair market value of all properties surrendered at that time by the debtor to the creditor exceeds the amount that would, but for this description and the description of F, be determined under this subsection as a consequence of the surrender, that excess, and

(b) in any other case, nil;

F is the total of all amounts each of which is the lesser of

(a) the portion of a particular specified amount of a particular debt included in the amount determined for A, B, C or D in computing the debtor's proceeds of disposition of the particular property, and

(b) the total of

(i) all amounts included under paragraph 6(1)(a) or subsection 15(1) in computing the income of any person because the particular debt was settled, or deemed by subsection 80.01(8) to have been settled, at or before the end of the taxation year that includes that time,

(ii) all amounts renounced under subsection 66(10), (10.1), (10.2) or (10.3) by the debtor in respect of the particular debt,

(iii) all amounts each of which is a forgiven amount (within the meaning assigned by subsection 80(1)) in respect of the debt at a previous time that the particular debt was deemed by subsection 80.01(8) to have been settled,

(iv) where the particular debt is an excluded obligation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 80(1)), the particular specified amount, and

(v) the lesser of

(A) the unpaid interest accrued to that time on the particular debt, and

(B) the total of

(I) the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts included because of section 80.4 in computing the debtor's income for the taxation year that includes that time or for a preceding taxation year in respect of interest on the particular debt exceeds the total of all amounts paid before that time on account of interest on the particular debt, and

(II) such portion of that unpaid interest as would, if it were paid, be included in the amount determined under paragraph 28(1)(e) in respect of the debtor;

G is the fair market value at that time of the particular property; and

H is the fair market value at that time of all properties surrendered by the debtor to the creditor at that time.

(4) Subsequent payment by debtor — An amount paid at any time by a person as, on account of or in satisfaction of, a specified amount of a debt that can reasonably be considered to have been included in the amount determined for A, C or D in subsection (3) in respect of a property surrendered before that time by the person shall be deemed to be a repayment of assistance, at that time in respect of the property, to which

(a) subsection 39(13) applies, where the property was capital property (other than depreciable property) of the person immediately before its surrender;

(b) paragraph 20(1)(hh.1) applies, where the cost of the property to the person was an eligible capital expenditure;

(c) the description of E in the definition "cumulative Canadian exploration expense" in subsection 66.1(6), the description of D in the definition "cumulative Canadian development expense" in subsection 66.2(5) or the description of D in the definition "cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense" in subsection 66.4(5), as the case may be, applies, where the cost of the property to the person was a Canadian exploration expense, a Canadian development expense or a Canadian oil and gas property expense; or

(d) paragraph 20(1)(hh) applies, in any other case.

(5) Subsequent application with respect to employee or shareholder debt — Any amount included under paragraph 6(1)(a) or subsection 15(1) in computing a person's income for a taxation year that can reasonably be considered to have been included in the amount determined for A, C or D in subsection (3) as a consequence of properties being surrendered before the year by the person shall be deemed to be a repayment by the person, immediately before the end of the year, of assistance to which subsection (4) applies.

Forms: T2 SCH 11: Transactions with shareholders, officers, or employees.

(6) Surrender of property not payment or repayment by debtor — Where a specified amount of a debt is included in the amount determined at any time for A, B, C or D in subsection (3) in respect of a property surrendered at that time by a person to a creditor of the person, for the purpose of computing the person's income, no amount shall be considered to have been paid or repaid by the person as a consequence of the acquisition or reacquisition of the surrendered property by the creditor.

Advance Tax Rulings: ATR-6: Vendor reacquires business assets following default by purchaser.

(7) Foreign exchange — Where a debt is denominated in a currency (other than Canadian currency), any amount determined for A, B, C or D in subsection (3) in respect of the debt shall be determined with reference to the relative value of that currency and Canadian currency at the time the debt was issued.

Related Provisions: 261(2)(b) — 79(7) overrides general currency conversion rules; 261(5)(c), (f)(i) — Functional currency reporting.

History [s. 79]: S. 79 amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 26(1), applicable to property acquired or reacquired after February 21, 1994, other than property acquired or reacquired pursuant to a court order made before February 22, 1994. Subsec. 26(3) of 1995, c. 21, provides that where a taxpayer so elects in writing filed with the Minister of National Revenue, para. 79(f) shall apply to the taxpayer in respect of property reacquired by the taxpayer after 1991 as if it read as follows:

(e.1) where the property is capital property of the taxpayer and was disposed of by the taxpayer to the other person in the year and subsequently reacquired by the taxpayer in the year, the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property shall be deemed to be the lesser of the proceeds of disposition of the property to the taxpayer (determined without reference to this paragraph) and the amount that is the greater of

(i) the amount, if any, by which such proceeds (determined without reference to this paragraph) exceeds such portion of the proceeds as is represented by the taxpayer's claim, and

(ii) the cost amount to the taxpayer of the property immediately before its disposition by the taxpayer;

(f) the taxpayer shall be deemed to have reacquired the property at the amount, if any, by which the cost at that time of the taxpayer's claim exceeds the amount described in subparagraph (e)(i) or (ii) in respect of that property or the amount, if any, by which the proceeds of disposition of the property are reduced because of paragraph (e.1), as the case may be;

S. 79 formerly read:

79. Mortgage foreclosures and conditional sales repossessions — Where, at any time in a taxation year, a taxpayer who

(a) was a mortgagee or other creditor of another person who had previously acquired property, or

(b) had previously sold property to another person under a conditional sales agreement, has acquired or reacquired the beneficial ownership of the property in consequence of the other person's failure to pay all or any part of an amount (in this section referred to as the "taxpayer's claim") owing by that person to the taxpayer, the following rules apply:

(c) there shall be included, in computing the other person's proceeds of disposition of the property, the principal amount of the taxpayer's claim plus all amounts each of which is the principal amount of any debt that had been owing by the other person, to the extent that it has been extinguished by virtue of the acquisition or reacquisition, as the case may be,

(d) any amount paid by the other person after the acquisition or reacquisition, as the case may be, as, on account of or in satisfaction of the taxpayer's claim shall be deemed to be a loss of that person, for that person's taxation year in which payment of that amount was made, from the disposition of the property,

(e) in computing the income of the taxpayer for the year,

(i) the amount, if any, claimed by the taxpayer under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) or 44(1)(e)(iii) in computing the taxpayer's gain for the immediately preceding taxation year from the disposition of the property, and

(ii) the amount, if any, deducted under paragraph 20(1)(n) in computing the income of the taxpayer for the immediately preceding year in respect of the property,

shall be deemed to be nil,

(f) the taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired or reacquired, as the case may be, the property at the amount, if any, by which the cost at that time of the taxpayer's claim exceeds the amount described in subparagraph (e)(i) or (ii), as the case may be, in respect of the property,

(g) the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the taxpayer's claim shall be deemed to be nil, and

(h) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a subsequent year, no amount is deductible in respect of the taxpayer's claim by virtue of paragraph 20(1)(l) or (p).

Subpara. 79(e)(i) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), s. 57, to add "or 44(1)(e)(iii)", applicable

(a) to property in respect of which a taxpayer has claimed an amount under subpara. 44(1)(e)(iii) and that was reacquired by the taxpayer after 1985 and before July 13, 1990, where the taxpayer so elects before July 1991, and

(b) to property acquired or reacquired after July 12, 1990, and, notwithstanding subsecs. 152(4) to (5), such assessments of tax, interest and penalties shall be made as are necessary to give effect to an election made pursuant to para. (a).

79.1 [Seizure of property — creditor] — (1) Definitions — In this section,

"creditor" has the meaning assigned by subsection 79(1);

"debt" has the meaning assigned by subsection 79(1);

"person" has the meaning assigned by subsection 79(1);

"property" has the meaning assigned by subsection 79(1);

"specified amount" has the meaning assigned by subsection 79(1);

"specified cost" to a person of a debt owing to the person means

(a) where the debt is capital property of the person, the adjusted cost base to the person of the debt, and

(b) in any other case, the amount, if any, by which

(i) the cost amount to the person of the debt

exceeds

(ii) such portion of that cost amount as would be deductible in computing the person's income (otherwise than in respect of the principal amount of the debt) if the debt were established by the person to have become a bad debt or to have become uncollectable.

Related Provisions: 20(1)(p), 20(4)–(4.2), 50(1) — Provisions allowing deductions for bad debts.

(2) Seizure of property — Subject to subsection (2.1) and for the purpose of this section, a property is seized at any time by a person in respect of a debt where

(a) the beneficial ownership of the property is acquired or reacquired at that time by the person; and

(b) the acquisition or reacquisition of the property is in consequence of another person's failure to pay to the person all or part of the specified amount of the debt.

Related Provisions: 50(1) — Deemed disposition of debt on bad debt, windup, insolvency or bankruptcy; 79(2) — Surrender of property by debtor; 79.1(2.1) — Exception — foreign resource property; 138(11.93)(a) — Section 79.1 does not apply to insurer.

History: Subsec. 79.1(2) amended by 2001, c. 17, s. 57, applicable in respect of property acquired or reacquired after February 27, 2000. The subsec. formerly read:

(2) For the purposes of this section, a property is seized at any time by a person in respect of a debt where the beneficial ownership of the property is acquired or reacquired at that time by the person and the acquisition or reacquisition of the property was in consequence of another person's failure to pay to the person all or part of the specified amount of the debt.

(2.1) Exception — For the purpose of this section, foreign resource property is deemed not to be seized at any time from

(a) an individual or a corporation, if the individual or corporation is non-resident at that time; or

(b) a partnership (other than a partnership each member of which is resident in Canada at that time).

History: Subsec. 79.1(2.1) added by 2001, c. 17, s. 57, applicable in respect of property acquired or reacquired after February 27, 2000.

(3) Creditor's capital gains reserves — Where a property is seized at any time in a particular taxation year by a creditor in respect of a debt, for the purpose of computing the income of the creditor for the particular year, the amount claimed by the creditor under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) or 44(1)(e)(iii) in computing the creditor's gain for the preceding taxation year from any disposition before the particular year of the property shall be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which the amount so claimed exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is an amount determined under paragraph (6)(a) or (b) in respect of the seizure.

(4) Creditor's inventory reserves — Where a property is seized at any time in a particular taxation year by a creditor in respect of a debt, for the purpose of computing the income of the creditor for the particular year, the amount deducted under paragraph 20(1)(n) in computing the income of the creditor for the preceding taxation year in respect of any disposition of the property before the particular year shall be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which the amount so deducted exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is an amount determined under paragraph (6)(a) or (b) in respect of the seizure.

(5) Adjustment where disposition and reacquisition of capital property in same year — Where a property is seized at any time in a taxation year by a creditor in respect of one or more debts and the property was capital property of the creditor that was disposed of by the creditor at a previous time in the year, the proceeds of disposition of the property to the creditor at the previous time shall be deemed to be the lesser of the amount of the proceeds (determined without reference to this subsection) and the amount that is the greater of

(a) the amount, if any, by which the amount of such proceeds (determined without reference to this subsection) exceeds such portion of the proceeds as is represented by the specified amounts of those debts immediately before that time, and

(b) the cost amount to the creditor of the property immediately before the previous time.

(6) Cost of seized properties for creditor — Where a particular property is seized at any time in a taxation year by a creditor in respect of one or more debts, the cost to the creditor of the particular property shall be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which the total of

(a) that proportion of the total specified costs immediately before that time to the creditor of those debts that

(i) the fair market value of the particular property immediately before that time

(ii) the fair market value of all properties immediately before that time that were seized by the creditor at that time in respect of those debts, and

(b) all amounts each of which is an outlay or expense made or incurred, or a specified amount at that time of a debt that is assumed, by the creditor at or before that time to protect the creditor's interest in the particular property, except to the extent the outlay or expense

Proposed Amendment — 79.1(6)(b) opening words

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 3 — bijuralism), s. 228, will amend the opening words of para. 79.1(6)(b) by substituting "creditor's interest, or for civil law the creditor's right," for "creditor's interest", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

(i) was included in the cost to the creditor of property other than the particular property,

(ii) was included before that time in computing, for the purposes of this Act, any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts of the creditor, or

(iii) was deductible in computing the creditor's income for the year or a preceding taxation year

exceeds

(c) the amount, if any, claimed or deducted under paragraph 20(1)(n) or subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) or 44(1)(e)(iii), as the case may be, in respect of the particular property in computing the creditor's income or capital gain for the preceding taxation year or the amount by which the proceeds of disposition of the creditor of the particular property are reduced because of subsection (5) in respect of a disposition of the particular property by the creditor occurring before that time and in the year.

Related Provisions: 79.1(3) — Capital gains reserve; 79.1(4) — Inventory reserve.

(7) Treatment of debt — Where a property is seized at any time in a taxation year by a creditor in respect of a particular debt,

(a) the creditor shall be deemed to have disposed of the particular debt at that time;

(b) the amount received on account of the particular debt as a consequence of the seizure shall be deemed

(i) to be received at that time, and

(ii) to be equal to

(A) where the particular debt is capital property, the adjusted cost base to the creditor of the particular debt, and

(B) in any other case, the cost amount to the creditor of the particular debt;

(c) where any portion of the particular debt is outstanding immediately after that time, the creditor shall be deemed to have reacquired that portion immediately after that time at a cost equal to

(i) where the particular debt is capital property, nil, and

(ii) in any other case, the amount, if any, by which

(A) the cost amount to the creditor of the particular debt

exceeds

(B) the specified cost to the creditor of the particular debt; and

(d) where no portion of the particular debt is outstanding immediately after that time and the particular debt is not capital property, the creditor may deduct as a bad debt in computing the creditor's income for the year the amount described in subparagraph (c)(ii) in respect of the seizure.

Related Provisions: 79.1(8) — No deduction for principal amount of bad debt; 142.4(3)(a) — Disposition of specified debt obligation.

(8) Claims for debts — Where a property is seized at any time in a taxation year by a creditor in respect of a debt, no amount in respect of the debt

(a) is deductible in computing the creditor's income for the year or a subsequent taxation year as a bad, doubtful or impaired debt; or

(b) shall be included after that time in computing, for the purposes of this Act, any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts of the creditor as a bad, doubtful or impaired debt.

Related Provisions: 50(1)(a) — Deemed disposition of bad debt; 79.1(7)(d) — Deduction by creditor for bad debt.

History: Subsec. 79.1(8) amended by 1998, c. 19, s. 110, applicable

(a) to taxation years that end after September 1997; and

(b) to a taxpayer's taxation years that end after 1995 and before October 1997 where the taxpayer files an election in accordance with para. 81(11)(b).

The subsec. formerly read:

(8) Claims for bad and doubtful debts — Where a property is seized at any time in a taxation year by a creditor in respect of a debt, no amount in respect of the principal amount of the debt shall be

(a) deductible in computing the creditor's income for the year or a subsequent taxation year as a bad or doubtful debt; or

(b) included after that time in computing, for the purposes of this Act, any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts of the creditor as a bad or doubtful debt.

S. 79.1 added by 1995, c. 21, s. 26, applicable to property acquired or reacquired after February 21, 1994, other than property acquired or reacquired pursuant to a court order made before February 22, 1994.

Related Provisions: 80.04(1) — Definition applies to s. 80.04; 102(1) — Canadian partnership.

"excluded obligation" means an obligation issued by a debtor where

(a) the proceeds from the issue of the obligation

(i) were included in computing the debtor's income or, but for the expression "other than a prescribed amount" in paragraph 12(1)(x), would have been so included,

(ii) were deducted in computing, for the purposes of this Act, any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts, or

(iii) were deducted in computing the capital cost or cost amount to the debtor of any property of the debtor,

(b) an amount paid by the debtor in satisfaction of the entire principal amount of the obligation would be included in the amount determined under paragraph 28(1)(e) or section 30 in respect of the debtor,

(c) section 78 applies to the obligation, or

(d) the principal amount of the obligation would, if this Act were read without reference to sections 79 and 80 and the obligation were settled without any amount being paid in satisfaction of its principal amount, be included in computing the debtor's income because of the settlement of the obligation;

Related Provisions: 79(3)F(b)(iv) — Proceeds of disposition for debtor; 80(1)"forgiven amount"B(j) — Debt forgiveness rules do not apply to principal amount of excluded obligation; 80(2)(a) — Debt forgiveness rules do not apply to obligation settled as consideration for share described in para. (c).

"excluded property" means property of a non-resident debtor that is treaty-protected property or that is not taxable Canadian property;

Related Provisions: 111(9) — Losses ignored while taxpayer is non-resident.

History: The definition "excluded property" in subsec. 80(1) amended by 1999, c. 22, s. 21, applicable to 1998 et seq. The definition formerly read:

> "excluded property" at any time means property of a non-resident debtor that would not be taxable Canadian property of the debtor if it were disposed of at that time by the debtor;

"excluded security" issued by a corporation to a person as consideration for the settlement of a debt means

(a) a distress preferred share issued by the corporation to the person, or

(b) a share issued by the corporation to the person under the terms of the debt, where the debt was a bond, debenture or note listed on a designated stock exchange in Canada and the terms for the conversion to the share were not established or substantially modified after the later of February 22, 1994 and the time that the bond, debenture or note was issued;

History: Para. (b) of the definition "excluded security" in subsec. 80(1) amended to substitute "designated stock exchange" for "prescribed stock exchange" by 2007, c. 35, s. 21, applicable after December 13, 2007.

"forgiven amount" at any time in respect of a commercial obligation issued by a debtor is the amount determined by the formula

$$A - B$$

where

A is the lesser of the amount for which the obligation was issued and the principal amount of the obligation, and

B is the total of

(a) the amount, if any, paid at that time in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation,

(b) the amount, if any, included under paragraph 6(1)(a) or subsection 15(1) in computing the income of any person because of the settlement of the obligation at that time,

(c) the amount, if any, deducted at that time under paragraph 18(9.3)(f) in computing the forgiven amount in respect of the obligation,

(d) the capital gain, if any, of the debtor resulting from the application of subsection 39(3) to the purchase at that time of the obligation by the debtor,

(e) such portion of the principal amount of the obligation as relates to an amount renounced under subsection 66(10), (10.1), (10.2) or (10.3) by the debtor,

(f) any portion of the principal amount of the obligation that is included in the amount determined for A, B, C or D in subsection 79(3) in respect of the debtor for the taxation year of the debtor that includes that time or for a preceding taxation year,

(g) the total of all amounts each of which is a forgiven amount at a previous time that the obligation was deemed by subsection 80.01(8) or (9) to have been settled,

(h) such portion of the principal amount of the obligation as can reasonably be considered to have been included under section 80.4 in computing the debtor's income for a taxation year that includes that time or for a preceding taxation year,

(i) where the debtor is a bankrupt at that time, the principal amount of the obligation,

(j) such portion of the principal amount of the obligation as represents the principal amount of an excluded obligation,

(k) where the debtor is a partnership and the obligation was, since the later of the creation of the partnership or the issue of the obligation, always payable to a member of the partnership actively engaged, on a regular, continuous and substantial basis, in those activities of the partnership that are other than the financing of the partnership business, the principal amount of the obligation, and

(l) the amount, if any, given at or before that time by the debtor to another person as consideration for the assumption by the other person of the obligation;

"relevant loss balance" at a particular time for a commercial obligation and in respect of a debtor's non-capital loss, farm loss, restricted farm loss or net capital loss, as the case may be, for a particular taxation year means the amount of such loss that would be deductible in computing the debtor's taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada, as the case may be, for the taxation year that includes that time if

(a) the debtor had sufficient incomes from all sources and sufficient taxable capital gains,

(b) subsections (3) and (4) did not apply to reduce such loss at or after that time, and

(c) paragraph 111(4)(a) and subsection 111(5) did not apply to the debtor, except that, where the debtor is a corporation the control of which was acquired at a previous time by a person or group of persons and the particular year ended before the previous time, the relevant loss balance at the particular time for the obligation and in respect of such loss for the particular year shall be deemed to be nil unless

(d) the obligation was issued by the debtor before, and not in contemplation of, the acquisition of control, or

(e) all or substantially all of the proceeds from the issue of the obligation were used to satisfy the principal amount of another obligation to which paragraph (d) or this paragraph would apply if the other obligation were still outstanding;

Related Provisions: 80(15)(c)(iv)(B) — Application of para. (e) of definition where obligation issued by partnership; 80.04(4)(h)(ii) — Application of para. (e) of definition on agreement to transfer forgiven amount; 139.1(18) — Holding corporation deemed not to acquire control of insurer on demutualization; 256(6)–(9) — Whether control acquired; 256(8) — Deemed acquisition of shares.

"successor pool" at any time for a commercial obligation and in respect of an amount determined in relation to a debtor means the portion of that amount that would be deductible under subsection 66.7(2), (2.3), (3), (4) or (5), as the case may be, in computing the debtor's income for the taxation year that includes that time, if

(a) the debtor had sufficient incomes from all sources,

(b) subsection (8) did not apply to reduce the amount so determined at that time,

(c) the year ended immediately after that time, and

(d) paragraphs 66.7(2.3)(a), (4)(a) and (5)(a) were read without reference to the expressions "30% of", "30% of" and "10% of", respectively, except that the successor pool at that time for the obligation is deemed to be nil unless

(e) the obligation was issued by the debtor before, and not in contemplation of, the event described in paragraph (8)(a) that gives rise to the deductibility under subsection 66.7(2), (2.3), (3), (4) or (5), as the case may be, of all or part of that amount in computing the debtor's income, or

(f) all or substantially all of the proceeds from the issue of the obligation were used to satisfy the principal amount of another obligation to which paragraph (e) or this paragraph would apply if the other obligation were still outstanding;

Related Provisions: 80(15)(c)(iv)(B) — Application of para. (f) of definition where obligation issued by partnership; 80.04(4)(h)(ii) — Application of para. (f) of definition on agreement to transfer forgiven amount; 256(8) — Deemed acquisition of shares.

History: The portion of the definition "successor pool" in subsec. 80(1) before para. (f) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 58(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2000. The portion formerly read:

> "successor pool" at any time for a commercial obligation and in respect of an amount determined in relation to a debtor means such portion of that amount as would be deductible under subsection 66.7(2), (3), (4) or (5), as the case may be, in computing the debtor's income for the taxation year that includes that time, if
> (a) the debtor had sufficient incomes from all sources,
> (b) subsection (8) did not apply to reduce the amount so determined at that time,
> (c) the year ended immediately after that time, and
> (d) paragraphs 66.7(4)(a) and (5)(a) were read without reference to the expressions "30% of" and "10% of", respectively, > except that the successor pool at that time for the obligation shall be deemed to be nil unless
> (e) the obligation was issued by the debtor before, and not in contemplation of, the event described in paragraph (8)(a) that gives rise to the deductibility under subsection 66.7(2), (3), (4) or (5), as the case may be, of all or part of that amount in computing the debtor's income, or

"unrecognized loss" at a particular time, in respect of an obligation issued by a debtor, from the disposition of a property means the amount that would, but for subparagraph 40(2)(g)(ii), be a capital loss from the disposition by the debtor at or before the particular time of a debt or other right to receive an amount, except that where the debtor is a corporation the control of which was acquired before the particular time and after the time of the disposition by a person or group of persons, the unrecognized loss at the particular time in respect of the obligation is deemed to be nil unless

(a) the obligation was issued by the debtor before, and not in contemplation of, the acquisition of control, or

(b) all or substantially all of the proceeds from the issue of the obligation were used to satisfy the principal amount of another obligation to which paragraph (a) or this paragraph would apply if the other obligation were still outstanding.

(b) of definition on agreement to transfer forgiven amount; 87(2)(l.21) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation; 139.1(18) — Holding corporation deemed not to acquire control of insurer on demutualization; 256(6)–(9) — Whether control acquired; 256(8) — Deemed acquisition of shares.

History: The opening words of the definition "unrecognized loss" in subsec. 80(1) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 111(1), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994. The opening words formerly read:

> "unrecognized loss" at a particular time, in respect of an obligation issued by a debtor, from the disposition of a property means the amount that would, but for subparagraph 40(2)(g)(ii), be a capital loss from the disposition at or before the particular time of a debt or other right to receive an amount, except that where the debtor is a corporation the control of which was acquired before the particular time and after the time of the disposition by a person or group of persons, the unrecognized loss at the particular time in respect of the obligation shall be deemed to be nil unless

(2) Application of debt forgiveness rules — For the purposes of this section,

(a) [when obligation settled] — an obligation issued by a debtor is settled at any time where the obligation is settled or extinguished at that time (otherwise than by way of a bequest or inheritance or as consideration for the issue of a share described in paragraph (b) of the definition "excluded security" in subsection (1));

Related Provisions: 6(15) — Forgiveness of debt owing by employee — taxable benefit; 15(1.2) — Forgiveness of debt owing by shareholder — taxable benefit; 80.01(2)(a) — Application to s. 80.01; 80.01(3)–(9) — Deemed settlement of debts; 80.02(2)(c) — Meaning of "settled" for distress preferred share; 80.02(7)(a) — Deemed settlement where share ceases to be distress preferred share; 80.03(7)(b)(i) — Deemed settlement where amount designated; 80.04(3) — Application to s. 80.04; 80.04(4)(e) — Deemed settlement on agreement to transfer forgiven amount.

(b) [interest deemed to be obligation] — an amount of interest payable by a debtor in respect of an obligation issued by the debtor shall be deemed to be an obligation issued by the debtor that

(i) has a principal amount, and

(ii) was issued by the debtor for an amount, equal to the portion of the amount of such interest that was deductible or would, but for subsection 18(2) or (3.1) or section 21, have been deductible in computing the debtor's income for a taxation year;

Related Provisions: 6(15.1)(d), 15(1.21)(d) — 80(2)(b) ignored for employee and shareholder benefit purposes; 80.01(2)(a) — Application to s. 80.01; 80.04(3) — Application to s. 80.04.

(c) [ordering of rules] — subsections (3) to (5) and (7) to (13) apply in numerical order to the forgiven amount in respect of a commercial obligation;

Related Provisions: 80(15) — Deduction by member of partnership; 80.04(4)(b) — Transfer of forgiven amount to related person after maximum designations; 248(27)(b), (c) — Partial settlement of debt deemed to be proportional to entire amount.

(d) [applicable fraction] — the applicable fraction of the unapplied portion of a forgiven amount at any time in respect of an obligation issued by the debtor is in respect of a loss for any other taxation year[9], the fraction required to be used under section 38 for that year;

(e) [where applicable fraction reduces loss] — where an applicable fraction (as determined under paragraph (d)) of the unapplied portion of a forgiven amount is applied under subsection (4) to reduce at any time a loss for a taxation year, the portion of the forgiven amount so applied shall, except for the purpose of reducing the loss, be deemed to be the quotient obtained when the amount of the reduction is divided by the applicable fraction;

(f) [cumulative eligible capital] — where 3/4 of the unapplied portion of a forgiven amount is applied under subsection (7) to reduce cumulative eligible capital, except for the purpose of reducing the cumulative eligible capital, the portion of the forgiven amount so applied shall be deemed to be 4/3 of the amount of the reduction;

(g) [amount paid in satisfaction of debt] — where a corporation issues a share (other than an excluded security) to a person as consideration for the settlement of a debt issued by the corporation and payable to the person, the amount paid in satisfaction of the debt because of the issue of the share is deemed to be equal to the fair market value of the share at the time it was issued;

Related Provisions: 51(1) — Conversion of convertible debt into shares.

(g.1) [amount paid in satisfaction of debt] — where a debt issued by a corporation and payable to a person is settled at any time, the amount, if any, that can reasonably be considered to be the increase, as a consequence of the settlement of the debt, in the fair market value of shares of the capital stock of the corporation owned by the person (other than any shares acquired by the person as consideration for the settlement of the debt) is deemed to be an amount paid at that time in satisfaction of the debt;

(h) [debt replaced with debt] — where any part of the consideration given by a debtor to another person for the settlement at any time of a particular commercial debt obligation issued by the debtor and payable to the other person consists of a new commercial debt obligation issued by the debtor to the other person

(i) an amount equal to the principal amount of the new obligation shall be deemed to be paid by the debtor at that time, because of the issue of the new obligation, in satisfaction of the principal amount of the particular obligation, and

(ii) the new obligation shall be deemed to have been issued for an amount equal to the amount, if any, by which

(A) the principal amount of the new obligation

exceeds

(B) the amount, if any, by which the principal amount of the new obligation exceeds the amount for which the particular obligation was issued;

Related Provisions: 40(2)(e.2) — Limitation on capital loss; 80(2)(l) — Where debt replaced with debt to third party; 248(1)"principal amount" — Principal amount excludes amounts payable on account of interest.

I.T. Technical News: 15 (tax consequences of the adoption of the "euro" currency).

(i) [multiple debts settled] — where 2 or more commercial obligations issued by a debtor are settled at the same time, those obligations shall be treated as if they were settled at different times in the order designated by the debtor in a prescribed form filed with the debtor's return of income under this Part for the debtor's taxation year that includes that time or, if the debtor does not so designate any such order, in the order designated by the Minister;

Related Provisions: 220(3.21)(a) — Late filing, amendment or revocation of designation.

Forms: T2153: Designation under para. 80(2)(i) when two or more commercial obligations are settled at the same time.

(j) ["related" and "controlled"] — for the purpose of determining, at any time, whether 2 persons are related to each other or whether any person is controlled by any other person, it shall be assumed that

(i) each partnership and each trust is a corporation having a capital stock of a single class of voting shares divided into 100 issued shares,

(ii) each member of a partnership and each beneficiary under a trust owned at that time the number of issued shares of that class that is equal to the proportion of 100 that

(A) the fair market value at that time of the member's interest in the partnership or the beneficiary's interest in the trust, as the case may be

is of

(B) the fair market value at that time of all members' interests in the partnership or all beneficiaries' interests in the trust, as the case may be, and

(iii) where a beneficiary's share of the income or capital of a trust depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, any discretionary power, the fair market value at any time of the beneficiary's interest in the trust is equal to

(A) where the beneficiary is not entitled to receive or otherwise obtain the use of any of the income or capital of the trust before the death after that time of one or more other beneficiaries under the trust, nil, and

(B) in any other case, the total fair market value at that time of all beneficiaries' interests under the trust;

(k) [foreign currency obligation] — where an obligation is denominated in a currency (other than Canadian currency), the forgiven amount at any time in respect of the obligation shall be determined with reference to the relative value of that currency and Canadian currency at the time the obligation was issued;

Related Provisions: 79(7) — Parallel rule re proceeds of disposition where property surrendered to creditor; 80.01(11) — Debt parking and statute-barred debt rules ignored where currency fluctuates; 261(2)(b) — 80(2)(k) overrides general currency conversion rules; 261(5)(c), (f)(i), 261(9)(b), 261(13)(b) — Effect of functional currency reporting.

(l) [debt replaced with debt to third party] — where an amount is paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of a particular commercial obligation issued by a debtor and, as a consequence of the payment, the debtor is legally obliged to pay that amount to another person, the obligation to pay that amount to the other person shall be deemed to be a commercial obligation that was issued by the debtor at the same time and in the same circumstances as the particular obligation;

Related Provisions: 80(2)(h) — Where debt replaced with new debt; 80.01(2)(a) — Application to s. 80.01.

(m) [amount reducible only to zero] — for greater certainty, the amount that can be applied under this section to reduce another amount may not exceed that other amount;

Related Provisions: 257 — Formulas cannot calculate to less than zero.

(n) [where debt owed by partnership] — except for the purposes of this paragraph, where

(i) a commercial debt obligation issued by a debtor is settled at any time,

(ii) the debtor is at that time a member of a partnership, and

(iii) the obligation was, under the agreement governing the obligation, treated immediately before that time as a debt owed by the partnership, the obligation shall be considered to have been issued by the partnership and not by the debtor;

(o) [where joint liability for debt] — notwithstanding paragraph (n), where a commercial debt obligation for which a particular person is jointly liable with one or more other persons is settled at any time in respect of the particular person but not in respect of all of the other persons, the portion of the obligation that can reasonably be considered to be the particular person's share of the obligation shall be considered to have been issued by the particular person and settled at that time and not at any subsequent time;

Proposed Amendment — 80(2)(o)

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 3 — bijuralism), s. 229, will amend para. 80(2)(o) by adding commas before and after, and deleting the word "jointly" from, the phrase "for which a particular person is jointly liable with one or more other persons", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

(p) [death of debtor] — a commercial debt obligation issued by an individual that is outstanding at the time of the individual's death and settled at a subsequent time shall, if the estate of the individual was liable for the obligation immediately before the subsequent time, be deemed to have been issued by the estate at the same time and in the same circumstances as the obligation was issued by the individual; and Related Provisions: 80(2)(q) — Where debt settled within 6 months of death.

(q) [death of debtor] — where a commercial debt obligation issued by an individual would, but for this paragraph, be settled at any time in the period ending 6 months after the death of an individual (or within such longer period as is acceptable to the Minister and the estate of the individual) and the estate of the individual was liable immediately before that time for the obligation

(i) the obligation shall be deemed to have been settled at the beginning of the day on which the individual died and not at that time,

(ii) any amount paid at that time by the estate in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation shall be deemed to have been paid at the beginning of the day on which the individual died,

(iii) any amount given by the estate at or before that time to another person as consideration for assumption by the other person of the obligation shall be deemed to have been given at the beginning of the day on which the individual died, and

(iv) paragraph (b) shall not apply in respect of the settlement to interest that accrues within that period, except that this paragraph does not apply in circumstances in which any amount is because of the settlement included under paragraph 6(1)(a) or subsection 15(1) in computing the income of any person or in which section 79 applies in respect of the obligation.

Related Provisions: 6(15.1)(d), 15(1.21)(d) — 80(2)(q) ignored for employee and shareholder benefit purposes; 80(2)(p) — Where debt not settled within 6 months of death.

History: Para. 80(2)(d) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 58(2), applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000. The para. formerly read:

(d) [applicable fraction] — the applicable fraction of the unapplied portion of a forgiven amount at any time in respect of an obligation issued by a debtor is

(i) in respect of a loss for a taxation year that ends after 1989, ¾,

(ii) in respect of a loss for a taxation year that ended before 1988, ½, and

(iii) in respect of a loss for any other taxation year, the fraction required to be used under section 38 for that year;

Para. 80(2)(g) amended and para. (g.1) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 111(2), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994. Para. (g) formerly read:

(g) the amount paid in satisfaction of a debt issued by a corporation and payable to a person shall

(i) where any part of the consideration given to the person for the settlement of the debt consists of a share (other than an excluded security) issued by the corporation to the person, be deemed to be equal to the total of

(A) the fair market value of the share at the time it was issued, and

(B) the amount, if any, that can reasonably be considered to be the increase, as a consequence of the settlement of the debt, in the fair market value of other shares of the capital stock of the corporation owned by the person, and

(ii) in any other case, be deemed to include the amount described in clause (i)(B);

(3) Reductions of non-capital losses — Where a commercial obligation issued by a debtor is settled at any time, the forgiven amount at that time in respect of the obligation shall be applied to reduce at that time, in the following order,

(a) the debtor's non-capital loss for each taxation year that ended before that time to the extent that the amount so applied

(i) does not exceed the amount (in subsection (4) referred to as the debtor's "ordinary non-capital loss at that time for the year") that would be the relevant loss balance at that time for the obligation and in respect of the debtor's non-capital loss for the year if the description of E in the definition "non-capital loss" in subsection 111(8) were read without reference to the expression "the taxpayer's allowable business investment loss for the year", and

(ii) does not, because of this subsection, reduce the debtor's non-capital loss for a preceding taxation year;

(b) the debtor's farm loss for each taxation year that ended before that time, to the extent that the amount so applied

(i) does not exceed the amount that is the relevant loss balance at that time for the obligation and in respect of the debtor's farm loss for the year, and

(ii) does not, because of this subsection, reduce the debtor's farm loss for a preceding taxation year; and

(c) the debtor's restricted farm loss for each taxation year that ended before that time, to the extent that the amount so applied

(i) does not exceed the amount that is the relevant loss balance at that time for the obligation and in respect of the debtor's restricted farm loss for the year, and

(ii) does not, because of this subsection, reduce the debtor's restricted farm loss for a preceding taxation year.

Related Provisions: 31(1.1)(b) — Reduction in restricted farm loss; 80(2)(c) — Order of application of rules; 80(2)(m) — Reduction cannot exceed the amount of losses; 80(4)(a) — Reduction of allowable business investment loss carryforward; 111(8)"farm loss"C — Reduction in farm loss; 111(8)"non-capital loss"D.2 — Reduction in non-capital loss.

(4) Reductions of capital losses — Where a commercial obligation issued by a debtor is settled at any time, the applicable fraction of the remaining unapplied portion of a forgiven amount at that time in respect of the obligation shall be applied to reduce at that time, in the following order,

(a) the debtor's non-capital loss for each taxation year that ended before that time to the extent that the amount so applied

(i) does not exceed the amount, if any, by which

(A) the relevant loss balance at that time for the obligation and in respect of the debtor's non-capital loss for the year

exceeds

(B) the debtor's ordinary non-capital loss (within the meaning assigned by subparagraph (3)(a)(i)) at that time for the year, and

(ii) does not, because of this subsection, reduce the debtor's non-capital loss for a preceding taxation year; and

(b) the debtor's net capital loss for each taxation year that ended before that time, to the extent that the amount so applied

(i) does not exceed the relevant loss balance at that time for the obligation and in respect of the debtor's net capital loss for the year, and

(ii) does not, because of this subsection, reduce the debtor's net capital loss for a preceding taxation year.

Related Provisions: 80(2)(c) — Order of application of rules; 80(2)(e) — Determination of applicable fraction; 80(2)(m) — Reduction cannot exceed the amount of losses; 111(8)"net capital loss"D — Reduction in net capital loss; 111(8)"non-capital loss"D.2 — Reduction in non-capital loss.

(5) Reductions with respect to depreciable property — Where a commercial obligation issued by a debtor is settled at any time, the remaining unapplied portion of the forgiven amount at that time in respect of the obligation shall be applied, in such manner as is designated by the debtor in a prescribed form filed with the debtor's return of income under this Part for the taxation year that includes that time, to reduce immediately after that time the following amounts:

(a) the capital cost to the debtor of a depreciable property that is owned by the debtor immediately after that time; and

(b) the undepreciated capital cost to the debtor of depreciable property of a prescribed class immediately after that time.

Related Provisions: 13(7.1)(g) — Reduction in capital cost of depreciable property; 13(21)"undepreciated capital cost"E.1 — Reduction in undepreciated capital cost; 80(2)(c) — Order of application of rules; 80(2)(m) — Reduction cannot exceed the capital cost or u.c.c.; 80(6) — Restriction with respect to depreciable property; 80(13)D(a) — Income inclusion of remaining balance; 80(16) — Designation by CRA where debtor fails to designate; 80.04(4)(b) — Transfer of forgiven amount after maximum designations; 96(3) — Designation by members of partnership; 220(3.21)(a) — Late filing, amendment or revocation of designation.

Regulations: 1105 (prescribed classes of depreciable property).

Forms: T2153: Designation under para. 80(2)(i) when two or more commercial obligations are settled at the same time; T2154: Application of designated forgiven debt under s. 80.

(6) Restriction with respect to depreciable property — Where a commercial obligation issued by a debtor is settled at any time,

(a) an amount may be applied under subsection (5) to reduce, immediately after that time, the capital cost to the debtor of a depreciable property of a prescribed class only to the extent that

(i) the undepreciated capital cost to the debtor of depreciable property of that class at that time

exceeds

(ii) the total of all other reductions immediately after that time to that undepreciated capital cost; and

(b) an amount may be applied under subsection (5) to reduce, immediately after that time, the capital cost to the debtor of a depreciable property (other than a depreciable property of a prescribed class) only to the extent that

(i) the capital cost to the debtor of the property at that time

exceeds

(ii) the amount that was allowed to the debtor before that time under Part XVII of the Income Tax Regulations in respect of the property.

Regulations: 1105 (prescribed classes of depreciable property).

(7) Reductions of cumulative eligible capital — Where a commercial obligation issued by a debtor is settled at any time, 3/4 of the remaining unapplied portion of the forgiven amount at that time in respect of the obligation shall be applied (to the extent designated in a prescribed form filed with the debtor's return of income under this Part for the taxation year that includes that time) to reduce immediately after that time the cumulative eligible capital of the debtor in respect of each business of the debtor (or, where the debtor is at that time non-resident, in respect of each business carried on in Canada by the debtor).

Related Provisions: 14(5)"cumulative eligible capital"F:P.1 — Reduction in cumulative eligible capital; 80(2)(c) — Order of application of rules; 80(2)(f) — Rule where cumulative eligible capital reduced; 80(2)(m) — Reduction cannot exceed the amount of cumulative eligible capital; 80(13)D(a) — Income inclusion of remaining balance; 80(16) — Designation by CRA where debtor fails to designate; 80.04(4)(b) — Transfer of forgiven amount after maximum designations; 220(3.21)(a) — Late filing, amendment or revocation of designation; 253 — Extended meaning of carrying on business in Canada.

Forms: T2153: Designation under para. 80(2)(i) when two or more commercial obligations are settled at the same time; T2154: Application of designated forgiven debt under s. 80.

(8) Reductions of resource expenditures — Where a commercial obligation issued by a debtor is settled at any time, the remaining unapplied portion of the forgiven amount at that time in respect of the obligation shall be applied (to the extent designated in a prescribed form filed with the debtor's return of income under this Part for the taxation year that includes that time) to reduce immediately after that time the following amounts:

(a) where the debtor is a corporation resident in Canada throughout that year, each particular amount that would be determined in respect of the debtor under paragraph 66.7(2)(a), (2.3)(a), (3)(a), (4)(a) or (5)(a) if paragraphs 66.7(2.3)(a), (4)(a) and (5)(a) were read without reference to the expressions "30% of", "30% of" and "10% of", respectively, as a consequence of the acquisition of control of the debtor by a person or group of persons, the debtor ceasing to be exempt from tax under this Part on its taxable income or the acquisition of properties by the debtor by way of an amalgamation or merger, where the amount so applied does not exceed the successor pool immediately after that time for the obligation and in respect of the particular amount;

(b) the cumulative Canadian exploration expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.1(6)) of the debtor;

(c) the cumulative Canadian development expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.2(5)) of the debtor;

(d) the cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.4(5)) of the debtor;

(e) the total determined under paragraph 66(4)(a) in respect of the debtor, where

(i) the debtor is resident in Canada throughout that year, and

(ii) the amount so applied does not exceed such portion of the total of the debtor's foreign exploration and development expenses (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66(15)) as were incurred by the debtor before that time and would be deductible under subsection 66(4) in computing the debtor's income for that year if the debtor had sufficient income described in subparagraph 66(4)(b)(ii) and if that year ended at that time; and

(f) the cumulative foreign resource expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.21(1)) of the debtor in respect of a country.

Related Provisions: 66(4)(a)(iii) — Reduction in claim for FEDE; 66.1(6)"cumulative Canadian exploration expense"J.1 — Reduction in CCEE; 66.2(5)"cumulative Canadian development expense"M.1 — Reduction in CCDE; 66.21(1)"cumulative foreign resource expense"I; 66.4(5)"cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense"I.1 — Reduction in CCOGPE; 66.7(2)(a)(ii), 66.7(3)(a)(ii), 66.7(4)(a)(iv), 66.7(5)(a)(iii) — Reductions in successor pools; 80(2)(c) — Order of application of rules; 80(2)(m) — Reduction cannot exceed resource expenditures reduced; 80(13)D(a) — Income inclusion of remaining balance; 80(16) — Designation by CRA where debtor fails to designate; 80.04(4)(b) — Transfer of forgiven amount after maximum designations; 139.1(18) — Holding corporation deemed not to acquire control of insurer on demutualization; 220(3.21)(a) — Late filing, amendment or revocation of designation; 256(6)–(9) — Whether control acquired.

History: Para. 80(8)(a) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 58(3), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2000. The para. formerly read:

(a) where the debtor is a corporation resident in Canada throughout that year, each particular amount that would be determined in respect of the debtor under paragraph 66.7(2)(a), (3)(a), (4)(a) or (5)(a) if paragraphs 66.7(4)(a) and (5)(a) were read without reference to the expressions "30% of" and "10% of", respectively, as a consequence of the acquisition of control of the debtor by a person or group of persons, the debtor ceasing to be exempt from tax under this Part on its taxable income or the acquisition of properties by the debtor by way of an amalgamation or merger, where the amount so applied does not exceed the successor pool immediately after that time for the obligation and in respect of the particular amount;

Para. 80(8)(f) added by the said c. 17, subsec. 58(4), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2000.

(9) Reductions of adjusted cost bases of capital properties — Where a commercial obligation issued by a debtor is settled at any time and amounts have been designated under subsections (5), (7) and (8) to the maximum extent permitted in respect of the settlement, subject to subsection (18)

(a) the remaining unapplied portion of the forgiven amount at that time in respect of the obligation shall be applied (to the extent designated in a prescribed form filed with the debtor's return of income under this Part for the taxation year that includes that time) to reduce immediately after that time the adjusted cost bases to the debtor of capital properties (other than shares of the capital stock of corporations of which the debtor is a specified shareholder at that time, debts issued by corporations of which the debtor is a specified shareholder at that time, interests in partnerships that are related to the debtor at that time, depreciable property that is not of a prescribed class, personal-use properties and excluded properties) that are owned by the debtor immediately after that time;

(b) an amount may be applied under this subsection to reduce, immediately after that time, the capital cost to the debtor of a depreciable property of a prescribed class only to the extent that

(i) the capital cost immediately after that time to the debtor of the property (determined without reference to the settlement of the obligation at that time)

exceeds

(ii) its capital cost immediately after that time to the debtor for the purposes of paragraphs 8(1)(j) and (p), sections 13 and 20 and any regulations made for the purpose of paragraph 20(1)(a) (determined without reference to the settlement of the obligation at that time); and

(c) for the purposes of paragraphs 8(1)(j) and (p), sections 13 and 20 and any regulations made for the purpose of paragraph 20(1)(a), no amount shall be considered to have been applied under this subsection.

Forms: T2153: Designation under para. 80(2)(i) when two or more commercial obligations are settled at the same time; T2154: Application of designated forgiven debt under s. 80.

(10) Reduction of adjusted cost bases of certain shares and debts — Where a commercial obligation issued by a debtor is settled at any time in a taxation year and amounts have been designated by the debtor under subsections (5), (7), (8) and (9) to the maximum extent permitted in respect of the settlement, subject to subsection (18) the remaining unapplied portion of that forgiven amount shall be applied (to the extent that it is designated in a prescribed form filed with the debtor's return of income under this Part for the year) to reduce immediately after that time the adjusted cost bases to the debtor of capital properties, owned by the debtor immediately after that time, that are shares of the capital stock of corporations of which the debtor is a specified shareholder at that time and debts issued by corporations of which the debtor is a specified shareholder at that time (other than shares of the capital stock of corporations related to the debtor at that time, debts issued by corporations related to the debtor at that time and excluded properties).

Related Provisions: 53(2)(g.1) — Reduction in ACB; 80(2)(c) — Order of application of rules; 80(2)(m) — Reduction cannot exceed the ACB; 80(11) — Reduction of ACB of certain shares, debt and partnership interests; 80(13)D(a) — Income inclusion of remaining balance; 80(16) — Designation by CRA where debtor fails to designate; 80(18) — Limitation on designation by partnership; 80.04(4)(b) — Transfer of forgiven amount after maximum designations; 96(3) — Designation by partners; 220(3.21)(a) — Late filing, amendment or revocation of designation.

Forms: T2153: Designation under para. 80(2)(i) when two or more commercial obligations are settled at the same time; T2154: Application of designated forgiven debt under s. 80.

(11) Reduction of adjusted cost bases of certain shares, debts and partnership interests — Where a commercial obligation issued by a debtor is settled at any time in a taxation year and amounts have been designated by the debtor under subsections (5), (7), (8), (9) and (10) to the maximum extent permitted in respect of the settlement, subject to subsection (18) the remaining unapplied portion of that forgiven amount shall be applied (to the extent that it is designated in a prescribed form filed with the debtor's return of income under this Part for the year) to reduce immediately after that time the adjusted cost bases to the debtor of

(a) shares and debts that are capital properties (other than excluded properties and properties the adjusted cost bases of which are reduced at that time under subsection (9) or (10)) of the debtor immediately after that time; and

(b) interests in partnerships that are related to the debtor at that time that are capital properties (other than excluded properties) of the debtor immediately after that time.

Related Provisions: 53(2)(g.1) — Reduction in ACB; 80(2)(c) — Order of application of rules; 80(2)(m) — Reduction cannot exceed the ACB; 80(13)B(a) — Income inclusion where reductions in ACB are excessive; 80(16) — Designation by CRA where debtor fails to designate; 80(18) — Limitation on designation by partnership; 80.03 — Gains on subsequent dispositions; 96(3) — Designation by partners; 220(3.21)(a) — Late filing, amendment or revocation of designation.

Forms: T2153: Designation under para. 80(2)(i) when two or more commercial obligations are settled at the same time; T2154: Application of designated forgiven debt under s. 80.

(12) Capital gain where current year capital loss — Where a commercial obligation issued by a debtor (other than a partnership) is settled at any time in a taxation year and amounts have been designated by the debtor under subsections (5), (7), (8) and (9) to the maximum extent permitted in respect of the settlement,

(a) the debtor shall be deemed to have a capital gain for the year from the disposition of capital property (or, where the debtor is non-resident at the end of the year, taxable Canadian property), equal to the lesser of

(i) the remaining unapplied portion of the forgiven amount at that time in respect of the obligation, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which the total of

(A) all of the debtor's capital losses for the year from the dispositions of properties (other than listed personal properties and excluded properties), and

(B) twice the amount that would, because of subsection 88(1.2), be deductible under paragraph 111(1)(b) in computing the debtor's taxable income for the year, if the debtor had sufficient income and taxable capital gains for the year,

exceeds the total of

(C) all of the debtor's capital gains for the year from the dispositions of such properties (determined without reference to this subsection), and

(D) all amounts each of which is an amount deemed by this subsection to be a capital gain of the debtor for the year as a consequence of the application of this subsection to other commercial obligations settled before that time; and

(b) the forgiven amount at that time in respect of the obligation shall be considered to have been applied under this subsection to the extent of the amount deemed by this subsection to be a capital gain of the debtor for the year as a consequence of the application of this subsection to the settlement of the obligation at that time.

Related Provisions: 80(2)(c) — Order of application of rules.

History: Cl. 80(12)(a)(ii)(B) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 58(5) to replace the expression "4/3 of" with the word "twice", applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000 except that, for a taxation year of a debtor that includes February 28, 2000 or October 17, 2000, or began after February 28, 2000 and ended before October 17, 2000, the reference to the word "twice" shall be read as a reference to the expression "the fraction that is the reciprocal of the fraction in para. 38(a), as amended by 2001, c. 17, that applies to the debtor for the year, multiplied by".

(13) Income inclusion — Where a commercial obligation issued by a debtor is settled at any time in a taxation year, there shall be added, in computing the debtor's income for the year from the source in connection with which the obligation was issued, the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the remaining unapplied portion of the forgiven amount at that time in respect of the obligation,

B is the lesser of

(a) the total of all amounts designated under subsection (11) by the debtor in respect of the settlement of the obligation at that time, and

(b) the residual balance at that time in respect of the settlement of the obligation,

C is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount specified in an agreement filed under section 80.04 in respect of the settlement of the obligation at that time,

(a) where the debtor has designated amounts under subsections (5), (7), (8), (9) and (10) to the maximum extent permitted in respect of the settlement, the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is an unrecognized loss at that time, in respect of the obligation, from the disposition of a property

exceeds

(ii) twice the total of all amounts each of which is an amount by which the amount determined before that time under this subsection in respect of a settlement of an obligation issued by the debtor has been reduced because of an amount determined under this paragraph, and

(b) in any other case, nil, and

(a) where the debtor is a partnership, 1, and

(b) in any other case, 1/2.

(14) Residual balance — For the purpose of subsection (13), the residual balance at any time in a taxation year in respect of the settlement of a particular commercial obligation issued by a debtor is the amount, if any, by which

(a) the gross tax attributes of directed persons at that time in respect of the debtor

exceeds the total of

(b) the value of A in subsection (13) in respect of the settlement of the particular obligation at that time,

(c) all amounts each of which is

(i) the amount, if any, by which the value of A in subsection (13) in respect of a settlement before that time and in the year of a commercial obligation issued by the debtor exceeds the value of C in that subsection in respect of the settlement,

(ii) the value of A in subsection (13) in respect of a settlement of a commercial obligation that is deemed by paragraph 80.04(4)(e) to have been issued by a directed person in respect of the debtor because of the filing of an agreement under section 80.04 in respect of a settlement before that time and in the year of a commercial obligation issued by the debtor, or

(iii) the amount specified in an agreement (other than an agreement with a directed person in respect of the debtor) filed under section 80.04 in respect of the settlement before that time and in the year of a commercial obligation issued by the debtor, and

(d) all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a settlement at a particular time before that time and in the year of a commercial obligation issued by the debtor equal to the least of

(i) the total of all amounts designated under subsection (11) in respect of the settlement,

(ii) the residual balance of the debtor at the particular time, and

(iii) the amount, if any, by which the sum of the values of A and B in subsection (13) in respect of the settlement exceeds the value of C in that subsection in respect of the settlement.

Related Provisions: 80(14.1) — Meaning of "gross tax attributes".

History: Subsec. 80(14) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 111(4), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994. The subsec. formerly read:

(14) For the purpose of subsection (13), the residual balance at any time in a taxation year in respect of the settlement of a particular commercial obligation issued by a debtor is the amount, if any, by which the total of

(a) all amounts each of which is an amount that would be applied under any of subsections (3) to (10) and (12) in respect of the settlements of separate commercial obligations issued by directed persons at that time in respect of the debtor if

(i) those obligations were issued at that time by those directed persons and were settled immediately after that time,

(ii) an amount equal to the forgiven amount at that time in respect of the particular obligation were the forgiven amount immediately after that time in respect of each of those obligations,

(iii) amounts were designated under subsections (5), (7), (8), (9) and (10) by those directed persons to the maximum extent permitted in respect of the settlement of each of those obligations, and

(iv) no amounts were designated under subsection (11) by any of those directed persons in respect of the settlement of any of those obligations, and

(b) where the debtor is a partnership, all amounts each of which is ¼ of an amount deducted because of paragraph (c) or (d) in computing the residual balance at that time in respect of the settlement of the particular obligation,

exceeds the total of

(c) all amounts each of which is ⅔ of the amount that would be included under subsection (13) in computing the debtor's income for the year in respect of the settlement at or before that time of a commercial obligation issued by the debtor if the amounts determined for B and D in subsection (13) were nil,

(d) all amounts each of which is ⅔ of an amount that would, if the amount determined for D in subsection (13) were nil, be included under subsection (13) in computing the income of any of those directed persons in respect of the settlement of an obligation that is deemed by paragraph 80.04(4)(e) to have been issued by the directed person because of the filing of an agreement under section 80.04 in respect of the settlement at or before that time and in the year of a commercial obligation issued by the debtor,

(e) all amounts each of which is an amount specified in an agreement (other than an agreement with any of those directed persons) filed under section 80.04 in respect of the settlement at or before that time and in the year of a commercial obligation issued by the debtor, and

(f) all amounts each of which is the lesser of

(i) the total of all amounts designated under subsection (11) in respect of the settlement before that time and in the year of another commercial obligation issued by the debtor, and

(ii) the residual balance of the debtor at that previous time.

(14.1) Gross tax attributes — The gross tax attributes of directed persons at any time in respect of a debtor means the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that would be applied under any of subsections (3) to (10) and (12) in respect of a settlement of a separate commercial obligation (in this subsection referred to as a "notional obligation") issued by directed persons at that time in respect of the debtor if the following assumptions were made:

(a) a notional obligation was issued immediately before that time by each of those directed persons and was settled at that time;

(b) the forgiven amount at that time in respect of each of those notional obligations was equal to the total of all amounts each of which is a forgiven amount at or before that time and in the year in respect of a commercial obligation issued by the debtor;

(c) amounts were designated under subsections (5), (7), (8), (9) and (10) by each of those directed persons to the maximum extent permitted in respect of the settlement of each of those notional obligations; and

(d) no amounts were designated under subsection (11) by any of those directed persons in respect of the settlement of any of the notional obligations.

History: Subsec. 80(14.1) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 111(4), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994.

(15) Members of partnerships — Where a commercial debt obligation issued by a partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "partnership obligation") is settled at any time in a fiscal period of the partnership that ends in a taxation year of a member of the partnership,

(a) the member may deduct, in computing the member's income for the year, such amount as the member claims not exceeding the relevant limit in respect of the partnership obligation;

(b) for the purpose of paragraph (a), the relevant limit in respect of the partnership obligation is the amount that would be included in computing the member's income for the year as a consequence of the application of subsection (13) and section 96 to the settlement of the partnership obligation if the partnership had designated amounts under subsections (5), (7), (8), (9) and (10) to the maximum extent permitted in respect of each obligation settled in that fiscal period and if income arising from the application of subsection (13) were from a source of income separate from any other sources of partnership income; and

(c) for the purposes of this section and section 80.04,

(i) the member shall be deemed to have issued a commercial debt obligation that was settled at the end of that fiscal period,

(ii) the amount deducted under paragraph (a) in respect of the partnership obligation in computing the member's income shall be treated as if it were the forgiven amount at the end of that fiscal period in respect of the obligation referred to in subparagraph (i),

(iii) subject to subparagraph (iv), the obligation referred to in subparagraph (i) shall be deemed to have been issued at the same time at which, and in the same circumstances in which, the partnership obligation was issued,

(iv) where the member is a corporation the control of which was acquired at a particular time that is before the end of that fiscal period and before the corporation became a member of the partnership and the partnership obligation was issued before the particular time,

(A) subject to the application of this subparagraph to an acquisition of control of the corporation after the particular time and before the end of that fiscal period, the obligation referred to in subparagraph (i) shall be deemed to have been issued by the member after the particular time, and

(B) paragraph (e) of the definition "relevant loss balance" in subsection (1), paragraph (f) of the definition "successor pool" in that subsection and paragraph (b) of the definition "unrecognized loss" in that subsection do not apply in respect of that acquisition of control, and

(v) the source in connection with which the obligation referred to in subparagraph (i) was issued shall be deemed to be the source in connection with which the partnership obligation was issued.

Related Provisions: 4(1) — Income from a source; 20(1)(uu) — Deduction for amount allowed under para. 80(15)(a); 61.2:A(b) — Effect of para. 80(15)(a) on reserve for individuals; 61.2:A(b), 61.3(1)(a)(ii), 61.3(2)(a)(ii), 61.4(a)A(ii) — Reserve in respect of debt forgiven; 80(1) — "Person" includes a partnership; 80(2)(n) — Commercial debt obligation issued by partner — deemed issued by partnership; 80(13)E(a) — Income inclusion where debtor is partnership; 80(14)(b) — Residual balance where debtor is partnership; 80(18) — Limitation on designation by partnership; 96(3) — Designation by partners; 139.1(18) — Holding corporation deemed not to acquire control of insurer on demutualization; 256(6)–(9) — Whether control acquired; 256(8) — Deemed acquisition of shares.

(16) Designations by Minister — Where a commercial obligation issued by a debtor is settled at any time in a taxation year and, as a consequence of the settlement an amount would, but for this subsection, be deducted under section 61.2 or 61.3 in computing the debtor's income for the year and the debtor has not designated amounts under subsections (5) to (11) to the maximum extent possible in respect of the settlement,

(a) the Minister may designate amounts under subsections (5) to (11) to the extent that the debtor would have been permitted to designate those amounts; and

(b) the amounts designated by the Minister shall, except for the purpose of this subsection, be deemed to have been designated by the debtor as required by subsections (5) to (11).

(17) [Repealed]

History: Subsec. 80(17) repealed by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 111(5), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994. The subsec. formerly read:

(17) Income inclusion where residual balance a positive amount — Where a commercial obligation issued by a corporation is settled at any time in a taxation year and, as a consequence of the settlement an amount is deducted under section 61.3 in computing the corporation's income for the year, unless the corporation has commenced to wind up on or before the day that is 12 months after the end of the year there shall be added in computing the corporation's income for the year from the source in connection with which the obligation was issued 50% of the lesser of

(a) the total of all amounts designated under subsection (11) by the corporation in respect of the settlement of the obligation at that time, and

(b) the amount, if any, by which the lesser of

(i) the residual balance (within the meaning assigned by subsection (14)) of the corporation at that time in respect of the settlement of the obligation, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which the amount deducted under section 61.3 in computing the corporation's income for the year exceeds the amount, if any, deducted because of paragraph 37(1)(f.1) in determining the balance determined under subsection 37(1) in respect of the corporation after the year because of an amount deducted under section 61.3 in computing the corporation's income for the year exceeds the total of all amounts included because of this subsection in computing the corporation's income for the year in respect of a settlement before that time of a commercial obligation issued by the corporation.

(18) Partnership designations — Where a commercial obligation issued by a partnership is settled at any time after December 20, 1994, the amount designated under subsection (9), (10) or (11) in respect of the settlement by the partnership to reduce the adjusted cost base of a capital property acquired shall not exceed the amount, if any, by which the adjusted cost base at that time to the partnership of the property exceeds the fair market value at that time of the property.

History [s. 80]: S. 80 substituted by 1995, c. 21, s. 27, applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994, except that

(a) the amended section does not, other than for the purposes of subsections 6(15) and (15.1) and 15(1.2) and (1.21) and section 79, apply to any obligation settled or extinguished

(i) before February 22, 1994,

(ii) after February 21, 1994

(A) under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into on or before that date, or

(B) under the terms of any amendment to such an agreement, where that amendment was entered into in writing before July 12, 1994 and the amount of the settlement or extinguishment was not substantially greater than the settlement or extinguishment provided under the terms of the agreement,

(iii) before 1996 pursuant to a restructuring of debt in connection with a proceeding commenced in a court in Canada before February 22, 1994,

(iv) before 1996 in connection with a proposal (or notice of intention to make a proposal) that was filed under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act, or similar legislation of a country other than Canada, before February 22, 1994, or

(v) before 1996 in connection with a written offer that was made by, or communicated to, the holder of the obligation before February 22, 1994;

(b) in its application with respect to interest accruing before July 14, 1990, the words "was deductible" in paragraph 80(2)(b), shall be read as "was deducted"; and

(c) a form referred to in section 80 shall be deemed to have been filed on a timely basis if it is filed with the Minister of National Revenue before 1996.

Subsec. 80(4) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), s. 58, applicable to interest in respect of debts or other obligations settled or extinguished after May 9, 1985, except that, in its application to interest accruing before July 14, 1990, the subsec. shall be read as follows:

(4) For the purposes of subsections (1) and (3), an amount of interest in respect of a debt or other obligation of a taxpayer shall be deemed to be a debt or other obligation issued by the taxpayer that

(a) has a principal amount, and

(b) was issued by the taxpayer for an amount, equal to the portion of the amount of the interest that was deducted, or would, but for subsection 18(2) or (3.1) or section 21, be deductible, in computing the taxpayer's income under this Part for a taxation year.

Subsec. (4) formerly read:

(4) Principal for interest payable — For the purposes of subsections (1) and (3), an amount of interest payable by a taxpayer on a debt or other obligation shall be deemed to have a principal amount equal to the portion thereof that was deducted, or would, but for subsection 18(2) or (3.1) or section 21, have been deductible, in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year under this Part.

80.01 (1) Definitions — In this section,

"commercial debt obligation" has the meaning assigned by subsection 80(1);

"commercial obligation" has the meaning assigned by subsection 80(1);

"debtor" has the meaning assigned by subsection 80(1);

"distress preferred share" has the meaning assigned by subsection 80(1);

"forgiven amount" has the meaning assigned by subsection 80(1) except that, where an amount would be included in computing a person's income under paragraph 6(1)(a) or subsection 15(1) as a consequence of the settlement of an obligation if the obligation were settled without any payment being made in satisfaction of its principal amount, "forgiven amount" in respect of that obligation has the meaning assigned by subsection 6(15.1) or 15(1.21), as the case may be;

"person" has the meaning assigned by subsection 80(1);

"specified cost" at any time to a person of an obligation means,

(a) where the obligation is capital property of the person at that time, the adjusted cost base at that time to the person of the obligation, and

(b) in any other case, the cost amount to the person of the obligation.

(2) Application — For the purposes of this section,

(a) paragraphs 80(2)(a), (b), (j), (l) and (n) apply; and

(b) a person has a significant interest in a corporation at any time if the person owned at that time

(i) shares of the capital stock of the corporation that would give the person 25% or more of the votes that could be cast under all circumstances at an annual meeting of shareholders of the corporation, or

(ii) shares of the capital stock of the corporation having a fair market value of 25% or more of the fair market value of all the issued shares of the capital stock of the corporation and, for the purposes of this paragraph, a person shall be deemed to own at any time each share of the capital stock of a corporation that is owned, otherwise than because of this paragraph, at that time by another person with whom the person does not deal at arm's length.

(3) Deemed settlement on amalgamation — Where a commercial obligation or another obligation (in this subsection referred to as the "indebtedness") of a debtor that is a corporation to pay an amount to another corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "creditor") is settled on an amalgamation of the debtor and the creditor, the indebtedness shall be deemed to have been settled immediately before the time that is immediately before the amalgamation by a payment made by the debtor and received by the creditor of an amount equal to the amount that would have been the creditor's cost amount of the indebtedness at that time if

(a) the definition "cost amount" in subsection 248(1) were read without reference to paragraph (e) of that definition; and

(b) that cost amount included amounts added in computing the creditor's income in respect of the portion of the indebtedness representing unpaid interest, to the extent those amounts have not been deducted in computing the creditor's income as bad debts in respect of that unpaid interest.

Related Provisions: 80(3)–(13) — Treatment of obligation deemed to have been settled.

(4) Deemed settlement on winding-up — Where there is a winding-up of a subsidiary to which the rules in subsection 88(1) apply and

(a) a debt or other obligation (in this subsection referred to as the "subsidiary's obligation") of the subsidiary to pay an amount to the parent, or

(b) a debt or other obligation (in this subsection referred to as the "parent's obligation") of the parent to pay an amount to the subsidiary is, as a consequence of the winding-up, settled at a particular time without any payment of an amount or by the payment of an amount that is less than the principal amount of the subsidiary's obligation or the parent's obligation, as the case may be,

(c) where that payment is less than the amount that would have been the cost amount to the parent or subsidiary of the subsidiary's obligation or the parent's obligation immediately before the particular time if the definition "cost amount" in subsection 248(1) were read without reference to paragraph (e) of that definition and the parent so elects in a prescribed form on or before the day on or before which the parent is required to file a return of income pursuant to section 150 for the taxation year that includes the particular time, the amount paid at that time in satisfaction of the principal amount of the subsidiary's obligation or the parent's obligation shall be deemed to be equal to the amount that would be the cost amount to the parent or the subsidiary, as the case may be, of the subsidiary's obligation or the parent's obligation immediately before the particular time if

(i) the definition "cost amount" in subsection 248(1) were read without reference to paragraph (e) of that definition, and

(ii) that cost amount included amounts added in computing the parent's income or the subsidiary's income in respect of the portion of the indebtedness representing unpaid interest, to the extent that the parent or the subsidiary has not deducted any amounts as bad debts in respect of that unpaid interest, and

(d) for the purposes of applying section 80 to the subsidiary's obligation, where property is distributed at any time in circumstances to which paragraph 88(1)(a) or (b) applies and the subsidiary's obligation is settled as a consequence of the distribution, the subsidiary's obligation shall be deemed to have been settled immediately before the time that is immediately before the time of the distribution and not at any later time.

Related Provisions: 50(1)(b)(ii) — Deemed disposition of debt or shares on winding-up; 80(3)–(13) — Treatment of obligation deemed to have been settled; 80.01(5) — Where distress preferred share issued; 220(3.2), Reg. 600(b) — Late filing or revocation of election under 80.01(4)(c).

Advance Tax Rulings: ATR-66: Non-arm's length transfer of debt followed by a winding-up and a sale of shares.

Forms: T2027: Election to deem amount of settlement of a debt or obligation.

(5) Deemed settlement on winding-up — Where there is a winding-up of a subsidiary to which the rules in subsection 88(1) apply and, as a consequence of the winding-up, a distress preferred share issued by the subsidiary and owned by the parent (or a distress preferred share issued by the parent and owned by the subsidiary) is settled at any time without any payment of an amount or by the payment of an amount that is less than the principal amount of the share,

(a) where the payment was less than the adjusted cost base of the share to the parent or the subsidiary, as the case may be, immediately before that time, for the purposes of applying the provisions of this Act to the issuer of the share, the amount paid at that time in satisfaction of the principal amount of the share shall be deemed to be equal to its adjusted cost base to the parent or to the subsidiary, as the case may be; and

(b) for the purposes of applying section 80 to the share, where property is distributed at any time in circumstances to which paragraph 88(1)(a) or (b) applies and the share is settled as a consequence of the distribution, the share shall be deemed to have been settled immediately before the time that is immediately before the time of the distribution and not at any later time.

Related Provisions: 50(1)(b)(ii) — Deemed disposition of debt or shares on winding-up; 80(3)–(13) — Treatment of obligation deemed to have been settled; 80.02(2)(c) — Meaning of "settled" for distress preferred shares; 88(1)(b) — Determination of proceeds of disposition to parent.

Proposed Addition — 80.01(5.1)

(5.1) Deemed settlement on SIFT trust wind-up event — If a trust that is a SIFT wind-up entity is the only beneficiary under another trust (in this subsection referred to as the "subsidiary trust"), and a capital property that is a debt or other obligation (in this subsection referred to as the "subsidiary trust's obligation") of the subsidiary trust to pay an amount to the SIFT wind-up entity is, as a consequence of a distribution from the subsidiary trust that is a SIFT trust wind-up event, settled at a particular time without any payment of an amount or by the payment of an amount that is less than the principal amount of the subsidiary trust's obligation

(a) paragraph (b) applies if,

(i) the payment is less than the amount that would have been the adjusted cost base to the SIFT wind-up entity of the subsidiary trust's obligation immediately before the particular time, and

(ii) the SIFT wind-up entity elects, in prescribed form on or before the SIFT wind-up entity's filing-due date for the taxation year that includes the particular time, to have paragraph (b) apply;

(b) if this paragraph applies, the amount paid at the particular time in satisfaction of the principal amount of the subsidiary trust's obligation is deemed to be equal to the amount that would be the adjusted cost base to the SIFT wind-up entity of the subsidiary trust's obligation immediately before the particular time if that adjusted cost base included amounts added in computing the SIFT wind-up entity's income in respect of the portion of the indebtedness representing unpaid interest, to the extent that the SIFT wind-up entity has not deducted any amounts as bad debts in respect of that unpaid interest; and

(c) for the purposes of applying section 80 to the subsidiary trust's obligation, the subsidiary trust's obligation is deemed to have been settled immediately before the time that is immediately before the distribution.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 17, will add subsec. 80.01(5.1), applicable after July 14, 2008.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): New subsection 80.01(5.1) is one of a series of amendments intended to provide for the income tax effects on a reorganization into corporate form of a SIFT wind-up entity. Among these amendments are the new definitions "SIFT trust wind-up event" and "SIFT wind-up entity" in subsection 248(1).

New subsection 80.01(5.1) applies where a debt owed by one trust ("the subsidiary trust") to its beneficiary — another trust that is a SIFT wind-up entity — is settled as a consequence of a distribution that is a SIFT trust wind-up event. If the settlement is without payment, or for a payment that is less than the principal amount of the debt, then the rules in paragraphs 80.01(5.1)(a) to (c) apply in respect of the settlement

Under paragraphs 80.01(5.1)(a) and (b), if the settlement payment is less than the adjusted cost base ("ACB") to the SIFT wind-up entity of the settled debt and the SIFT wind-up entity so elects, the amount paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the debt obligation is deemed to be the amount of that ACB plus any amounts added in computing the SIFT wind-up entity's income in respect of the portion of the indebtedness representing unpaid interest, to the extent that the SIFT wind-up entity has not deducted any amounts as bad debts in respect of that unpaid interest.

Paragraph 80.01(5.1)(c) provides a timing rule that applies for purposes of the debt forgiveness rules in section 80. Under that paragraph, the settlement is treated for those purposes as having occurred immediately before the time that is immediately before the time of the distribution. This rule ensures that there is an appropriate reduction under section 80 in the cost amount of distributed property.

(6) Specified obligation in relation to debt parking — For the purpose of subsection (7), an obligation issued by a debtor is, at a particular time, a specified obligation of the debtor where

(a) at any previous time (other than a time before the last time, if any, the obligation became a parked obligation before the particular time),

(i) a person who owned the obligation

(A) dealt at arm's length with the debtor, and

(B) where the debtor is a corporation, did not have a significant interest in the debtor, or

(ii) the obligation was acquired by the holder of the obligation from another person who was, at the time of that acquisition, not related to the holder or related to the holder only because of paragraph 251(5)(b); or

(b) the obligation is deemed by subsection 50(1) to be reacquired at the particular time.

Related Provisions: 80(2)(j), 80.01(2)(a) — Special rules for determining the meaning of "related" and "arm's length"; 80.01(7) — Meaning of "parked obligation".

(7) Parked obligation — For the purposes of this subsection and subsections (6), (8) and (10),

(a) an obligation issued by a debtor is a "parked obligation" at any time where at that time

(i) the obligation is a specified obligation of the debtor, and

(ii) the holder of the obligation

(A) does not deal at arm's length with the debtor, or

(B) where the debtor is a corporation and the holder acquired the obligation after July 12, 1994 (otherwise than pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into on or before July 12, 1994), has a significant interest in the debtor; and

(b) an obligation that is, at any time, acquired or reacquired in circumstances to which subparagraph (6)(a)(ii) or paragraph (6)(b) applies shall, if the obligation is a parked obligation immediately after that time, be deemed to have become a parked obligation at that time.

Related Provisions: 80(2)(j), 80.01(2)(a) — Special rules for determining the meaning of "related" and thence "arm's length"; 80.01(6) — Meaning of "specified obligation".

(8) Deemed settlement after debt parking — Where at any particular time after February 21, 1994 a commercial debt obligation that was issued by a debtor becomes a parked obligation (otherwise than pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before February 22, 1994) and the specified cost at the particular time to the holder of the obligation is less than 80% of the principal amount of the obligation, for the purpose of applying the provisions of this Act to the debtor

(a) the obligation shall be deemed to have been settled at the particular time; and

(b) the forgiven amount at the particular time in respect of the obligation shall be determined as if the debtor had paid an amount at the particular time in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation equal to that specified cost.

Related Provisions: 40(2)(e.1), (e.2), (g)(ii) — Stop-loss rules on disposition of debt; 50(1)(a) — Deemed disposition of bad debt; 79(3)F(b)(i), (iii) — Where property surrendered to creditor; 80(1)"forgiven amount"B(g) — Debt forgiveness rules do not apply if parked obligation subsequently forgiven; 80(3)–(13) — Treatment of obligation deemed to have been settled; 80.01(7) — Meaning of "parked obligation"; 80.01(10) — Subsequent payments; 80.01(11) — Foreign currency fluctuation to be ignored.

(9) Statute-barred debt — Where at any particular time after February 21, 1994 a commercial debt obligation issued by a debtor that is payable to a person (other than a person with whom the debtor is related at the particular time) becomes unenforceable in a court of competent jurisdiction because of a statutory limitation period and the obligation would, but for this subsection, not have been settled or extinguished at the particular time, for the purpose of applying the provisions of this Act to the debtor, the obligation shall be deemed to have been settled at the particular time.

Related Provisions: 80(1)"forgiven amount"B(g) — Debt forgiveness rules do not apply; 80(2)(j), 80.01(2)(a) — Special rules for determining the meaning of "related"; 80(3)–(13) — Treatment of obligation deemed to have been settled; 80.01(10) — Subsequent payments; 80.01(11) — Foreign currency fluctuation to be ignored.

(10) Subsequent payments in satisfaction of debt — Where a commercial debt obligation issued by a debtor is first deemed by subsection (8) or (9) to have been settled at a particular time, at a subsequent time a payment is made by the debtor of an amount in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation and it cannot reasonably be considered that one of the reasons the obligation became a parked obligation or became unenforceable, as the case may be, before the subsequent time was to have this subsection apply to the payment, in computing the debtor's income for the taxation year (in this subsection referred to as the "subsequent year") that includes the subsequent time from the source in connection with which the obligation was issued, there may be deducted the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount of the payment,

B is the amount, if any, by which

(a) the principal amount of the obligation

exceeds the total of

(b) all amounts each of which is a forgiven amount at any time

(i) in the period that began at the particular time and ended immediately before the subsequent time, and

(ii) at which a particular portion of the obligation is deemed by subsection (8) or (9) to be settled in respect of the particular portion, and

(c) all amounts paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation in the period that began at the particular time and ended immediately before the subsequent time, and

C is the amount, if any, by which the total of

(a) all amounts deducted under section 61.3 in computing the debtor's income for the subsequent year or a preceding taxation year,

(b) all amounts added because of subsection 80(13) in computing the debtor's income for the subsequent year or a preceding taxation year in respect of a settlement under subsection (8) or (9) in a period during which the debtor was exempt from tax under this Part on its taxable income, and

(c) all amounts added because of subsection 80(13) in computing the debtor's income for the subsequent year or a preceding taxation year in respect of a settlement under subsection (8) or (9) in a period during which the debtor was non-resident (other than any of those amounts added in computing the debtor's taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada)

exceeds the total of

(d) the amount, if any, deducted because of paragraph 37(1)(f.1) in determining the balance determined under subsection 37(1) in respect of the debtor immediately after the subsequent year, and

(e) all amounts by which the amount deductible under this subsection in respect of a payment made by the debtor before the subsequent time in computing the debtor's income for the subsequent year or a preceding year has been reduced because of this description.

Related Provisions: 3, 4(1) — Income from a source; 20(1)(uu) — Deduction for amount allowed under subsec. 80.01(10); 80.01(7) — Meaning of "parked obligation"; 87(2)(l.21) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation; 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: Subsec. 80.01(10) amended by 2001, c. 17, s. 59 to replace the number "0.75" in the formula with the number "0.5", applicable to taxation years that end after Feb. 27, 2000 except that, where a taxation year of a debtor includes Feb. 28, 2000 or Oct. 17, 2000, or began after Feb. 28, 2000 and ended before Oc. 17, 2000, the reference to the fraction "1/2" in the subsec. shall be read as a reference to the fraction in para. 38(a), as amended by 2001, c. 17, that applies to the debtor for the year.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), s. 200, will amend the application of the amendment made to subsec. 80.01(10) by S.C. 2001, c. 17, s. 59, deemed in force on June 14, 2001, to read as follows:

> Subsec. 80.01(10) amended by 2001, c. 17, s. 59 to replace the number "0.75" in the formula with the number "0.5", applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000 except that, for a taxation year of a debtor that includes either February 28, 2000 or October 17, 2000 or began after February 28, 2000 and ended before October 17, 2000, the reference to the fraction "½" shall be read as a reference to the fraction in para. 38(a) that applied to the debtor for the year in which the commercial debt obligation was deemed to have been settled.

Technical Notes: Subsection 59(2) of the Income Tax Amendments Act, 2000 is amended to provide that, in computing a debtor's income for a particular taxation year, the fraction in paragraph 38(a) of the Income Tax Act to be applied in respect of the settlement of a commercial debt obligation is the fraction in that paragraph that applied to the debtor in the debtor's taxation year in which the obligation was deemed to have been settled instead of the fraction in that paragraph that applies to the debtor in the particular taxation year.

This change corrects a technical deficiency, and is deemed to have come into force on June 14, 2001.

(11) Foreign currency gains and losses — Where an obligation issued by a debtor is denominated in a currency (other than the Canadian currency) and the obligation is deemed by subsection (8) or (9) to have been settled, those subsections do not apply for the purpose of determining any gain or loss of the debtor on the settlement that is attributable to a fluctuation in the value of the currency relative to the value of Canadian currency.

Related Provisions: 39(2) — Gain or loss on fluctuation of foreign currency; 79(7) — Currency fluctuation where property surrendered to creditor; 80(2)(k) — Determination of forgiven amount where obligation denominated in foreign currency; 261(5)(c), (f)(i) — Functional currency reporting.

I.T. Technical News: 15 (tax consequences of the adoption of the "euro" currency).

History [s. 80.01]: S. 80.01 added by 1995, c. 21, s. 27, applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994, except that it does not, other than for the purposes of subsections 6(15) and (15.1) and 15(1.2) and (1.21) and section 79, apply to any obligation settled or extinguished

(i) before February 22, 1994,

(ii) after February 21, 1994

(A) under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into on or before that date, or

(B) under the terms of any amendment to such an agreement, where that amendment was entered into in writing before July 12, 1994 and the amount of the settlement or extinguishment was not substantially greater than the settlement or extinguishment provided under the terms of the agreement,

(iii) before 1996 pursuant to a restructuring of debt in connection with a proceeding commenced in a court in Canada before February 22, 1994,

(iv) before 1996 in connection with a proposal (or notice of intention to make a proposal) that was filed under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act, or similar legislation of a country other than Canada, before February 22, 1994, or

(v) before 1996 in connection with a written offer that was made by, or communicated to, the holder of the obligation before February 22, 1994.

80.02 (1) Definitions — In this section, "commercial debt obligation", "commercial obligation", "distress preferred share" and "person" have the meanings assigned by subsection 80(1).

(2) General rules for distress preferred shares — For the purpose of applying the provisions of this Act to an issuer of a distress preferred share,

(a) the principal amount, at any time, of the share shall be deemed to be the amount (determined at that time) for which the share was issued;

(b) the amount for which the share was issued shall, at any time, be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which the total of

(i) the amount for which the share was issued, determined without reference to this paragraph, and

(ii) all amounts by which the paid-up capital in respect of the share increased after the share was issued and before that time

exceeds

(iii) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount paid before that time on a reduction of the paid-up capital in respect of the share, except to the extent that the amount is deemed by section 84 to have been paid as a dividend;

(c) the share shall be deemed to be settled at such time as it is redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the issuer; and

(d) a payment in satisfaction of the principal amount of the share is any payment made on a reduction of the paid-up capital in respect of the share to the extent that the payment would be proceeds of disposition of the share within the meaning that would be assigned by the definition "proceeds of disposition" in section 54 if that definition were read without reference to paragraph (j).

Related Provisions: 80.02(3)(b), 80.02(5)(b) — Deemed amounts for purposes of subpara. 80.02(2)(b)(i).

(3) Substitution of distress preferred share for debt — Where any part of the consideration given by a corporation to another person for the settlement or extinguishment at any time of a commercial debt obligation that was issued by the corporation and owned immediately before that time by the other person consists of a distress preferred share issued by the corporation to the other person,

(a) for the purposes of section 80, the amount paid at that time in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation because of the issue of that share shall be deemed to be equal to the lesser of

(i) the principal amount of the obligation, and

(ii) the amount by which the paid-up capital in respect of the class of shares that include that share increases because of the issue of that share; and

(b) for the purpose of subparagraph (2)(b)(i), the amount for which the share was issued shall be deemed to be equal to the amount deemed by paragraph (a) to have been paid at that time.

Related Provisions: 80.02(2) — General rules.

(4) Substitution of commercial debt obligation for distress preferred share — Where any part of the consideration given by a corporation to another person for the settlement at any time of a distress preferred share that was issued by the corporation and owned immediately before that time by the other person consists of a commercial debt obligation issued by the corporation to the other person, for the purposes of section 80

(a) the amount paid at that time in satisfaction of the principal amount of the share because of the issue of that obligation shall be deemed to be equal to the principal amount of the obligation; and

(b) the amount for which the obligation was issued shall be deemed to be equal to its principal amount.

(5) Substitution of distress preferred share for other distress preferred share — Where any part of the consideration given by a corporation to another person for the settlement at any time of a particular distress preferred share that was issued by the corporation and owned immediately before that time by the other person consists of another distress preferred share issued by the corporation to the other person, for the purposes of section 80

(a) the amount paid at that time in satisfaction of the principal amount of the particular share because of the issue of the other share shall be deemed to be equal to the amount by which the paid-up capital in respect of the class of shares that includes the other share increases because of the issue of the other share; and

(b) for the purpose of subparagraph (2)(b)(i), the amount for which the other share was issued shall be deemed to be equal to the amount deemed by paragraph (a) to have been paid at that time.

(6) Substitution of non-commercial obligation for distress preferred share — Where any part of the consideration given by a corporation to another person for the settlement at any time of a distress preferred share that was issued by the corporation and owned immediately before that time by the other person consists of another share (other than a distress preferred share) or an obligation (other than a commercial obligation) issued by the corporation to the other person, for the purposes of section 80, the amount paid at that time in satisfaction of the principal amount of the distress preferred share because of the issue of the other share or obligation shall be deemed to be equal to the fair market value of the other share or obligation, as the case may be, at that time.

Related Provisions: 80.02(2) — General rules.

(7) Deemed settlement on expiry of term — Where at any time a distress preferred share becomes a share that is not a distress preferred share, for the purposes of section 80

(a) the share shall be deemed to have been settled immediately before that time; and

(b) a payment equal to the fair market value of the share at that time shall be deemed to have been made immediately before that time in satisfaction of the principal amount of the share.

Related Provisions: 80(1)"distress preferred share", 248(1)"term preferred share"(e) — Maximum term of distress preferred share is 5 years.

80.03 (1) [Definitions — In this section, "commercial debt obligation", "commercial obligation", "distress preferred share", "forgiven amount" and "person" have the meanings assigned by subsection 80(1).][10]

History: Subsec. 80.03(1) inadvertently deleted, instead of amended to repeal "taxable dividend", by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 112(1), with the version in square brackets above to have been applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994. The subsec. formerly read:

(1) In this section,

(a) "commercial debt obligation", "commercial obligation", "distress preferred share", "forgiven amount" and "person" have the meanings assigned by subsection 80(1); and

(b) "taxable dividend" does not include any capital gains dividends (within the meaning assigned by subsection 131(1)).

(2) Deferred recognition of debtor's gain on settlement of debt — Where at any time in a taxation year a person (in this subsection referred to as the "transferor") surrenders a particular capital property (other than a distress preferred share) that is a share, a capital interest in a trust or an interest in a partnership, the person shall be deemed to have a capital gain from the disposition at that time of another capital property (or, where the particular property is a taxable Canadian property, another taxable Canadian property) equal to the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of all amounts deducted under paragraph 53(2)(g.1) in computing the adjusted cost base to the transferor of the particular property immediately before that time

exceeds the total of

(b) the amount that would be the transferor's capital gain for the year from the disposition of the particular property if this Act were read without reference to subsection 100(2), and

(c) where, at the end of the year, the transferor is resident in Canada or is a non-resident person who carries on business in Canada through a fixed place of business, the amount designated under subsection (7) by the transferor in respect of the disposition, at that time or immediately after that time, of the particular property.

Related Provisions: 80.03(3) — Meaning of "surrender"; 253 — Extended meaning of carrying on business in Canada.

(3) Surrender of capital property — For the purpose of subsection (2), a person shall be considered to have surrendered a property at any time only where

(a) in the case of a share of the capital stock of a particular corporation,

(i) the person is a corporation that disposed of the share at that time and the proceeds of disposition of the share are determined under paragraph 88(1)(b), or

(ii) the person is a corporation that owned the share at that time and, immediately after that time, amalgamates or merges with the particular corporation;

(b) in the case of a capital interest in a trust, the person disposed of the interest at that time and the proceeds of disposition are determined under paragraph 107(2)(c); and

(c) in the case of an interest in a partnership, the person disposed of the interest at that time and the proceeds of disposition are determined under paragraph 98(3)(a) or (5)(a).

History: Subsecs. 80.03(4) to (6) repealed by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 112(2), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994. The subsecs. formerly read:

(4) Dispositions by corporations — Where at any time in a taxation year a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "vendor") disposes of a particular capital property that is a share, an interest in a partnership or a capital interest in a trust, otherwise than by way of a disposition to which subsection (2) or 53(6) applies, a disposition to another corporation in circumstances to which subsection 53(5) applies, or a disposition the proceeds from which are determined under subsection 47(1), section 86 or any of the provisions (other than subsection 97(2)) referred to in subsection 53(4), the vendor shall be deemed to have a capital gain from the disposition at that time of another capital property (or where the particular property is a taxable Canadian property, another taxable Canadian property) equal to the amount, if any, by which the lesser of

(a) all amounts deducted under paragraph 53(2)(g.1) in computing the adjusted cost base to the vendor of the particular property immediately before that time, and

(b) where the particular property

(i) is a share, the total of all amounts each of which is

(A) a taxable dividend on the share that was received in the specified period relating to the disposition of the share, to the extent that the dividend is deductible in computing taxable income of a holder of the share or a beneficiary under a trust that held the share, or

(B) a capital dividend on the share that was received in the specified period relating to the disposition of the share,

(ii) is an interest in a partnership, the total of all amounts each of which is

(A) the share of a taxable dividend relating to the interest that was received after July 12, 1994 and in a fiscal period of the partnership that ended in the specified period relating to the disposition of the interest, to the extent that such share is deductible in computing taxable income of a person holding the interest in the partnership or a beneficiary under a trust that held the interest in the partnership, or

(B) the share of a capital dividend relating to the interest that was received after July 12, 1994 and in a fiscal period of the partnership that ended in the specified period relating to the disposition of the interest, or

(iii) is a capital interest in a trust, the total of all amounts each of which is such portion of a taxable dividend that was received by the trust in the specified period relating to the disposition of the capital interest and that was deemed by subsection 104(19) to have been received in respect of the capital interest, to the extent that such portion was deductible in computing taxable income of a person holding the capital interest

(c) the amount that would be the vendor's capital gain for the year from the disposition of the particular property if this Act were read without reference to subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) and subsection 100(2), and

(d) where the vendor is resident in Canada at the end of the year or is a non-resident person who carries on business in Canada through a fixed place of business at the end of the year, the amount designated under subsection (7) by the vendor in respect of the disposition of the particular property.

(5) Specified period — For the purpose of subsection (4), the specified period relating to a disposition at a particular time of a property by a person is the period

(a) that began at or on the later of July 12, 1994 and the last time before the particular time that the person acquired the property, and

(b) that ended at the particular time.

(6) When property acquired — For the purposes of this subsection and subsection (5), where, as a consequence of the disposition at a particular time of a property to a person, an amount is deducted under paragraph 53(2)(g.1) in computing the adjusted cost base of the property after the particular time, the person shall be deemed not to have acquired the property at the particular time and to have acquired the property at the time it was last acquired before the particular time.

(7) Alternative treatment — Where at any time in a taxation year a person disposes of a property, for the purposes of subsection (2) and section 80

(a) the person may designate an amount in a prescribed form filed with the person's return of income under this Part for the year; and

(b) where an amount is designated by the person under paragraph (a) in respect of the disposition,

(i) the person shall be deemed to have issued a commercial debt obligation at that time that is settled immediately after that time,

(ii) the lesser of the amount so designated and the amount that would, but for this subsection, be a capital gain determined in respect of the disposition because of subsection (2) shall be treated as if it were the forgiven amount at the time

[10]The English version of subsec. 80.03(1) was inadvertently deleted by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 112(1). The Dept. of Finance has confirmed that this will be corrected in an upcoming technical bill.

of the settlement in respect of the obligation referred to in subparagraph (i),

(iii) the source in connection with which the obligation referred to in subparagraph (i) was issued shall be deemed to be the business, if any, carried on by the person at the end of the year, and

(iv) where the person does not carry on a business at the end of the year, the person shall be deemed to carry on an active business at the end of the year and the source in connection with which the obligation referred to in subparagraph (i) was issued shall be deemed to be the business deemed by this subparagraph to be carried on.

(7) Where at any time in a taxation year a person disposes of a property, for the purposes of subsections (2) and (4) and section 80

(ii) the lesser of the amount so designated and the amount that would, but for this subsection, be a capital gain determined in respect of the disposition because of subsection (2) or (4) shall be treated as if it were the forgiven amount at the time of the settlement in respect of the obligation referred to in subparagraph (i),

Forms: T2155: Alternative treatment of capital gains arising under s. 80.03 on settlement of debt.

(8) Lifetime capital gains exemption — Where, as a consequence of the disposition at any time by an individual of a property that is a qualified farm property of the individual or a qualified small business corporation share of the individual (within the meanings assigned by subsection 110.6(1)), the individual is deemed by subsection (2) to have a capital gain at that time from the disposition of another property, for the purposes of sections 3, 74.3 and 111, as they apply for the purpose of section 110.6, the other property shall be deemed to be a qualified farm property of the individual or a qualified small business corporation share of the individual, as the case may be.

History [s. 80.03]: S. 80.03 added by 1995, c. 21, s. 27, applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994, except that

(a) it does not, other than for the purposes of subsections 6(15) and (15.1) and 15(1.2) and (1.21) and section 79, apply to any obligation settled or extinguished

(i) before February 22, 1994,

(ii) after February 21, 1994

(A) under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into on or before that date, or

(B) under the terms of any amendment to such an agreement, where that amendment was entered into in writing before July 12, 1994 and the amount of the settlement or extinguishment was not substantially greater than the settlement or extinguishment provided under the terms of the agreement,

(iii) before 1996 pursuant to a restructuring of debt in connection with a proceeding commenced in a court in Canada before February 22, 1994,

(iv) before 1996 in connection with a proposal (or notice of intention to make a proposal) that was filed under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act, or similar legislation of a country other than Canada, before February 22, 1994, or

(v) before 1996 in connection with a written offer that was made by, or communicated to, the holder of the obligation before February 22, 1994; and

(b) a form referred to in subsection 80.03(7) shall be deemed to have been filed on a timely basis if it is filed with the Minister of National Revenue before 1996.

80.04 [Transfer of forgiven amount to other taxpayer] — (1) Definitions — In this section, "commercial debt obligation", "commercial obligation", "debtor", "directed person", "eligible Canadian partnership", "forgiven amount" and "person" have the meanings assigned by subsection 80(1).

(2) Eligible transferee — For the purpose of this section, an "eligible transferee" of a debtor at any time is a directed person at that time in respect of the debtor or a taxable Canadian corporation or eligible Canadian partnership related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) at that time to the debtor.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(h.1) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation.

(3) Application — Paragraphs 80(2)(a), (b), (j), (l) and (n) apply for the purpose of this section.

(4) Agreement respecting transfer of forgiven amount — Where

(a) a particular commercial obligation (other than an obligation deemed by paragraph (e) to have been issued) issued by a debtor is settled at a particular time,

(b) amounts have been designated by the debtor under subsections 80(5) to (10) to the maximum extent permitted in respect of the settlement of the particular obligation at the particular time,

(c) the debtor and an eligible transferee of the debtor at the particular time file under this section an agreement between them in respect of that settlement, and

(d) an amount is specified in that agreement

the following rules apply:

(e) except for the purposes of subsection 80(11), the transferee shall be deemed to have issued a commercial debt obligation that was settled at the particular time,

(f) the specified amount shall be deemed to be the forgiven amount at the particular time in respect of the obligation referred to in paragraph (e),

(g) subject to paragraph (h), the obligation referred to in paragraph (e) shall be deemed to have been issued at the same time (in paragraph (h) referred to as the "time of issue") at which, and in the same circumstances in which, the particular obligation was issued,

(h) where the transferee is a corporation the control of which was acquired by a person or group of persons after the time of issue and the transferee and the debtor were not related to each other immediately before that acquisition of control,

(i) the obligation referred to in paragraph (e) shall be deemed to have been issued after that acquisition of control, and

(ii) paragraph (e) of the definition "relevant loss balance" in subsection 80(1), paragraph (f) of the definition "successor pool" in that subsection and paragraph (b) of the definition "unrecognized loss" in that subsection do not apply in respect of that acquisition of control,

(i) the source in connection with which the obligation referred to in paragraph (e) was issued shall be deemed to be the source in connection with which the particular obligation was issued, and

(j) for the purposes of sections 61.3 and 61.4, the amount included under subsection 80(13) in computing the income of the eligible transferee in respect of the settlement of the obligation referred to in paragraph (e) or deducted under paragraph 80(15)(a) in respect of such income shall be deemed to be nil.

Related Provisions: 80(13)C — Amount specified in agreement reduces income inclusion; 80(14)(c) — Calculation of residual balance for income inclusion; 80(15)(c) — Where commercial debt obligation issued by partnership; 80.04(5) — Where consideration given for entering into agreement; 80.04(6) — How and when agreement to be filed with CRA; 87(2)(h.1) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation; 139.1(18) — Holding corporation deemed not to acquire control of insurer on demutualization; 256(6)–(9) — Whether control acquired; 256(8) — Deemed acquisition of shares.

(5) Consideration for agreement — For the purposes of this Part, where property is acquired at any time by an eligible transferee as consideration for entering into an agreement with a debtor that is filed under this section

(a) where the property was owned by the debtor immediately before that time,

(i) the debtor shall be deemed to have disposed of the property at that time for proceeds equal to the fair market value of the property at that time, and

(ii) no amount may be deducted in computing the debtor's income as a consequence of the transfer of the property, except any amount arising as a consequence of the application of subparagraph (i);

(b) the cost at which the property was acquired by the eligible transferee at that time shall be deemed to be equal to the fair market value of the property at that time; and

(c) the eligible transferee shall not be required to add an amount in computing income solely because of the acquisition at that time of the property.

(d) [Repealed]

Related Provisions: 80.04(5.1) — No benefit conferred on debtor as a consequence of the agreement; 191.3(1.1) — Similar rule for purposes of Part VI.1 tax.

History: Para. 80.04(5)(d) repealed by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 113(1), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994. The para. formerly read:

(d) no benefit shall be considered to have been conferred on the debtor as a consequence of the debtor entering into an agreement filed under this section.

(5.1) No benefit conferred — For the purposes of this Part, where a debtor and an eligible transferee enter into an agreement that is filed under this section, no benefit shall be considered to have been conferred on the debtor as a consequence of the agreement.

History: Subsec. 80.04(5.1) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 113(2), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994.

(6) Manner of filing agreement — Subject to subsection (7), a particular agreement between a debtor and an eligible transferee in respect of an obligation issued by the debtor that was settled at any time shall be deemed not to have been filed under this section

(a) where it is not filed with the Minister in a prescribed form

(i) on or before the later of

(A) the day on or before which the debtor's return of income under this Part is required to be filed for the taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, that includes that time (or would be required to be filed if tax under this Part were payable by the debtor for the year), and

(B) the day on or before which the transferee's return of income under this Part is required to be filed for the taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, that includes that time, or

(ii) within the period within which the debtor or the transferee may serve a notice of objection to an assessment of tax payable under this Part for a taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, described in clause (i)(A) or (B), as the case may be;

(b) where it is not accompanied by,

(i) where the debtor is a corporation and its directors are legally entitled to administer its affairs, a certified copy of their resolution authorizing the agreement to be made,

(ii) where the debtor is a corporation and its directors are not legally entitled to administer its affairs, a certified copy of the document by which the person legally entitled to administer its affairs authorized the agreement to be made,

(iii) where the transferee is a corporation and its directors are legally entitled to administer its affairs, a certified copy of their resolution authorizing the agreement to be made, and

(iv) where the transferee is a corporation and its directors are not legally entitled to administer its affairs, a certified copy of the document by which the person legally entitled to administer its affairs authorized the agreement to be made; or

(c) if an agreement amending the particular agreement has been filed in accordance with this section, except where subsection (8) applies to the particular agreement.

Related Provisions: 80.04(7) — Deemed due dates for partnership to file return and service notice of objection; 96(3) — Agreement of members of partnership; 150(1) — Due date for return; 165(1) — Deadline for serving notice of objection.

Forms: T2156: Agreement to transfer a forgiven amount under s. 80.04.

(7) Filing by partnership — For the purpose of subsection (6), where an obligation is settled at any time in a fiscal period of a partnership, it shall be assumed that

(a) the partnership is required to file a return of income under this Part for the fiscal period on or before the latest day on or before which any member of the partnership during the fiscal period is required to file a return of income under this Part for the taxation year in which that fiscal period ends (or would be required to file such a return of income if tax under this Part were payable by the member for that year); and

(b) the partnership may serve a notice of objection described in subparagraph (6)(a)(ii) within each period within which any member of the partnership during the fiscal period may serve a notice of objection to tax payable under this Part for a taxation year in which that fiscal period ends.

(8) Related corporations — Where at any time a corporation becomes related to another corporation and it can reasonably be considered that the main purpose of the corporation becoming related to the other corporation is to enable the corporations to file an agreement under this section, the amount specified in the agreement shall be deemed to be nil for the purpose of the description of C in subsection 80(13).

(9) Assessment of taxpayers in respect of agreement — The Minister shall, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), assess or reassess the tax, interest and penalties payable under this Act by any taxpayer in order to take into account an agreement filed under this section.

(10) Liability of debtor — Without affecting the liability of any person under any other provision of this Act, where a debtor and an eligible transferee file an agreement between them under this section in respect of an obligation issued by the debtor that was settled at any time, the debtor is, to the extent of 30% of the amount specified in the agreement, liable to pay

(a) where the transferee is a corporation, all taxes payable under this Act by it for taxation years that end in the period that begins at that time and ends 4 calendar years after that time;

(b) where the transferee is a partnership, the total of all amounts each of which is the tax payable under this Act by a person for a taxation year

(i) that begins or ends in that period, and

(ii) that includes the end of a fiscal period of the partnership during which the person was a member of the partnership; and

(c) interest and penalties in respect of such taxes.

Related Provisions: 80.04(11) — Joint and several liability; 80.04(12) — Assessment; 80.04(14) — Where partnership is a member of a partnership; 87(2)(h.1) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation.

History: Para. 80.04(10)(a) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 113(3), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994. The para. formerly read:

(a) where the transferee is a corporation, all taxes payable under this Act by it for taxation years that end in the period that begins at that time and ends 10 calendar years after that time;

(11) Joint liability — Where taxes, interest and penalties are payable under this Act by a person for a taxation year and those taxes, interest and penalties are payable by a debtor because of subsection (10), the debtor and the person are jointly and severally liable to pay those amounts.

Proposed Amendment — 80.04(11)

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 3 — bijuralism), s. 230, will amend subsec. 80.04(11) by substituting "jointly and severally, or solidarily," for "jointly and severally", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

Related Provisions: 87(2)(h.1) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation.

(12) Assessments in respect of liability — Where a debtor and an eligible transferee file an agreement between them under this section in respect of an obligation issued by the debtor that was settled at a particular time,

(a) where the debtor is an individual or a corporation, the Minister may at any subsequent time assess the debtor in respect of taxes, interest and penalties for which the debtor is liable because of subsection (10); and

(b) where the debtor is a partnership, the Minister may at any subsequent time assess any person who has been a member of the partnership in respect of taxes, interest and penalties for which the partnership is liable because of subsection (10), to the extent that those amounts relate to taxation years of the transferee (or, where the transferee is another partnership, members of the other partnership) that end at or after

(i) where the person was not a member of the partnership at the particular time, the first subsequent time the person becomes a member of the partnership, and

(ii) in any other case, the particular time.

Related Provisions: 80.04(13) — Provisions applicable to assessment; 80.04(14) — Where partnership is a member of a partnership; 87(2)(h.1) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation.

(13) Application of Division I — The provisions of Division I apply to an assessment under subsection (12) as though it had been made under section 152.

(14) Partnership members — For the purposes of paragraphs (10)(b) and (12)(b) and this subsection, where at any time a member of a particular partnership is another partnership, each member of the other partnership shall be deemed to be a member of the particular partnership at that time.

History [s. 80.04]: S. 80.04 added by 1995, c. 21, s. 27, applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994, except that

(a) it does not, other than for the purposes of subsections 6(15) and (15.1) and 15(1.2) and (1.21) and section 79, apply to any obligation settled or extinguished

(i) before February 22, 1994,

(ii) after February 21, 1994

(A) under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into on or before that date, or

(B) under the terms of any amendment to such an agreement, where that amendment was entered into in writing before July 12, 1994 and the amount of the settlement or extinguishment was not substantially greater than the settlement or extinguishment provided under the terms of the agreement,

(iii) before 1996 pursuant to a restructuring of debt in connection with a proceeding commenced in a court in Canada before February 22, 1994,

(iv) before 1996 in connection with a proposal (or notice of intention to make a proposal) that was filed under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act, or similar legislation of a country other than Canada, before February 22, 1994, or

(v) before 1996 in connection with a written offer that was made by, or communicated to, the holder of the obligation before February 22, 1994; and

(b) a form referred to in subsection 80.04(6) shall be deemed to have been filed on a timely basis if it is filed with the Minister of National Revenue before 1996.

80.1 (1) Expropriation assets acquired as compensation for, or as consideration for sale of, foreign property taken by or sold to foreign issuer — Where in a taxation year ending coincidentally with or after December 31, 1971 a taxpayer resident in Canada has acquired any bonds, debentures, mortgages, hypothecary claims, notes or similar obligations (in this section referred to as "expropriation assets") issued by the government of a country other than Canada or issued by a person resident in a country other than Canada and guaranteed by the government of that country,

(a) as compensation for

(i) shares owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that carried on business in that country, or

(ii) all or substantially all of the property used by the taxpayer in carrying on business in that country,

(which shares or property, as the case may be, are referred to in this section as "foreign property"), taken, after June 18, 1971, from the taxpayer by the issuer under the authority of a law of that country, or

(b) as consideration for the sale of foreign property sold, after June 18, 1971, by the taxpayer to the issuer, if

(i) the sale was, by a law of that country, expressly required to be made, or

(ii) the sale was made after notice or other manifestation of an intention to take the foreign property, if the taxpayer has so elected, in prescribed form and within prescribed time, in respect of all of the expropriation assets so acquired by the taxpayer, the following rule applies, namely, an amount in respect of each such expropriation asset, equal to

(c) the principal amount of the asset, or

(d) where the taxpayer has designated in the taxpayer's election an amount in respect of the asset that is less than the principal amount thereof, the amount so designated,

shall be deemed to be

(e) the cost to the taxpayer of the asset, and

(f) for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the foreign property so taken or sold, the amount received by the taxpayer by virtue of the taxpayer's acquisition of the asset, except that in no case may the taxpayer designate an amount in respect of any expropriation asset so that the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the foreign property so taken or sold (computed having regard to the provisions of paragraph (f)) are less than the cost amount to the taxpayer of the foreign property immediately before it was so taken or sold.

Related Provisions: 53(1)(k), 53(2)(n) — Adjustments to cost base; 90–95 — Shareholders of corporations not resident in Canada; 220(3.2), Reg. 600 — Late filing or revocation of election.

History: The opening words of subsec. 80.1(1) amended by 2001, c. 17, s. 210 to add the words "hypothecary claims", in force on June 14, 2001.

Regulations: 4500 (prescribed time).

Forms: T2079: Election re: expropriation assets acquired as compensation for or a consideration for sale of foreign property taken by or sold to foreign issuer.

(2) Election re interest received or to be received on expropriation assets acquired by taxpayer — Where a taxpayer has elected in prescribed form and within prescribed time in respect of all amounts (each of which is referred to in this subsection as an "interest amount") received or to be received by the taxpayer as or on account of interest on all expropriation assets acquired by the taxpayer as compensation for, or as consideration for the sale of, foreign property taken by or sold to any particular issuer as described in subsection (1), the following rules apply in respect of each such asset so acquired by the taxpayer:

(a) in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year from the asset, there may be deducted, in respect of each interest amount received by the taxpayer in the year on the asset, the lesser of the interest amount and the total of

(i) the amount required by paragraph (b) to be added, by virtue of the receipt by the taxpayer of the interest amount, in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the asset, and

(ii) the greater of

(A) the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the asset immediately before the interest amount was so received by the taxpayer, and

(B) the adjusted principal amount to the taxpayer of the asset immediately before the interest amount was so received by the taxpayer, and there shall be included, in respect of each amount (in this paragraph referred to as a "capital amount") received by the taxpayer in the year as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of,

(iii) any proceeds of disposition of the asset, or

(iv) the principal amount of the asset,

the amount, if any, by which the capital amount exceeds the greater of the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the asset immediately before the capital amount was received by the taxpayer and its adjusted principal amount to the taxpayer at that time;

(b) in computing, at any particular time, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the asset, there shall be added, in respect of each interest amount received by the taxpayer on the asset before the particular time, an amount equal to the lesser of

(i) any income or profits tax paid by the taxpayer to the government of a country other than Canada in respect of the interest amount, and

(ii) that proportion of the tax referred to in subparagraph (i) that the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the asset immediately before the interest amount was received by the taxpayer is of the amount, if any, by which the interest amount exceeds the tax referred to in that subparagraph, and there shall be deducted

(iii) each interest amount received by the taxpayer on the asset before the particular time, and

(iv) each amount received by the taxpayer before the particular time on account of the principal amount of the asset;

(c) the receipt by the taxpayer of an amount described in subparagraph (b)(iv) in respect of the asset shall be deemed not to be a partial disposition thereof; and

(d) for the purposes of section 126, notwithstanding the definition "non-business-income tax" in subsection 126(7), the "non-business-income tax" paid by a taxpayer does not include any tax, or any portion thereof, the amount of which is required by paragraph (b) to be added in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the asset.

Related Provisions: 53(1)(k), 53(2)(n) — Adjustments to cost base.

Regulations: 4500 (prescribed time).

Forms: T2079: Election re: expropriation assets acquired as compensation for or a consideration for sale of foreign property taken by or sold to foreign issuer.

(3) Where interest amount and capital amount received at same time — For the purposes of subsection (2), where an interest amount on an expropriation asset and a capital amount with respect to that asset are received by a taxpayer at the same time, the interest amount shall be deemed to have been received by the taxpayer immediately before the capital amount.

(4) Assets acquired from foreign affiliate of taxpayer as dividend in kind or as benefit to shareholder — Where a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada would, on the assumption that the foreign affiliate were resident in Canada and its only foreign affiliates were corporations that were foreign affiliates of the taxpayer, be entitled to make an election under subsection (1) in respect of assets acquired by it that would, on that assumption, be expropriation assets of the foreign affiliate, and all or any of those assets are subsequently acquired by the taxpayer from the foreign affiliate as a dividend payable in kind, or as a benefit received from the foreign affiliate that would otherwise be required by subsection 15(1) to be included in computing the income of the taxpayer, if the taxpayer has so elected, in prescribed form and within prescribed time, in respect of all of the assets so acquired by the taxpayer from the foreign affiliate, the following rules apply in respect of each such asset so acquired by the taxpayer:

(a) an amount equal to

(i) the principal amount of the asset, or

(ii) where the taxpayer has designated in the taxpayer's election an amount in respect of the asset that is less than the principal amount thereof, the amount so designated,

shall be deemed to be,

(iii) notwithstanding subsection 52(2), the cost to the taxpayer of the asset, and

(iv) the amount of the dividend or benefit, as the case may be, received by the taxpayer by virtue of the acquisition by the taxpayer of the asset;

(b) where the asset was so acquired as such a benefit and the taxpayer has designated in the election a class of shares as described in this paragraph in respect of the asset, the amount of the benefit shall be deemed

(i) to have been received by the taxpayer as a dividend from the foreign affiliate in respect of such class of shares of the capital stock thereof as the taxpayer has designated in the election, and

(ii) not to be an amount required by subsection 15(1) to be included in computing the taxpayer's income;

(c) in computing the taxable income of the taxpayer for the taxation year in which the taxpayer acquired the asset, there may be deducted from the taxpayer's income for the year the amount, if any, by which the amount received by the taxpayer as a dividend by virtue of the acquisition by the taxpayer of the asset exceeds the total of amounts deductible in respect of the dividend under sections 91 and 113 in computing the taxpayer's income or taxable income, as the case may be, for the year;

(d) there shall be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of each share of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that is a share of a class in respect of which an amount was received by the taxpayer as a dividend by virtue of the acquisition by the taxpayer of the asset, the quotient obtained by dividing the amount, if any, deducted by the taxpayer under paragraph (c) in respect of the dividend by the number of shares of that class owned by the taxpayer immediately before that amount was received by the taxpayer as a dividend;

(e) any capital loss of the taxpayer from the disposition, after that time when the asset was so acquired by the taxpayer, of a share of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate shall be deemed to be nil; and

(f) where the taxpayer has so elected in prescribed form and within prescribed time, subsection (2) applies as if the asset were an expropriation asset acquired by the taxpayer as compensation for foreign property taken by a particular issuer as described in subsection (1).

Related Provisions: 53(2)(b) — Reduction in ACB.

Regulations: 4500 (prescribed time).

Forms: T2079: Election re: expropriation assets acquired as compensation for or a consideration for sale of foreign property taken by or sold to foreign issuer.

(5) Assets acquired from foreign affiliate of taxpayer as consideration for settlement, etc., of debt — Where a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada would, on the assumption that the foreign affiliate were resident in Canada and its only foreign affiliates were corporations that were foreign affiliates of the taxpayer, be entitled to make an election under subsection (1) in respect of assets acquired by it that would, on that assumption, be expropriation assets of the foreign affiliate, and all or any of those assets are subsequently acquired by the taxpayer from the foreign affiliate as consideration for the settlement or extinguishment of a capital property of the taxpayer that was a debt payable by the foreign affiliate to the taxpayer or any other obligation of the foreign affiliate to pay an amount to the taxpayer (which debt or other obligation is referred to in this subsection as the "obligation"), if the taxpayer has so elected, in prescribed form and within prescribed time, in respect of all of the assets so acquired by the taxpayer from the foreign affiliate, the following rules apply in respect of each such asset so acquired by the taxpayer,

(a) paragraph (4)(a) applies in respect of the asset as if subparagraph (4)(a)(iv) were read as follows:

"(iv) the taxpayer's proceeds of the disposition of the obligation settled or extinguished by virtue of the acquisition by the taxpayer of the asset;";

(b) where the taxpayer has designated in the taxpayer's election a class of shares as described in this paragraph in respect of the asset,

(i) the amount, if any, by which the cost to the taxpayer of the asset (computed having regard to paragraph (a) and paragraph (4)(a)) exceeds the amount of the obligation settled or extinguished by virtue of the acquisition by the taxpayer of the asset shall be deemed to have been received by the taxpayer as a dividend from the foreign affiliate in respect of such class of shares of the capital stock thereof as the taxpayer has designated in the election, and

(ii) the taxpayer's gain, if any, from the disposition of the obligation shall be deemed to be nil;

(c) the taxpayer's loss, if any, from the disposition of the obligation shall be deemed to be nil; and

(d) paragraphs (4)(c) to (f) apply in respect of the asset.

Regulations: 4500 (prescribed time).

Forms: T2079: Election re: expropriation assets acquired as compensation for or a consideration for sale of foreign property taken by or sold to foreign issuer.

(6) Assets acquired from foreign affiliate of taxpayer on winding-up, etc. — Where a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada would, on the assumption that the foreign affiliate were resident in Canada and its only foreign affiliates were corporations that were foreign affiliates of the taxpayer, be entitled to make an election under subsection (1) in respect of assets acquired by it that would, on that assumption, be expropriation assets of the foreign affiliate, and all or any of those assets are subsequently acquired by the taxpayer from the foreign affiliate,

(a) on the winding-up, discontinuance or reorganization of the business of the foreign affiliate, or

(b) as consideration for the redemption, cancellation or acquisition by the foreign affiliate of shares of its capital stock,

if the taxpayer has so elected, in prescribed form and within prescribed time,

(c) in respect of all of the assets so acquired by the taxpayer from the foreign affiliate, subsection (1) applies in respect of each such asset, or

(d) in respect of all amounts received or to be received by the taxpayer as or on account of interest on all of the assets so acquired by the taxpayer from the foreign affiliate, subsection (2) applies in respect of each such asset, as if the assets were expropriation assets acquired by the taxpayer as consideration for the sale of foreign property that consisted of shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate owned by the taxpayer immediately before the assets were so acquired and that was sold to a particular issuer as described in subsection (1).

Regulations: 4500 (prescribed time).

Forms: T2079: Election re: expropriation assets acquired as compensation for or a consideration for sale of foreign property taken by or sold to foreign issuer.

(7) Definition of "adjusted principal amount" — In this section, "adjusted principal amount" to a taxpayer of an expropriation asset at any particular time means the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of the principal amount of the asset and, in respect of each interest amount received by the taxpayer on the asset before the particular time, the lesser of the tax referred to in subparagraph (2)(b)(i) in respect of that interest amount and the proportion determined under subparagraph (2)(b)(ii) in respect thereof,

exceeds

(b) the total of each amount received by the taxpayer before the particular time as an interest amount on the asset and each amount received by the taxpayer before the particular time as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of, the principal amount of the asset.

(8) Currency in which adjusted principal amount to be computed or expressed — For the purposes of this section, the adjusted principal amount, at any particular time, of an expropriation asset or of any asset assumed for the purposes of this section to be an expropriation asset shall be computed in the currency in which the principal amount of the asset is, under the terms thereof, payable, except that for greater certainty, for the purposes of paragraph (2)(a), the adjusted principal amount at any particular time of such an asset is its adjusted principal amount at that time computed as provided in this subsection but expressed in Canadian currency.

Related Provisions: 261(5)(c), (f)(i) — Functional currency reporting.

(9) Election in respect of two or more expropriation assets acquired by taxpayer — For the purposes of subdivision c and subsection (2), and in applying subsections (7) and (8) for those purposes, where two or more expropriation assets that were

(a) issued by the government of a country other than Canada, or

(b) issued by a person resident in a country other than Canada and guaranteed by the government of that country at the same time, or as compensation for, or consideration for the sale of, the same foreign property, have been acquired by a taxpayer and the taxpayer has so elected, in prescribed form and within prescribed time, in respect of all of the expropriation assets that were so issued or guaranteed by the government of that country and acquired by the taxpayer before the making of the election, all of those expropriation assets shall be considered to be a single expropriation asset that was issued or guaranteed by the government of that country and acquired by the taxpayer.

Regulations: 4500 (prescribed time).

Proposed Addition — 80.2

Technical Notes [s. 80.2]: Section 80.2 is a special rule that applies where a taxpayer pays an amount to another person as a reimbursement, contribution or allowance (collectively referred to herein as a "reimbursement") in respect of a Crown charge described in paragraph 12(1)(o) or 18(1)(m). If applicable, section 80.2 deems the taxpayer to have paid an amount described in paragraph 18(1)(m) and deems the other person (the "recipient") neither to have received nor to have become entitled to receive the reimbursement. In effect, section 80.2 provides for the transfer of non-deductible Crown charges from the recipient to the taxpayer. Normally, the taxpayer is entitled to a share of the production or the income from production from the property that is subject to the Crown charge. Therefore, although section 80.2 treats the taxpayer as having incurred a non-deductible Crown charge, the taxpayer would be entitled to a deduction under paragraph 20(1)(v.1) (resource allowance) calculated by reference to the taxpayer's income from the property.

Section 80.2 operates to deem the taxpayer making the reimbursement to have paid an amount described in paragraph 18(1)(m) only to the extent that the reimbursed Crown charge was either included in the recipient's income or was denied as a deduction in computing the recipient's income. With the phasing out of the income inclusion in paragraph 12(1)(o) and the prohibition against the deduction of Crown charges in paragraph 18(1)(m), section 80.2 may no longer apply to the entire amount of a reimbursement. In addition, section 80.2 does not explicitly preclude the recipient from taking a deduction (or reducing an income inclusion) in respect of a reimbursed Crown charge. As well, since section 80.2 does not deem the taxpayer to have made the reimbursement at the time the obligation to pay the Crown charge arose, a taxpayer may seek to increase the percentage of the reimbursement that is not subject to paragraph 18(1)(m) by delaying the reimbursement. For these reasons, the total amount deductible in computing the income of the taxpayer and the recipient may, in certain circumstances, exceed the amount that was intended to be deductible.

Accordingly, section 80.2 is amended:

(a) to eliminate any excess deductions that may be available as a result of a reimbursement of a Crown charge;

(b) to preclude a taxpayer who makes a reimbursement of a Crown charge from increasing the amount deductible by delaying the time of the reimbursement; and

(c) to ensure that a taxpayer who makes a reimbursement of a Crown charge is deemed to have paid an amount described in paragraph 18(1)(m) only to the extent that the reimbursed Crown charge can reasonably be considered to relate to the taxpayer's share of the production, or the income from production, from the property to which the Crown charge relates.

New section 80.2 applies to reimbursements made after 2001, except that, the rule described in paragraph (c) above, applies only to reimbursements made on or after September 17, 2004.

The ability to claim excess deductions in respect of reimbursed Crown charges is eliminated by treating the eligible portion of the reimbursement (in most cases, the full amount of the reimbursement) as a payment described in paragraph 18(1)(m) (subsection 80.2(2)) and by reversing the benefit of any deduction in respect of a reimbursed Crown charge claimed by the recipient (subsection 80.2(6)). The eligible portion of the reimbursement is referred to in new section 80.2 as the "eligible portion of the specified amount" (see discussion below under subsections 80.2(11) and (12)). The amount of a reimbursement that exceeds the eligible portion of the specified amount is included in the income of the recipient (subsection 80.2(8)) and, subject to paragraphs 18(1)(a) and (b), is deductible in computing the income of the taxpayer (subsection 80.2(9)). In addition, new subsection 80.2(3) precludes a taxpayer from increasing the deductible portion of a reimbursement by delaying the time of the reimbursement. It does this by ensuring that the amount deductible is determined by reference to the time that the reimbursed Crown charge was imposed (i.e., became payable to, or receivable by, the Crown or an emanation of the Crown). It should be noted that new subsection 80.2(3) does not apply to a reimbursement paid to a partnership if the reimbursement meets the conditions described in new subsection 80.2(4). These conditions, which are set out in paragraphs 80.2(4)(a) to (d), are discussed in the commentary to new subsection 80.2(4).

Dept. of Finance news release 2004-053, Sept. 17, 2004: Minister of Finance Proposes Amendments to Royalty Reimbursement Rule

Minister of Finance Ralph Goodale today announced his intention to propose amendments to the Income Tax Act that would prevent corporations and other taxpayers from obtaining inappropriate tax deductions in respect of reimbursed resource-related Crown charges such as royalties.

The 2003 budget announced improvements to the tax structure applying to Canada's resource sector. These improvements, which were enacted in November 2003, included a deduction for Crown charges that is to be phased in during the period 2003 to 2007. Previously, Crown charges such as royalties could not be deducted in computing income for tax purposes.

A special reimbursement rule applies in circumstances where one taxpayer reimburses another taxpayer for a Crown charge incurred by that other taxpayer. This reimbursement rule, which was designed to limit the deductibility of Crown charge reimbursements, may not operate as intended during the phase-in period.

Accordingly, amendments to the Income Tax Act are proposed to ensure that the reimbursement rule imposes the appropriate limits on the deductibility of reimbursement payments and provides for the appropriate tax treatment to the recipients of reimbursements. The attached backgrounder provides a detailed description of the proposed amendments.

For further information: Andrée Houde, Public Affairs and Operations Division, (613) 996-8080; Pat Breton, Press Secretary, Office of the Minister of Finance, (613) 996-7861.

Backgrounder

In November 2003, a new regime for taxing resource income received Royal Assent. This regime was outlined in the Department of Finance technical paper in March 2003 and was subject to extensive consultations with the resource sector. As described in that paper, this new regime includes the following three key features, which are being phased in over a five-year period (beginning in taxation years that end after 2002):

- a reduction of the federal corporate tax rate on income earned from resource activities from 28% to 21%;
- elimination of the resource allowance; and
- a deduction for Crown charges, such as royalties and mining taxes.

Consequential to the enactment of the new regime, a long-standing rule in section 80.2 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") dealing with reimbursements, contributions or allowances (collectively referred to herein as "reimbursements") in respect of Crown charges was repealed, effective for taxation years beginning after 2006. Prior to the introduction of the new regime, a taxpayer who reimbursed a Crown charge incurred by another person (the "recipient") was considered to have made a payment described in paragraph 18(1)(m) of the Act, which payment was not deductible in computing the taxpayer's income. Thus, neither the taxpayer nor the recipient was entitled to deduct an amount in respect of the Crown charge. The purpose of this reimbursement rule was to put the taxpayer making the reimbursement in the same position as the recipient in respect of the reimbursed Crown charge.

As a result of the phase-in of the deductibility of Crown charges, the reimbursement rule no longer operates as intended and may result in deductions during the phase-in period in excess of those that were intended.

Accordingly, it is proposed that section 80.2 be amended, applicable to reimbursements made after 2001, to provide as follows:

(a) that the full amount of a reimbursement be deemed to be a payment described in paragraph 18(1)(m) of the Act;

(b) that the income of the recipient be adjusted to offset any reduction in income that relates to the reimbursed Crown charge; and

(c) that the percentage of a reimbursement that is deductible in computing the income of the taxpayer making the reimbursement be determined by reference to the percentage that would have applied if the taxpayer had made the reimbursement at the time the Crown charge became payable or receivable.

These proposed amendments are intended to ensure that only the taxpayer making the reimbursement is entitled to a deduction in respect of the reimbursed Crown charge and that, subject to the exception described below, the deduction available to the taxpayer be limited to the amount that would have been available to the taxpayer at the time the Crown charge became payable or receivable.

It is proposed that the requirement to determine the deductibility of a reimbursement by reference to the time the Crown charge became payable or receivable generally not apply to a reimbursement by a taxpayer of actual Crown charges incurred by a partnership during a particular fiscal period if certain conditions are met. These conditions include a requirement that the taxpayer be a member of the partnership at the end of a particular fiscal period of the partnership and that the reimbursement be made in the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the fiscal period of the partnership ends.

In circumstances where the taxpayer or the recipient is required to amend a previously filed tax return, it is proposed that no penalties or interest apply to any additional tax payable as a result of the application of these rules if the tax is paid within two months of September 17, 2004.

For reimbursements made on or after September 17, 2004, it is proposed that:

- The amount of a reimbursement that exceeds the eligible portion of the reimbursement not be subject to the rules described in (a) to (c) above. The eligible portion of a reimbursement is the amount that can reasonably be considered to be the taxpayer's share of the Crown charges that apply to a particular property determined by reference to the taxpayer's share of the production or net income from production from the property. In applying this rule, the eligible portion of a reimbursement of a tax on freehold mineral rights would be deemed to be equal to the amount of the reimbursement. The eligible portion of a reimbursement may be deemed to be equal to the amount of the reimbursement in other appropriate circumstances.
- The amount of a reimbursement that exceeds the eligible portion of the reimbursement be included in computing the income of the recipient and, subject to paragraphs 18(1)(a) and (b) of the Act, generally be deductible in computing the income of the taxpayer.

These proposed amendments are intended to ensure that certain taxpayers or partnerships do not enter into reimbursement arrangements to artificially increase the amount that would otherwise be deductible in respect of a Crown charge.

80.2 [Resource royalty reimbursement] — (1) Application — Subsections (2) to (13) apply if

(a) in a taxation year, a taxpayer, under the terms of a contract, pays to a person (referred to in this section as the "recipient") an amount (referred to in this section as the "specified amount") that may reasonably be considered to be received by the recipient as a reimbursement of, or a contribution or an allowance in respect of, an amount (referred to in this section as the "original amount")

(i) that was described by paragraph 18(1)(m) and was paid or payable by the recipient, or

(ii) that was, in respect of the recipient, an amount described by paragraph 12(1)(o);

(b) the original amount is paid or became payable or receivable in a taxation year or fiscal period of the recipient that begins before 2007; and

(c) the taxpayer is resident in Canada or carries on business in Canada when the specified amount is paid.

Technical Notes: New subsection 80.2(1) provides that subsections 80.2(2) to (13) apply if a taxpayer (either resident in Canada or carrying on business in Canada) pays an amount, under the terms of a contract, that may reasonably be considered to have been received by the recipient as a reimbursement in respect of a Crown charge described by paragraph 12(1)(o) or 18(1)(m). The Crown charge is referred to in new section 80.2 as the "original amount." By referring to an original amount "described" by paragraphs 12(1)(o) or 18(1)(m) (and not the amount either included in income or denied as a deduction under these provisions), subsection 80.2(1) ensures that section 80.2 applies to the full amount of the reimbursement. The full amount of the reimbursement is referred to in new section 80.2 as the "specified amount."

New paragraph 80.2(1)(b) provides that the reimbursed Crown charge must be paid or payable by the recipient or receivable by a person described in paragraph 12(1)(o) in a taxation year or fiscal period of the recipient that begins before 2007. As a result, section 80.2 will only apply to a reimbursement if the recipient is subject to restrictions on the deductibility of the reimbursed Crown charge (i.e., the Crown charge is described in paragraph 18(1)(m)) or is required to include some portion of the Crown charge in income (i.e., the Crown charge is described in paragraph 12(1)(o)).

Related Provisions: 53(1)(e)(iv.1) — Addition to ACB of partnership interest for specified amount paid by partner to partnership.

(2) Rules relating to time of payment — If the specified amount is paid in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins before 2008, the eligible portion of the specified amount, referred to in subsection (11), is deemed to be a payment described by paragraph 18(1)(m). If, however, the specified amount is paid in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2007, the specified amount is deemed, for the purpose of applying this section to the taxpayer, to be nil.

Technical Notes: New subsection 80.2(2) provides that if the specified amount is paid in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins before 2008, the eligible portion of the specified amount is deemed to be an amount described by paragraph 18(1)(m). It also provides that, if the specified amount is paid in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2007, the specified amount is deemed, for the purpose of applying section 80.2 to the taxpayer, to be nil.

For payments made before September 17, 2004, the eligible portion of the specified amount is equal to the specified amount. For reimbursements made on or after September 17, 2004, the eligible portion of the specified amount may be less than the specified amount. The rules for determining the eligible portion of the specified amount are described in the commentary to subsections 80.2(11) and (12).

To accommodate the payment of a reimbursement in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2006 and before 2008 (the eligible portion of which is deemed to be described by paragraph 18(1)(m)), paragraph 18(1)(m), which was originally repealed effective for taxation years that begin after 2006, will be repealed for taxation years that begin after 2007. If, however, a reimbursement described in subsection 80.2(1) is delayed to a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2007, the specified amount is deemed, for the purpose of applying section 80.2 to the taxpayer, to be nil and no deduction will be available to the taxpayer in respect of the reimbursement.

(3) Applying para. 18(1)(m) — For the purpose of applying paragraph 18(1)(m) for the taxpayer's taxation year in which the specified amount was paid, the amount to which that paragraph applies is to be determined for that taxation year

(a) if the taxpayer was in existence at the time the original amount became receivable by a person referred to in subparagraph 12(1)(o)(i) or became payable to a person referred to in subparagraph 18(1)(m)(i), as if the specified amount were paid by the taxpayer at that time; and

(b) in any other case, as if

(i) the taxpayer were in existence and had a calendar taxation year at the time the original amount became receivable by a person referred to in subparagraph 12(1)(o)(i) or became payable to a person referred to in subparagraph 18(1)(m)(i), and

(ii) the specified amount were paid by the taxpayer at that time.

Technical Notes: To ensure that the taxpayer does not benefit (i.e., increase the percentage of the reimbursement that is deductible in computing income) by delaying the reimbursement of a Crown charge, new subsection 80.2(3) provides that paragraph 18(1)(m) applies as if the reimbursement were made at the time the Crown charge was imposed (i.e., became payable or receivable). If the taxpayer did not exist at the time the Crown charge was imposed (e.g., a new corporation created on an amalgamation), the percentage of the reimbursement that is subject to paragraph 18(1)(m) is computed as if the taxpayer were in existence at that time and had a calendar year-end. In either case, the percentage of the reimbursement that is subject to paragraph 18(1)(m) and, accordingly, the amount that is not deductible in the taxation year in which the reimbursement is paid, is determined by reference to the percentages described in the transitional rules to the repeal of paragraph 18(1)(m), as if the taxpayer paid the reimbursement at the time the reimbursed Crown charge was imposed.

Related Provisions: 80.2(4) — Exception for certain partnership reimbursements.

(4) Exception for certain partnership reimbursements — Subsection (3) does not apply to a specified amount paid by a taxpayer if

(a) the recipient is a partnership;

(b) the original amount became receivable by a person referred to in subparagraph 12(1)(o)(i) or became payable to a person referred to in subparagraph 18(1)(m)(i), in a particular fiscal period of the partnership;

(c) the taxpayer is a member of the partnership at the end of the particular fiscal period; and

(d) the taxpayer paid the specified amount before the end of the taxation year of the taxpayer in which that particular fiscal period ends.

Technical Notes: New subsection 80.2(4) provides that subsection 80.2(3) does not apply to certain partnership reimbursements if the conditions, set out in new paragraphs 80.2(4)(a) to (d), are met. Those conditions require the taxpayer to be a member of the partnership at the end of the particular fiscal period in which the Crown charge became payable or receivable and require the reimbursement to be paid before the end of the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the particular fiscal period of the partnership ends. The purpose of new subsection 80.2(4) is to permit a member of a partnership to determine the amount deductible in respect of a reimbursed Crown charge by reference to the same taxation year as the profit from the partnership's production (on which the reimbursed Crown charge was imposed) is allocated to the member.

(5) Specified amount deemed to be paid at end of taxation year — A specified amount paid by the taxpayer to a partnership is deemed to have been paid on the last day of a particular taxation year of the taxpayer, and not at the time it was paid, if

(a) the taxpayer paid an amount to the partnership in the particular taxation year (referred to in this subsection as the "initial payment");

(b) the initial payment was paid before September 17, 2004;

(c) the initial payment is an amount to which subsection (3) did not apply because of subsection (4);

(d) the taxpayer's share of the original amount in respect of the initial payment is greater than the initial payment;

(e) the specified amount is equal to or less than the difference between the taxpayer's share of the original amount in respect of the initial payment and the initial payment;

(f) the taxpayer elects in the taxpayer's return of income for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the time at which the specified amount would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection, have been paid, to have this subsection apply to the specified amount; and

(g) the specified amount is paid before 2006.

Technical Notes: New subsection 80.2(5) is a special rule that applies to a taxpayer that made a reimbursement payment to a partnership before September 17, 2004 ("initial reimbursement"). If the conditions set out in new subsection 80.2(5) are met, the taxpayer may make a supplemental reimbursement ("top-up reimbursement") that is deemed to have been paid at the end of the taxation year in which the initial reimbursement was made. New subsection 80.2(5) only applies if the taxpayer's share of the original amount in respect of the initial reimbursement is greater than the initial reimbursement (i.e., the taxpayer reimbursed the partnership for less than the taxpayer's share of the Crown charges). In addition, the top-up reimbursement must be paid before 2006 and cannot exceed the difference between the taxpayer's share of the original amount in respect of the initial reimbursement and the initial reimbursement. The rules for determining a taxpayer's share of the original amount in respect of the initial reimbursement are set out in new subsection 80.2(12).

The purpose of new subsection 80.2(5) is to permit a taxpayer to make a retroactive top-up reimbursement if the initial reimbursement was less than the taxpayer's share of the Crown charges. This provision recognizes that: 1) a taxpayer may have made a partial reimbursement prior to September 17, 2004 (the date of the press release announcing the amendments to section 80.2) in the expectation of obtaining a deduction in respect of reimbursed Crown charges that was proportionate to the reduction in the taxpayer's resource allowance; and 2) the deduction anticipated by the taxpayer may have been diminished by new section 80.2. Thus, new subsection 80.2(5) affords the taxpayer the opportunity to correct for unanticipated tax consequences relating to the application of new section 80.2 to the initial reimbursement.

(6) Inclusion in recipient's income — The recipient shall include in computing the recipient's income for the taxation year or fiscal period in which the original amount was paid or became payable or receivable, the amount, if any, by which the eligible portion of the specified amount exceeds the portion of the original amount that was included in computing the income of the recipient for the taxation year or fiscal period because of paragraph 12(1)(o) or that was not deductible in computing the income of the recipient for the taxation year or fiscal period because of paragraph 18(1)(m).

Technical Notes: New subsection 80.2(6) requires the recipient to include in income, for the taxation year or fiscal period in which the original amount was paid or became payable or receivable, the amount by which the eligible portion of the specified amount exceeds the portion of the original amount that was included in the income of the recipient (if the reimbursement relates to a paragraph 12(1)(o) amount) or was not allowed as a deduction (if the reimbursement relates to a paragraph 18(1)(m) amount). The purpose of this provision is to offset any reduction in income available to the recipient in respect of a reimbursed Crown charge.

Related Provisions: 80.2(7) — Interpretation; 80.2(8) — Alternative inclusion; 80.2(11) — Eligible portion.

(7) Interpretation — portion of the original amount — For the purpose of subsection (6), the portion of the original amount that was included in computing the income of the recipient or that was not deductible in computing the income of the recipient is the amount that would be included in computing the income of the recipient under paragraph 12(1)(o) or that would not be deductible in computing the income of the recipient under paragraph 18(1)(m), if the original amount were equal to the eligible portion of the specified amount.

Technical Notes: New subsection 80.2(7) provides that, in determining the amount included in the income of the recipient under subsection 80.2(6), the portion of the original amount that was included in computing the income of the recipient or that was not deductible in computing the income of the recipient is determined as if the original amount were equal to the eligible portion of the specified amount. For example, assume that, in its taxation year ending on December 31, 2003, a recipient was entitled to a deduction of $500 in respect of $5,000 of Crown charges described in paragraph 18(1)(m) (10% of $5,000) and that one-half of the Crown charges ($2,500) were reimbursed in that year. In this case, the recipient would be required to include $250 in its income (10% of $2,500 — the amount deductible by the recipient if the original amount were equal to the eligible portion of the specified amount). As a further example, assume that the recipient receives a reimbursement of $3,000 after September 17, 2004 in respect of $5,000 of Crown charges incurred in its taxation year ending December 31, 2004. It is further determined that the eligible portion of the specified amount is $2,000. In this case, the recipient would be required to include $500 in its income under this provision (25% of $2,000 — the amount deductible by the recipient if the original amount were equal to the eligible portion of the specified amount). The portion of the reimbursement that exceeds the eligible portion of the specified amount ($1,000) would be included in the recipient's 2004 income under new subsection 80.2(8).

Related Provisions: 80.2(11) — Eligible portion.

(8) Inclusion in recipient's income — The recipient shall include, in computing the recipient's income for its taxation year or fiscal period in which the original amount was paid or became payable or receivable, the amount, if any, by which the specified amount exceeds the eligible portion of the specified amount. The amount included in the income of the recipient under this subsection is equal to the amount that may be deductible by the taxpayer under subsection 80.2(9).

Technical Notes: New subsection 80.2(8) requires the recipient to include, in computing the recipient's income for its taxation year or fiscal period in which the original amount was paid or became payable or receivable, the amount, if any, by which the specified amount exceeds the eligible portion of the specified amount. The amount included in the income of the recipient under this subsection is equal to the amount that may be deductible by the taxpayer under subsection 80.2(9).

Related Provisions: 80.2(6) — Alternative inclusion; 80.2(11) — Eligible portion.

(9) Deduction by taxpayer — Subject to paragraphs 18(1)(a) and (b), the taxpayer may deduct in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's taxation year in which the specified amount was paid, the amount, if any, by which the specified amount exceeds the eligible portion of the specified amount.

Technical Notes: New subsection 80.2(9) provides that the taxpayer may deduct, subject to paragraphs 18(1)(a) and (b), in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's taxation year in which the specified amount was paid, the amount, if any, by which the specified amount exceeds the eligible portion of the specified amount. The amount described in this subsection is that portion of a reimbursement that is not treated as a payment described by paragraph 18(1)(m).

Related Provisions: 80.2(11) — Eligible portion.

(10) Specified amount deemed not to be payable or receivable — Except for the purposes of this section and subparagraph 53(1)(e)(iv.1),

(a) the taxpayer is deemed not to have paid, and not to have been obligated to pay, the specified amount; and

(b) the recipient is deemed not to have received, and not to have been entitled to receive, the specified amount.

Technical Notes: New paragraphs 80.2(10)(a) and (b), provide that, except for the purposes of section 80.2 and subparagraph 53(1)(e)(iv.1), the taxpayer is deemed not to have paid and not to have been obligated to pay, the specified amount and the recipient is deemed not to have received and not to have been entitled to receive, the specified amount. This subsection ensures that the tax implications of payments described in subsection 80.2(1) are dealt with entirely within section 80.2.

(11) Eligible portion of a specified amount — The eligible portion of a specified amount is

(a) an amount equal to the specified amount if

(i) the specified amount was paid before September 17, 2004,

(ii) the original amount is a tax imposed under a provincial law on the production of

(A) petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas (other than a mineral resource) located in Canada, or from an oil or gas well located in Canada if the petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons are not, before extraction, owned by the Crown in right of Canada or a province, or

(B) metals, mineral or coal from a mineral resource located in Canada if the metals, mineral or coal are not, before extraction, owned by the Crown in right of Canada or a province,

(iii) the specified amount does not exceed the taxpayer's share of the original amount, or

(iv) the original amount is a prescribed amount; and

(b) the taxpayer's share of the original amount, in any other case.

Technical Notes: The amount of a reimbursement that is deemed by new subsection 80.2(2) to be a payment described by paragraph 18(1)(m) is the "eligible portion of the specified amount." The eligible portion of the specified amount is defined in paragraph 80.2(11)(b), subject to certain exceptions enumerated in paragraph 80.2(11)(a), as the taxpayer's share of the original amount. The taxpayer's share of the original amount is described in new subsection 80.2(12).

Paragraph 80.2(11)(a) provides that the eligible portion of the specified amount is equal to the specified amount if

(a) the specified amount was paid before September 17, 2004;

(b) the original amount is a tax imposed under a law of a province on freehold minerals; or

(c) the specified amount does not exceed the taxpayer's share the original amount.

The specified amount of a reimbursement, in future, may also be prescribed by regulation, to be equal to the eligible portion of the specified amount.

Related Provisions: 80.2(12) — Taxpayer's share.

(12) Taxpayer's share of original amount — A taxpayer's share of an original amount in respect of a specified amount paid by the taxpayer to a recipient in respect of a property is the amount that may reasonably be considered to be the taxpayer's share of the total of all amounts described in paragraph 12(1)(o) or 18(1)(m) in respect of the property, which share may not exceed the total of

(a) that proportion of the total of all amounts described in paragraph 12(1)(o) or 18(1)(m) in respect of the property that the taxpayer's share of production from the property payable to the taxpayer as a royalty, which royalty is computed without reference to the costs of exploration or production, is of the total production from the property, and

(b) that proportion of the total of all amounts described in paragraph 12(1)(o) or 18(1)(m) in respect of the property (other than those amounts which the recipient has received or is entitled to receive as a reimbursement, contribution or allowance in respect of a royalty described in paragraph (a)) that the taxpayer's share of the income from the property is of the total income from the property.

Technical Notes: New subsection 80.2(12) provides that the taxpayer's share of the original amount is the amount that may reasonably be considered to be the taxpayer's share of the Crown charges in respect of a particular property. More specifically, this subsection provides that the taxpayer's share of the Crown charges may not exceed the total of the amounts described in paragraphs 80.2(12)(a) and (b).

New paragraph 80.2(12)(a) provides that the taxpayer's share of the Crown charges in respect of a property upon which the taxpayer has an overriding royalty (a royalty calculated without reference to the cost of exploration or production) is the proportion of those Crown charges that is equal to the taxpayer's proportionate share of the production from the property.

New paragraph 80.2(12)(b) provides that the taxpayer's share of the Crown charges in respect of a property (excluding any Crown charges that were reimbursed under the terms of an overriding royalty) is equal to the taxpayer's share of the income from the property.

The requirement that the taxpayer be entitled to a share of the production, or the income, from the property to which the reimbursed Crown charge relates is intended to ensure that a reimbursement paid by a taxpayer will be deemed to be an amount described by paragraph 18(1)(m) only to the extent that the taxpayer is entitled to an appropriate share of the production, or the income, from the property. This, in turn, is intended to ensure that section 80.2 is not used to separate the Crown charges (through a reimbursement) from the resource profits generated by a particular property for the purpose of increasing the deduction that may be available in respect of the Crown charges.

(13) Reduction in original amount for Part XII of the Regulations — For the purpose of applying Part XII of the Income Tax Regulations, an original amount in respect of which a specified amount is received is deemed, for the taxation year in which the original amount was paid or became payable or receivable, not to include an amount equal to the eligible portion of the specified amount.

Technical Notes: New subsection 80.2(13) clarifies that, in computing the resource profits under Part XII of the Regulations, the Crown charges that were paid or became payable by the recipient, or that were receivable in respect of the recipient, are reduced by the eligible portion of the specified amount. For example, if a recipient had an amount described in paragraph 12(1)(o) equal to $1,000 and $700 of this amount was reimbursed (and the $700 did not exceed the eligible portion of the specified amount) in circumstances described in subsection 80.2(1), the recipient would be treated, for the purpose of computing the recipient's resource profits, as having a paragraph 12(1)(o) amount equal to $300.

Payment of Tax

In circumstances where a taxpayer or recipient is required to pay any income tax that the taxpayer or recipient would not be so liable but for the amendments to section 80.2, such taxes will be deemed to have been paid on the balance-due day for the relevant year if the balance due date was before September 17, 2004 and the tax is paid to the Receiver General for Canada before March 2005.

Examples

Assume that each of the recipient and the taxpayer is a resident taxable Canadian corporation and that each has a calendar taxation year. The recipient acquires a lease on Crown lands, which gives it the right to explore for and produce oil and natural gas from a particular property. Under the terms of the lease, the recipient is subject to a provincial Crown royalty based on the production from the property. The recipient enters into a contract with the taxpayer under which it sells a royalty interest on the property to the taxpayer equal to 50% of the production from the property free of all costs of development and operation. During each of 2003, 2004 and 2005, the production from the property is $2.4 million, the royalty payable to the taxpayer is $1.2 million and the Crown royalty on the production from the property is $600,000.

Example 1

Assume that the Crown royalty is described in paragraph 18(1)(m) and that, under the terms of the contract, the taxpayer agreed to reimburse the recipient for the portion of the Crown royalty relating to its share of production ($300,000). During 2003, the taxpayer reimburses the recipient on a monthly basis at the same time that the Crown royalty became payable to the provincial government. Although the recipient receives the reimbursement, it claims a deduction in respect of the reimbursed Crown royalty equal to $30,000. In this case, new section 80.2 would apply as follows:

	Recipient (2003)	Taxpayer (2003)
80.2(2)		($30,000)*
80.2(6)	$30,000
Penalty/Interest	Nil	Nil

Table notes:

* Note that if the taxpayer had claimed a deduction that exceeded $30,000, the "excess" deduction would be disallowed.

 Assuming that any tax resulting from the application of proposed section 80.2 is paid before March 2005.

The taxpayer is deemed by subsection 80.2(2) to have paid an amount under paragraph 18(1)(m) equal to the specified amount (the amount of the reimbursement), 90% of which is denied as a deduction in computing the taxpayer's income by paragraph 18(1)(m). In addition, the deduction taken by the recipient in respect of the reimbursed Crown royalty is reversed by subsection 80.2(6). Pursuant to subsection 80.2(13), the recipient would not include in computing its resource profits under Part XII of the Regulations any portion of the Crown royalty that was reimbursed by the taxpayer. Accordingly, for the purpose of computing its resource profits, the recipient would be treated as having a Crown royalty equal to $300,000.

Assume that the Crown royalty is described by paragraph 12(1)(o) and that, under the terms of the contract, the taxpayer reimburses the recipient on January 1, 2004 for its share of the Crown royalty that became receivable in 2003. Although the recipient is entitled to the reimbursement, it includes, under paragraph 12(1)(o), only $270,000 in its income in respect of the reimbursed Crown royalties (90% of $300,000). In this case, new section 80.2 would apply as follows:

	Recipient (2003)	Taxpayer (2004)
80.2(2)/(3)		($30,000)*
80.2(6)	$30,000
Penalty/Interest	Nil

Table notes:

* (10% of $300,000). Note that if the taxpayer had claimed a total deduction that exceeded $30,000, the "excess" deduction would be disallowed.

 Assuming that any tax resulting from the application of proposed section 80.2 is paid before March 2005.

As in Example 1, the recipient has a $30,000 income inclusion under new subsection 80.2(6). The result is that the total amount included in the income of the recipient in 2003 under paragraph 12(1)(o) and subsection 80.2(6) in respect of the reimbursed Crown royalty is equal to $300,000. In addition, new subsections 80.2(2) and (3) ensure that the entire amount of the reimbursement is an amount described in paragraph 18(1)(m) and that the percentage of the reimbursement that is not deductible by the taxpayer is determined as if the reimbursement were paid at the time the Crown royalty became receivable (i.e., 2003 percentages apply). Pursuant to subsection 80.2(13), the recipient would not include in computing its resource profits under Part XII of the Regulations any portion of the Crown royalty that was reimbursed by the taxpayer. Accordingly, for the purpose of computing its resource profits, the recipient would be treated as having a Crown royalty equal to $300,000.

Example 3

Assume that, under the terms of the contract, the taxpayer reimburses the recipient $400,000 on January 31, 2005 in respect of Crown royalties described in paragraph 12(1)(o), all of which became receivable by the province during 2004. In this situation, the reimbursement exceeds the eligible portion of the specified amount by $100,000. In computing its income for 2004, the recipient includes $300,000 (75% of $400,000) in respect of the reimbursed Crown royalty. Assuming that a deduction by the taxpayer for any portion of the reimbursement would not be denied by either paragraph 18(1)(a) or (b), new section 80.2 would apply as follows:

	Recipient (2004)	Taxpayer (2005)
80.2(2)/(3)		($75,000)*
80.2(6)	$75,000

	Recipient (2004)	Taxpayer (2005)
80.2(8)	$100,000
80.2(9)		($100,000)

Table notes:

* The deduction for the eligible portion of the specified amount is based on the percentage that applies in the taxpayer's 2004 taxation year (25% of $300,000).

 Subsection 80.2(6) requires the recipient to include in its income, the amount by which the eligible portion of the specified amount ($300,000) exceeds the portion of the original amount that was included in the recipient's income ($225,000 or 75% of $300,000).

 Subsection 80.2(8) requires the recipient to include in income, in the taxation year in which the Crown royalty became receivable, an amount equal to the difference between the specified amount ($400,000) and the eligible portion of the specified amount ($300,000).

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), s. 83, will amend s. 80.2 to read as above, applicable in respect of specified amounts paid after 2001. Where a person is liable to an amount of tax under Part I of the Act for a taxation year that exceeds the amount to which the person would be liable if s. 80.2 applied as it read on December 31, 2001, the person is deemed, for the purpose of determining any interest or penalty payable by that person, to have paid the excess on that person's balance-due date, if

(a) the person's balance-due date for the taxation year was before September 17, 2004; and

(b) the excess was paid to the Receiver General before March 2005.

Notwithstanding subsecs. 152(4) to (5) of the Act, all assessments, determinations, and redeterminations may be made as necessary to give effect to this amendment.

History: S. 80.2 repealed by 2003, c. 28, s. 9, applicable to taxation years that begin after 2006, but to be unrepealed per Proposed Amendment below. S. 80.2 formerly read:

80.2 Reimbursement by taxpayer [resource royalties] — Where

(a) a taxpayer, under the terms of a contract, pays to another person an amount (in this subsection[11] referred to as the "specified payment") that may reasonably be considered to have been received by the other person as a reimbursement, contribution or allowance in respect of an amount (referred to in paragraph (b) as the "particular amount") paid or payable by the other person,

(b) the particular amount is included in the income of the other person or is denied as a deduction in computing the income of the other person by reason of paragraph 12(1)(o) or 18(1)(m), as the case may be, and

(c) the taxpayer was resident in Canada or carrying on business in Canada at the time the specified payment was made by the taxpayer, the following rules apply for the purposes of this Act, other than this section:

(d) the taxpayer shall be deemed neither to have made nor to have become obligated to make the specified payment to the other person but to have paid an amount described in paragraph 18(1)(m) equal to the amount of the specified payment, and

(e) the other person shall be deemed neither to have received nor to have become entitled to receive the specified payment from the taxpayer.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), s. 197, proposes to repeal the provision repealing s. 80.2 in S.C. 2003, c. 28 (Bill C-48, Royal Assent November 7, 2003, s. 9), in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: Subsection 80.2 was repealed by section 9 of An Act to Amend the Income Tax Act (Natural Resources), S.C. 2003, c. 28, effective for taxation years that begin after 2006 [2003 resource bill — ed.]. Section 9 of that Act is being repealed with the result that section 80.2 will continue in force [actually, the new version above will apply instead — ed.]. However, section 80.2 will apply only to specified amounts paid in respect of original amounts that are paid or become payable or receivable in taxation years or fiscal periods of the recipient that begin before 2007. As a result, section 80.2 will only apply to a reimbursement if the recipient is subject to restrictions on the deductibility of the reimbursed Crown charge (i.e., the Crown charge is described in paragraph 18(1)(m)) or is required to include some portion of the Crown charge in income (i.e., the Crown charge is described in paragraph 12(1)(o)).

The repeal of section 9 of the Act to Amend the Income Tax Act (Natural Resources) extends the possible application of section 80.2 to a reimbursement that is made in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2006 (assuming the reimbursed Crown charge was imposed in a taxation year or fiscal period of the recipient that begins before 2007). This extension of section 80.2, along with the extension of paragraph 18(1)(m) will accommodate, among other things, a reimbursement of a Crown charge by a member of a partnership, as described in new subsection 80.2(4), where such reimbursement is made in a taxation year of the member that begins after 2006 and before 2008.

(a) horses that are over 12 months of age and are kept for breeding in the commercial production of pregnant mares' urine, and

(b) deer, elk and other similar grazing ungulates, bovine cattle, bison, goats and sheep that are over 12 months of age and are kept for breeding;

History: Para. (b) of the definition "breeding animals" in subsec. 80.3(1) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), s. 31, to add "deer, elk and other similar grazing ungulates", applicable to fiscal periods and taxation years ending after 1990.

"breeding herd" of a taxpayer at any time means the number determined by the formula

$$A - (B - C)$$

where

A is the total number of the taxpayer's breeding animals held in the course of carrying on a farming business at that time,

B is the total number of the taxpayer's breeding animals held in the business at that time that are female bovine cattle that have not given birth to calves, and

C is the lesser of the number determined as the value of B and one-half the total number of the taxpayer's breeding animals held in the business at that time that are female bovine cattle that have given birth to calves.

(2) Income deferral from the destruction of livestock — Where a particular amount in respect of the forced destruction of livestock under statutory authority in a taxation year of a taxpayer is included in computing the income of the taxpayer for the year from a farming business, there may be deducted in computing that income such amount as the taxpayer claims not exceeding the particular amount.

Related Provisions: 28(1)(g) — Deduction for farming business using cash method; 80.3(3) — Inclusion of deferred amount; 80.3(6) — Where subsecs. (2) and (4) not to apply.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-425: Miscellaneous farm income.

(3) Inclusion of deferred amount — The amount deducted under subsection (2) in computing the income of a taxpayer from a farming business for a taxation year shall be deemed to be income of the taxpayer from the business for the taxpayer's immediately following taxation year.

Related Provisions: 28(1)(d) — Inclusion in farming income when using cash method; 87(2)(tt) — Amalgamations — deferral of amounts received; 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up — rules applicable.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-425: Miscellaneous farm income.

(4) Income deferral for sales in prescribed drought region — Where in a taxation year a taxpayer carries on a farming business in a region that is a prescribed drought region at any time in the year and the taxpayer's breeding herd at the end of the year in respect of the business does not exceed 85% of the taxpayer's breeding herd at the beginning of the year in respect of the business, there may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the year such amount as the taxpayer claims, not exceeding the amount, if any, determined by the formula

$$(A - B) \times C$$

where

A is the amount by which

(a) the total of all amounts included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year from the business in respect of the sale of breeding animals in the year

exceeds

(b) the total of all amounts deducted under paragraph 20(1)(n) in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the year in respect of an amount referred to in paragraph (a) of this description;

B is the total of all amounts deducted in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the year in respect of the acquisition of breeding animals; and

C is

(a) 30% where the taxpayer's breeding herd at the end of the year in respect of the business exceeds 70% of the taxpayer's breeding herd at the beginning of the year in respect of the business, and

(b) 90% where the taxpayer's breeding herd at the end of the year in respect of the business does not exceed 70% of the taxpayer's breeding herd at the beginning of the year in respect of the business.

Related Provisions: 28(1)(g) — Deduction for farming business using cash method; 80.3(5) — Inclusion of deferred amount; 80.3(6) — Where subsecs. (2) and (4) not to apply; 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

Regulations: 7305, 7305.01 (prescribed drought regions for each year).

(5) Inclusion of deferred amount — The amount deducted under subsection (4) in computing the income of a taxpayer for a particular taxation year from a farming business carried on in a prescribed drought region may, to the extent that the taxpayer so elects, be included in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for a taxation year ending after the particular taxation year, and shall, except to the extent that the amount has been included under this subsection in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for a preceding taxation year after the particular year, be deemed to be income of the taxpayer from the business for the taxation year of the taxpayer that is the earliest of

(a) the first taxation year beginning after the end of the period or series of continuous periods, as the case may be, for which the region is a prescribed drought region,

(b) the first taxation year, following the particular taxation year, at the end of which the taxpayer is

(i) non-resident, and

(ii) not carrying on business through a fixed place of business in Canada, and

(c) the taxation year in which the taxpayer dies.

Related Provisions: 28(1)(d) — Amount under 80.3(5) to be added to income of farming business using cash method.

History: Subsec. 80.3(5) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 59(1), applicable to fiscal periods and taxation years ending after 1987. Subsec. 80.3(5) formerly read:

(5) Inclusion of deferred amount — The amount deducted under subsection (4) in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year from a farming business carried on in a prescribed drought region shall be deemed to be income of the taxpayer from the business for the taxpayer's first taxation year commencing after the end of the period or series of continuous periods, as the case may be, for which the region was a prescribed drought region or, where the taxpayer has died before the beginning of that first taxation year, for the taxation year in which the taxpayer died, except to the extent that the amount has been included in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for a preceding taxation year.

Regulations: 7305, 7305.01 (prescribed drought regions for each year).

(6) Where subsecs. (2) and (4) do not apply — Subsections (2) and (4) do not apply to a taxpayer in respect of a farming business for a taxation year

(a) in which the taxpayer died; or

(b) where at the end of the year the taxpayer is non-resident and not carrying on the business through a fixed place of business in Canada.

History: Para. 80.3(6)(b) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 59(2), applicable to fiscal periods and taxation years ending after 1987. Para. 80.3(6)(b) formerly read:

(b) where the taxpayer is not resident in Canada at the end of the year and at any time in the year did not carry on the business in Canada.

80.4 (1) Loans [to employees — deemed interest] — Where a person or partnership receives a loan or otherwise incurs a debt because of or as a consequence of a previous, the current or an intended office or employment of an individual, or because of the services performed or to be performed by a corporation carrying on a personal services business, the individual or corporation, as the case may be, shall be deemed to have received a benefit in a taxation year equal to the amount, if any, by which the total of

(a) all interest on all such loans and debts computed at the prescribed rate on each such loan and debt for the period in the year during which it was outstanding, and

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount of interest that was paid or payable in respect of the year on such a loan or debt by

(i) a person or partnership (in this paragraph referred to as the "employer") that employed or intended to employ the individual,

(ii) a person (other than the debtor) related to the employer, or

(iii) a person or partnership to or for whom or which the services were or were to be provided or performed by the corporation or a person (other than the debtor) that does not deal at arm's length with that person or any member of such partnership,

exceeds the total of

(c) the amount of interest for the year paid on all such loans and debts not later than 30 days after the end of the year, and

(d) any portion of the total determined in respect of the year under paragraph (b) that is reimbursed in the year or within 30 days after the end of the year by the debtor to the person or entity who made the payment referred to in that paragraph.

I.T. Technical News: 6 (payment of mortgage interest subsidy by employer).

(1.1) Interpretation — A loan or debt is deemed to have been received or incurred because of an individual's office or employment, or because of services performed by a corporation that carries on a personal services business, as the case may be, if it is reasonable to conclude that, but for an individual's previous, current or intended office or employment, or the services performed or to be performed by the corporation,

(a) the terms of the loan or debt would have been different; or

(b) the loan would not have been received or the debt would not have been incurred.

Related Provisions: 6(23) — Employer-provided mortgage subsidy is taxable; 248(1)"home relocation loan"(c) — Definition based on application of 80.4(1).

History: Subsec. 80.4(1.1) added by 1999, c. 22, s. 22, applicable to loans received and debts incurred after February 23, 1998 except that, in its application to a loan received or a debt incurred after February 23, 1998 in respect of an eligible relocation of an individual in connection with which the individual begins employment at the new work location before October 1998, subsec. (1.1) does not apply to taxation years that end before 2001.

(2) Idem [loan to shareholders — deemed interest] — Where a person (other than a corporation resident in Canada) or a partnership (other than a partnership each member of which is a corporation resident in Canada) was

(a) a shareholder of a corporation,

(b) connected with a shareholder of a corporation, or

(c) a member of a partnership, or a beneficiary of a trust, that was a shareholder of a corporation, and by virtue of such shareholding that person or partnership received a loan from, or otherwise incurred a debt to, that corporation, any other corporation related thereto or a partnership of which that corporation or any corporation related thereto was a member, the person or partnership shall be deemed to have received a benefit in a taxation year equal to the amount, if any, by which

(d) all interest on all such loans and debts computed at the prescribed rate on each such loan and debt for the period in the year during which it was outstanding

exceeds

(e) the amount of interest for the year paid on all such loans and debts not later than 30 days after the later of the end of the year and December 31, 1982.

(3) Where subsecs. (1) and (2) do not apply — Subsections (1) and (2) do not apply in respect of any loan or debt, or any part thereof,

(a) on which the rate of interest was equal to or greater than the rate that would, having regard to all the circumstances (including the terms and conditions of the loan or debt), have been agreed on, at the time the loan was received or the debt was incurred, between parties dealing with each other at arm's length if

(i) none of the parties received the loan or incurred the debt by virtue of an office or employment or by virtue of the shareholding of a person or partnership, and

(ii) the ordinary business of the creditor included the lending of money, except where an amount is paid or payable in any taxation year to the creditor in respect of interest on the loan or debt by a party other than the debtor; or

(b) that was included in computing the income of a person or partnership under this Part.

Selected Cases [subsec. 80.4(3)]: Quigley v. Canada, [1996] 1 C.T.C. 2378 (TCC) ("Was included" is question of fact and not same as "ought to have been included").

(4) Interest on loans for home purchase or relocation — For the purpose of computing the benefit under subsection (1) in a taxation year in respect of a home purchase loan or a home relocation loan and for the purpose of paragraph 110(1)(j), the amount of interest determined under paragraph (1)(a) shall not exceed the amount of interest that would have been determined thereunder if it had been computed at the prescribed rate in effect at the time the loan was received or the debt was incurred, as the case may be.

Related Provisions: 80(14)(d) — Residual balance; 80.4(6) — Interest rate cap reset every 5 years; 110(1.4) — Replacement of home relocation loan.

Regulations: 4301(c) (prescribed rate of interest); but see also ITA 80.4(7)"prescribed rate".

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-421R2: Benefits to individuals, corporations and shareholders from loans or debt.

(5) Idem — Where an individual has, before November 13, 1981,

(a) received a housing loan, or

(b) made arrangements in writing in respect of a home purchase loan that would, if the loan were made before 1982, have been a housing loan, for the purpose of computing the amount of interest referred to in paragraph (1)(a) on the loan, the amount of the loan may be reduced

(c) for the 1982 taxation year, by the amount, if any, by which $40,000 exceeds the total of

(i) all amounts claimed as a reduction under this subsection for the year by the individual's spouse or common-law partner with whom the individual resided in the year, and

(ii) all amounts claimed as a reduction under this subsection for the year by the individual on all other loans, and

(d) for the 1983 taxation year, by the amount, if any, by which $20,000 exceeds the total of

(i) all amounts claimed as a reduction under this subsection for the year by the individual's spouse or common-law partner with whom the individual resided in the year, and

(ii) all amounts claimed as a reduction under this subsection for the year by the individual on all other loans.

History: Subsec. 80.4(5) amended by 2000, c. 12, Sch. 2, s. 1, to replace "spouse" with "spouse or common-law partner", applicable to 2001 et seq., in force July 31, 2000. See also the transitional rules reproduced in the History to 248(1)"common-law partner".

(6) Deemed new home purchase loans — For the purposes of this section, other than paragraph (3)(a) and subsection (5), where a home purchase loan or a home relocation loan of an individual has a term for repayment exceeding five years, the balance outstanding on the loan on the date that is five years from the day the loan was received or was last deemed by this subsection to have been received shall be deemed to be a new home purchase loan received by the individual on that date.

Related Provisions: 110(1)(j) — Home relocation loan; 110(1.4) — Replacement of home relocation loan.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-421R2: Benefits to individuals, corporations and shareholders from loans or debt.

(7) Definitions — In this section,

"home purchase loan" means that portion of any loan received or debt otherwise incurred by an individual in the circumstances described in subsection (1) that is used to acquire, or to repay a loan or debt that was received or incurred to acquire, a dwelling, or a share of the capital stock of a cooperative housing corporation acquired for the sole purpose of acquiring the right to inhabit a dwelling owned by the corporation, where the dwelling is for the habitation of

(a) the individual by virtue of whose office or employment the loan is received or the debt is incurred,

(b) a specified shareholder of the corporation by virtue of whose services the loan is received or the debt is incurred, or

(c) a person related to a person described in paragraph (a) or (b), or that is used to repay a home purchase loan;

History: That portion of "home purchase loan" preceding para. (a) in subsec. 80.4(7) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), s. 60, applicable to 1985 et seq. That portion formerly read:

> "home purchase loan" means that portion of any loan received or debt otherwise incurred by an individual in the circumstances described in subsection (1) that is used to acquire, or to repay a loan or debt that had been received or incurred to acquire, a dwelling for the habitation of

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-421R2: Benefits to individuals, corporations and shareholders from loans or debt.

"prescribed rate" of interest means

(a) 6% per annum before 1978,

(b) 8% per annum for 1978, and

(c) for any year, or part thereof, after 1978, such rate of interest as is prescribed therefor except that, for the purpose of computing the benefit under subsection (1) in a taxation year on a home purchase loan received after November 12, 1981 and before 1982, the prescribed rate of interest at the time the loan was received shall be deemed to be 16% per annum.

Regulations: 4301(c) (prescribed rate of interest for para. (c)).

(8) Persons connected with a shareholder — For the purposes of subsection (2), a person is connected with a shareholder of a corporation if that person does not deal at arm's length with the shareholder and if that person is a person other than

(a) a foreign affiliate of the corporation; or

(b) a foreign affiliate of a person resident in Canada with which the corporation does not deal at arm's length.

Subdivision g — Amounts Not Included in Computing Income

81. (1) Amounts not included in income — There shall not be included in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year,

(a) statutory exemptions [including Indians] — an amount that is declared to be exempt from income tax by any other enactment of Parliament, other than an amount received or receivable by an individual that is exempt by virtue of a provision contained in a tax convention or agreement with another country that has the force of law in Canada;

Proposed Amendment — Aboriginal income taxation

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Jan. 27, 2009: Aboriginal Tax Policy

Taxation is an integral part of good governance as it promotes greater accountability and self-sufficiency and provides revenues for important public services and investments. Therefore, the Government of Canada supports initiatives that encourage the exercise of direct taxation powers by Aboriginal governments.

To date, the Government of Canada has entered into 31 sales tax arrangements under which Indian Act bands and self-governing Aboriginal groups levy a sales tax within their reserves or their settlement lands. In addition, 12 arrangements respecting personal income taxes are in effect with self-governing Aboriginal groups under which they impose a personal income tax on all residents within their settlement lands. The Government reiterates its willingness to discuss and put into effect direct taxation arrangements with interested Aboriginal governments.

The Government of Canada also supports direct taxation arrangements between interested provinces or territories and Aboriginal governments and enacted legislation to facilitate such arrangements in 2006.

(h) social assistance [and foster care] — where the taxpayer is an individual (other than a trust), a social assistance payment (other than a prescribed payment) ordinarily made on the basis of a means, needs or income test under a program provided for by an Act of Parliament or a law of a province, to the extent that it is received directly or indirectly by the taxpayer for the benefit of another individual (other than the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner or a person who is related to the taxpayer or to the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner), if

(i) no family allowance under the Family Allowances Act or any similar allowance under a law of a province that provides for payment of an allowance similar to the family allowance provided under that Act is payable in respect of the other individual for the period in respect of which the social assistance payment is made, and

(ii) the other individual resides in the taxpayer's principal place of residence, or the taxpayer's principal place of residence is maintained for use as the residence of that other individual, throughout the period referred to in subparagraph (i);

Possible Future Amendment — 81(1)(h)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Jan. 31, 2002:

Dear Colleague:

I am writing in response to the April 11, 2001 letter that you forwarded to me from [xxx].

I have already responded directly to [xxx] in writing, with copies to the Honourable Martin Cauchon, and Mr. Greg Thompson, M.P. A copy of this response is attached, as well as a response from the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency.

More recently, foster families in New Brunswick have asked for a legislative change to exempt relief and respite care payments from taxation. I have asked my officials to examine this issue.

Thank you for keeping me apprised of this matter.

Sincerely,

The Honourable Paul Martin, P.C., M.P.
Minister of Finance

Proposed Addition — 81(1) — Recontribution of income from employees' leave of absence plan

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 30, 2000:

Dear [xxx]:

Thank you for your letter of January 5, 2000 concerning the taxation of amounts paid to a participant under a leave of absence plan. I wish also to acknowledge your subsequent telephone conversations with Mr. Simon Thompson of this Division. I apologize for the delay in writing to you.

In your letter you describe a plan to fund "salary" of a plan participant on leave from employment. We understand that the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency has provided an advance ruling to the effect the plan will be a prescribed plan under paragraph 6801(a) of the Income Tax Regulations (and not a salary deferral arrangement or employee benefit plan). Amounts withheld and contributed to the plan from a participant's salary in a particular year will not be taxable in that year, but rather when received upon payment from the plan. We also understand that under the plan the investment income earned in each year on a participant's contributions to the plan will be allocated and paid out to the participant (and included in the participant's income for that year). The participant is required under the plan, however, to contribute the allocated income amount back to the plan ("re-contributions").

You are seeking a technical amendment to the income tax provisions so that the amount of re-contributions by a participant is excluded from the participant's income when paid out of the plan during the leave period. We agree that it would be appropriate that the return of re-contributions not be included in computing income. We will recommend that an amendment to this effect apply to the 2000 and subsequent taxation years.

Thank you for your [sic] writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(1.1) [Repealed under former Act]

(2) M.L.A.'s expense allowance — Where an elected member of a provincial legislative assembly has, under an Act of the provincial legislature, been paid an allowance in a taxation year for expenses incident to the discharge of the member's duties in that capacity, the allowance shall not be included in computing the member's income for the year unless it exceeds ½ of the maximum fixed amount provided by law as payable to the member by way of salary, indemnity and other remuneration as a member in respect of attendance at a session of the legislature, in which event there shall be included in computing the member's income for the year only the amount by which the allowance exceeds ½ of that maximum fixed amount.

Related Provisions: 6(1)(b) — Allowances taxable, and exclusions.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-266: Taxation of members of provincial legislative assemblies (archived).

(3) Municipal officers' expense allowance — Where a person who is

(a) an elected officer of an incorporated municipality,

(b) an officer of a municipal utilities board, commission or corporation or any other similar body, the incumbent of whose office as such an officer is elected by popular vote, or

(c) a member of a public or separate school board or similar body governing a school district, has been paid by the municipal corporation or the body of which the person was such an officer or member (in this subsection referred to as the person's "employer") an amount as an allowance in a taxation year for expenses incident to the discharge of the person's duties as such an officer or member, the allowance shall not be included in computing the person's income for the year unless it exceeds ½ of the amount that was paid to the person in the year by the person's employer as salary or other remuneration as such an officer or member, in which event there shall be included in computing the person's income for the year only the amount by which the allowance exceeds ½ of the amount so paid to the person by way of salary or remuneration.

Related Provisions: 6(1)(b) — Allowances taxable, and exclusions.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-292: Taxation of elected officers of incorporated municipalities, school boards, etc.

(3.1) Travel expenses — There shall not be included in computing an individual's income for a taxation year an amount (not in excess of a reasonable amount) received by the individual from an employer with whom the individual was dealing at arm's length as an allowance for, or reimbursement of, travel expenses incurred by the individual in the year in respect of the individual's part-time employment in the year with the employer (other than expenses incurred in the performance of the duties of the individual's part-time employment) if

(a) throughout the period in which the expenses were incurred,

(i) the individual had other employment or was carrying on a business, or

(ii) where the employer is a designated educational institution (as within the meaning assigned by subsection 118.6(1)), the duties of the individual's part-time employment were the provision in Canada of a service to the employer in the individual's capacity as a professor or teacher; and

(b) the duties of the individual's part-time employment were performed at a location not less than 80 kilometres from,

(i) where subparagraph (a)(i) applies, both the individual's ordinary place of residence and the place of the other employment or business referred to in that subparagraph, and

(ii) where subparagraph (a)(ii) applies, the individual's ordinary place of residence.

History: Subsec. 81(3.1) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 60(2), applicable to 1995 et seq. and, notwithstanding subsecs. 152(4) to (5), any assessment of an individual's tax payable under the Act for any taxation year that ends before 2000 shall be made that is necessary to take into account the application of subsec. 81(3.1). Subsec. (3.1) formerly read:

> (3.1) An amount received by an individual in respect of the individual's part-time employment by an employer with whom the individual was dealing at arm's length as an allowance for, or reimbursement of, travel expenses incurred during a period throughout which the individual had other employment or was carrying on a business shall not be included in computing the individual's income to the extent that it is paid by the employer and does not exceed a reasonable amount on account of travel expenses (other than expenses incurred in the performance of the duties of the individual's part-time employment) incurred by the individual in respect of that part-time employment, if the duties of the part-time employment are performed at a location not less than 80 kilometres from both the individual's ordinary place of residence and principal place of employment or business.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-522R: Vehicle, travel and sales expenses of employees.

(4) Payments for volunteer [emergency] services — Where

(a) an individual was employed or otherwise engaged in a taxation year by a government, municipality or public authority (in this subsection referred to as "the employer") and received in the year from the employer one or more amounts for the performance, as a volunteer, of the individual's duties as

(i) an ambulance technician,

(ii) a firefighter, or

(iii) a person who assists in the search or rescue of individuals or in other emergency situations, and

(b) if the Minister so demands, the employer has certified in writing that

(i) the individual was in the year a person described in paragraph (a), and

(ii) the individual was at no time in the year employed or otherwise engaged by the employer, otherwise than as a volunteer, in connection with the performance of any of the duties referred to in paragraph (a) or of similar duties, there shall not be included in computing the individual's income derived from the performance of those duties the lesser of $1,000 and the total of those amounts.

History: Subsec. 81(4) added by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 60(2), applicable to 1998 et seq.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-495R3: Child care expenses.

(5) Election — Where a taxpayer or a person described in paragraph (1)(g.1) has acquired capital property under the circumstances described in that paragraph, the taxpayer or the person may, in the return of income of the taxpayer for the taxation year in which the taxpayer attains the age of 21 years, elect to treat any such capital property held by the taxpayer or person as having been disposed of on the day immediately preceding the day on which the taxpayer attained the age of 21 years for proceeds of disposition equal to the fair market value of the property on that day and the person or taxpayer making the election shall be deemed to have reacquired that property immediately thereafter at a cost equal to those proceeds.

Subdivision h — Corporations Resident in Canada and Their Shareholders

82. (1) Taxable dividends received — In computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year, there shall be included the total of the following amounts:

(a) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts, other than eligible dividends and amounts described in paragraph (c), (d) or (e), received by the taxpayer in the taxation year from corporations resident in Canada as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, taxable dividends,

exceeds

(ii) if the taxpayer is an individual, the total of all amounts paid by the taxpayer in the taxation year that are deemed by subsection 260(5) to have been received by another person as taxable dividends (other than eligible dividends);

(a.1) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts, other than amounts included in computing the income of the taxpayer because of paragraph (c), (d) or (e), received by the taxpayer in the taxation year from corporations resident in Canada as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, eligible dividends,

exceeds

(ii) if the taxpayer is an individual, the total of all amounts paid by the taxpayer in the taxation year that are deemed by subsection 260(5) to have been received by another person as eligible dividends;

(b) if the taxpayer is an individual, other than a trust that is a registered charity, the total of

(i) 25% of the amount determined under paragraph (a) in respect of the taxpayer for the taxation year, and

(ii) the product of the amount determined under paragraph (a.1) in respect of the taxpayer for the taxation year multiplied by

(A) for the 2009 taxation year, 45%,

(B) for the 2010 taxation year, 44%,

(C) for the 2011 taxation year, 41%, and

(D) for taxation years after 2011, 38%;

(c) all taxable dividends received by the taxpayer in the taxation year, from corporations resident in Canada, under dividend rental arrangements of the taxpayer;

(d) all taxable dividends (other than taxable dividends described in paragraph (c)) received by the taxpayer in the taxation year from corporations resident in Canada that are not taxable Canadian corporations; and

(e) if the taxpayer is a trust, all amounts each of which is all or part of a taxable dividend (other than a taxable dividend described in paragraph (c) or (d)) that was received by the trust in the taxation year on a share of the capital stock of a taxable Canadian corporation and that can reasonably be considered to have been included in computing the income of a beneficiary under the trust who was non-resident at the end of the taxation year.

(1) Taxable dividends received — In computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year, there shall be included the total of the following amounts:

(a) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts, other than eligible dividends and amounts described in paragraph (c), (d) or (e) received by the taxpayer in the taxation year from corporations resident in Canada as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, taxable dividends,

exceeds

(ii) if the taxpayer is an individual, the total of all amounts each of which is, or is deemed by paragraph 260(12)(b) to have been, paid by the taxpayer in the taxation year and deemed by subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend (other than an eligible dividend);

(a.1) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts, other than amounts included in computing the income of the taxpayer because of paragraph (c), (d) or (e), received by the taxpayer in the taxation year from corporations resident in Canada as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, eligible dividends,

exceeds

(ii) if the taxpayer is an individual, the total of all amounts each of which is, or is deemed by paragraph 260(12)(b) to have been, paid by the taxpayer in the taxation year and deemed by subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by another person as an eligible dividend;

(b) if the taxpayer is an individual, other than a trust that is a registered charity, the total of

(i) 25% of the amount determined under paragraph (a) in respect of the taxpayer for the taxation year, and

(ii) 45% [will be amended to match the rates now in 82(1)(b)(ii) beginning 2009 — ed.] of the amount determined under paragraph (a.1) in respect of the taxpayer for the taxation year;

(c) all taxable dividends received by the taxpayer in the taxation year, from corporations resident in Canada, under dividend rental arrangements of the taxpayer;

(d) all taxable dividends (other than taxable dividends described in paragraph (c)) received by the taxpayer in the taxation year from corporations resident in Canada that are not taxable Canadian corporations; and

(e) if the taxpayer is a trust, all amounts each of which is all or part of a taxable dividend (other than a taxable dividend described in paragraph (c) or (d)) that was received by the trust in the taxation year on a share of the capital stock of a taxable Canadian corporation and that can reasonably be considered to have been included in computing the income of a beneficiary under the trust who was non-resident at the end of the taxation year.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction), subsec. 281(3), will amend subsec. 82(1) to read as above since Bill C-28 (S.C. 2007, c. 2) received Royal Assent, deemed to have come into force on January 1, 2006. (It will need to be fixed to reflect the amendments to subpara. 82(1)(b)(ii) enacted by S.C. 2008, c. 28 effective for 2009 et seq.)

History: Subpara. 82(1)(b)(ii) amended by 2008, c. 28, s. 8, applicable to 2009 et seq. It formerly read:

(ii) 45% of the amount determined under paragraph (a.1) in respect of the taxpayer for the taxation year;

Subsec. 82(1) amended by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 44(1), applicable to amounts received or paid after 2005. It formerly read (subject to further retroactive amendments below):

(1) In computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year, there shall be included

(a) the total of

(i) all amounts each of which is a taxable dividend received by the taxpayer in the year as part of a dividend rental arrangement of the taxpayer from a corporation resident in Canada or a taxable dividend received by the taxpayer in the year from a corporation resident in Canada that is not a taxable Canadian corporation,

(i.1) where the taxpayer is a trust, all amounts each of which is all or part of a taxable dividend (other than a taxable dividend described in subparagraph (i)) that was received by the trust in the year on a share of the capital stock of a taxable Canadian corporation and that can reasonably be considered as having been included in computing the income of a beneficiary under the trust who was non-resident at the end of the year, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts received by the taxpayer in the year from corporations resident in Canada as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, taxable dividends, other than an amount included in computing the income of the taxpayer because of subparagraph (i) or (i.1)

exceeds

(B) where the taxpayer is an individual, the total of all amounts paid by the taxpayer in the year that are deemed by subsection 260(5) to have been received by another person as taxable dividends,

Proposed Amendment — former cl. 82(1)(a)(ii)(B)

(B) where the taxpayer is an individual, the total of all amounts each of which is, or is deemed by paragraph 260(12)(b) to have been, an amount paid by the taxpayer in the year and deemed by subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend,

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading December 4, 2007), subsec. 84(1), will amend former cl. 82(1)(a)(ii)(B) to read as above, applicable

(a) to amounts paid in respect of arrangements made after 2001 [and before 2005], except that, in its application to amounts paid in respect of an arrangement made before December 21, 2002, cl. (B) of the Act is to be read without reference to the expression "or is deemed by paragraph 260(12)(b) to have been" unless an election referred to in para. 187(25)(b) of Bill C-10 [see Proposed Amendment to 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement" — ed.] has been made in respect of the arrangement; and

(b) to amounts paid in respect of arrangements made after November 2, 1998 and before 2002, if the parties to the arrangement have made the election referred to in para. 187(25)(b) of Bill C-10 [see Proposed Amendment to 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement" — ed.], except that in its application to those arrangements made before 2002, the reference to "subsection 260(5.1)" in cl. (B) is to be read as a reference to "subsection 260(5)".

(b) where the taxpayer is an individual, other than a trust that is a registered charity, ¼ of the amount determined under subparagraph :82(1) (a)(ii) in respect of the taxpayer for the year.

Subpara. 82(1)(a)(i.1) added and cl. 82(1)(a)(ii)(A) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsecs. 114(1) and (2), applicable to taxation years that end after April 26, 1995. Cl. 82(1)(a)(ii)(A) formerly read:

(A) the total of all amounts received by the taxpayer in the year from corporations resident in Canada as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of, taxable dividends, other than an amount included in computing the income of the taxpayer by reason of subparagraph (i),

History [subsec. 83(2.1)]: Subsec. 83(2.1) added by 1988, c. 55, s. 55, applicable with respect to dividends paid after 4 p.m. EDST, September 25, 1987.

(2.2) Where subsec. (2.1) does not apply — Subsection (2.1) does not apply in respect of a particular dividend, in respect of which an election is made under subsection (2), paid on a share of the capital stock of a particular corporation to an individual where it is reasonable to consider that all or substantially all of the capital dividend account of the particular corporation immediately before the particular dividend became payable consisted of amounts other than any amount

(a) added to that capital dividend account under paragraph (b) of the definition "capital dividend account" in subsection 89(1) in respect of a dividend received on a share of the capital stock of another corporation, which share (or another share for which the share was substituted) was acquired by the particular corporation in a transaction or as part of a series of transactions one of the main purposes of which was that the particular corporation receive the dividend, but not in respect of a dividend where it is reasonable to consider that the purpose of paying the dividend was to distribute an amount that was received by the other corporation and included in computing the other corporation's capital dividend account by reason of paragraph (d) of that definition;

(b) added to that capital dividend account under paragraph 87(2)(z.1) as a result of an amalgamation or winding-up or a series of transactions including the amalgamation or winding-up that would not have been so added had the amalgamation or winding-up occurred or the series of transactions been commenced after 4:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, September 25, 1987;

(c) added to that capital dividend account at a time when the particular corporation was controlled, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, by one or more non-resident persons; or

(d) in respect of a capital gain from a disposition of a property by the particular corporation or another corporation that may reasonably be considered as having accrued while the property (or another property for which it was substituted) was a property of a corporation that was controlled, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, by one or more non-resident persons.

(2.3) Idem — Subsection (2.1) does not apply in respect of a dividend, in respect of which an election is made under subsection (2), paid on a share of the capital stock of a corporation where it is reasonable to consider that the purpose of paying the dividend was to distribute an amount that was received by the corporation and included in computing its capital dividend account by reason of paragraph (d) of the definition "capital dividend account" in subsection 89(1).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-66R6: Capital dividends.

(2.4) Idem — Subsection (2.1) does not apply in respect of a particular dividend, in respect of which an election is made under subsection (2), paid on a share of the capital stock of a particular corporation to a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "related corporation") related (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular corporation where it is reasonable to consider that all or substantially all of the capital dividend account of the particular corporation immediately before the particular dividend became payable consisted of amounts other than any amount

(a) added to that capital dividend account under paragraph (b) of the definition "capital dividend account" in subsection 89(1) in respect of a dividend received on a share of the capital stock of another corporation if it is reasonable to consider that any portion of the capital dividend account of that other corporation immediately before that dividend became payable consisted of amounts added to that account under paragraph 87(2)(z.1) or paragraph (b) of that definition as a result of a transaction or a series of transactions that would not have been so added had the transaction occurred or the series of transactions been commenced after 4:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, September 25, 1987;

(b) that represented the capital dividend account of a corporation before it became related to the related corporation;

(c) added to the capital dividend account of the particular corporation at a time when that corporation was controlled, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, by one or more non-resident persons;

(d) in respect of a capital gain from a disposition of a property by the particular corporation or another corporation that may reasonably be considered as having accrued while the property (or another property for which it was substituted) was a property of a corporation that was controlled, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, by one or more non-resident persons; or

(e) in respect of a capital gain from a disposition of a property (or another property for which it was substituted) that may reasonably be considered as having accrued while the property or the other property was a property of a person that was not related to the related corporation.

Related Provisions: 248(5) — Substituted property; 248(10) — Series of transactions; 256(5.1), (6.2) — Controlled directly or indirectly — control in fact.

(3) Late filed elections — Where at any particular time after 1974 a dividend has become payable by a corporation to shareholders of any class of shares of its capital stock, and subsection (1) or (2) would have applied to the dividend except that the election referred to therein was not made on or before the day on or before which the election was required by that subsection to be made, the election shall be deemed to have been made at the particular time or on the first day on which any part of the dividend was paid, whichever is the earlier, if

(a) the election is made in prescribed manner and prescribed form;

(b) an estimate of the penalty in respect of that election is paid by the corporation when that election is made; and

(c) the directors or other person or persons legally entitled to administer the affairs of the corporation have, before the time the election is made, authorized the election to be made.

Related Provisions: 83(3.1) — Request for late filed election; 83(4) — Penalty for late filed election; 83(5) — Unpaid balance of penalty.

Regulations: 2101(e) (prescribed manner, prescribed form).

(3.1) Request for election — The Minister may at any time, by written request served personally or by registered mail, request that an election referred to in subsection (3) be made by a taxpayer, and where the taxpayer on whom such a request is served does not comply therewith within 90 days of service thereof on the taxpayer, subsection (3) does not apply to such an election made by the taxpayer.

Related Provisions: 244(5), (6) — Proof of service; 248(7) — Mail deemed received on day mailed.

(4) Penalty for late filed election — For the purposes of this section, the penalty in respect of an election referred to in paragraph (3)(a) is an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) 1% per annum of the amount of the dividend referred to in the election for each month or part of a month during the period commencing with the time that the dividend became payable, or the first day on which any part of the dividend was paid if that day is earlier, and ending with the day on which that election was made, and

(b) the product obtained when $500 is multiplied by the proportion that the number of months or parts of months during the period referred to in paragraph (a) bears to 12.

Related Provisions: 83(5) — Unpaid balance of penalty.

(5) Unpaid balance of penalty — The Minister shall, with all due dispatch, examine each election referred to in paragraph (3)(a), assess the penalty payable and send a notice of assessment to the corporation and the corporation shall pay, forthwith to the Receiver General, the amount, if any, by which the penalty so assessed exceeds the total of all amounts previously paid on account of that penalty.

(6) Definition of "qualifying dividend" — For the purposes of subsection (1), "qualifying dividend" means a dividend on shares of a series of a class of the capital stock of a public corporation that is prescribed to be a tax-deferred preferred series that became payable by the corporation after 1978 and not later than

(a) where the terms as at March 31, 1977 of the shares of that series entitled the holder of any such share to exchange it after a particular date for a share or shares of another series or class of preferred shares of the capital stock of the corporation, that particular date,

(b) where the terms as at March 31, 1977 of the shares of that series required the corporation to offer to purchase at a time not later than a particular date all of the shares of that series from all of the holders of those shares, that particular date, and

(c) in any other case, October 1, 1991,

whichever is applicable in respect of that series of shares, except that a dividend on shares of such a series that would otherwise be a qualifying dividend shall be deemed not to be a qualifying dividend if

(d) at the time that the dividend became payable, the terms of the shares of that series differ from the terms as at March 31, 1977 of the shares of that series, or

(e) after March 31, 1977 the corporation issued additional shares of that series.

(7) Amalgamation where there are tax-deferred preferred shares — For the purposes of this section, where, after March 31, 1977, there has been an amalgamation within the meaning of section 87 and one or more of the predecessor corporations had a series of shares outstanding on March 31, 1977 that was prescribed to be a tax-deferred preferred series, the following rules apply:

(a) the series of shares of the capital stock of the predecessor corporation that was prescribed to be a tax-deferred preferred series shall be deemed to have been continued in existence in the form of the new shares; and

(b) the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each such predecessor corporation.

Regulations: 2107 (tax-deferred preferred series).

84. (1) Deemed dividend — Where a corporation resident in Canada has at any time after 1971 increased the paid-up capital in respect of the shares of any particular class of its capital stock, otherwise than by

(a) payment of a stock dividend,

(b) a transaction by which

(i) the value of its assets less its liabilities has been increased, or

(ii) its liabilities less the value of its assets have been decreased, by an amount not less than the amount of the increase in the paid-up capital in respect of the shares of the particular class,

(c) a transaction by which the paid-up capital in respect of the shares of all other classes of its capital stock has been reduced by an amount not less than the amount of the increase in the paid-up capital in respect of the shares of the particular class,

(c.1) where the corporation is an insurance corporation, any action by which it converts contributed surplus related to its insurance business into paid-up capital in respect of the shares of its capital stock,

(c.2) where the corporation is a bank, any action by which it converts any of its contributed surplus that arose on the issuance of shares of its capital stock into paid-up capital in respect of shares of its capital stock, or

(c.3) where the corporation is neither an insurance corporation nor a bank, any action by which it converts into paid-up capital in respect of a class of shares of its capital stock any of its contributed surplus that arose after March 31, 1977

(i) on the issuance of shares of that class or shares of another class for which the shares of that class were substituted (other than an issuance to which section 51, 66.3, 84.1, 85, 85.1, 86 or 87, subsection 192(4.1) or 194(4.1) or section 212.1 applied),

(ii) on the acquisition of property by the corporation from a person who at the time of the acquisition held any of the issued shares of that class or shares of another class for which shares of that class were substituted for no consideration or for consideration that did not include shares of the capital stock of the corporation, or

(iii) as a result of any action by which the paid-up capital in respect of that class of shares or in respect of shares of another class for which shares of that class were substituted was reduced by the corporation, to the extent of the reduction in paid-up capital that resulted from the action,

the corporation shall be deemed to have paid at that time a dividend on the issued shares of the particular class equal to the amount, if any, by which the amount of the increase in the paid-up capital exceeds the total of

(d) the amount, if any, of the increase referred to in subparagraph (b)(i) or the decrease referred to in subparagraph (b)(ii), as the case may be,

(e) the amount, if any, of the reduction referred to in paragraph (c), and

(f) the amount, if any, of the increase in the paid-up capital that resulted from a conversion referred to in paragraph (c.1), (c.2) or (c.3), and a dividend shall be deemed to have been received at that time by each person who held any of the issued shares of the particular class immediately after that time equal to that proportion of the dividend so deemed to have been paid by the corporation that the number of the shares of the particular class held by the person immediately after that time is of the number of the issued shares of that class outstanding immediately after that time.

History: Para. 84(1)(c.3) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 35(1), applicable to actions occurring after July 13, 1990, except that for such actions occurring before December 21, 1992, subpara. (c.3)(iii) shall be read as follows:

(iii) on the reduction by the corporation of the paid-up capital in respect of that class of shares or in respect of shares of another class for which shares of that class were substituted,

Para. (c.3) formerly read:

(c.3) where the corporation is neither an insurance corporation nor a bank, any action by which it converts into paid-up capital in respect of a class of shares of its capital stock any of its contributed surplus that arose after March 31, 1977

(i) on the issuance of shares of that class or shares of another class for which the shares of that class were substituted (other than an issuance to which section 51, 66.3, 84.1, 85, 85.1, 86 or 87, subsection 192(4.1) or 194(4.1) or section 212.1 applied),

(ii) on the acquisition of property by the corporation from a person who at the time of the acquisition held any of the issued shares of that class or shares of another class for which shares of that class were substituted for no consideration or for consideration that did not include shares of the capital stock of the corporation, or

(iii) on the reduction by the corporation of the paid-up capital in respect of that class of shares or in respect of shares of another class for which shares of that class were substituted,

Para. 84(1)(c.3) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 62(1), applicable to actions occurring after July 13, 1990. Para. (c.3) formerly read:

(c.3) where the corporation is a corporation other than an insurance corporation or a bank, any action by which it converts any of its contributed surplus that arose on the issuance, after March 31, 1977, of shares of a class of its capital stock (other than an issuance to which section 51, 66.3, 84.1, 85, 85.1, 86 or 87, subsection 192(4.1) or 194(4.1) or section 212.1 applied) into paid-up capital in respect of shares of that class of its capital stock,

(2) Distribution on winding-up, etc. — Where funds or property of a corporation resident in Canada have at any time after March 31, 1977 been distributed or otherwise appropriated in any manner whatever to or for the benefit of the shareholders of any class of shares in its capital stock, on the winding-up, discontinuance or reorganization of its business, the corporation shall be deemed to have paid at that time a dividend on the shares of that class equal to the amount, if any, by which,

(a) the amount or value of the funds or property distributed or appropriated, as the case may be,

exceeds

(b) the amount, if any, by which the paid-up capital in respect of the shares of that class is reduced on the distribution or appropriation, as the case may be,

and a dividend shall be deemed to have been received at that time by each person who held any of the issued shares at that time equal to that proportion of the amount of the excess that the number of the shares of that class held by the person immediately before that time is of the number of the issued shares of that class outstanding immediately before that time.

(4.1) Deemed dividend on reduction of paid-up capital — Where at any time after April 10, 1978, a public corporation has reduced the paid-up capital in respect of any class of shares of its capital stock otherwise than by way of a redemption, acquisition or cancellation of any shares of that class or a transaction described in subsection (2) or section 86, any amount paid by it on the reduction of the paid-up capital shall be deemed to have been paid by the corporation and received by the person to whom it was paid, as a dividend.

(4.1) Deemed dividend on reduction of paid-up capital — Any amount paid by a public corporation on the reduction of the paid-up capital in respect of any class of shares of its capital stock, otherwise than by way of a redemption, acquisition or cancellation of any shares of that class or by way of a transaction described in subsection (2) or section 86, is deemed to have been paid by the corporation and received by the person to whom it was paid, as a dividend, unless

(a) the amount may reasonably be considered to be derived from proceeds of disposition realized by the public corporation, or by a person or partnership in which the public corporation had a direct or indirect interest at the time that the proceeds were realized, from a transaction that occurred

(i) outside the ordinary course of the business of the corporation, or of the person or partnership that realized the proceeds, and

(ii) within the period that commenced 24 months before the payment; and

(b) no amount that may reasonably be considered to be derived from those proceeds was paid by the public corporation on a previous reduction of the paid-up capital in respect of any class of shares of its capital stock.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), s. 85, will amend subsec. 84(4.1) to read as above, applicable to amounts paid after 1996, except that in respect of those amounts paid before February 27, 2004, the subsec. is to be read as follows:

(4.1) Any amount paid by a public corporation on the reduction of the paid-up capital in respect of any class of shares of its capital stock, otherwise than by way of a redemption, acquisition or cancellation of any shares of that class or by way of a transaction described in subsection (2) or in section 86, is deemed to have been paid by the corporation and received by the person to whom it was paid, as a dividend, unless the amount may reasonably be considered to be derived from proceeds of disposition realized by the public corporation, or by a person or partnership in which the public corporation had a direct or indirect interest at the time that the proceeds were realized, from a transaction that occurred outside the ordinary course of the business of the public corporation, or of the person or partnership that realized the proceeds.

Technical Notes: Subsection 84(4.1) treats a payment on a reduction of paid-up capital by a public corporation as a dividend, except where the payment is made by way of a redemption, acquisition or cancellation of a share or in the course of a transaction described in subsection 84(2) or section 86.

Subsection 84(4.1) is amended to introduce a new exception. Generally, this exception will apply where the amount paid on a reduction of paid-up capital may reasonably be considered to be a distribution of proceeds of disposition realized from a transaction that did not occur in the ordinary course of the corporation's business and those proceeds were derived from a transaction that occurred no more than 24 months before the return of the paid-up capital.

In the case of a transaction that funds the payment, generally relief from the deemed dividend rule in subsection 84(4.1) will apply if the paid-up capital distribution can be traced to proceeds of disposition realized in connection with a transaction that may reasonably be considered to be derived from a transaction that occurs outside of the ordinary course of the corporation's business. For example, a paid-up capital distribution paid out of proceeds realized on the sale of a business unit of a corporation, where the proceeds were not required for reinvestment, would generally not be considered to be a distribution from amounts realized in the ordinary course of the corporation's business. In general terms, this aspect of the amendment to subsection 84(4.1) is intended to ensure that only a return of corporate capital, as opposed to a distribution of earnings, is subject to the new exception to subsection 84(4.1).

In order to ensure that the proceeds from an extraordinary transaction are not used to fund a stream of regular or periodic distributions, only one return of paid-up capital will be permitted in respect of any particular extraordinary transaction and that return must occur within 24 months of the proceeds being realized. However, this one-time return rule and 24-month limitation will not apply to distributions of paid-up capital made after 1996 and before February 27, 2004.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, July 2, 1998:

Dear [xxx]:

This is in reply to your letter of June 30, 1998 to Davine Roach of the Department regarding the application of subsection 84(4.1) of the Income Tax Act to your client.

As you know, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that subsection 84(4.1) of the Income Tax Act be amended. The amendment would provide that subsection 84(4.1) apply only in respect of a reduction in the paid-up capital of a class of shares to the extent that a previous increase in the paid-up capital of that class resulted in a dividend in respect of which the taxpayer elected to treat the dividend as having been paid out of the taxpayer's 1971 CSOH.

It would be recommended that such an amendment be effective for paid-up capital reductions occurring after 1996. If the recommendation is acted upon, I would anticipate that such an amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
Director General, Tax Legislation Division

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 12, 1999:

Dear [xxx]:

This is in reply to your letter of April 23, 1999 regarding subsection 84(4.1) of the Income Tax Act as it applies to your client, [xxx].

Based on our understanding of the facts described in your letter, [xxx] has been refocusing its business activity in an effort to improve profitability. To this end, [xxx] has been disposing of businesses that are inconsistent with its aviation services business. The last disposition was scheduled to close by the end of [xxx]. As a result of these dispositions, [xxx] has capital in excess of its future business requirements. Consequently, [xxx] may want to reduce the stated capital of its common shares with a payment of cash to its shareholders in an amount equal to the reduction. The amount of any such reduction has not been determined.

As you know, we believe that subsection 84(2) of the Income Tax Act may apply to this proposed reduction in stated capital. While the Department of National Revenue would determine the applicability of subsection 84(2) in the circumstances, it is our understanding that the Department has ruled in circumstances where they have been satisfied that the conditions set out in subsection 84(2) have been met. Given that subsection 84(2) of the Income Tax Act would appear to render the appropriate tax results on the proposed reduction of stated capital, your concerns about subsection 84(4.1) of the Income Tax Act may not be warranted.

However, as you are aware, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that subsection 84(4.1) of the Income Tax Act be amended so that it applies only in respect of certain reductions of the paid-up capital of a class of shares of a corporation. Based on our understanding of the facts associated with [xxx]'s proposed reduction of the stated capital of its common shares, we do not regard the distribution as a substitution for an ordinary-course dividend and therefore are prepared to recommend that such a reduction be excluded from the application of subsection 84(4.1). If the recommendation were acted upon, I would anticipate that such an amendment would be included in the next technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director General, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, March 21, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

This is in reply to your firm's letters of March 8 and 14, 2001 to, and telephone conversations with, Davine Roach and Kerry Harnish of this Division regarding the application of the deemed dividend rules in subsections 84(2) and 84(4.1) of the Income Tax Act to your client, [xxx].

Based on our understanding of the facts described in your letter and our conversations, [xxx] is a taxable Canadian corporation listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange (the "TSE") that had [xxx] as of [xxx] issued and outstanding [xxx] common shares, with an historic paid-up capital for tax purposes of [xxx] or about [xxx] per share (herein referred to as "historic paid-up capital").

In [xxx] reorganized its business and sold off subsidiaries, which generated in excess of [xxx] (of which [xxx] remains on hand), and it now has capital far in excess of its future business requirements.

[xxx] intends to announce a special distribution [xxx] per share to all of its existing shareholders (or approximately [xxx] in total).

You request a comfort letter to the effect that subsection 84(4.1) of the Act will not apply to the special distribution to [xxx] shareholders. Where, on the reorganization of the business of a corporation, subsection 84(2) of the Act applies to a distribution of funds or property to shareholders with respect to a class of common shares, a dividend is deemed to have been paid by the corporation to the extent that the value of the distribution exceeds any paid-up capital reduction with respect to the class of shares. While [xxx] did reorganize its business in [xxx], we understand that the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency has indicated to you that it is not of the view that subsection 84(2) of the Act would apply to the special distribution because, given the [xxx] delay, the distribution would not be made "on" the reorganization of [xxx] business.

However, as you are aware, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that subsection 84(4.1) of the Act be amended so that it applies only with respect to certain reductions of the paid-up capital of a class of shares of a corporation. Based on our understanding of the facts associated with [xxx] proposed special distribution, we do not regard that subsection 84(4.1) of the Act should apply to deem a dividend in the case of the historic paid-up capital portion of the special distribution with respect to the Class A common shares. Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that this paid-up capital reduction be excluded from the application of subsection 84(4.1) of the Act. If the recommendation is acted upon, I would anticipate that such an amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-243R4: Dividend refund to private corporations; IT-450R: Share for share exchange.

(4.2) Deemed dividend on term preferred share — Where, at any time after November 16, 1978, the paid-up capital in respect of a term preferred share owned by a shareholder that is

(a) a specified financial institution, or

(b) a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related to such an institution was a member or a beneficiary, was reduced otherwise than by way of a redemption, acquisition or cancellation of the share or of a transaction described in subsection (2) or (4.1), the amount received by the shareholder on the reduction of the paid-up capital in respect of the share shall be deemed to be a dividend received by the shareholder at that time unless the share was not acquired in the ordinary course of the business carried on by the shareholder.

Related Provisions: 89(3) — Simultaneous dividends; 131(4) — S. 84 does not apply to mutual fund corporation; 248(13) — Interests in trusts or partnerships.

(4.3) Deemed dividend on guaranteed share — Where at any time after 1987 the paid-up capital in respect of a share of the capital stock of a particular corporation owned

(a) by a shareholder that is another corporation to which subsection 112(2.2) or (2.4) would, if the particular corporation were a taxable Canadian corporation, apply to deny the deduction under subsection 112(1) or (2) or 138(6) of a dividend received on the share, or

(b) by a partnership or trust of which such other corporation is a member or beneficiary, as the case may be,

was reduced otherwise than by way of a redemption, acquisition or cancellation of the share or of a transaction described in subsection

(2) or (4.1), the amount received by the shareholder on the reduction of the paid-up capital in respect of the share shall be deemed to be a dividend received by the shareholder at that time.

Related Provisions: 89(3) — Simultaneous dividends; 131(4) — S. 84 does not apply to mutual fund corporation; 248(13) — Interests in trusts or partnerships.

(5) Amount distributed or paid where a share — Where

(a) the amount of property distributed by a corporation or otherwise appropriated to or for the benefit of its shareholders as described in paragraph (2)(a), or

(b) the amount paid by a corporation as described in paragraph (3)(a) or (4)(a),

includes a share of the capital stock of the corporation, for the purposes of subsections (2) to (4) the following rules apply:

(c) in computing the amount referred to in paragraph (a) at any time, the share shall be valued at an amount equal to its paid-up capital at that time, and

(d) in computing the amount referred to in paragraph (b) at any time, the share shall be valued at an amount equal to the amount by which the paid-up capital in respect of the class of shares to which it belongs has increased by virtue of its issue.

Related Provisions: 51(3), 86(2.1) — Computation of paid-up capital after share exchange.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-291R3: Transfer of property to a corporation under subsection 85(1).

(6) Where subsec. (2) or (3) does not apply — Subsection (2) or (3), as the case may be, is not applicable

(a) in respect of any transaction or event, to the extent that subsection (1) is applicable in respect of that transaction or event; and

(b) in respect of any purchase by a corporation of any of its shares in the open market, if the corporation acquired those shares in the manner in which shares would normally be purchased by any member of the public in the open market.

(7) When dividend payable — A dividend that is deemed by this subsection or section 84.1, 128.1 or 212.1 to have been paid at a particular time is deemed, for the purposes of this subdivision and sections 131 and 133, to have become payable at that time.

Proposed Amendment — 84(7)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 8, 2003:

Dear [xxx]:

Thank you for your letter of January 27, 2003 to Kerry Harnish of this Division requesting that the phrase "deemed by this subsection" in subsection 84(7) of the Income Tax Act be replaced by the phrase "deemed by this section".

In particular, prior to an amendment in 1998, subsection 84(7) of the Act referred to certain dividends. The 1998 amendment added a reference to section 128.1 and replaced the words "deemed by this section" with the words "deemed by this subsection". You note that the change to refer to "this subsection" appears to have been inadvertent and ask that the matter be corrected by an amendment. Among other things, you note that the explanatory note accompanying the amendment refers to dividends deemed to have been paid under section 84 rather than under subsection 84(7), which does not deem any dividend to have been paid.

We agree that the reference to "this subsection" in subsection 84(7) of the Act should be a reference to "this section". Consequently, we are prepared to recommend that subsection 84(7) be amended to correct this deficiency and that the amendment apply after February 23, 1998, which is the application date of the 1998 amendment. We would anticipate including the recommended change in a future technical bill of amendments.

Thank you for bringing your concerns to my attention.

Yours sincerely,

[Gerard Lalonde for] Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Related Provisions: 15(1) — Appropriation of property to a shareholder.

History: Subsec. 84(7) amended by 1999, c. 22, s. 23, applicable after February 23, 1998. It formerly read:

(7) A dividend that is deemed by this section or section 84.1 or 212.1 to have been paid at a particular time shall be deemed, for the purposes of this subdivision and sections 131 and 133, to have become payable at that time.

Subsec. 84(7) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 62(3), applicable with respect to dividends paid after 1988. Subsec. (7) formerly read:

(7) A dividend that is deemed by this section or by section 212.1 to have been paid at a particular time shall be deemed, for the purposes of this subdivision, to have become payable at that time.

(8) Where subsec. (3) does not apply — Subsection (3) does not apply to deem a dividend to have been received by a shareholder of a public corporation where the shareholder is an individual resident in Canada who deals at arm's length with the corporation and the shares redeemed, acquired or cancelled are prescribed shares of the capital stock of the corporation.

Regulations: 6206 (prescribed shares — Class I shares of Reed Stenhouse).

(9) Shares disposed of on redemptions, etc. — For greater certainty it is declared that where a shareholder of a corporation has disposed of a share of the capital stock of the corporation as a result of the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of the share by the corporation, the shareholder shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to have disposed of the share to the corporation.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-243R4: Dividend refund to private corporations; IT-444R: Corporations — involuntary dissolutions; IT-484R2: Business investment losses.

(10) Reduction of contributed surplus — For the purpose of paragraph (1)(c.3), there shall be deducted in determining at any time a corporation's contributed surplus that arose after March 31, 1977 in any manner described in that paragraph the lesser of

(a) the amount, if any, by which the amount of a dividend paid by the corporation at or before that time and after March 31, 1977 and when it was a public corporation exceeded its retained earnings immediately before the payment of the dividend, and

(b) the amount of its contributed surplus immediately before the payment of the dividend referred to in paragraph (a) that arose after March 31, 1977.

Related Provisions: 84(11) — Computation of contributed surplus; 87(2)(y) — Amalgamations — contributed surplus.

History: Subsec. 84(10) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 62(4), applicable to the determination after July 13, 1990 of the contributed surplus of a corporation.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-463R2: Paid-up capital.

(11) Computation of contributed surplus — For the purpose of subparagraph (1)(c.3)(ii), where the property acquired by the corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "acquiring corporation") consists of shares (in this subsection referred to as the "subject shares") of any class of the capital stock of another corporation resident in Canada (in this subsection referred to as the "subject corporation") and, immediately after the acquisition of the subject shares, the subject corporation would be connected (within the meaning that would be assigned by subsection 186(4) if the references in that subsection to "payer corporation" and "particular corporation" were read as "subject corporation" and "acquiring corporation", respectively) with the acquiring corporation, the contributed surplus of the acquiring corporation that arose on the acquisition of the subject shares shall be deemed to be the lesser of

(a) the amount added to the contributed surplus of the acquiring corporation on the acquisition of the subject shares, and

(b) the amount, if any, by which the paid-up capital in respect of the subject shares at the time of the acquisition exceeded the fair market value of any consideration given by the acquiring corporation for the subject shares.

Related Provisions: 84(10) — Reduction of contributed surplus; 186(7) — Interpretation of "connected".

History: Subsec. 84(11) added by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 35(2), applicable to actions occurring after December 20, 1992.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-463R2: Paid-up capital.

84.1 (1) Non-arm's length sale of shares — Where after May 22, 1985 a taxpayer resident in Canada (other than a corporation) disposes of shares that are capital property of the taxpayer (in this section referred to as the "subject shares") of any class of the capital stock of a corporation resident in Canada (in this section referred to as the "subject corporation") to another corporation (in this section referred to as the "purchaser corporation") with which the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length and, immediately after the disposition, the subject corporation would be connected (within the meaning assigned by subsection 186(4) if the references therein to "payer corporation" and to "particular corporation" were read as "subject corporation" and "purchaser corporation" respectively) with the purchaser corporation,

(a) where shares (in this section referred to as the "new shares") of the purchaser corporation have been issued as consideration for the subject shares, in computing the paid-up capital, at any particular time after the issue of the new shares, in respect of any particular class of shares of the capital stock of the purchaser corporation, there shall be deducted an amount determined by the formula

where

A is the increase, if any, determined without reference to this section as it applies to the acquisition of the subject shares, in the paid-up capital in respect of all shares of the capital stock of the purchaser corporation as a result of the issue of the new shares,

B is the amount, if any, by which the greater of

(i) the paid-up capital, immediately before the disposition, in respect of the subject shares, and

(ii) subject to paragraphs (2)(a) and (a.1), the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer, immediately before the disposition, of the subject shares, exceeds the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of any consideration (other than the new shares) received by the taxpayer from the purchaser corporation for the subject shares, and

C is the increase, if any, determined without reference to this section as it applies to the acquisition of the subject shares, in the paid-up capital in respect of the particular class of shares as a result of the issue of the new shares; and

(b) for the purposes of this Act, a dividend shall be deemed to be paid to the taxpayer by the purchaser corporation and received by the taxpayer from the purchaser corporation at the time of the disposition in an amount determined by the formula

where

A is the increase, if any, determined without reference to this section as it applies to the acquisition of the subject shares, in the paid-up capital in respect of all shares of the capital stock of the purchaser corporation as a result of the issue of the new shares,

D is the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of any consideration (other than the new shares) received by the taxpayer from the purchaser corporation for the subject shares,

E is the greater of

(i) the paid-up capital, immediately before the disposition, in respect of the subject shares, and

(ii) subject to paragraphs (2)(a) and (a.1), the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer, immediately before the disposition, of the subject shares, and

F is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount required to be deducted by the purchaser corporation under paragraph (a) in computing the paid-up capital in respect of any class of shares of its capital stock by virtue of the acquisition of the subject shares.

Related Provisions: 53(2)(a)(iii), 53(2)(p) — Reductions in adjusted cost base; 54"proceeds of disposition"(k) — Exclusion of deemed dividend from proceeds; 84(7) — When dividend payable; 84.1(2) — Non-arm's length sale of shares; 85(2.1) — Alternative reduction in paid-up capital of new shares; 89(1) — Definitions; 186(7) — Interpretation of "connected"; 212.1 — Similar rule for non-residents; 257 — Formula amounts cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: That portion of para. 84.1(1)(b) preceding the formula amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 63(1), to add "and received by the taxpayer from the purchaser corporation", applicable to dispositions occurring after May 22, 1985.

(2) Idem — For the purposes of this section,

(a) where a share disposed of by a taxpayer was acquired by a taxpayer before 1972, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the share at any time shall be deemed to be the total of

(i) the amount that would be its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer if the Income Tax Application Rules were read without reference to subsections 26(3) and (7) of that Act, and

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount received by the taxpayer after 1971 and before that time as a dividend on the share and in respect of which the corporation that paid the dividend has made an election under subsection 83(1);

(a.1) where a share disposed of by a taxpayer was acquired by the taxpayer after 1971 from a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, was a share substituted for such a share or was a share substituted for a share owned by the taxpayer at the end of 1971, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the share at any time shall be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer, otherwise determined, exceeds the total of

(i) where the share or a share for which the share was substituted was owned at the end of 1971 by the taxpayer or a person with whom the taxpayer did not deal at arm's length, the amount in respect of that share equal to the amount, if any, by which

(A) the fair market value of the share or the share for which it was substituted, as the case may be, on valuation day (within the meaning assigned by section 24 of the Income Tax Application Rules)

exceeds the total of

(B) the actual cost (within the meaning assigned by subsection 26(13) of that Act) of the share or the share for which it was substituted, as the case may be, on January 1, 1972, to the taxpayer or the person with whom the taxpayer did not deal at arm's length, and

(C) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount received by the taxpayer or the person with whom the taxpayer did not deal at arm's length after 1971 and before that time as a dividend on the share or the share for which it was substituted and in respect of which the corporation that paid the dividend has made an election under subsection 83(1), and

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount determined after 1984 under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(i) in respect of a previous disposition of the share or a share for which the share was substituted (or such lesser amount as is established by the taxpayer to be the amount in respect of which a deduction under section 110.6 was claimed) by the taxpayer or an individual with whom the taxpayer did not deal at arm's length;

(b) in respect of any disposition described in subsection (1) by a taxpayer of shares of the capital stock of a subject corporation to a purchaser corporation, the taxpayer shall, for greater certainty, be deemed not to deal at arm's length with the purchaser corporation if the taxpayer

(i) was, immediately before the disposition, one of a group of fewer than 6 persons that controlled the subject corporation, and

(ii) was, immediately after the disposition, one of a group of fewer than 6 persons that controlled the purchaser corporation, each member of which was a member of the group referred to in subparagraph (i); and

(c) [Repealed]

(d) a trust and a beneficiary of the trust or a person related to a beneficiary of the trust shall be deemed not to deal with each other at arm's length.

(a.2) for the purposes of paragraph (a.1), where a corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "issuing corporation") issues previously unissued shares of a class of its capital stock (in this paragraph referred to as the "new shares") to a taxpayer, the taxpayer and the issuing corporation shall be deemed not to have been dealing with each other at arm's length at the time the new shares were acquired by the taxpayer;

. . . . .

(c) for the purposes of determining whether or not a taxpayer referred to in paragraph (b) was a member of a group of fewer than 6 persons that controlled a corporation at any time, any shares of the capital stock of that corporation owned at that time by

(i) the taxpayer's child (within the meaning assigned by subsection 70(10)), who is under 18 years of age, or the taxpayer's spouse,

(ii) a trust of which the taxpayer, a person described in subparagraph (i) or a corporation described in subparagraph (iii), is a beneficiary, or

(iii) a corporation controlled by the taxpayer, by a person described in subparagraph (i), by a trust described in subparagraph (ii) or by any combination thereof shall be deemed to be owned at that time by the taxpayer and not by the person who actually owned the shares at that time;

(e) for the purpose of paragraph (b),

(i) a group of persons in respect of a corporation means any 2 or more persons each of whom owns shares of the capital stock of the corporation,

(ii) a corporation that is controlled by one or more members of a particular group of persons in respect of that corporation shall be considered to be controlled by that group of persons, and

(iii) a corporation may be controlled by a person or a particular group of persons notwithstanding that the corporation is also controlled or deemed to be controlled by another person or group of persons.

Para. 84.1(2)(e) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), s. 34, applicable to dispositions occurring after December 20, 1991.

Subparas. 84.1(2)(c)(i) to (iii) substituted, para. (d) added, by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsecs. 63(2), (3), applicable to dispositions occurring after July 13, 1990. Subparas. (i) to (iii) formerly read:

(i) the taxpayer's spouse,

(ii) an inter vivos trust of which the taxpayer, the spouse, a corporation described in subparagraph (iii) or any combination thereof is a beneficiary, or

(iii) a corporation controlled by the taxpayer, the spouse, a trust described in subparagraph (ii) or any combination thereof

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-67R3: Taxable dividends from corporations resident in Canada; IT-489R: Non-arm's length sale of shares to a corporation.

(2.01) Rules for para. 84.1(2)(a.1) — For the purpose of paragraph (2)(a.1),

(a) where at any time a corporation issues a share of its capital stock to a taxpayer, the taxpayer and the corporation are deemed not to be dealing with each other at arm's length at that time;

(b) where a taxpayer is deemed by paragraph 110.6(19)(a) to have reacquired a share, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the share at the beginning of February 23, 1994 from a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length; and

(c) where a share owned by a particular person, or a share substituted for that share, has by one or more transactions or events between persons not dealing at arm's length become vested in another person, the particular person and the other person are deemed at all times not to be dealing at arm's length with each other whether or not the particular person and the other person coexisted.

History: Subsec. 84.1(2.01) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 115(4), applicable to 1994 et seq., except that para. 84.1(2.01)(c) is applicable in respect of the determination of the adjusted cost base of a share after June 20, 1996.

(2.1) Idem — For the purposes of subparagraph (2)(a.1)(ii), where the taxpayer or an individual with whom the taxpayer did not deal at arm's length (in this subsection referred to as the "transferor") disposes of a share in a taxation year and claims an amount under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) in computing the gain for the year from the disposition, the amount in respect of which a deduction under section 110.6 was claimed in respect of the transferor's gain from the disposition shall be deemed to be equal to the lesser of

(a) the total of

(i) the amount claimed under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) by the transferor for the year in respect of the disposition, and

(ii) twice the amount deducted under section 110.6 in computing the taxable income of the transferor for the year in respect of the taxable capital gain from the disposition, and

(b) twice the maximum amount that could have been deducted under section 110.6 in computing the taxable income of the transferor for the year in respect of the taxable capital gain from the disposition if

(i) no amount had been claimed by the transferor under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) in computing the gain for the year from the disposition, and

(ii) all amounts deducted under section 110.6 in computing the taxable income of the transferor for the year in respect of taxable capital gains from dispositions of property to which this subsection does not apply were deducted before determining the maximum amount that could have been deducted under section 110.6 in respect of the taxable capital gain from the disposition, and, for the purposes of subparagraph (ii), ½ of the total of all amounts determined under this subsection for the year in respect of other property disposed of before the disposition of the share shall be deemed to have been deducted under section 110.6 in computing the taxable income of the transferor for the year in respect of the taxable capital gain from the disposition of property to which this subsection does not apply, and, for the purposes of this subsection, where more than one share to which this subsection applies is disposed of in the year, each such share shall be deemed to have been separately disposed of in the order designated by the taxpayer in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the year.

History: Subsec. 84.1(2.1) amended by 2001, c. 17, s. 61, to replace references to the expression "⅓ of" with references to the word "twice" and to replace the reference to the fraction "¾" with a reference to the fraction "½", applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000 except that, for a taxation year of a taxpayer that includes February 28, 2000 or October 17, 2000, or began after February 28, 2000 and ended before October 17, 2000, the references to the word "twice" shall be read as references to the expression "the fraction that is the reciprocal of the fraction in para. 38(a), as amended by 2001, c. 17, that applies to the taxpayer for the year multiplied by" and the reference to the fraction "½" shall be read as a reference to the fraction in para. 38(a), as amended by 2001, c. 17, that applies to the taxpayer for the year.

Subsec. 84.1(2.1) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 62(4), applicable to dispositions occurring after July 13, 1990.

(2.2) Rules for para. 84.1(2)(b) — For the purpose of paragraph (2)(b),

(a) in determining whether or not a taxpayer referred to in that paragraph was a member of a group of fewer than 6 persons that controlled a corporation at any time, any shares of the capital stock of that corporation owned at that time by

(i) the taxpayer's child (as defined in subsection 70(10)), who is under 18 years of age, or the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner,

(ii) a trust of which the taxpayer, a person described in subparagraph (i) or a corporation described in subparagraph (iii), is a beneficiary, or

(iii) a corporation controlled by the taxpayer, by a person described in subparagraph (i) or (ii) or by any combination of those persons or trusts are deemed to be owned at that time by the taxpayer and not by the person who actually owned the shares at that time;

(b) a group of persons in respect of a corporation means any 2 or more persons each of whom owns shares of the capital stock of the corporation;

(c) a corporation that is controlled by one or more members of a particular group of persons in respect of that corporation is considered to be controlled by that group of persons; and

(d) a corporation may be controlled by a person or a particular group of persons even though the corporation is also controlled or deemed to be controlled by another person or group of persons.

Related Provisions: 256(6), (6.1) — Extended meaning of "controlled".

History: Subsec. 84.1(2.2) amended by 2000, c. 12, Sch. 2, s. 1, to replace "spouse" with "spouse or common-law partner", applicable to 2001 et seq., in force July 31, 2000. See also the transitional rules reproduced in the History to 248(1)"common-law partner".

Subsec. 84.1(2.2) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 115(5), in force on June 18, 1998.

(3) Addition to paid-up capital — In computing the paid-up capital at any time after May 22, 1985 in respect of any class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, there shall be added an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deemed by subsection 84(3), (4) or (4.1) to be a dividend on shares of the class paid after May 22, 1985 and before that time by the corporation

exceeds

(ii) the total of such dividends that would be determined under subparagraph (i) if this Act were read without reference to paragraph (1)(a), and

(b) the total of all amounts required by paragraph (1)(a) to be deducted in computing the paid-up capital in respect of that class of shares after May 22, 1985 and before that time.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-67R3: Taxable dividends from corporations resident in Canada; IT-489R: Non-arm's length sale of shares to a corporation.

84.2 (1) Computation of paid-up capital in respect of particular class of shares — In computing the paid-up capital in respect of any particular class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation at any particular time after March 31, 1977,

(a) there shall be deducted that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the paid-up capital in respect of all of the issued shares of the capital stock of the corporation on April 1, 1977, determined without reference to this section, exceeds the greater of

(i) the amount that the paid-up capital limit of the corporation would have been on March 31, 1977 if paragraph 89(1)(d) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read at that date, were read without reference to clause 89(1)(d)(iv.1)(F) of that Act and without reference to all subparagraphs of paragraph 89(1)(d) of that Act except subparagraphs 89(1)(d)(iv.1) and (vii) of that Act, and that the paid-up capital on April 1, 1977, determined without reference to this section, in respect of the particular class of shares is of the paid-up capital on April 1, 1977, determined without reference to this section, in respect of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation; and

(b) there shall be added an amount equal to the lesser of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deemed by subsection 84(3) or (4) to be a dividend on shares of the particular class paid by the corporation after March 31, 1977 and before the particular time

exceeds

(B) the total that would be determined under clause (A) if this Act were read without reference to paragraph (a), and

(ii) the amount required by paragraph (a) to be deducted in computing the paid-up capital of shares of the particular class.

Related Provisions: 84.1 — Non-arm's length sale of shares.

(2) Debt deficiency — In computing, after March 31, 1977, the adjusted cost base to an individual of a debt that was owing to the individual by a corporation on March 31, 1977, there shall be deducted the amount of any dividend that would have been deemed to have been received by the individual on that day if the corporation had paid the debt in full on that day.

Related Provisions: 53(2)(p) — Deduction from ACB; 84.2(3) — Where debt converted to shares.

(3) Idem — Where, after March 31, 1977 and before 1979, any debt referred to in subsection (2) owing by a corporation and held by an individual on March 31, 1977 and continuously after that date until conversion, is converted into shares of a particular class of the capital stock of the corporation,

(a) subsection (2) shall not apply in respect of the debt; and

(b) in computing the paid-up capital in respect of the shares of the particular class at any particular time after the conversion,

(i) there shall be deducted the amount by which the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the debt would, but for paragraph (a), have been reduced by virtue of subsection (2), and

(ii) there shall be added an amount equal to the lesser of

(A) the amount, if any, by which

(I) the total of all amounts deemed by subsection 84(3), (4) or (4.1) to be a dividend on shares of the particular class paid by the corporation after the conversion and before the particular time,

exceeds

(II) the total that would be determined under subclause (I) if this Act were read without reference to subparagraph (i), and

(B) the amount required by subparagraph (i) to be deducted in computing the paid-up capital of shares of the particular class.

85. (1) Transfer of property to corporation by shareholders [rollover] — Where a taxpayer has, in a taxation year, disposed of any of the taxpayer's property that was eligible property to a taxable Canadian corporation for consideration that includes shares of the capital stock of the corporation, if the taxpayer and the corporation have jointly elected in prescribed form and in accordance with subsection (6), the following rules apply:

(a) [elected amount deemed to be proceeds and cost] — the amount that the taxpayer and the corporation have agreed on in their election in respect of the property shall be deemed to be the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property and the corporation's cost of the property;

(b) [elected amount not less than boot] — subject to paragraph (c), where the amount that the taxpayer and the corporation have agreed on in their election in respect of the property is less than the fair market value, at the time of the disposition, of the consideration therefor (other than any shares of the capital stock of the corporation or a right to receive any such shares) received by the taxpayer, the amount so agreed on shall, irrespective of the amount actually so agreed on by them, be deemed to be an amount equal to that fair market value;

(c) [elected amount not more than FMV of property transferred] — where the amount that the taxpayer and the corporation have agreed on in their election in respect of the property is greater than the fair market value, at the time of the disposition, of the property so disposed of, the amount so agreed on shall, irrespective of the amount actually so agreed on, be deemed to be an amount equal to that fair market value;

(c.1) [elected amount minimum — most property] — where the property was inventory, capital property (other than depreciable property of a prescribed class), a NISA Fund No. 2 or a property that is eligible property because of paragraph (1.1)(g) or (g.1), and the amount that the taxpayer and corporation have agreed on in their election in respect of the property is less than the lesser of

(i) the fair market value of the property at the time of the disposition, and

(ii) the cost amount to the taxpayer of the property at the time of the disposition, the amount so agreed on shall, irrespective of the amount actually so agreed on by them, be deemed to be an amount equal to the lesser of the amounts described in subparagraphs (i) and (ii);

(c.2) [elected amount — farm inventory] — subject to paragraphs (b) and (c) and notwithstanding paragraph (c.1), where the taxpayer carries on a farming business the income from which is computed in accordance with the cash method and the property was inventory owned in connection with that business immediately before the particular time the property was disposed of to the corporation,

(i) the amount that the taxpayer and the corporation agreed on in their election in respect of inventory purchased by the taxpayer shall be deemed to be equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount that would be included because of paragraph 28(1)(c) in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's last taxation year beginning before the particular time if that year had ended immediately before the particular time,

B is the value (determined in accordance with subsection 28(1.2)) to the taxpayer immediately before the particular time of the purchased inventory in respect of which the election is made,

C is the value (determined in accordance with subsection 28(1.2)) of all of the inventory purchased by the taxpayer that was owned by the taxpayer in connection with that business immediately before the particular time, and

D is such additional amount as the taxpayer and the corporation designate in respect of the property,

(ii) for the purpose of subparagraph 28(1)(a)(i), the disposition of the property and the receipt of proceeds of disposition therefor shall be deemed to have occurred at the particular time and in the course of carrying on the business, and

(iii) where the property is owned by the corporation in connection with a farming business and the income from that business is computed in accordance with the cash method, for the purposes of section 28,

(A) an amount equal to the cost to the corporation of the property shall be deemed to have been paid by the corporation, and

(B) the corporation shall be deemed to have purchased the property for an amount equal to that cost, at the particular time and in the course of carrying on that business;

(d) [elected amount minimum — eligible capital property] — where the property was eligible capital property in respect of a business of the taxpayer and the amount that, but for this paragraph, would be the proceeds of disposition of the property is less than the least of

(i) 4/3 of the taxpayer's cumulative eligible capital in respect of the business immediately before the disposition,

(ii) the cost to the taxpayer of the property, and

(iii) the fair market value of the property at the time of the disposition,

the amount agreed on by the taxpayer and the corporation in their election in respect of the property shall, irrespective of the amount actually so agreed on by them, be deemed to be the least of the amounts described in subparagraphs (i) to (iii);

(d.1) [eligible capital property] — for the purpose of determining after the time of the disposition the amount to be included under paragraph 14(1)(b) in computing the corporation's income, there shall be added to the amount otherwise determined for Q in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount, if any, determined for Q in that definition in respect of the taxpayer's business immediately before the time of the disposition,

B is the fair market value immediately before that time of the eligible capital property disposed of to the corporation by the taxpayer,

C is the fair market value immediately before that time of all eligible capital property of the taxpayer in respect of the business,

D is the amount, if any, that would be included under subsection 14(1) in computing the taxpayer's income as a result of the disposition if the values determined for C and D in paragraph 14(1)(b) were zero, and

E is the amount, if any, that would be included under subsection 14(1) in computing the taxpayer's income as a result of the disposition if the value determined for D in paragraph 14(1)(b) were zero;

Proposed Amendment — 85(1)(d.1)

(d.1) [eligible capital property] — for the purpose of determining after the disposition time the amount to be included under paragraph 14(1)(b) in computing the corporation's income, there shall be added to the amount otherwise determined for C in that paragraph the amount determined by the formula

$$1/2 \times [(A \times B/C) - 2(D - E)] + F + G$$

where

A is the amount, if any, determined for Q in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) in respect of the taxpayer's business immediately before the time of the disposition,

B is the fair market value immediately before the disposition time of the eligible capital property disposed of to the corporation by the taxpayer,

C is the total of the fair market value immediately before the disposition time of all eligible capital property of the taxpayer in respect of the business and each amount that was described in B in respect of an earlier disposition made after the taxpayer's adjustment time,

D is the amount, if any, that would be included under subsection 14(1) in computing the taxpayer's income as a result of the disposition if the values determined for C and D in paragraph 14(1)(b) were zero,

E is the amount, if any, that would be included under subsection 14(1) in computing the taxpayer's income as a result of the disposition if the value determined for D in paragraph 14(1)(b) were zero,

F is the total of all amounts, each of which is an amount determined under this paragraph as it applied to the taxpayer in respect of a disposition to the corporation on or before the disposition time, and

G is the total of all amounts, each of which is an amount determined under subparagraph 88(1)(c.1)(ii) as it applied to the taxpayer in respect of a winding-up before the disposition time;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 86(1), will amend para. 85(1)(d.1) to read as above, applicable to taxation years of a corporation that end after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: See under 85(1)(d.11), (d.12) below.

Proposed Addition — 85(1)(d.11), (d.12)

(d.11) [eligible capital property] — for the purpose of determining after the time of the disposition (referred to in this paragraph and in paragraphs (d.1) and (d.12) as the "disposition time") the amount to be included under paragraph 14(1)(a) or (b) in computing the corporation's income, there shall be added to the amount otherwise determined for each of A and F in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) the amount, if any, determined by the formula

where

A is the amount, if any, that would be determined for F in that definition in respect of the taxpayer's business at the beginning of the taxpayer's following taxation year if the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the disposition time had ended immediately after the disposition time and if, in respect of the disposition, this Act were read without reference to paragraph (d.12),

B is the fair market value immediately before the disposition time of the eligible capital property disposed of to the corporation by the taxpayer,

C is the fair market value immediately before the disposition time of all eligible capital property of the taxpayer in respect of the business and each amount that was described in B in respect of an earlier disposition made after the taxpayer's adjustment time (within the meaning in subsection 14(5)),

D is the total of all amounts, each of which is an amount determined under this paragraph as it applied to the taxpayer in respect of a disposition to the corporation on or before the disposition time, and

E is the total of all amounts, each of which is an amount determined under subparagraph 88(1)(c.1)(i) as it applied to the taxpayer in respect of a winding-up before the disposition time;

(d.12) [eligible capital property] — for the purpose of determining after the disposition time the amount to be included under paragraph 14(1)(a) or (b) in computing the taxpayer's income, the amount, if any, determined by the formula in paragraph (d.11) in respect of the disposition is to be deducted from each of the amounts otherwise determined

(i) by subparagraph 14(1)(a)(ii), and

(ii) for the description of B in paragraph 14(1)(b);

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 86(2), will add paras. 85(1)(d.11) and (d.12), applicable in respect of the disposition of an eligible capital property by a taxpayer to a corporation unless

(a) the disposition by the taxpayer occurred before December 21, 2002; and

(b) the corporation disposed of the eligible capital property, before June 7, 2007 and in a taxation year of the corporation ending after February 27, 2000, to a person with whom the corporation was dealing at arm's length at the time of that disposition by the corporation.

Technical Notes: Subsection 85(1) provides a tax deferral for the transfer of various types of property by a taxpayer to a taxable Canadian corporation for consideration that includes shares of the corporation's capital stock. In general, tax deferral may be achieved if the taxpayer and the corporation jointly elect that the proceeds of disposition of the taxpayer and the eligible capital expenditure of, or cost to, the corporation are deemed to be less than the fair market value of the property transferred.

Paragraph 85(1)(d.1) generally reduces, for the corporation that has acquired an eligible capital property (ECP), the gain that would be included in income under paragraph 14(1)(b) on a subsequent disposition of the property. Paragraph 85(1)(d.1) adjusts the gain, in order to take into account the 1988 change of the rate of income inclusion and expenditure deductibility from ½ to ¾, by adjusting the calculation of variable Q in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5). Variable Q generally represents, for the period prior to the taxpayer's "adjustment time", the difference between ECP deductions claimed under paragraph 20(1)(b) and the total of recapture and gains from prior dispositions of eligible capital property by the taxpayer. Paragraph 85(1)(d.1) adjusts variable Q only for the purposes of calculating the amount to be included in a corporation's income under paragraph 14(1)(b), but not for the purpose of calculating the corporation's cumulative eligible capital balance for other purposes, such as the claiming of ECP deductions. Specifically, the adjustment of variable Q adjusts the value of variables A, B and C in the formula in paragraph 14(1)(b). Variables A and B are affected indirectly, since variable Q affects variable F in the calculation of the cumulative eligible capital balance.

Paragraph 85(1)(d.1) is amended concurrently with the addition of new paragraph 85(1)(d.11). New paragraph 85(1)(d.11) generally applies to ensure that an amount that would have been recaptured ECP deductions to the taxpayer under subsection 14(1), if the taxpayer had disposed of the eligible capital property for an amount greater than the taxpayer's cumulative eligible capital at the time of the disposition, is subject to recapture in the hands of the corporation upon a subsequent sale of the property. This result is achieved by adding an allocation of the potential recapture to the taxpayer (i.e., variable F of the taxpayer) simultaneously to the corporation's eligible capital expenditures and aggregate ECP deductions (i.e., variables A and F respectively in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" of the corporation). This adjustment applies only for the purpose of calculating the amount to be included in income of the corporation under subsection 14(1) upon the subsequent disposition of eligible capital property. In this regard, variable F of the taxpayer is determined at the beginning of the taxpayer's following taxation year if the taxpayer's taxation year that included the transfer had ended immediately after the disposition time, determined without reference to new paragraph (d.12). Variable F of the taxpayer is apportioned to the corporation, by means of the quotient B/C in paragraph 85(1)(d.11), in the same proportion as the fair market value of the property transferred is to the fair market values of all such property transferred before that transfer and the fair market value of the total eligible capital property of the taxpayer immediately before the transfer.

Because new paragraph 85(1)(d.11) now accommodates variable F of the corporation, paragraph 85(1)(d.1) is amended to add ½ of the taxpayer's variable Q amount directly to the corporation's variable C amount in paragraph 14(1)(b), rather than adjusting variable Q of the corporation (and thus variable F as well). The quotient B/C in paragraph 85(1)(d.1) provides that this adjustment to the corporation is in the same proportion as the fair market value of the property transferred at a particular time is to the total of the fair market values of all such property transferred before that transfer and the fair market value of the total eligible capital property of the taxpayer immediately before the transfer.

New variables F and G of paragraph 85(1)(d.1) provide that the adjustments under this paragraph, and similar earlier adjustments to the taxpayer under paragraph 88(1)(c.1), are not lost on a subsequent rollover.

New paragraph 85(1)(d.12) is added, concurrently with new paragraph 85(1)(d.11), to ensure that a subsequent disposition of other ECP by the taxpayer does not result in recapture of depreciation under paragraph 14(1)(a) when the resulting gain from that disposition should have been taxed at a lower rate under paragraph 14(1)(b). This could happen, for instance, if the taxpayer were to defer all of the recapture to the corporation, such that the taxpayer's cumulative eligible capital balance at the end of the taxation year that includes the rollover is nil. In this case, if in the next taxation year the taxpayer were to make another disposition of ECP, paragraph 85(1)(d.12) would reduce to nil the amounts that would be determined for the taxpayer by subparagraph 14(1)(a) and variable B of paragraph 14(1)(b).

These amendments generally apply in respect of dispositions by a corporation that occur after December 20, 2002.

Example of 85(1)(d.1) and (d.11)

Mr. X purchased an eligible capital property in 1984 (when the income inclusion rate for eligible capital property was one half) at a cost of $300,000. This was the first and only eligible capital property held in respect of his business. Mr. X claimed deductions of $40,650 under paragraph 20(1)(b) before his "adjustment time" (in the case of Mr. X, January 1, 1988), and of $11,482 subsequent to that time. Mr. X now transfers the property to a corporation in circumstances to which subsection 85(1) applies. Immediately before the time of the transfer, the fair market value of the property is $500,000. Mr. X and the corporation agree that the proceeds of disposition to Mr. X will be $203,391, which is ⅓ of the cumulative eligible capital balance of $152,543. The balance is calculated as follows:

Eligible capital expenditure	$300,000
Rate applicable in 1984	50%
	150,000
Depreciation before 1988	<40,650>
Cumulative eligible capital at adjustment time	109,350
"C" amount: 3/2 of 109,350	164,025
"D" amount: depreciation before 1988	40,650
"P" amount: depreciation after 1987	<11,482>
"Q" amount: depreciation before 1988	<40,650>
Cumulative eligible capital of Mr. X	$152,543

Upon the subsequent sale of the property by the corporation for actual proceeds of disposition of $500,000, the amount included in the corporation's income under subsection 14(1) is calculated as follows:

Agreed amount of eligible capital expenditure (4/3 of $152,543)	$203,391
Eligible capital expenditure rate	75%
"A" amount in cumulative eligible capital balance of corporation	152,543
"E" amount in cumulative eligible capital balance of corporation	375,000
Excess	222,457
"F" for corporation: bumped by 85(1)(d.11) ($40,650 + $11,482)	52,132
14(1)(a) income: lesser of "F" and excess	$52,132

14(1)(b) calculation for corporation:

Excess (as above)	$222,457
Less: "B" amount: amount "F", as bumped by 85(1)(d.11)	<52,132>
"C" amount: 1/2 of "Q" (above), as bumped by 85(1)(d.1)	<20,325>
Net	150,000
Multiply by 2/3	2/3
14(1)(b) income		$100,000
Total 14(1) income inclusion to corporation		$152,132

14(1)(a) calculation for corporation:

Proceeds	$500,000
Rate applicable	75%

(e) [elected amount minimum — depreciable property] — where the property was depreciable property of a prescribed class of the taxpayer and the amount that, but for this paragraph, would be the proceeds of disposition thereof is less than the least of

(i) the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of all property of that class immediately before the disposition,

(ii) the cost to the taxpayer of the property, and

(iii) the fair market value of the property at the time of the disposition,

the amount agreed on by the taxpayer and the corporation in their election in respect of the property shall, irrespective of the amount actually so agreed on by them, be deemed to be the least of the amounts described in subparagraphs (i) to (iii);

(e.1) [order of dispositions] — where two or more properties, each of which is a property described in paragraph (d) or each of which is a property described in paragraph (e), are disposed of at the same time, paragraph (d) or (e), as the case may be, applies as if each property so disposed of had been separately disposed of in the order designated by the taxpayer before the time referred to in subsection (6) for the filing of an election in respect of those properties or, if the taxpayer does not so designate any such order, in the order designated by the Minister;

(e.2) [where excess is benefit to related person] — where the fair market value of the property immediately before the disposition exceeds the greater of

(i) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of the consideration received by the taxpayer for the property disposed of by the taxpayer, and

(ii) the amount that the taxpayer and the corporation have agreed on in their election in respect of the property, determined without reference to this paragraph,

and it is reasonable to regard any part of the excess as a benefit that the taxpayer desired to have conferred on a person related to the taxpayer (other than a corporation that was a wholly owned corporation of the taxpayer immediately after the disposition), the amount that the taxpayer and the corporation agreed on in their election in respect of the property shall, regardless of the amount actually so agreed on by them, be deemed (except for the purposes of paragraphs (g) and (h)) to be an amount equal to the total of the amount referred to in subparagraph (ii) and that part of the excess;

(e.3) [conflict between deeming rules and para. (b)] — where, under any of paragraphs (c.1), (d) and (e), the amount that the taxpayer and the corporation have agreed on in their election in respect of the property (in this paragraph referred to as "the elected amount") would be deemed to be an amount that is greater or less than the amount that would be deemed, subject to paragraph (c), to be the elected amount under paragraph (b), the elected amount shall be deemed to be the greater of

(i) the amount deemed by paragraph (c.1), (d) or (e), as the case may be, to be the elected amount, and

(ii) the amount deemed by paragraph (b) to be the elected amount;

(e.4) [transfer of automobile costing over $30,000] — where

(i) the property is depreciable property of a prescribed class of the taxpayer and is a passenger vehicle the cost to the taxpayer of which was more than $20,000 or such other amount as may be prescribed, and

(ii) the taxpayer and the corporation do not deal at arm's length,

the amount that the taxpayer and the corporation have agreed on in their election in respect of the property shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of the class immediately before the disposition, except that, for the purposes of subsection 6(2), the cost to the corporation of the vehicle shall be deemed to be an amount equal to its fair market value immediately before the disposition;

(f) [deemed cost of boot] — the cost to the taxpayer of any particular property (other than shares of the capital stock of the corporation or a right to receive any such shares) received by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the lesser of

(i) the fair market value of the particular property at the time of the disposition, and

(ii) that proportion of the fair market value, at the time of the disposition, of the property disposed of by the taxpayer to the corporation that

(A) the amount determined under subparagraph (i)

is of

(B) the fair market value, at the time of the disposition, of all properties (other than shares of the capital stock of the corporation or a right to receive any such shares) received by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition;

(g) [deemed cost of preferred shares] — the cost to the taxpayer of any preferred shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation receivable by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition shall be deemed to be the lesser of the fair market value of those shares immediately after the disposition and that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the proceeds of the disposition exceed the fair market value of the consideration (other than shares of the capital stock of the corporation or a right to receive any such shares) received by the taxpayer for the disposition, that

(i) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of those preferred shares of that class,

(ii) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of all preferred shares of the capital stock of the corporation receivable by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition;

(h) [deemed cost of common shares] — the cost to the taxpayer of any common shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation receivable by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition shall be deemed to be that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the proceeds of the disposition exceed the total of the fair market value, at the time of the disposition, of the consideration (other than shares of the capital stock of the corporation or a right to receive any such shares) received by the taxpayer for the disposition and the cost to the taxpayer of all preferred shares of the capital stock of the corporation receivable by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition, that

(i) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of those common shares of that class,

(ii) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of all common shares of the capital stock of the corporation receivable by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition; and

(i) [transfer of taxable Canadian property] — where the property so disposed of is taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer, all of the shares of the capital stock of the Canadian corporation received by the taxpayer as consideration for the property shall be deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer.

History: The descriptions of D and E in para. 85(1)(d.1) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 62(1), applicable in respect of taxation years that end after February 27, 2000. The descriptions formerly read:

D is the amount, if any, that would be included under subsection 14(1) in computing the taxpayer's income as a result of the disposition if

(i) the amounts determined for C and D in subparagraph 14(1)(a)(v) were zero, and

(ii) paragraph 14(1)(b) were read as follows:

"(b) in any other case, the excess shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income from that business for that year.", and

E is the amount, if any, that would be included under subsection 14(1) in computing the taxpayer's income as a result of the disposition if the amount determined for D in subparagraph 14(1)(a)(v) were zero;

The opening words of para. 85(1)(c.1) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 53(1), applicable to dispositions occurring after February 22, 1994. The opening words of para. (c.1) formerly read:

(c.1) where the property of the taxpayer was inventory, capital property (other than depreciable property of a prescribed class), a NISA Fund No. 2 or a property (other than capital property or an inventory) of the taxpayer that is a security or debt obligation used in the year in, or held in the year in the course of, carrying on the business of insurance or lending money, and the amount that the taxpayer and corporation have agreed on in their election in respect of the property is less than the lesser of Para. 85(1)(d.1) amended by 1995, c. 3, s. 22, applicable to dispositions of property in respect of a business that occur in a fiscal period of the business that ends after February 22, 1994 otherwise than because of an election under subsec. 25(1). Para. (d.1) formerly read:

(d.1) for the purpose of determining after the time of the disposition the amount to be included under paragraph 14(1)(b) in computing the corporation's income, there shall be added to the amount otherwise determined for Q in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount, if any, determined for Q in that definition in respect of the taxpayer's business immediately before the time of the disposition,

B is the fair market value immediately before that time of the eligible capital property disposed of to the corporation by the taxpayer,

C is the fair market value immediately before that time of all eligible capital property of the taxpayer in respect of the business,

D is the amount, if any, that would be included under subsection 14(1) in computing the taxpayer's income as a result of the disposition if paragraph 14(1)(b) were read as follows:

"(b) in any other case, the excess shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income from that business for that year.",

E is the amount, if any, that would be deemed under subsection 14(1) to be a taxable capital gain of the taxpayer as a result of the disposition if clause 14(1)(a)(v)(B) were read as follows:

"(B) zero"

F is the amount, if any, included under subsection 14(1) in computing the taxpayer's income as a result of the disposition, and

G is the amount, if any, deemed under subsection 14(1) to be a taxable capital gain of the taxpayer as a result of the disposition;

Para. 85(1)(d.1) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 36(1), applicable to the disposition of property to a corporation occurring after the beginning of its first taxation year that begins after June 1988. That para. formerly read:

(d.1) for the purpose of determining after the time of the disposition the amount to be included under paragraph 14(1)(b) in computing the corporation's income, there shall be added to the amount otherwise determined for Q in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount, if any, determined for Q in that definition in respect of the taxpayer's business immediately before the time of the disposition,

B is the fair market value immediately before that time of the eligible capital property disposed of to the corporation by the taxpayer, and

C is the fair market value immediately before that time of all eligible capital property of the taxpayer in respect of the business;

That portion of para. 85(1)(c.1) preceding subpara. (i) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 35(1), to substitute "where the property of the taxpayer" for "where the property" and to add reference to "a NISA Fund No. 2", applicable to dispositions occurring after 1990.

Para. 85(1)(d.1) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 35(2), applicable to the disposition of property to a corporation occurring after the beginning of its first taxation year beginning after June 1988.

Para. 85(1)(c.2) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 64(1), applicable to dispositions occurring after July 13, 1990.

That portion of para. 85(1)(e.2) following subpara. (ii) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 64(2), to add "(other than the corporation, where all of its issued shares, except directors' qualifying shares, are owned by the taxpayer immediately before the disposition)," applicable to dispositions occurring after June 1988.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-291R3: Transfer of property to a corporation under subsection 85(1).

(1.11) Exception — Notwithstanding subsection (1.1), a foreign resource property, or an interest in a partnership that derives all or part of its value from one or more foreign resource properties, is not an eligible property of a taxpayer in respect of a disposition by the taxpayer to a corporation where

(a) the taxpayer and the corporation do not deal with each other at arm's length; and

(b) it is reasonable to conclude that one of the purposes of the disposition, or a series of transactions or events of which the disposition is a part, is to increase the extent to which any person may claim a deduction under section 126.

Proposed Amendment — 85(1.11)

(1.11) Exception — Notwithstanding subsection (1.1), the following property is not an eligible property of a taxpayer in respect of a disposition of the property in a taxation year by the taxpayer to a corporation:

(a) a foreign resource property, or an interest in a partnership that derives all or part of its value from one or more foreign resource properties, if

(i) the taxpayer and the corporation do not deal with each other at arm's length, and

(ii) it is reasonable to conclude that one of the purposes of the disposition, or a series of transactions or events of which the disposition is a part, is to increase the extent to which any person may claim a deduction under section 126; and

(b) a specified participating interest.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), s. 12, will amend subsec. 85(1.11) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after 2006, except that it also applies to a taxation year of a taxpayer that begins before 2007 if ss. 94.1 to 94.4, as enacted by Bill C-10, apply to that taxation year of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes: Subsection 85(1.1) describes the types of property (referred to as "eligible property") that may be transferred to a corporation under subsection 85(1). Subsection 85(1.11) provides that certain foreign resource property (or an interest in a partnership that derives all or part of its value from one or more foreign resource properties) is not an "eligible property" of a taxpayer in respect of a transfer to a corporation.

Subsection 85(1.11) is amended to provide that a specified participating interest is not an eligible property of a taxpayer in respect of a transfer to a corporation. The concept of a specified participating interest is generally relevant in the context of the foreign investment entity rules in sections 94.1 to 94.4. For more information on the definition "specified participating interest" in subsection 248(1), see the commentary on that definition.

Related Provisions: 251(1) — Arm's length.

History: Subsec. 85(1.11) added by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 62(2), applicable to dispositions that occur after December 21, 2000 other than a disposition by a taxpayer that occurs pursuant to an agreement in writing made by the taxpayer on or before that date.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-291R3: Transfer of property to a corporation under subsection 85(1).

(1.2) Application of subsec. (1) [to non-resident vendor] — Subsection (1) does not apply to a disposition by a taxpayer to a corporation of a property referred to in paragraph (1.1)(h) unless

(a) immediately after the disposition, the corporation is controlled by the taxpayer, a person or persons related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the taxpayer or the taxpayer and a person or persons so related to the taxpayer;

(b) the disposition is part of a transaction or series of transactions in which all or substantially all of the property used in the business referred to in paragraph (1.1)(h) is disposed of by the taxpayer to the corporation; and

(c) the disposition is not part of a series of transactions that result in control of the corporation being acquired by a person or group of persons after the time that is immediately after the disposition.

Related Provisions: 139.1(18) — Holding corporation deemed not to acquire control of insurer on demutualization; 256(6)–(9) — Whether control acquired.

History: Subsec. 85(1.2) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 64(4), applicable to

(a) dispositions occurring after 1989, and

(b) dispositions occurring after 1984 where the taxpayer is a resident of a country with which Canada has a tax treaty and a provision of that treaty that was prescribed for the purposes of section 115.1 of the said Act was effective at the time the disposition occurred,

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-291R3: Transfer of property to a corporation under subsection 85(1).

(1.3) Meaning of "wholly owned corporation" — For the purposes of this subsection and paragraph (1)(e.2), "wholly owned corporation" of a taxpayer means a corporation all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of which (except directors' qualifying shares) belong to

(a) the taxpayer;

(b) a corporation that is a wholly owned corporation of the taxpayer; or

(c) any combination of persons described in paragraph (a) or (b).

History: Subsec. 85(1.3) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 64(4), applicable to dispositions occurring after June 1988.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-291R3: Transfer of property to a corporation under subsection 85(1).

(1.4) Definitions — For the purpose of subsection (1.1), "financial institution", "mark-to-market property" and "specified debt obligation" have the meanings assigned by subsection 142.2(1).

History: Subsec. 85(1.4) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 53(4), applicable to dispositions occurring after February 22, 1994.

(2) Transfer of property to corporation from partnership — Where

(a) a partnership has disposed, to a taxable Canadian corporation for consideration that includes shares of the corporation's capital stock, of any partnership property that was

(i) a capital property (other than real property, or an interest in or an option in respect of real property, where the partnership was not a Canadian partnership at the time of the disposition),

Proposed Amendment — 85(2)(a)(i)

(i) a capital property (other than real or immovable property, an option in respect of such property, or an interest in real property or a real right in an immovable, where the partnership was not a Canadian partnership at the time of the disposition),

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 3 — bijuralism), subsec. 231(4), will amend subpara. 85(2)(a)(i) to read as above, to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

(ii) a property described in any of paragraphs (1.1)(c) to (f), or

(iii) a property that would be described in paragraph (1.1)(g) or (g.1) if the references in those paragraphs to "taxpayer" were read as "partnership", and

(b) the corporation and all the members of the partnership have jointly so elected, in prescribed form and within the time referred to in subsection (6), paragraphs (1)(a) to (i) are applicable, with such modifications as the circumstances require, in respect of the disposition as if the partnership were a taxpayer resident in Canada who had disposed of the property to the corporation.

(2.1) Computing paid-up capital — Where subsection (1) or (2) applies to a disposition of property (other than a disposition of property to which section 84.1 or 212.1 applies) to a corporation by a person or partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "taxpayer"),

(a) in computing the paid-up capital in respect of any particular class of shares of the capital stock of the corporation at the time of, and at any time after, the issue of shares of the capital stock of the corporation in consideration for the disposition of the property, there shall be deducted an amount determined by the formula

where

A is the increase, if any, determined without reference to this section as it applies to the disposition of the property, in the paid-up capital in respect of all the shares of the capital stock of the corporation as a result of the acquisition by the corporation of the property,

B is the amount, if any, by which the corporation's cost of the property, immediately after the acquisition, determined under subsection (1) or (2), as the case may be, exceeds the fair market value, immediately after the acquisition, of any consideration (other than shares of the capital stock of the corporation) received by the taxpayer from the corporation for the property, and

C is the increase, if any, determined without reference to this section as it applies to the disposition of the property, in the paid-up capital in respect of the particular class of shares as a result of the acquisition by the corporation of the property; and

(b) in computing the paid-up capital, at any time after November 21, 1985, in respect of any class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, there shall be added an amount equal to the lesser of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deemed by subsection 84(3), (4) or (4.1) to be a dividend on shares of that class paid after November 21, 1985 and before that time by the corporation

exceeds

(B) the total of such dividends that would be determined under clause (A) if the Act were read without reference to paragraph (a), and

(ii) the total of all amounts required by paragraph (a) to be deducted in computing the paid-up capital in respect of that class of shares after November 21, 1985 and before that time.

Related Provisions: 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: All that portion of subsec. 85(2.1) preceding the formula in para. (a) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 36(2), applicable to dispositions occurring after November 21, 1985 and, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), such assessments and determinations in respect of any taxation year may be made as are consequential on the application of the provision, as amended, to dispositions occurring before 1993. That portion of the subsec. formerly read:

(2.1) Computation of paid-up capital — Where subsection (1) or (2) has been applicable in respect of a disposition to a corporation, after November 21, 1985, of property (other than a disposition of property in respect of which section 84.1

or 212.1 applies) by a person or partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "taxpayer"), the following rules apply:

(a) in computing the paid-up capital, at any time after the disposition of the property, in respect of any particular class of shares of the capital stock of the corporation, there shall be deducted an amount determined by the formula

(3) Where partnership wound up — Where,

(a) in respect of any disposition of partnership property of a partnership to a corporation, subsection (2) applies,

(b) the affairs of the partnership were wound up within 60 days after the disposition, and

(c) immediately before the winding-up there was no partnership property other than money or property received from the corporation as consideration for the disposition,

the following rules apply:

(d) the cost to any member of the partnership of any property (other than shares of the capital stock of the corporation or a right to receive any such shares) received by the member as consideration for the disposition of the member's partnership interest on the winding-up shall be deemed to be the fair market value of the property at the time of the winding-up,

(e) the cost to any member of the partnership of any preferred shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation receivable by the member as consideration for the disposition of the member's partnership interest on the winding-up shall be deemed to be

(i) where any common shares of the capital stock of the corporation were also receivable by the member as consideration for the disposition of the interest, the lesser of

(A) the fair market value, immediately after the winding-up, of the preferred shares of that class so receivable by the member, and

(B) that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the adjusted cost base to the member of the member's partnership interest immediately before the winding-up exceeds the total of the fair market value, at the time of the winding-up, of the consideration (other than shares of the capital stock of the corporation or a right to receive any such shares) received by the member for the disposition of the interest, that

(I) the fair market value, immediately after the winding-up, of the preferred shares of that class so receivable by the member,

is of

(II) the fair market value, immediately after the winding-up, of all preferred shares of the capital stock of the corporation receivable by the member as consideration for the disposition, and

(ii) in any other case, the amount determined under clause (i)(B),

(f) the cost to any member of the partnership of any common shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation receivable by the member as consideration for the disposition of the member's partnership interest on the winding-up shall be deemed to be that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the adjusted cost base to the member of the member's partnership interest immediately before the winding-up exceeds the total of the fair market value, at the time of the winding-up, of the consideration (other than shares of the capital stock of the corporation or a right to receive any such shares) received by the member for the disposition of the interest and the cost to the member of all preferred shares of the capital stock of the corporation receivable by the member as consideration for the disposition of the interest, that

(i) the fair market value, immediately after the winding-up, of the common shares of that class so receivable by the member,

(ii) the fair market value, immediately after the winding-up, of all common shares of the capital stock of the corporation so receivable by the member as consideration for the disposition,

(g) the proceeds of disposition of the partnership interest of any member of the partnership shall be deemed to be the cost to the member of all shares and property receivable or received by the member as consideration for the disposition of the interest plus the amount of any money received by the member as consideration for the disposition, and

(h) where the partnership has distributed partnership property referred to in paragraph (c) to a member of the partnership, the partnership shall be deemed to have disposed of that property for proceeds equal to the cost amount to the partnership of the property immediately before its distribution.

(4) [Repealed]

History: Subsec. 85(4) repealed by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 116(3), applicable, subject to s. 247 of 1998, c. 19 (grandfathering rule reproduced at the end of the Act), to dispositions of property that occur after April 26, 1995. The subsec. formerly read:

(4) Loss from disposition to controlled corporation — Where a taxpayer or a partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "taxpayer") disposes of any capital property (other than depreciable property of a prescribed class) of the taxpayer or eligible capital property in respect of a business of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer would, but for this subsection, be permitted a deduction under paragraph 24(1)(a), to a corporation that immediately after the disposition is controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the taxpayer, by the spouse of the taxpayer or by a person or group of persons by whom the taxpayer is controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever,

(a) notwithstanding any other provision of this Act,

(i) the capital loss therefrom, and

(ii) any deduction under paragraph 24(1)(a) in respect of the business in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year in which the taxpayer ceased to carry on the business shall be deemed to be nil; and

(b) except where the property so disposed of was, immediately after the disposition, an obligation that was payable to the corporation by another corporation that is related to the corporation or by a corporation or a partnership that would be related to the corporation if paragraph 80(2)(j) applied for the purpose of this paragraph, in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of all shares of any particular class of the capital stock of the corporation owned by the taxpayer immediately after the disposition, there shall be added that proportion of the amount, if any, by which

(i) the cost amount to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition of the property so disposed of,

exceeds the total of

(ii) the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property or, where the property is an eligible capital property, 4/3 of the taxpayer's eligible capital amount resulting from the disposition of the property, and

(ii.1) where the property disposed of by the taxpayer is a share of the capital stock of a corporation, the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that, but for paragraphs (a) and 40(2)(e), would be deducted

(A) under subsection 93(2) or 112(3) or (3.2) in computing a loss of the taxpayer from the disposition, or

(B) where the taxpayer is a partnership, by a corporation that is a member of the partnership under subsection 112(3.1) in computing its share of the loss of the partnership from the disposition, that

(iii) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of all shares of that class so owned by the taxpayer,

is of

(iv) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of all shares of the capital stock of the corporation so owned by the taxpayer.

Subpara. 85(4)(b)(ii) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 116(2), applicable

(a) in the case of a corporation, to dispositions by it of property that occur after the beginning of its first taxation year that begins after June 1988; and

(b) in any other case, to dispositions of property in respect of a business that occur after the beginning of the first fiscal period, that begins after 1987, of the business.

(a) to permit an election under subsection (1) or (2) to be made after the day that is 3 years after the day on or before which the election was required by subsection (6) to be made, or

(b) to permit an election made under subsection (1) or (2) to be amended, the election or amended election shall be deemed to have been made on the day on or before which the election was so required to be made if

(c) the election or amended election is made in prescribed form, and

(d) an estimate of the penalty in respect of the election or amended election is paid by the taxpayer or partnership, as the case may be, when the election or amended election is made,

and where this subsection applies to the amendment of an election, that election shall be deemed not to have been effective.

Related Provisions: 85(8), (9) — Penalty for late-filed election.

Selected Cases [subsec. 85(7.1)]: Bugera v. MNR, [2003] 3 C.T.C. 256 (FCTD) (Late-filed elections not allowed; Minister's discretion to refuse upheld where retroactive tax planning involved).

(8) Penalty for late filed election — For the purposes of this section, the penalty in respect of an election or an amended election referred to in paragraph (7)(a) or (7.1)(c) is an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) ¼ of 1% of the amount, if any, by which

(i) the fair market value of the property in respect of which that election or amended election was made, at the time the property was disposed of,

exceeds

(ii) the amount agreed on in the election or amended election by the taxpayer or partnership, as the case may be, and the corporation, for each month or part of a month during the period commencing with the day on or before which the election is required by subsection (6) to be made and ending on the day the election or amended election is made, and

(b) an amount, not exceeding $8,000, equal to the product obtained by multiplying $100 by the number of months each of which is a month all or part of which is during the period referred to in paragraph (a).

Related Provisions: 220(3.1) — Waiver of penalty by CRA.

(9) Unpaid balance of penalty — The Minister shall, with all due dispatch, examine each election and amended election referred to in paragraph (7)(a) or (7.1)(c), assess the penalty payable and send a notice of assessment to the taxpayer or partnership, as the case may be, and the taxpayer or partnership, as the case may be, shall pay forthwith to the Receiver General the amount, if any, by which the penalty so assessed exceeds the total of all amounts previously paid on account of that penalty.

85.1 (1) Share for share exchange — Where shares of any particular class of the capital stock of a Canadian corporation (in this section referred to as the "purchaser") are issued to a taxpayer (in this section referred to as the "vendor") by the purchaser in exchange for a capital property of the vendor that is shares of any particular class of the capital stock (in this section referred to as the "exchanged shares") of another corporation that is a taxable Canadian corporation (in this section referred to as the "acquired corporation"), subject to subsection (2),

(a) except where the vendor has, in the vendor's return of income for the taxation year in which the exchange occurred, included in computing the vendor's income for that year any portion of the gain or loss, otherwise determined, from the disposition of the exchanged shares, the vendor shall be deemed

(i) to have disposed of the exchanged shares for proceeds of disposition equal to the adjusted cost base to the vendor of those shares immediately before the exchange, and

(ii) to have acquired the shares of the purchaser at a cost to the vendor equal to the adjusted cost base to the vendor of the exchanged shares immediately before the exchange, and where the exchanged shares were taxable Canadian property of the vendor, the shares of the purchaser so acquired by the vendor shall be deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the vendor; and

(b) the cost to the purchaser of each exchanged share, at any time up to and including the time the purchaser disposed of the share, shall be deemed to be the lesser of

(i) its fair market value immediately before the exchange, and

(ii) its paid-up capital immediately before the exchange.

(2) Where subsec. (1) does not apply — Subsection (1) does not apply where

(a) the vendor and purchaser were, immediately before the exchange, not dealing with each other at arm's length (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) that is a right of the purchaser to acquire the exchanged shares);

(b) the vendor or persons with whom the vendor did not deal at arm's length, or the vendor together with persons with whom the vendor did not deal at arm's length,

(i) controlled the purchaser, or

(ii) beneficially owned shares of the capital stock of the purchaser having a fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all of the outstanding shares of the capital stock of the purchaser, immediately after the exchange;

(c) the vendor and the purchaser have filed an election under subsection 85(1) or (2) with respect to the exchanged shares;

(d) consideration other than shares of the particular class of the capital stock of the purchaser was received by the vendor for the exchanged shares, notwithstanding that the vendor may have disposed of shares of the capital stock of the acquired corporation (other than the exchanged shares) to the purchaser for consideration other than shares of one class of the capital stock of the purchaser; or

(e) the vendor

(i) is a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada at the end of the taxation year of the vendor in which the exchange occurred, and

(ii) has included any portion of the gain or loss, otherwise determined, from the disposition of the exchanged shares in computing its foreign accrual property income for the taxation year of the vendor in which the exchange occurred.

(2.1) Computation of paid-up capital — Where, at any time, a purchaser has issued shares of its capital stock as a result of an exchange to which subsection (1) applied, in computing the paid-up capital in respect of any particular class of shares of its capital stock at any particular time after that time

(a) there shall be deducted that proportion of the amount, if any, by which

(i) the increase, if any, as a result of the issue, in the paid-up capital in respect of all the shares of the capital stock of the purchaser, computed without reference to this subsection as it applies to the issue,

exceeds

(ii) the paid-up capital in respect of all of the exchanged shares received as a result of the exchange

that

(iii) the increase, if any, as a result of the issue, in the paid-up capital in respect of the particular class of shares, computed without reference to this subsection as it applies to the issue,

is of

(iv) the amount, if any, determined in subparagraph (i) in respect of the issue; and

(b) there shall be added an amount equal to the lesser of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deemed by subsection 84(3), (4) or (4.1) to be a dividend on shares of that class paid by the purchaser before the particular time

exceeds

(B) the total that would be determined under clause (A) if this Act were read without reference to paragraph (a), and

(ii) the total of all amounts required by paragraph (a) to be deducted in respect of that particular class of shares before the particular time.

(3) Disposition of shares of foreign affiliate — Where a taxpayer has disposed of capital property that was shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer to any corporation that was, immediately following the disposition, a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as the "acquiring affiliate") for consideration including shares of the capital stock of the acquiring affiliate,

(a) the cost to the taxpayer of any property (other than shares of the capital stock of the acquiring affiliate) receivable by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition shall be deemed to be the fair market value of the property at the time of the disposition;

(b) the cost to the taxpayer of any shares of any class of the capital stock of the acquiring affiliate receivable by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition shall be deemed to be that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the total of the adjusted cost bases to the taxpayer, immediately before the disposition, of the shares disposed of exceeds the fair market value at that time of the consideration receivable for the disposition (other than shares of the capital stock of the acquiring affiliate) that

(i) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of those shares of the acquiring affiliate of that class

is of

(ii) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of all shares of the capital stock of the acquiring affiliate receivable by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition;

(c) the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the shares shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the cost to the taxpayer of all shares and other property receivable by the taxpayer from the acquiring affiliate as consideration for the disposition; and

(d) the cost to the acquiring affiliate of the shares acquired from the taxpayer shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition referred to in paragraph (c).

(4) Exception — Subsection (3) is not applicable in respect of a disposition at any time by a taxpayer of a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate, all or substantially all of the property of which at that time was excluded property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 95(1)), to another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer where the disposition is part of a series of transactions or events for the purpose of disposing of the share to a person who, immediately after the series of transactions or events, was a person (other than a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer) with whom the taxpayer was dealing at arm's length.

(4) Exception — Subsection (3) does not apply in respect of a disposition at any time by a taxpayer of property that is

(a) a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate, all or substantially all of the property of which at that time was excluded property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 95(1)), to another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer where the disposition is part of a series of transactions or events for the purpose of disposing of the share to a person who, immediately after the series of transactions or events, was a person (other than a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer) with whom the taxpayer was dealing at arm's length; or

(b) a specified participating interest.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 13(1), will amend subsec. 85.1(4) to read as above, applicable to dispositions and exchanges that occur in taxation years that begin after 2006, except that it also applies to dispositions or exchanges in respect of a taxpayer that occur in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins before 2007 if ss. 94.1 to 94.4, as enacted by Bill C-10, apply to that taxation year of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes: Subsection 85.1(3) permits a taxpayer to transfer, on a tax-deferred "rollover" basis, the shares of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer to another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer. Subsection 85.1(5) provides a similar rollover for shareholders who exchange shares of a foreign corporation for shares of another corporation. Subsections 85.1(4) and (6), respectively, identify circumstances in which subsection 85.1(3) or (5) will not apply.

Subsection 85.1(4) is amended to provide that subsection 85.1(3) does not apply to a disposition at any time by a taxpayer of a property that is a specified participating interest. Subsection 85.1(6) is similarly amended so that subsection 85.1(5) does not apply to an exchanged share that was, immediately before the exchange, a specified participating interest. The concept of a specified participating interest is generally relevant in the context of the foreign investment entity rules in sections 94.1 to 94.4. For more information on the definition "specified participating interest" in subsection 248(1), see the commentary on that definition.

Related Provisions: 248(10) — Series of transactions.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-243R4: Dividend refund to private corporations; IT-291R3: Transfer of property to a corporation under subsection 85(1).

(5) Foreign share for foreign share exchange — Subject to subsections (3) and (6) and 95(2), where a corporation resident in a country other than Canada (in this section referred to as the "foreign purchaser") issues shares of its capital stock (in this section referred to as the "issued foreign shares") to a vendor in exchange for shares of the capital stock of another corporation resident in a country other than Canada (in this section referred to as the "exchanged foreign shares") that were immediately before the exchange capital property of the vendor, except where the vendor has, in the vendor's return of income for the taxation year in which the exchange occurred, included in computing the vendor's income for that year any portion of the gain or loss, otherwise determined, from the disposition of the exchanged foreign shares, the vendor is deemed

(a) to have disposed of the exchanged foreign shares for proceeds of disposition equal to the adjusted cost base to the vendor of those shares immediately before the exchange, and

(b) to have acquired the issued foreign shares at a cost to the vendor equal to the adjusted cost base to the vendor of the exchanged foreign shares immediately before the exchange, and where the exchanged foreign shares were taxable Canadian property of the vendor, the issued foreign shares so acquired by the vendor are deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the vendor.

Proposed Amendment — 85.1(5)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 16, 2005:

Dear [xxx]:

I am replying to your letters of July 14, 2005 and November 9, 2005, as well as your conversations with Davine Roach and Kerry Harnish of the Tax Legislation Division, concerning a corporate reorganization on July 20, 2005 of a widely-held foreign corporation the shares of which are listed on a prescribed stock exchange. During the reorganization, Canadian shareholders exchanged their shares of one of the foreign corporations in the corporate group for shares of another foreign corporation in the same corporate group.

As a general matter, subsection 85.1(5) of the Income Tax Act is meant to provide a rollover in respect of foreign share-for-share exchanges described in that subsection. Your enquiry relates to the requirement in subsection 85.1(5) that the foreign purchaser corporation "issue" its shares to the vendor shareholder in exchange for shares of the capital stock of another foreign corporation. Your concern, and that of the Canada Revenue Agency, is that the shares of the foreign purchaser corporation were not issued to the Canadian shareholders although those shareholders did acquire the shares in consideration for the disposed of shares. You therefore request that subsection 85.1(5) be clarified to accommodate the particular foreign share-for-share exchange.

Based on the information provided to us, we are prepared to recommend that subsection 85.1(5) be amended to replace the issuance requirement with a requirement that the vendor shareholder acquire the shares of the foreign purchaser corporation (which shares become listed on a prescribed stock exchange) solely in exchange for shares of another foreign corporation (that are listed on a prescribed stock exchange). We would also recommend that any such amendment apply to such share-for-share exchanges made on or after July 1, 2005. While we cannot, as you know, offer an assurance that either the Minister or Parliament will agree with our recommendation, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful to you.

Thank you for bringing your concerns to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Related Provisions: 85.1(6) — Where rollover does not apply; 86.1(1) — Foreign spinoff; 95(2)(f.6)(i) — No FAPI rollover where 85.1(5) applies; 107(2)(d.1)(iii), 107.4(3)(f) — Deemed taxable Canadian property retains status when rolled out of trust or into trust; 248(25.1) — Deemed taxable Canadian property retains status through trust-to-trust transfer.

History: Subsec. 85.1(5) added by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 63(2), applicable to exchanges that occur after 1995.

(6) Where subsection (5) does not apply — Subsection (5) does not apply where

(a) the vendor and foreign purchaser were, immediately before the exchange, not dealing with each other at arm's length (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) that is a right of the foreign purchaser to acquire the exchanged foreign shares);

(b) immediately after the exchange the vendor, persons with whom the vendor did not deal at arm's length or the vendor together with persons with whom the vendor did not deal at arm's length

(i) controlled the foreign purchaser, or

(ii) beneficially owned shares of the capital stock of the foreign purchaser having a fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all of the outstanding shares of the capital stock of the foreign purchaser;

(c) consideration other than issued foreign shares was received by the vendor for the exchanged foreign shares, notwithstanding that the vendor may have disposed of shares of the capital stock of the other corporation referred to in subsection (5) (other than the exchanged foreign shares) to the foreign purchaser for consideration other than shares of the capital stock of the foreign purchaser;

(d) the vendor

(i) is a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada at the end of the taxation year of the vendor in which the exchange occurred, and

(ii) has included any portion of the gain or loss, otherwise determined, from the disposition of the exchanged foreign shares in computing its foreign accrual property income for the taxation year of the vendor in which the exchange occurred; or

(e) the vendor is a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada at the end of the taxation year of the vendor in which the exchange occurred and the exchanged foreign shares are excluded property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 95(1)) of the vendor.

Proposed Addition — 85.1(6)(f)

(f) the exchanged foreign shares were, immediately before the exchange, specified participating interests.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 13(2), will add para. 85.1(6)(f), applicable to dispositions and exchanges that occur in taxation years that begin after 2006, except that it also applies to dispositions or exchanges in respect of a taxpayer that occur in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins before 2007 if ss. 94.1 to 94.4, as enacted by Bill C-10, apply to that taxation year of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes: See under 85.1(4).

History: Subsec. 85.1(6) added by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 63(2), applicable to exchanges that occur after 1995.

Proposed Addition — 85.1(7), (8)

(7) Application of subsec. (8) — Subsection (8) applies in respect of the disposition before 2013 by a taxpayer of SIFT wind-up entity equity (referred to [in] subsection (8) as the "particular unit") to a taxable Canadian corporation, if

(a) the disposition occurs during a period (referred to in this subsection and subsection (8) as the "exchange period") of no more than 60 days at the end of which all of the equity in the SIFT wind-up entity is owned by the corporation;

(b) the taxpayer receives no consideration for the disposition, other than a share (referred to in this subsection and subsection (8) as the "exchange share") of the capital stock of the corporation that is issued during the exchange period to the taxpayer by the corporation;

(c) neither of subsections 85(1) and (2) applies to the disposition; and

(d) all of the exchange shares issued to holders of equity in the SIFT wind-up entity are shares of a single class of the capital stock of the corporation.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): New subsection 85.1(7) is one of a series of amendments intended to provide for the income tax effects on a reorganization into corporate form of a SIFT wind-up entity. Among these amendments are the new definitions "SIFT trust wind-up event", "SIFT wind-up entity" and "SIFT wind-up entity equity" in subsection 248(1).

Subsection 85.1(7) sets out the conditions that must be met in order for the rules in subsection 85.1(8) to apply to a taxpayer's disposition of equity (referred to in this commentary as the "particular unit") in a SIFT wind-up entity to a corporation in exchange for a share of the corporation. Subsection 85.1(7) requires that

- the disposition occur before 2013;
- neither subsection 85(1) nor subsection 85(2) apply to the disposition;
- the corporation be a taxable Canadian corporation and that the disposition occur during a specified 60-day period ("the exchange period") at the end of which the corporation owns all of the equity in the SIFT wind-up entity. For this purpose, "SIFT wind-up entity equity" generally means, in respect of a SIFT wind-up entity, a capital interest in a trust or a membership interest as a limited partner in a partnership. For more detail, readers may refer to the commentary on that definition;
- the taxpayer receive, as consideration, nothing other than shares ("exchange shares") of the capital stock of the corporation; and
- all of the exchange shares issued to holders of equity in the SIFT wind-up entity be of a single class.

Related Provisions: 85.1(7) — Conditions for 85.1(8) to apply; 88.1(2), 107(3.1) — Alternative mechanism of wind-up of SIFT trust; 107.4(3)(f) — Deemed taxable Canadian property retains status on rollover; 248(25.1) — Deemed TCP retains status through trust-to-trust transfer.

(8) Rollover on SIFT unit for share exchange — If this subsection applies in respect of a disposition by a taxpayer of a particular unit of a SIFT wind-up entity to a corporation for consideration that is an exchange share, the following rules apply:

(a) the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the particular unit, and cost of the exchange share, are deemed to be equal to the cost amount to the taxpayer of the particular unit immediately before the disposition;

(b) if the particular unit was immediately before the disposition taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer, the exchange share is deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer;

(c) if the exchange share's fair market value immediately after the disposition exceeds the particular unit's fair market value at the time of the disposition, the excess is deemed to be an amount that section 15 requires to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's taxation year in which the disposition occurs;

(d) if the particular unit's fair market value at the time of the disposition exceeds the exchange share's fair market value immediately after the disposition, and it is reasonable to regard any part of the excess as a benefit that the taxpayer desired to have conferred on a person, or partnership, with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, the excess is deemed to be an amount that section 15 requires to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's taxation year in which the disposition occurs;

(e) the cost to the corporation of the particular unit is deemed to be the lesser of

(i) the fair market value of the particular unit immediately before the disposition, and

(ii) the amount described as B in the formula in paragraph (f) in respect of the particular unit; and

(f) in computing the paid up capital in respect of each class of shares of the capital stock of the corporation at any time after the disposition there shall be deducted the amount determined by the formula

$$(A - B) \times C / A$$

where

A is the increase, if any, as a result of the disposition, in the paid-up capital in respect of all the shares of the capital stock of the corporation, computed without reference to this paragraph as it applies to the disposition,

B is the amount determined by the formula

where

D is

(i) unless subparagraph (ii) applies, the total of all amounts each of which is

(A) if the SIFT wind-up entity is a trust, the fair market value of property received by the SIFT wind-up entity on the issuance of the particular unit, or

(B) if the SIFT wind-up entity is a partnership,

(I) an amount that has at any time been added, in computing the adjusted cost base to any taxpayer of the particular unit on or before the disposition, because of subparagraph 53(1)(e)(iv) or (x), or

(II) an amount that would at any time have been added, in computing the adjusted cost base to any taxpayer of the particular unit on or before the disposition, because of subparagraph 53(1)(e)(i) if subsection 96(1) were read without reference to its paragraph (d) and the partnership deducted all amounts otherwise deductible because of that paragraph, and

(ii) if the SIFT wind-up entity has on or after the end of the exchange period issued a unit, nil, and

E is the total of all amounts each of which

(i) if the SIFT wind-up entity is a trust, has become payable by the SIFT wind-up entity, in respect of the particular unit, to any holder of the unit on or before the disposition, other than an amount that has become payable out of its income (determined without reference to subsection 104(6)) or capital gains, and

(ii) if the SIFT wind-up entity is a partnership,

(A) has at any time been deducted, in computing the adjusted cost base to any taxpayer of the particular unit on or before the disposition, because of subparagraph 53(2)(c)(iv) or (v), or

(B) would have at any time been deducted, in computing the adjusted cost base to any taxpayer of the particular unit on or before the disposition, because of subparagraph 53(2)(c)(i) if subsection 96(1) were read without reference to its paragraph (d) and the partnership deducted all amounts otherwise deductible because of that paragraph, and

C is the increase, if any, as a result of the disposition, in the paid-up capital in respect of the class of shares, computed without reference to this paragraph as it applies to the disposition.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): New subsection 85.1(8) provides a number of the tax consequences to the taxpayer from a disposition described in subsection 85.1(7). Specifically,

- the taxpayer is provided with a tax-deferred exchange of the particular unit for the exchange share; and
- if the particular unit was taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer, the exchange share is deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer;
- if the exchange share's fair market value exceeds that of the particular unit, the taxpayer must include in its income that excess as a shareholder benefit under section 15 of the Act; and
- if the particular unit's fair market value exceeds the exchange share's fair market value, and it is reasonable to regard any part of the excess as a benefit that the taxpayer desired to have conferred on a person, or partnership, with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, the taxpayer must include in its income that excess as a shareholder benefit under section 15.

(Note that in the case of a deemed shareholder benefit in favour of a non-resident taxpayer, paragraph 214(3)(a) treats the amount of the benefit, for the purposes of applying Part XIII, as a dividend paid by a corporation resident in Canada.)

New subsection 85.1(8) also deems the cost to the corporation of the particular unit to be the lesser of its fair market value and the amount determined by element B of the formula in paragraph 85.1(8)(f). That element B, described in greater detail below, is generally the portion of the trust's outstanding capital that is attributable to the particular unit.

Finally, subsection 85.1(8) provides for a deduction, after the particular disposition, from the paid-up capital in respect of each class of shares of the capital stock of the corporation. This deduction is determined by the formula $(A - B) \times C/A$. The elements of that formula are as follows:

- A is the increase in the paid-up capital in respect of each class of the capital stock of the corporation (determined before applying the formula in paragraph 85.1(8)(e)) resulting from the particular disposition.
- B is generally the portion of the outstanding capital of the SIFT wind-up entity that is attributable to the particular unit. More specifically, if the SIFT wind-up entity is a trust, B will be the difference between the consideration received by the trust on the issuance of the particular unit and any amounts that have ever become payable (other than as income or capital gains) in respect of the particular unit to a holder of the particular unit. Where the SIFT wind-up entity is a partnership, B will be the difference between
  - the total of amounts that have been added in computing the adjusted cost base (ACB) to any taxpayer of the particular unit on or before the particular disposition because of subparagraphs 53(1)(e)(iv) or (x) or that would have been so added under subparagraph 53(1)(e)(i) if that subparagraph had been applied as though subsection 96(1) were read without reference to paragraph 96(1)(d) and the partnership deducted all amounts otherwise deductible because of that paragraph, and
  - the total of amounts that have been deducted in computing the ACB to any taxpayer of the particular unit on or before the particular disposition because of subparagraphs 53(2)(c)(iv) or (v) of the Act or that would have been so deducted under subparagraph 53(2)(c)(i) if that subparagraph had been applied as though subsection 96(1) of the Act were read without reference to paragraph 96(1)(d) and the partnership deducted all amounts otherwise deductible because of that paragraph.

If the conditions of subsection 85.1(7) are met in respect of a disposition, subsection 85.1(8) will apply to the disposition provided that the disposition occurs on or after July 14, 2008 and before 2013. In addition, if a disposition occurs after December 19, 2007 and before July 14, 2008 and the corporation validly elects (either alone, or if the taxpayer has filed an election under subsection 85(1) or (2) in respect of the disposition, together with the taxpayer), then subsections 85.1(8) will apply in respect of that disposition (provided that the conditions in subsection 85.1(7) are met).

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 18, will add subsecs. 85.1(7) and (8), applicable to

(a) dispositions that occur after July 13, 2008; and

(b) a disposition, by a taxpayer to a corporation, that occurs on or after December 20, 2007 and before July 14, 2008, if the corporation (jointly with the taxpayer, if the taxpayer and the corporation have validly elected that subsec. 85(1) or (2) apply to the disposition) elects in writing, filed with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the corporation's filing-due date for its taxation year that includes the date of Royal Assent of the amending legislation, that this amendment apply to the disposition.

Related Provisions: 128.3 — Deferral applies to post-emigration disposition for certain purposes.

Proposed Amendment — Canadian/foreign (cross-border) share-for-share exchange

86. (1) Exchange of shares by a shareholder in course of reorganization of capital — Where, at a particular time after May 6, 1974, in the course of a reorganization of the capital of a corporation, a taxpayer has disposed of capital property that was all the shares of any particular class of the capital stock of the corporation that were owned by the taxpayer at the particular time (in this section referred to as the "old shares"), and property is receivable from the corporation therefor that includes other shares of the capital stock of the corporation (in this section referred to as the "new shares"), the following rules apply:

(a) the cost to the taxpayer of any property (other than new shares) receivable by the taxpayer for the old shares shall be deemed to be its fair market value at the time of the disposition;

(b) the cost to the taxpayer of any new shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation receivable by the taxpayer for the old shares shall be deemed to be that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the total of the adjusted cost bases to the taxpayer, immediately before the disposition, of the old shares exceeds the fair market value at that time of the consideration receivable for the old shares (other than new shares) that

(i) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of those new shares of that class,

is of

(ii) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of all new shares of the capital stock of the corporation receivable by the taxpayer for the old shares; and

(c) the taxpayer shall be deemed to have disposed of the old shares for proceeds of disposition equal to the cost to the taxpayer of all new shares and other property receivable by the taxpayer for the old shares.

(2) Idem — Notwithstanding paragraphs (1)(b) and (c), where a taxpayer has disposed of old shares in circumstances described in subsection (1) and the fair market value of the old shares immediately before the disposition exceeds the total of

(a) the cost to the taxpayer of the property (other than new shares) receivable by the taxpayer for the old shares as determined under paragraph (1)(a), and

(b) the fair market value of the new shares, immediately after the disposition, and it is reasonable to regard any portion of the excess (in this subsection referred to as the "gift portion") as a benefit that the taxpayer desired to have conferred on a person related to the taxpayer, the following rules apply:

(c) the taxpayer shall be deemed to have disposed of the old shares for proceeds of disposition equal to the lesser of

(i) the total of the cost to the taxpayer of the property as determined under paragraph (1)(a) and the gift portion and

(ii) the fair market value of the old shares immediately before the disposition,

(d) the taxpayer's capital loss from the disposition of the old shares shall be deemed to be nil, and

(e) the cost to the taxpayer of any new shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation receivable by the taxpayer for the old shares shall be deemed to be that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the total of the adjusted cost bases to the taxpayer, immediately before the disposition, of the old shares exceeds the total determined under subparagraph (c)(i) that

(i) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of the new shares of that class,

is of

(ii) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of all new shares of the capital stock of the corporation receivable by the taxpayer for the old shares.

Advance Tax Rulings: ATR-22R: Estate freeze using share exchange; ATR-33: Exchange of shares.

(2.1) Computation of paid-up capital — Where subsection (1) applies to a disposition of shares of the capital stock of a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "exchange"), in computing the paid-up capital in respect of a particular class of shares of the capital stock of the corporation at any particular time that is the time of, or any time after, the exchange,

(a) there shall be deducted the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the increase, if any, as a result of the exchange, in the paid-up capital in respect of a class of shares of the capital stock of the corporation, computed without reference to this subsection as it applies to the exchange,

B is the amount, if any, by which the paid-up capital in respect of the old shares exceeds the fair market value of the consideration (other than shares of the capital stock of the corporation) given by the corporation for the old shares on the exchange, and

C is the increase, if any, as a result of the exchange, in the paid-up capital in respect of the particular class of shares, computed without reference to this subsection as it applies to the exchange; and

(b) there shall be added an amount equal to the lesser of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts deemed by subsection 84(3), (4) or (4.1) to be a dividend on shares of that class paid by the corporation before the particular time

exceeds

(B) the total that would be determined under clause (A) if this Act were read without reference to paragraph (a), and

(ii) the total of all amounts required by paragraph (a) to be deducted in respect of that particular class of shares before the particular time.

Related Provisions: 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: Subsec. 86(2.1) added by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 38(1), applicable to exchanges occurring after August 1992, other than an exchange occurring after August 1992 and before December 21, 1992 where the corporation issuing shares on the exchange so elects in writing and files the election with the Minister of National Revenue by December 31, 1994.

(3) Application — Subsections (1) and (2) do not apply in any case where subsection 85(1) or (2) applies.

Proposed Amendment — 86(3)

(3) Application — Subsections (1) and (2) do not apply

(a) to any disposition to which subsection 85(1) or (2) applies; and

(b) to any disposition of property that was, immediately before the disposition, a specified participating interest.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), s. 14, will amend subsec. 86(3) to read as above, applicable to dispositions that occur in taxation years that begin after 2006, except that it also applies in respect of a taxpayer to dispositions that occur in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins before 2007 if ss. 94.1 to 94.4, as enacted by Bill C-10, apply to that taxation year of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes: Subsection 86(1) applies where a corporation reorganizes its capital structure by issuing shares to a taxpayer as full or partial consideration for the surrender of all of the taxpayer's shares of the capital stock of the corporation. Where this is the case, the cost of the new shares is determined with reference to the adjusted cost base of the surrendered shares. Subsection 86(3) provides that subsection 86(1) does not apply in any case where subsection 85(1) or (2) applies.

Subsection 86(3) is amended to provide that subsection 86(1) also does not apply to any disposition of property that was, immediately before the disposition, a specified participating interest. The concept of a specified participating interest is generally relevant in the context of the foreign investment entity rules in sections 94.1 to 94.4. For more information on the definition "specified participating interest" in subsection 248(1), see the commentary on that definition.

Related Provisions: 51(4) — Application of section 51.

History: Subsec. 86(3) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 38(2), applicable to reorganizations that begin after December 21, 1992. That subsec. formerly read:

(3) Where subsecs. (1) and (2) do not apply — Subsections (1) and (2) are not applicable in any case where section 51 or any of subsections 85(1) to (3) is applicable.

(4) Computation of adjusted cost base — Where a taxpayer has disposed of old shares in circumstances described in subsection (1),

(a) there shall be deducted after the disposition in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of each new share the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times \frac{B}{C}$$

where

A is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts deducted under paragraph 53(2)(g.1) in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the old shares immediately before the disposition

exceeds

(ii) the amount that would be the taxpayer's capital gain for the taxation year that includes the time of the disposition from the disposition of the old shares if paragraph 40(1)(a) were read without reference to subparagraph (iii) of that paragraph,

B is the fair market value of the new share at the time it was acquired by the taxpayer in consideration for the disposition of the old shares, and

C is the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value of a new share at the time it was acquired by the taxpayer in consideration for the disposition of the old shares; and

(b) the amount determined under paragraph (a) in respect of the acquisition shall be added in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new share after the disposition.

Related Provisions: 53(1)(q) — Addition to ACB for amount under 86(4)(b); 53(2)(g.1) — Reduction in ACB under 86(4)(a); 80.03(2)(a) — Deemed gain on disposition following debt forgiveness.

History: Subsec. 86(4) added by 1995, c. 21, s. 29, applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994.

86.1 Foreign spin-offs — (1) Eligible distribution not included in income — Notwithstanding any other provision of this Part,

(a) the amount of an eligible distribution received by a taxpayer shall not be included in computing the income of the taxpayer; and

(b) subsection 52(2) does not apply to the eligible distribution received by the taxpayer.

Related Provisions: 85.1(5) — Foreign share-for-share exchange; 86.1(2) — Eligible distribution.

(2) Eligible distribution — For the purpose of this section, a distribution by a particular corporation that is received by a taxpayer is an eligible distribution if

(a) the distribution is with respect to all of the taxpayer's common shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation (in this section referred to as the "original shares");

(b) the distribution consists solely of common shares of the capital stock of another corporation that were owned by the particular corporation immediately before their distribution to the taxpayer (in this section referred to as the "spin-off shares");

(c) in the case of a distribution that is not prescribed,

(i) at the time of the distribution, both corporations are resident in the United States and were never resident in Canada,

(ii) at the time of the distribution, the shares of the class that includes the original shares are widely held and actively traded on a designated stock exchange in the United States, and

(iii) under the United States Internal Revenue Code applicable to the distribution, the shareholders of the particular corporation who are resident in the United States are not taxable in respect of the distribution;

Proposed Amendment — 86.1(2)(c)(ii), (iii)

(ii) at the time of the distribution, the shares of the class that includes the original shares are widely held and

(A) are actively traded on a prescribed stock exchange [to be changed to "designated stock exchange" — ed.] in the United States, or

(B) are required, under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 of the United States, as amended from time to time, to be registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission of the United States and are so registered, and

(iii) under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 of the United States, as amended from time to time, that apply to the distribution, the shareholders of the particular corporation who are resident in the United States are not taxable in respect of the distribution;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 87(1), will amend subparas. 86.1(2)(c)(ii) and (iii) to read as above, applicable to distributions made after 1999 except that, with respect to a distribution in respect of original shares described in cl. 86.1(2)(c)(ii)(B),

(a) information referred to in para. 86.1(2)(e) is deemed to be provided to the Minister of National Revenue on a timely basis if it is provided to that Minister before the 90th day after the day on which the amending legislation is assented to; and

(b) an election referred to in para. 86.1(2)(f) is deemed to be filed on a timely basis if it is filed with the Minister of National Revenue before the 90th day after the day on which the amending legislation is assented to.

Bill C-28, S.C. 2007, c. 35, para. 68(2)(d), will amend cl. 86.1(2)(c)(ii)(A), immediately upon its enactment by Bill C-10 above, to change "prescribed stock exchange" to "designated stock exchange". Per subsec. 100(2) of Bill C-28, s. 87 of Bill C-10 (amending ITA 86.1(2)) is deemed to have received royal assent before s. 68 of Bill C-28 (changing "prescribed" to "designated"), so the sequence works correctly.

Technical Notes: Subsection 86.1(2) defines an "eligible distribution" for the purposes of the tax-deferral that applies with respect to distributions to Canadian resident shareholders of spin-off shares by a foreign corporation. Subsection 86.1(2) is amended in three respects.

First, subparagraph 86.1(2)(c)(ii) requires that a taxpayer's original shares be included in a class that is widely held and actively traded on a prescribed stock exchange in the United States at the time of the distribution (section 3201 of the Regulations prescribes certain U.S. stock exchanges). The condition that the share be actively traded on a U.S. stock exchange is amended effective after 1999 to require that the taxpayer's original shares of the foreign corporation be, at the time of the distribution, widely held and

- actively traded on a prescribed stock exchange in the United States, or
- required, under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 of the United States, to be registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (and are so registered).

In general, a class of shares of a U.S. corporation must be registered under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") if more than 500 shareholders own shares of the class, the corporation has more than $10 million in assets and shares of the class will be traded on a national securities exchange. Thus this SEC registration requirement applies if it is expected that the shares will trade on a national securities exchange, with the SEC filing and public disclosure requirements thereafter applying to the corporation regardless of whether any of its issued shares trade in the future on the exchange.

Second, the references in subparagraphs 86.1(2)(c)(iii) and 86.1(2)(e)(vi) to the United States Internal Revenue Code are replaced by "the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 of the United States, as amended from time to time".

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 11, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

This is in response to your letters of January 19, May 1 and May 22, 2001 concerning your request on behalf of your client, [xxx] regarding proposed section 86.1 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). In particular, you ask that consideration be given to extending proposed subparagraph 86.1(2)(c)(ii) to foreign spin-off distributions made by a corporation resident in the United States (the "U.S.") where shares of the corporation are not actively traded on a prescribed stock exchange but are registered by the corporation with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC") under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 of the U.S. (the "Exchange Act").

Based on our understanding of the facts as set out in your letters, in September 2000 [xxx] undertook a spin-off transaction in the U.S. that was tax deferred to its U.S. shareholders but taxable to its Canadian shareholders. At the time of the spin-off, shares of [xxx] (i.e., the "original shares") did not actively trade on a prescribed stock exchange in the U.S. However, because [xxx] had more than [xxx] shareholders and more than [xxx] in assets, it was required by the Exchange Act to register its shares with the SEC and to comply with extensive public filing and disclosure requirements. The original shares were also widely held by more than [xxx] employees with more than [xxx] of those employees being resident in Canada.

We agree that the required registration with the SEC, as described in your letters, and all the requisite disclosures mandated by such registration is analogous to the registration and disclosure requirements for a public company actively traded on a U.S. prescribed stock exchange. However, we are of the view that retention of the widely held requirement in proposed subparagraph 86.1(2)(c)(ii) is appropriate in cases where shares of a class are required to be registered with the SEC. In the case at hand, this widely held requirement would extend to a company such as [xxx] that is widely held by the employees of the company.

Given our understanding of the facts, we will recommend to the Minister of Finance that proposed subparagraph 86.1(2)(c)(ii) of the Act be extended to original shares issued by a U.S. corporation where the shares are widely held, required to be registered and are so registered with the SEC under the Exchange Act. We will also recommend that such an amendment apply to distributions made after 1999. If the recommendation is acted upon, we anticipate that the amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch
c.c.: Mr. Bill McCloskey, Assistant Commissioner, Policy and Legislation Branch, CCRA

(d) in the case of a distribution that is prescribed,

(i) at the time of the distribution, both corporations are resident in the same country, other than the United States, with which Canada has a tax treaty (in this section referred to as the "foreign country") and were never resident in Canada,

(ii) at the time of the distribution, the shares of the class that includes the original shares are widely held and actively traded on a designated stock exchange,

(iii) under the law of the foreign country, those shareholders of the particular corporation who are resident in that country are not taxable in respect of the distribution, and

(iv) the distribution is prescribed subject to such terms and conditions as are considered appropriate in the circumstances;

(e) before the end of the sixth month following the day on which the particular corporation first distributes a spin-off share in respect of the distribution, the particular corporation provides to the Minister information satisfactory to the Minister establishing

(i) that, at the time of the distribution, the shares of the class that includes the original shares are widely held and actively traded on a prescribed stock exchange,

(i) that, at the time of the distribution, the shares of the class that includes the original shares are shares described in subparagraph (c)(ii) or (d)(ii),

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 87(2), will amend subpara. 86.1(2)(e)(i) to read as above, applicable on the same basis as 86.1(2)(c)(ii), (iii) above.

Technical Notes: Third, subparagraph 86.1(2)(e)(i) is amended consequential to the amendment to subparagraph 86.1(2)(c)(ii) described above.

(ii) that the particular corporation and the other corporation referred to in paragraph (b) were never resident in Canada,

(iii) the date of the distribution,

(iv) the type and fair market value of each property distributed to residents of Canada,

(v) the name and address of each resident of Canada that received property with respect to the distribution,

(vi) in the case of a distribution that is not prescribed, that the distribution is not taxable under the United States Internal Revenue Code applicable to the distribution,

Proposed Amendment — 86.1(2)(e)(vi)

(vi) in the case of a distribution that is not prescribed, that the distribution is not taxable under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 of the United States, as amended from time to time, that apply to the distribution,

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 87(3), will amend subpara. 86.1(2)(e)(vi) to read as above, applicable on the same basis as 86.1(2)(c)(ii), (iii) above.

Technical Notes: See under 86.1(2)(c)(ii), (iii) above.

(vii) in the case of a distribution that is prescribed, that the distribution is not taxable under the law of the foreign country, and

(viii) such other matters that are required, in prescribed form; and

(f) the taxpayer elects in writing filed with the taxpayer's return of income for the taxation year in which the distribution occurs that this section apply to the distribution and provides information satisfactory to the Minister

(i) of the number, cost amount (determined without reference to this section) and the fair market value of the taxpayer's original shares immediately before the distribution,

(ii) of the number, and fair market value, of the taxpayer's original shares and the spin-off shares immediately after the distribution of the spin-off shares to the taxpayer,

(iii) except where the election is filed with the taxpayer's return of income for the year in which the distribution occurs, concerning the amount of the distribution, the manner in which the distribution was reported by the taxpayer and the details of any subsequent disposition of original shares or spin-off shares for the purpose of determining any gains or losses from those dispositions, and

(iv) of such other matters that are required, in prescribed form.

Proposed Amendment — 86.1 — Electrolux/Husqvarna spinoff to be prescribed

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Sept. 11, 2007: See under Reg. 5600.

Related Provisions: 86.1(5) — Reassessments beyond limitation period; 95(2)(g.2) — Foreign accrual property income; 96(3) — Election by members of partnership; 220(3.2), Reg. 600(c) — Late filing of election under 86.1(2)(f).

Regulations: 5600 (prescribed distribution).

I.T. Technical News: 28 (foreign spin-offs with "poison pill" shareholder rights plans).

(3) Cost adjustments — Where a spin-off share is distributed by a corporation to a taxpayer pursuant to an eligible distribution with respect to an original share of the taxpayer,

(a) there shall be deducted for the purpose of computing the cost amount to the taxpayer of the original share at any time the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the cost amount, determined without reference to this section, to the taxpayer of the original share at the time that is immediately before the distribution or, if the original share is disposed of by the taxpayer, before the distribution, at the time that is immediately before its disposition,

B is the fair market value of the spin-off share immediately after its distribution to the taxpayer, and

C is the total of

(i) the fair market value of the original share immediately after the distribution of the spin-off share to the taxpayer, and

(ii) the fair market value of the spin-off share immediately after its distribution to the taxpayer; and

(b) the cost to the taxpayer of the spin-off share is the amount by which the cost amount of the taxpayer's original share was reduced as a result of paragraph (a).

(4) Inventory — For the purpose of calculating the value of the property described in an inventory of a taxpayer's business,

(a) an eligible distribution to the taxpayer of a spin-off share that is included in the inventory is deemed not to be an acquisition of property in the fiscal period of the business in which the distribution occurs; and

(b) for greater certainty, the value of the spin-off share is to be included in computing the value of the inventory at the end of that fiscal period.

(5) Reassessments — Notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), the Minister may make at any time such assessments, reassessments, determinations and redeterminations that are necessary where information is obtained that the conditions in subparagraph (2)(c)(iii) or (d)(iii) are not, or are no longer, satisfied.

History: Subparas. 86.1(2)(c)(ii) and 86.1(2)(d)(ii) amended to substitute "designated stock exchange" for "prescribed stock exchange" by 2007, c. 35, para. 68(2)(d), applicable after December 13, 2007.

Opening words of subsec. 86.1(2) amended by 2005, c. 30, subsec. 3(1) to replace "this section and Part XI" with "this section", applicable to distributions received after 2004.

Opening words of para. 86.1(2)(f) amended by the said c. 30, subsec. 3(2), applicable to distributions received after 2004. The opening words formerly read:

(f) except where Part XI applies in respect of the taxpayer, the taxpayer elects in writing filed with the taxpayer's return of income for the taxation year in which the distribution occurs (or, in the case of a distribution received before October 18, 2000, filed with the Minister before July 2001) that this section apply to the distribution and provides information satisfactory to the Minister

S. 86.1 added by 2001, c. 17, s. 64, applicable to distributions received after 1997, except that

(a) information referred to in para. 86.1(2)(e) is deemed to be provided to the Minister of National Revenue on a timely basis if it is provided to that Minister before September 12, 2001 (90 days after Royal Assent); and

(b) the election referred to in para. 86.1(2)(f) is deemed to be filed on a timely basis if it is filed with the Minister of National Revenue before September 12, 2001 (90 days after Royal Assent).

Proposed Amendment — Cross-border share-for-share exchanges

Supplementary Information, Economic Statement, Oct. 18, 2000: Canadian/Foreign Share-for-Share Exchanges

Under the Income Tax Act, certain share-for-share exchanges can be effected on a tax-deferred basis where the corporations involved are all resident in Canada or are all non-residents. These rules do not apply, however, to a Canadian resident shareholder who exchanges shares of a domestic corporation for shares of a foreign corporation (or vice versa).

It is intended that a share-for-share exchange rollover rule be developed in consultation with the private sector to apply to cross-border share-for-share exchanges where a Canadian resident shareholder receives only share consideration on the exchange. To ensure the preservation of the Canadian income tax base, rules must be developed to provide for, among other things, cost base adjustments, paid-up capital adjustments, the preservation of taxable Canadian property status, and adjustments for tax benefits that could potentially arise because of the conversion of capital gains into dividends (or vice versa). Any such rollover rule would not take effect before the release of draft legislation for public discussion.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, Feb. 18, 2003: Cross-Border Share-For-Share Exchanges

Under the Income Tax Act, certain share-for-share exchanges can be undertaken on a tax-deferred basis where the corporations involved are all resident in Canada or are all non-residents. These rules do not apply, however, to a Canadian resident shareholder who exchanges shares of a domestic corporation for shares of a foreign corporation. While there may be other indirect means of accomplishing such an exchange on a tax-deferred basis, the resulting transactions can be complex and costly.

In the October 2000 Economic Statement and Budget Update, the Government undertook to consult with interested parties on a tax deferral provision that specifically address tax-deferred cross-border share-for-share exchanges. At the same time, the Government noted that a basic requirement for such a mechanism is that it protect Canada's tax base.

A draft of legislative proposals, designed to balance these objectives, will be released in the near future for public review and comment.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, March 23, 2004: Cross-Border Share-For-Share Exchanges

Under the Income Tax Act, certain share-for-share exchanges can be undertaken on a tax-deferred basis where the corporations involved are all resident in Canada or are all non-residents. These rules do not apply, however, to a Canadian resident shareholder who exchanges shares of a domestic corporation for shares of a foreign corporation. While there may be other indirect means of accomplishing such an exchange on a tax-deferred basis, the resulting transactions can be complex and costly.

In the October 2000 Economic Statement and Budget Update, the Government undertook to consult with interested parties on the merits and technical design of a tax deferral provision that would, if implemented, apply in respect of cross-border share-for-share exchanges. Budget 2003 reiterated this plan.

It is intended that a detailed proposal be released for public comment in the coming months.

The 2000 Economic Statement and Budget Update and subsequent budgets indicated the Government's intention to develop rules that would provide an explicit rollover for cross-border share-for-share exchanges while ensuring that the Canadian tax base was protected. A discussion draft of proposed income tax amendments to implement this initiative will be released in the near future.

87. (1) Amalgamations — In this section, an amalgamation means a merger of two or more corporations each of which was, immediately before the merger, a taxable Canadian corporation (each of which corporations is referred to in this section as a "predecessor corporation") to form one corporate entity (in this section referred to as the "new corporation") in such a manner that

(a) all of the property (except amounts receivable from any predecessor corporation or shares of the capital stock of any predecessor corporation) of the predecessor corporations immediately before the merger becomes property of the new corporation by virtue of the merger,

(b) all of the liabilities (except amounts payable to any predecessor corporation) of the predecessor corporations immediately before the merger become liabilities of the new corporation by virtue of the merger, and

(c) all of the shareholders (except any predecessor corporation), who owned shares of the capital stock of any predecessor corporation immediately before the merger, receive shares of the capital stock of the new corporation because of the merger, otherwise than as a result of the acquisition of property of one corporation by another corporation, pursuant to the purchase of that property by the other corporation or as a result of the distribution of that property to the other corporation on the winding-up of the corporation.

Related Provisions: 12.5(5), 138(21), 142.51(7) — Financial institutions and insurers — transitional rules for accounting changes; 53(6) — Effect of amalgamation or merger on ACB of share, partnership interest or trust interest; 69(13) — Amalgamation or merger — deemed proceeds of disposition; 80.03(1), (3)(a)(ii) — Capital gain on amalgamation after debt forgiveness; 87(1.1) — Shares deemed received on merger; 87(8) — Foreign mergers; 87(9) — Triangular amalgamations; 89(1)"Canadian corporation" — Whether amalgamated corporation is Canadian corporation; 89(1)"taxable Canadian corporation"(b) — Farmers' or fishermen's insurer eligible for amalgamation rules; 89(2) — Where corporation is beneficiary under life insurance policy; 112(7) — Application of stop-loss rule following amalgamation; 128.2 — Predecessor corporations take on residence status of amalgamated corporation; 137(4.3) — Determination of preferred-rate amount; 139.1(3)(g) — Where insurance corporation merges causing demutualization; 204.85(3) — Rules on amalgamation of LSVCCs; 248(1)"disposition"(n), 248(1.1) — Cancellation of shares on foreign amalgamation deemed not to be a disposition; 251(3.1), (3.2) — Amalgamated corporation deemed related to predecessor; 261(17)–(19) — Effect of functional currency reporting. (1.1) Shares deemed to have been received by virtue of merger — For the purposes of paragraph (1)(c) and the Income Tax Application Rules, where there is a merger of

(a) a corporation and one or more of its subsidiary wholly-owned corporations, or

(b) two or more corporations each of which is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the same corporation, any shares of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation owned by a shareholder (except any predecessor corporation) immediately before the merger that were not cancelled on the merger shall be deemed to be shares of the capital stock of the new corporation received by the shareholder by virtue of the merger as consideration for the disposition of the shares of the capital stock of the predecessor corporations.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(1.2) New corporation continuation of a predecessor — Where there has been an amalgamation of corporations described in paragraph (1.1)(a) or of two or more corporations each of which is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the same person, the new corporation is, for the purposes of section 29 of the Income Tax Application Rules, subsection 59(3.3) and sections 66, 66.1, 66.2, 66.21, 66.4 and 66.7, deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation, except that this subsection does not affect the determination of any predecessor corporation's fiscal period, taxable income or tax payable.

Related Provisions: 87(1.4) — Subsidiary wholly-owned corporation. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Subsec. 87(1.2) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 65(1), applicable to amalgamations that occur after 2000. The subsec. formerly read:

(1.2) New corporation continuation of a predecessor — Where there has been an amalgamation of corporations described in paragraph (1.1)(a) or of 2 or more corporations each of which is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the same person, the new corporation shall, for the purposes of section 29 of the Income Tax Application Rules, subsection 59(3.3) and sections 66, 66.1, 66.2, 66.4 and 66.7, be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation, except that this subsection shall not affect the determination of any predecessor corporation's fiscal period, taxable income or tax payable.

Subsec. 87(1.2) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 39(1), applicable to amalgamations occurring after December 21, 1992. That subsec. formerly read:

(1.2) New corporation continuation of predecessor — Where there has been an amalgamation of corporations described in paragraph (1.1)(a) or (b), the new corporation shall, for the purposes of section 29 of the Income Tax Application Rules, subsection 59(3.3) and sections 66, 66.1, 66.2, 66.4 and 66.7, be deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of each predecessor corporation, except that this subsection shall in no respect affect the determination of any predecessor corporation's fiscal period, taxable income or tax payable.

(1.4) Definition of "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" — Notwithstanding subsection 248(1), for the purposes of this subsection and subsections (1.1), (1.2) and (2.11), "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" of a person (in this subsection referred to as the "parent") means a corporation all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of which belong to

(a) the parent;

(b) a corporation that is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the parent; or

(c) any combination of persons each of which is a person described in paragraph (a) or (b).

Related Provisions: See Related Provisions at end of s. 87.

History: Subsec. 87(1.4) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 39(2), applicable to amalgamations occurring after December 21, 1992. That subsec. formerly read:

(1.4) Notwithstanding subsection 248(1), for the purposes of this subsection and subsections (1.1), (1.2) and (2.11), "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" of a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "parent corporation") means a corporation all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of which belong to

(a) the parent corporation;

(b) a corporation that is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the parent corporation; or

(c) any combination of corporations each of which is a corporation described in paragraph (a) or (b).

That portion of subsec. 87(1.4) preceding para. (a) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 37(2), to add reference to subsection (2.11), applicable to amalgamations occurring after 1989.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(1.5) Definitions — For the purpose of this section, "financial institution", "mark-to-market property" and "specified debt obligation" have the meanings assigned by subsection 142.2(1).

History: Subsec. 87(1.5) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 54(1), applicable to taxation years that end after February 22, 1994.

(2) Rules applicable — Where there has been an amalgamation of two or more corporations after 1971 the following rules apply:

(a) [deemed new corporation —] taxation year — for the purposes of this Act, the corporate entity formed as a result of the amalgamation shall be deemed to be a new corporation the first taxation year of which shall be deemed to have commenced at the time of the amalgamation, and a taxation year of a predecessor corporation that would otherwise have ended after the amalgamation shall be deemed to have ended immediately before the amalgamation;

Information Circulars: 88-2, para. 21: General anti-avoidance rule — section 245 of the Income Tax Act.

(b) inventory — for the purpose of computing the income of the new corporation, where the property described in the inventory, if any, of the new corporation at the beginning of its first taxation year includes property that was described in the inventory of a predecessor corporation at the end of the taxation year of the predecessor corporation that ended immediately before the amalgamation (which taxation year of a predecessor corporation is referred to in this section as its "last taxation year"), the property so included shall be deemed to have been acquired by the new corporation at the beginning of its first taxation year for an amount determined in accordance with section 10 as the value thereof for the purpose of computing the income of the predecessor corporation for its last taxation year, except that where the income of the predecessor corporation for its last taxation year from a farming business was computed in accordance with the cash method, the amount so determined in respect of inventory owned in connection with that business shall be deemed to be the total of all amounts each of which is an amount included because of paragraph 28(1)(b) or (c) in computing that income for that year and, where the income of the new corporation from a farming business is computed in accordance with the cash method, for the purpose of section 28,

(i) an amount equal to that total shall be deemed to have been paid by the new corporation, and

(ii) the new corporation shall be deemed to have purchased the property for an amount equal to that total, in its first taxation year and in the course of carrying on that business;

History: Para. 87(2)(b) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 65(1), applicable to amalgamations occurring after 1988, except that, in its application with respect to property acquired from a predecessor corporation the last taxation year of which commenced before 1989, the reference to "paragraph 28(1)(b) or (c)" in the para. shall be read as "paragraph 28(1)(b)". Para. 87(2)(b) formerly read:

(b) inventory — for the purpose of computing the income of the new corporation for its first taxation year, where the property described in the inventory, if any, of the new corporation at the commencement of that year includes

(i) property that was described in the inventory of a predecessor corporation at the end of the taxation year of the predecessor corporation that ended immediately before the amalgamation (which taxation year of a predecessor corporation is referred to in this section as its "last taxation year"), or

(ii) property that would have been described in the inventory of the predecessor corporation at the end of its last taxation year if its income for that year had not been computed in accordance with the method authorized by subsection 28(1), the property so included shall be deemed to have been acquired by the new corporation at the commencement of its first taxation year for an amount determined in accordance with section 10 as the value thereof for the purpose of computing the income of the predecessor corporation for its last taxation year, except that where the income of the predecessor corporation for its last taxation year was computed in accordance with the method authorized by subsection 28(1), the amount so determined shall be deemed to be the amount, if any, specified in respect of the predecessor corporation under paragraph 28(1)(b) for that year;

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-427R: Livestock of farmers. See also at end of s. 87.

(c) method adopted for computing income — in computing the income of the new corporation for a taxation year from a business or property

(i) there shall be included any amount received or receivable (depending on the method followed by the new corporation in computing its income for that year) by it in that year that would, if it had been received or receivable (depending on the method followed by the predecessor corporation in computing its income for its last taxation year) by the predecessor corporation in its last taxation year, have been included in computing the income of the predecessor corporation for that year, and

(ii) there may be deducted any amount paid or payable (depending on the method followed by the new corporation in computing its income for that year) by it in that year that would, if it had been paid or payable (depending on the method followed by the predecessor corporation in computing its income for its last taxation year) by the predecessor corporation in its last taxation year, have been deductible in computing the income of the predecessor corporation for that year;

Related Provisions: 87(2)(b) — Meaning of "last taxation year"; 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(d) depreciable property — for the purposes of sections 13 and 20 and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a),

(i) where depreciable property of a prescribed class has been acquired by the new corporation from a predecessor corporation, the capital cost of the property to the new corporation shall be deemed to be the amount that was the capital cost of the property to the predecessor corporation, and

(ii) in determining the undepreciated capital cost to the new corporation of depreciable property of a prescribed class at any time,

(A) there shall be added to the capital cost to the new corporation of depreciable property of the class acquired before that time the cost amount, immediately before the amalgamation, to a predecessor corporation of each property included in that class by the new corporation,

(B) there shall be subtracted from the capital cost to the new corporation of depreciable property of that class acquired before that time the capital cost to the new corporation of property of that class acquired by virtue of the amalgamation,

(C) a reference in subparagraph 13(5)(b)(ii) to amounts that would have been deducted in respect of property in computing a taxpayer's income shall be construed as including a reference to amounts that would have been deducted in respect of that property in computing a predecessor corporation's income, and

(D) where depreciable property that is deemed by subsection 37(6) to be a separate prescribed class has been acquired by the new corporation from a predecessor corporation, the property shall continue to be deemed to be of that same separate prescribed class;

History: Cl. 87(2)(d)(ii)(C) amended by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 18(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1996. Cl. (ii)(C) formerly read:

(C) a reference in subparagraph 13(5)(b)(ii) to amounts that would have been deducted by a taxpayer in respect of transferred property shall be construed as including a reference to amounts that would have been deducted by a predecessor corporation in respect of that property, and

Cl. 87(2)(d)(ii)(C) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 65(2), applicable to taxation years commencing after June 17, 1987 that end after 1987. Cl. (ii)(C) formerly read:

> (C) a reference in subparagraph 13(5)(a)(ii) to amounts that would have been allowed to a taxpayer in respect of transferred property, at the rate that was allowed to the taxpayer in respect of property of a prescribed class, shall be construed as including a reference to amounts that would have been allowed to a predecessor corporation in respect of that property at the rate that was allowed to the predecessor corporation in respect of property of that prescribed class, and

I.T. Application Rules: 20(1.2) (transfer of depreciable property by person who owned it before 1972).

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(d.1) depreciable property acquired from predecessor corporation — for the purposes of this Act, where depreciable property (other than property of a prescribed class) has been acquired by the new corporation from a predecessor corporation, the new corporation shall be deemed to have acquired the property before 1972 at an actual cost equal to the actual cost of the property to the predecessor corporation, and the new corporation shall be deemed to have been allowed the total of all amounts allowed to the predecessor corporation in respect of the property, under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a), in computing the income of the predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

I.T. Application Rules: 20(1.2) (transfer of depreciable property by person who owned it before 1972).

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(e) capital property — subject to paragraph (e.4) and subsection 142.6(5), where a capital property (other than depreciable property or an interest in a partnership) has been acquired by the new corporation from a predecessor corporation, the cost of the property to the new corporation shall be deemed to be the amount that was the adjusted cost base of the property to the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation;

Related Provisions: 53(6) — Effect of amalgamation on ACB of share, partnership interest or trust interest; 69(13) — Amalgamation or merger. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(e) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 54(2), applicable to taxation years that end after February 22, 1994. Para. (e) formerly read:

> (e) where any capital property (other than depreciable property or an interest in a partnership) has been acquired by the new corporation from a predecessor corporation, the cost of the property to the new corporation shall be deemed to be the amount that was the adjusted cost base of the property to the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(e.1) partnership interest — where a partnership interest that is capital property has been acquired from a predecessor corporation to which the new corporation was related, for the purposes of this Act, the cost of that partnership interest to the new corporation shall be deemed to be the amount that was the cost of that interest to the predecessor corporation and, in respect of that partnership interest, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of the predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 53(1)(e), 53(2)(c) — ACB — partnership interest; 88(1)(c), 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up; 100(2.1) — Gain from disposition of partnership interest on amalgamation. See also at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(e.2) security or debt obligation — subject to paragraphs (e.3) and (e.4) and subsection 142.6(5), where a property that is a security or debt obligation (other than a capital property or an inventory) of a predecessor corporation used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of, carrying on the business of insurance or lending money in the taxation year ending immediately before the amalgamation has been acquired by the new corporation from the predecessor corporation, the cost of the property to the new corporation shall be deemed to be the amount that was the cost amount of the property to the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation;

History: Para. 87(2)(e.2) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 54(3), applicable to taxation years that end after February 22, 1994. Para. (e.2) formerly read:

> (e.2) where any property that is a security or debt obligation (other than a capital property or an inventory) of a predecessor corporation used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of, carrying on the business of insurance or lending money in the taxation year ending immediately before the amalgamation has been acquired by the new corporation from the predecessor corporation, the cost of the property to the new corporation shall be deemed to be the amount that was the cost amount of the property to the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(e.3) financial institutions — specified debt obligation — where the new corporation is a financial institution in its first taxation year, it shall be deemed, in respect of a specified debt obligation (other than a mark-to-market property) acquired from a predecessor corporation that was a financial institution in its last taxation year, to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 87(1.5) — Interpretation; 87(2)(b) — Meaning of "last taxation year"; 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up; 142.6(5) — Parallel rule for rollover transactions generally. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(e.3) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 54(3), applicable to amalgamations occurring, and windings-up beginning, after February 22, 1994.

(e.4) financial institutions — mark-to-market property — where

(i) the new corporation is a financial institution in its first taxation year and a property acquired by the new corporation from a predecessor corporation is a mark-to-market property of the new corporation for the year, or

(ii) a predecessor corporation was a financial institution in its last taxation year and a property acquired by the new corporation from the predecessor corporation was a mark-to-market property of the predecessor corporation for the year, the cost of the property to the new corporation shall be deemed to be the amount that was the fair market value of the property immediately before the amalgamation;

History: Para. 87(2)(e.5) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 54(3), applicable to amalgamations occurring at any time (including, for greater certainty, amalgamations occurring before June 22, 1995).

(f) eligible capital property — for the purposes of determining under this Act any amount relating to cumulative eligible capital, an eligible capital amount, an eligible capital expenditure or eligible capital property, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

History: Para. 87(2)(f) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 37(3), applicable to amalgamations occurring after June 1988. That para. formerly read:

> (f) cumulative eligible capital — for the purposes of computing the cumulative eligible capital of the new corporation at any time in respect of a business, where a predecessor corporation carried on a business that is carried on by the new corporation, the amount of the cumulative eligible capital of the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation in respect of that business shall be added to the amount determined for A in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) in respect of that business;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(f.1) repealed by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 37(3), applicable to amalgamations occurring after June 1988. That para. formerly read:

(f.1) idem — notwithstanding paragraph (f), for the purposes of computing the cumulative eligible capital of the new corporation at any time in respect of a business, where the last taxation year of a predecessor corporation commenced before July, 1988 and the predecessor corporation carried on a business that is carried on by the new corporation, 3/4 of the amount of the cumulative eligible capital of the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation in respect of that business shall be added to the amount determined for A in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) in respect of that business;

(g) reserves — for the purpose of computing the income of the new corporation for a taxation year,

(i) any amount that has been deducted as a reserve in computing the income of a predecessor corporation for its last taxation year shall be deemed to have been deducted as a reserve in computing the income of the new corporation for a taxation year immediately preceding its first taxation year, and

(ii) any amount deducted under paragraph 20(1)(p) in computing the income of a predecessor corporation for its last taxation year or a previous taxation year shall be deemed to have been deducted under that paragraph in computing the income of the new corporation for a taxation year immediately preceding its first taxation year;

Related Provisions: 87(2)(b) — Meaning of "last taxation year"; 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up.

(g.1) continuation — for the purposes of sections 12.3 and 12.4, subsection 20(26) and section 26, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(g.2) financial institution rules — for the purposes of paragraphs 142.4(4)(c) and (d) and subsections 142.5(5) and (7) and 142.6(1), the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Proposed Amendment — 87(2)(g.2)

(g.2) financial institution rules — for the purposes of paragraphs 142.4(4)(c) and (d) and subsections 142.5(5) and (7), 142.51(11) and 142.6(1), the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 19(1), will amend para. 87(2)(g.2) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after September 2006.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Paragraph 87(2)(g.2) provides that, for the purposes of a number of the rules for financial institutions in sections 142.4 to 142.6, the new corporation formed on an amalgamation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation.

Paragraph 87(2)(g.2) is amended to include a reference to new subsection 142.51(11). This change is proposed as a result of the introduction of new section 142.51 of the Act.

For further detail, readers may refer to the commentary to new section 142.51.

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up; 142.6(1)(b) — Deemed disposition of specified debt obligations and mark-to-market properties on becoming a financial institution. See also list at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(g.2) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 54(4), applicable to taxation years that end after February 22, 1994.

(g.3) superficial losses — for the purposes of applying subsections 13(21.2), 14(12), 18(15) and 40(3.4) to any property that was disposed of by a predecessor corporation before the amalgamation, the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(g.3) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(1), applicable to amalgamations that occur, and windings-up that begin, after April 26, 1995.

(g.4) superficial losses — capital property — for the purpose of applying paragraph 40(3.5)(c) in respect of any share that was acquired by a predecessor corporation, the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(g.4) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(1), applicable to amalgamations that occur, and windings-up that begin, after April 26, 1995.

Proposed Addition — 87(2)(g.5)

(g.5) patronage dividends — for the purpose of section 135, the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 88(1), will add para. 87(2)(g.5), applicable to amalgamations that occur, and windings-up that begin, after 1997.

Technical Notes: New paragraph 87(2)(g.5) deems a new corporation formed on an amalgamation to be the same corporation as and a continuation of each of the predecessor corporations for the purpose of section 135. This paragraph, which applies to amalgamations that occur after 1997, ensures that the rules in section 135 concerning the deduction for and inclusion in income of patronage dividends continue to apply where a cooperative corporation or a customer of a cooperative corporation amalgamates with one or more other corporations between the time a cooperative corporation makes an allocation in proportion to patronage and the time that the patronage dividend is paid. This amendment ensures that payments made under subsection 135(1) by the new corporation in satisfaction of allocations made by a predecessor corporation will be deductible by the new corporation. In addition, new paragraph 87(2)(g.5) ensures that the deductibility of an amount paid to a new corporation formed on the amalgamation of the cooperative corporation's customer and another corporation will not be affected by the amalgamation.

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

(h) debts — for the purpose of computing a deduction from the income of the new corporation for a taxation year under paragraph 20(1)(l), (l.1) or (p)

(i) any debt owing to a predecessor corporation that was included in computing the income of the predecessor corporation for its last taxation year or a preceding taxation year,

(ii) where a predecessor corporation was an insurer or a corporation the ordinary business of which included the lending of money, any loan or lending asset made or acquired by the predecessor corporation in the ordinary course of its business of insurance or the lending of money, or

(iii) where a predecessor corporation was an insurer or a corporation the ordinary business of which included the lending of money, any instrument or commitment described in paragraph 20(1)(l.1) that was issued, made or assumed by the predecessor corporation in the ordinary course of its business of insurance or the lending of money, and that by reason of the amalgamation, has been acquired by the new corporation, shall be deemed to be a debt owing to the new corporation that was included in computing its income for a preceding taxation year, a loan or lending asset made or acquired or an instrument or commitment that was issued, made or assumed by the new corporation in a preceding taxation year in the ordinary course of its business of insurance or the lending of money, as the case may be;

Proposed Amendment — 87(2)(j.91)

(j.91) Part I.3 and Part VI tax — for the purpose of determining the amount deductible under subsection 181.1(4) or 190.1(3) by the new corporation for any taxation year, the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation, except that this paragraph does not affect the determination of the fiscal period of any corporation or the tax payable by any corporation for any taxation year that ends before the amalgamation;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 88(2), will amend para. 87(2)(j.91) to read as above, applicable to amalgamations that occur, and to windings-up that begin, after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 88(1) sets out rules relating to the winding-up of a subsidiary into a parent corporation that owns at least 90% of each class of shares of the subsidiary. A number of the rules that apply to amalgamations under subsection 87(2) also apply to windings-up under subsection 88(1).

Paragraph 87(2)(j.91) allows a new corporation, or, in the case of a winding-up under subsection 88(1), a parent corporation, to be considered as a continuation of its predecessors or subsidiary, as the case may be, for the purposes of determining an amount deductible under subsection 181.1(4) or 190.1(3). Those provisions relate, respectively, to the deduction from a corporation's tax otherwise payable under Part I.3 of the Act of an amount in respect of its Canadian surtax, and the deduction from a financial institution's tax otherwise payable under Part VI of the Act of an amount in respect of its tax under Part I of the Act.

Paragraph 87(2)(j.91) is amended to clarify that it does not affect the fiscal period of, or tax payable by, any corporation for any taxation year that ends prior to an amalgamation, or, by virtue paragraph 88(1)(e.2), the commencement of a winding-up under subsection 88(1).

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(j.91) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(3), applicable to amalgamations that occur, and windings-up that begin, after April 26, 1995. The para. formerly read:

(j.91) for the purposes of determining the amount deductible under subsection 181.1(4) or 190.1(3) by the new corporation for any taxation year, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Para. 87(2)(j.91) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 37(6), applicable to amalgamations occurring and windings-up beginning after 1990.

(j.92) subsections 125(5.1) and 157.1(1) [small business deduction and instalment deferral] — for the purposes of subsection 125(5.1) and the definition "eligible corporation" in subsection 157.1(1), the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(j.92) amended by 2002, c. 9, subsec. 30(1), applicable to taxation years that end after 2001. The para. formerly read:

(j.92) subsec. 125(5.1) [small business deduction] — for the purposes of subsection 125(5.1), the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Para. 87(2)(j.92) added by 1995, c. 3, subsec. 23(2) applicable to taxation years that end after June 1994.

(j.93) mining reclamation trusts [and qualifying environmental trusts] — for the purposes of paragraphs 12(1)(z.1) and (z.2) and 20(1)(ss) and (tt) and sections 107.3 and 127.41, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(j.93) added by 1995, c. 3, subsec. 23(2), applicable to amalgamations that occur and windings-up that begin after February 22, 1994.

(j.94) film or video productions — for the purposes of sections 125.4 and 125.5, the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(j.94) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(4), applicable to amalgamations that occur and windings-up that begin after October 1997. The para. formerly read:

(j.94) Canadian film or video production tax credit — for the purpose of section 125.4, the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Para. 87(2)(j.94) added by 1996, c. 21, subsec. 15(2), applicable to amalgamations that occur and windings-up that begin after 1994.

Proposed Addition — 87(2)(j.95)

(j.95) non-resident trusts and foreign investment entities — for the purposes of sections 94 to 94.4, the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), s. 15, will add para. 87(2)(j.95), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2000.

Technical Notes: Section 87 sets out rules that apply on the amalgamation of two or more taxable Canadian corporations. The amalgamated corporation is generally treated as a continuation of the predecessor corporations for the purposes of the Act.

New paragraph 87(2)(j.95) provides that, where there has been an amalgamation of two or more taxable Canadian corporations, the amalgamated corporation is deemed to be a continuation of its predecessor corporations for the purposes of sections 94 to 94.4, which relate to foreign trusts and foreign investment entities. Thus, for example, an amalgamated corporation will be considered to be a "contributor" (as defined in subsection 94(1)) to a trust if any predecessor corporation was a contributor to the trust. In addition, the new corporation's "deferral amount" (as defined in subsection 94.2(1)) in respect of an interest in a foreign investment entity will be determined in the same manner as a predecessor's "deferral amount" in respect of the same interest.

Because of the operation of paragraph 88(1)(e.2), new paragraph 87(2)(j.95) also applies to windings-up to which section 88 applies.

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

(k) certain payments to employees — for the purpose of subsection 6(3), any amount received by a person from the new corporation that would, if received by the person from a predecessor corporation, be deemed for the purpose of section 5 to be remuneration for that person's services rendered as an officer or during a period of employment, shall be deemed for the purposes of section 5 to be remuneration for services so rendered by the person;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

(l) scientific research and experimental development — for the purposes of section 37 and Part VIII, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(l.1) idem [repealed R&D allowance] — for the purposes of this paragraph, paragraph (l.2) and section 37.1,

(i) the base period for a particular taxation year of a new corporation that has fewer than 3 preceding taxation years shall be deemed to be the period

(A) commencing on the day that

(I) is the earliest of all days each of which is a day immediately before the commencement of a taxation year of a predecessor corporation in respect of the new corporation that ended after 1976, and

(II) is in the 3 year period ending on the day immediately before the commencement of the particular year, and

(B) ending immediately before the first day of the particular taxation year,

(ii) where subparagraph (i) applies,

(A) in determining the qualified expenditures made by the new corporation in its base period, there shall be included the total of all amounts each of which is the qualified expenditure made by a predecessor corporation in a taxation year that commenced in the base period of the new corporation, and

(B) in determining the total of the amounts paid to the new corporation by persons referred to in subparagraphs (b)(i) to (iii) of the definition "expenditure base" in subsection 37.1(5) in its base period, there shall be included the total of all such amounts paid to a predecessor corporation by a person referred to in those subparagraphs in a taxation year that commenced in the base period of the new corporation,

(iii) the capital cost to the new corporation of any property that was a research property of a predecessor corporation acquired by it from the predecessor corporation shall be deemed to be the capital cost thereof to the predecessor corporation and the property shall be deemed to be a research property of the new corporation, and

(iv) each amount determined in respect of the new corporation under subparagraph 37.1(3)(b)(i) or (iii), as the case may be, shall be deemed to be the total of the amount otherwise determined and the total of amounts each of which is the amount determined under subparagraph 37.1(3)(b)(i) or (iii), as the case may be, in respect of a predecessor corporation;

(l.2) definition of "predecessor corporation" — for the purposes of this paragraph and paragraph (l.1), "predecessor corporation" includes any corporation in respect of which a predecessor corporation was a new corporation;

(l.21) [debt forgiveness rules] — for the purposes of section 61.3, the definition "unrecognized loss" in subsection 80(1) and subsection 80.01(10), the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

History: Para. 87(2)(l.21) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(5), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994. The para. formerly read:

(l.21) forgiven amount — for the purposes of section 61.3 and subsection 80.01(10), the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Para. 87(2)(l.21) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 30(2), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994.

(l.3) replacement property — where before the amalgamation property of a predecessor corporation was unlawfully taken, lost, destroyed or taken under statutory authority, or was a former business property of the predecessor corporation, for the purposes of applying sections 13 and 44 and the definition "former business property" in subsection 248(1) to the new corporation in respect of the property and any replacement property acquired therefor, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-259R4: Exchanges of property. See also at end of s. 87.

Proposed Addition — 87(2)(l.4)

(l.4) subsec. 13(4.2) election — for the purposes of subsection 13(4.3) and paragraph 20(16.1)(b), the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 88(3), will add para. 87(2)(l.4), applicable to amalgamations that occur, and windings-up that begin, after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: New paragraph 87(2)(l.4) is added to provide that, for the purposes of the rules in new subsection 13(4.3) and paragraph 20(16.1)(b) in respect of which an election is made under new subsection 13(4.2), the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation. This new provision also applies in respect of the winding up of a corporation to which section 88 applies, as a result of the application of paragraph 88(1)(e.2). New paragraph 87(2)(l.4) applies to amalgamations that occur, and windings up that begin, after December 20, 2002.

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

(m) reserves — for the purpose of computing the income of the new corporation for a taxation year, any amount claimed under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) or 44(1)(e)(iii) in computing a predecessor corporation's gain for its last taxation year from the disposition of any property shall be deemed

(i) to have been claimed under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) or 44(1)(e)(iii), as the case may be, in computing the new corporation's gain for a taxation year immediately preceding its first taxation year from the disposition of that property by it before its first taxation year, and

(ii) to be the amount determined under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(i) or 44(1)(e)(i), as the case may be, in respect of that property;

Related Provisions: 87(2)(b) — Meaning of "last taxation year"; 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(m) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 65(5), applicable to amalgamations occurring and windings-up beginning after 1989. Para. 87(2)(m) formerly read:

(m) proceeds not due until after end of year — for the purpose of computing the income of the new corporation for its first taxation year and any subsequent taxation year, any amount claimed under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) in computing a predecessor corporation's gain for its last taxation year from the disposition of any property shall be deemed

(i) to have been claimed under that subparagraph in computing the new corporation's gain for a taxation year immediately preceding its first taxation year from the disposition of that property by it before its first taxation year, and

(ii) to be the amount determined under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(i) in respect of that property;

(m.1) [charitable] gift of non-qualifying security — for the purpose of computing the new corporation's gain under subsection 40(1.01) for any taxation year from the disposition of a property, the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(m.1) added by 1998, c. 19, s. 15, applicable to 1997 et seq.

Proposed Addition — 87(2)(m.2)

(m.2) [charitable] gift of predecessor's property — for the purpose of computing the fair market value of property under subsection 248(35), the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 88(4), will add para. 87(2)(m.2), applicable in respect of gifts of property made after 6:00 p.m. (EST) on December 4, 2003.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(35) contains rules regarding the value, for tax purposes, of a gift of property acquired within a certain period. New paragraph 87(2)(m.2) provides that the period that would have applied to a predecessor corporation, if the predecessor had made the gift, will continue to apply after it has been wound up into the parent corporation. New paragraph 87(2)(m.2) applies in respect of gifts made after December 3, 2003.

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

(n) outlays made pursuant to warranty — for the purpose of section 42, any outlay or expense made or incurred by the new corporation in a taxation year, pursuant to or by virtue of an obligation described in that section incurred by a predecessor corporation, that would, if the outlay or expense had been made or incurred by the predecessor corporation in that year, have been deemed to be a loss of the predecessor corporation for that year from the disposition of a capital property shall be deemed to be a loss of the new corporation for that year from the disposition of a capital property;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-330R: Disposition of capital property subject to warranty, covenant, etc. (archived). See also at end of s. 87.

(o) expiration of options previously granted — for the purpose of subsection 49(2), any option granted by a predecessor corporation that expires after the amalgamation shall be deemed to have been granted by the new corporation, and any proceeds received by the predecessor corporation for the granting of the option shall be deemed to have been received by the new corporation therefor;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

(p) consideration for resource property disposition — for the purpose of computing a deduction from the income of the new corporation for a taxation year under section 64 of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, any amount that has been included in computing the income of a predecessor corporation for its last taxation year or a previous taxation year by virtue of subsection 59(1) or paragraph 59(3.2)(c) of this Act, of subsection 59(3) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, or of subsection 83A(5ba) or (5c) of that Act as it read in its application to a taxation year before the 1972 taxation year, shall be deemed to have been included in computing the income of the new corporation for a previous year by virtue thereof;

Related Provisions: 87(2)(b) — Meaning of "last taxation year"; 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

I.T. Application Rules: 69 (meaning of "chapter 148 of ...").

(q) registered [pension] plans [and DPSPs] — for the purposes of sections 147, 147.1 and 147.2 and any regulations made under subsection 147.1(18), the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(r) [Repealed under former Act]

Proposed Addition — 87(2)(r)

(r) employees profit sharing plan — an election made under subsection 144(10) by a predecessor corporation is deemed to be an election made by the new corporation;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 88(5), will add para. 87(2)(r), applicable to amalgamations that occur, and windings-up that begin, after 1994.

Technical Notes: New paragraph 87(2)(r) preserves an election under subsection 144(10) in connection with an employees profit sharing plan that was made by a predecessor corporation before an amalgamation. Paragraph 88(1)(e.2) provides that this rule also applies, with appropriate modifications, for the purposes of the rules relating to the winding-up of a subsidiary corporation into its parent corporation.

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

(s) tax deferred cooperative shares — for the purpose of section 135.1, if the new corporation is, at the beginning of its first taxation year, an agricultural cooperative corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 135.1(1)),

(i) the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation that was an agricultural cooperative corporation at the end of the predecessor corporation's last taxation year, and

(ii) if, on the amalgamation, the new corporation issues a share (in this subparagraph referred to as the "new share") that is described in all of paragraphs (b) to (d) of the definition "tax deferred cooperative share" in subsection 135.1(1) to a taxpayer in exchange for a share of a predecessor corporation (in this subparagraph referred to as the "old share") that was, at the end of the predecessor corporation's last taxation year, a tax deferred cooperative share within the meaning assigned by that definition, and the amount of paid-up capital, and the amount, if any, that the taxpayer is entitled to receive on a redemption, acquisition or cancellation, of the new share are equal to those amounts, respectively, in respect of the old share,

(A) the new share is deemed to have been issued at the time the old share was issued, and

(B) in applying subsection 135.1(2), the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed of the old share for nil proceeds;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(s) added by 2006, c. 4, s. 8, s. 55, applicable after 2005.

Proposed Addition — 87(2)(s.1)

(s.1) deemed SIFT wind-up corporation — if a predecessor corporation was a SIFT wind-up corporation immediately before the amalgamation, the new corporation is deemed to be a SIFT wind-up corporation;

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 19(2), will add para. 87(2)(s.1), applicable after December 19, 2007.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): New paragraph 87(2)(s.1) provides that on an amalgamation (within the meaning of subsection 87(1)) of a SIFT wind-up corporation and one or more other corporations, the corporation formed on the amalgamation is deemed to be a SIFT wind-up corporation.

Because of paragraph 88(1)(e.2), if a SIFT wind-up corporation is the subject of a winding-up into its parent in circumstances to which subsection 88(1) of the Act applies, the parent will also be deemed to be a SIFT wind-up corporation.

(t) pre-1972 capital surplus on hand — for the purpose of subsection 88(2.1), any capital property owned by a predecessor corporation on December 31, 1971 that was acquired by the new corporation by virtue of the amalgamation shall be deemed to have been acquired by the new corporation before 1972 at an actual cost to it equal to the actual cost of the property to the predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(u) shares of foreign affiliate — where one or more shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of a predecessor corporation have, by virtue of the amalgamation, been acquired by the new corporation and as a result of the acquisition the affiliate has become a foreign affiliate of the new corporation,

(i) for the purposes of subsection 91(5) and paragraph 92(1)(b), any amount required by section 92 to be added or deducted, as the case may be, in computing the adjusted cost base of any such share to the predecessor corporation before the amalgamation shall be deemed to have been so required to be added or deducted, as the case may be, in computing the adjusted cost base of the share to the new corporation, and

(ii) for the purposes of subsections 93(2) to (2.3), any exempt dividend received by the predecessor corporation on any such share is deemed to be an exempt dividend received by the new corporation on the share;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Subpara. 87(2)(u)(ii) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 65(2), applicable after November 1999. The subpara. formerly read:

(ii) for the purpose of subsection 93(2), any exempt dividend received by the predecessor corporation on any such share shall be deemed to be an exempt dividend received by the new corporation on the share;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(v) gifts [donations] — for the purposes of section 110.1, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation with respect to gifts;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(w) [Repealed under former Act]

(x) taxable dividends — for the purposes of subsections 112(3) to (4.22),

(i) any taxable dividend received on a share that was deductible from the predecessor corporation's income for a taxation year under section 112 or subsection 138(6) is deemed to be a taxable dividend received on the share by the new corporation that was deductible from the new corporation's income under section 112 or subsection 138(6), as the case may be,

(ii) any dividend (other than a taxable dividend) received on a share by the predecessor corporation is deemed to have been received on the share by the new corporation, and

(iii) a share acquired by the new corporation from a predecessor corporation is deemed to have been owned by the new corporation throughout any period of time throughout which it was owned by a predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(x) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(6), applicable to 1994 et seq. except that, in its application to dispositions of shares that occurred before April 27, 1995, para. 87(2)(x) shall be read as follows:

(x) for the purposes of subsections 112(3) to (4.3),

(i) any taxable dividend received on a share that was deductible from the predecessor corporation's income for a taxation year under section 112 or subsection 138(6) is deemed to be a taxable dividend received on the share by the new corporation that was deductible from the new corporation's income under section 112 or 138(6), as the case may be,

(ii) any capital dividend or life insurance capital dividend received on a share by the predecessor corporation is deemed to be a capital dividend or life insurance capital dividend, as the case may be, received on the share by the new corporation, and

(iii) a share acquired by the new corporation from a predecessor corporation is deemed to have been owned by the new corporation throughout any period of time throughout which it was owned by a predecessor corporation;

The para. formerly read:

(x) for the purposes of subsections 112(3) to (4.3),

(i) any taxable dividend received on a share that was deductible from the predecessor corporation's income for a taxation year under section 112 or subsection 138(6) shall be deemed to be a taxable dividend received on the share by the new corporation that was deductible from the new corporation's income for a taxation year under section 112 or subsection 138(6), as the case may be, and

(ii) any capital dividend or life insurance capital dividend received on a share by the predecessor corporation shall be deemed to be a capital dividend or life insurance capital dividend, as the case may be, received on the share by the new corporation;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(y) contributed surplus — for the purposes of subsections 84(1) and (10), the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

History: Para. 87(2)(y) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 65(6), applicable after July 13, 1990.

History: Para. 87(2)(y.1) repealed by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(7), applicable to taxes payable for taxation years that begin after 1986. The para. formerly read:

(y.1) preferred-earnings amount — for the purpose of computing the preferred-earnings amount (within the meaning assigned by subsection 181(2)) of the new corporation, there shall be added to the new corporation's preferred-earnings amount at the end of its first taxation year the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which

(i) a predecessor corporation's preferred-earnings amount at the end of its last taxation year

exceeds

(ii) the amount that would be determined under paragraph 181(2)(c) in respect of the predecessor corporation for its last taxation year if the references in that paragraph to "the immediately preceding taxation year" and "that year" were read as "the year";

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(z) foreign tax carryover — for the purposes of determining the new corporation's unused foreign tax credit (within the meaning of subsection 126(7)) in respect of a country for any taxation year and determining the extent to which subsection 126(2.3) applies to reduce the amount that may be claimed by the new corporation under paragraph 126(2)(a) in respect of an unused foreign tax credit in respect of a country for a taxation year, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation, except that this paragraph shall in no respect affect the determination of

(i) the fiscal period of the new corporation or any of its predecessor corporations, or

(ii) the tax payable under this Act by any predecessor corporation;

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-520: Unused foreign tax credits — carryforward and carryback. See also at end of s. 87.

(z.1) capital dividend account — for the purposes of computing the capital dividend account of the new corporation, it shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation, other than a predecessor corporation to which subsection 83(2.1) would, if a dividend were paid immediately before the amalgamation and an election were made under subsection 83(2) in respect of the full amount of that dividend, apply to deem any portion of the dividend to be paid by the predecessor corporation as a taxable dividend;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(z.1) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 65(7), applicable to amalgamations occurring and windings-up beginning after July 13, 1990. Para. 87(2)(z.1) formerly read:

(z.1) capital dividend account — for the purpose of computing at any particular time after the amalgamation the capital dividend account of a new corporation that has been a private corporation continuously from the time of the amalgamation to the particular time, there shall be added the amount of the capital dividend account of each predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation, except that the amount of the capital dividend account of any predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation shall be deemed to be nil where, had a dividend been paid by the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation and an election been made under subsection 83(2) in respect of that dividend, subsection 83(2.1) would have applied to deem all or any portion of the dividend to be a taxable dividend;

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-66R6: Capital dividends. See also at end of s. 87.

(z.2) application of Parts III and III.1 — for the purposes of Parts III and III.1, the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(z.2) amended by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 45(1), applicable to amalgamations that occur, and to windings-up that begin, after 2005. It formerly read:

(z.2) application of Part III — for the purposes of Part III, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(aa) refundable dividend tax on hand — where the new corporation was a private corporation immediately after the amalgamation, for the purpose of computing the refundable dividend tax on hand (within the meaning assigned by subsection 129(3)) of the new corporation at the end of its first taxation year there shall be added to the total determined under subsection 129(3) in respect of the new corporation for the year the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which the refundable dividend tax on hand of a predecessor corporation at the end of its last taxation year exceeds its dividend refund (within the meaning assigned by subsection 129(1)) for its last taxation year, except that no amount shall be added under this paragraph in respect of a predecessor corporation

(i) that was not a private corporation at the end of its last taxation year, or

(ii) where subsection 129(1.2) would have applied to deem a dividend paid by the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation not to be a taxable dividend for the purpose of subsection 129(1);

Related Provisions: 87(2)(b) — Meaning of "last taxation year"; 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up; 131(5) — Dividend refund to mutual fund corporation; 186(5) — Deemed private corporation. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(aa) amended by 1996, c. 21, subsec. 15(3), applicable to amalgamations that occur and windings-up that begin after June 1995. The para. formerly read:

(aa) refundable dividend tax on hand — where the new corporation was a private corporation continuously from the time of the amalgamation until the time immediately after the beginning of any taxation year, for the purpose of computing the refundable dividend tax on hand (within the meaning assigned by subsection 129(3)) of the new corporation at the end of that year there shall be added to the total determined under subsection 129(3) for that year, from which the total of amounts determined under paragraphs 129(3)(c) to (e) is subtracted, the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which the refundable dividend tax on hand immediately before the amalgamation of a predecessor corporation that was a private corporation at that time exceeds its dividend refund (within the meaning assigned by subsection 129(1)) for its taxation year ending at that time, except that no amount shall be so added in respect of a predecessor corporation where subsection 129(1.2) would have applied to deem a dividend paid by the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation not to be a taxable dividend for the purpose of subsection 129(1);

Para. 87(2)(aa) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 37(8), applicable to the computation of refundable dividend tax on hand (within the meaning assigned by subsec. 129(3) as amended) for 1993 et seq. Para. (aa) formerly read:

(aa) refundable dividend tax on hand — in the case of a new corporation that has been a private corporation continuously from the time of the amalgamation to the end of any taxation year, for the purposes of computing the refundable dividend tax on hand (within the meaning assigned by subsection 129(3)), of the new corporation at the end of the taxation year, where a predecessor corporation had refundable dividend tax on hand immediately before the amalgamation, the amount by which the refundable dividend tax on hand at that time exceeds any dividend refund (within the meaning assigned by subsection 129(1)) of the predecessor corporation for its taxation year ending immediately before the amalgamation shall be added to the total determined under subsection 129(3) from which the new corporation's dividend refunds are to be subtracted, except that the amount to be added to the total determined under subsection 129(3) shall be deemed to be nil where, had a dividend been paid by the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation, subsection 129(1.2) would have applied to deem the dividend not to be a taxable dividend;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(bb) mutual fund and investment corporations — where the new corporation is a mutual fund corporation or an investment corporation, there shall be added to

(i) the amount determined under each of paragraphs (a) and (b) of the definition "capital gains dividend account" in subsection 131(6), and

(ii) the values of A and B in the definition "refundable capital gains tax on hand" in that subsection in respect of the new corporation at any time the amounts so determined and the values of those factors immediately before the amalgamation in respect of each predecessor corporation that was, immediately before the amalgamation, a mutual fund corporation or an investment corporation;

History: Para. 87(2)(bb) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(8), applicable to amalgamations that occur after 1991 except that, for amalgamations that occurred after 1991 and before February 23, 1994, subpara. 87(2)(bb)(i) shall be read as follows:

(i) the amount determined under each of paragraphs (a) to (g) of the definition "capital gains dividend account" in subsection 131(6), and

The para. formerly read:

(bb) mutual fund and investment corporations — where the new corporation is a mutual fund corporation or an investment corporation, there shall be added to the amount determined for each of A, B, C and D in the definition "capital gains dividend account" and A and B in the definition "refundable capital gains tax on hand" in subsection 131(6) in respect of the new corporation at any time the amount so determined immediately before the amalgamation in respect of each predecessor corporation that was a mutual fund corporation or an investment corporation;

Para. 87(2)(bb) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 65(8), applicable to amalgamations occurring after July 13, 1990 and, where the corporation so elects by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing before 1993, to amalgamations occurring after 1986. Para. 87(2)(bb) formerly read:

(bb) mutual fund corporation — in the case of a new corporation that is a mutual fund corporation,

(i) for the purpose of computing its capital gains dividend account at any time, where a predecessor mutual fund corporation had a capital gains dividend account immediately before the amalgamation the amount thereof shall be added to the amount determined for A in the definition "capital gains dividend account" in subsection 131(6), and

(ii) for the purpose of computing its refundable capital gains tax on hand at the end of any taxation year, where a predecessor mutual fund corporation had refundable capital gains tax on hand immediately before the amalgamation the amount thereof shall be added to the amount determined for A in the definition "refundable capital gains [tax] on hand" in subsection 131(6);

(bb.1) flow-through entities — where a predecessor corporation was, immediately before the amalgamation, an investment corporation, a mortgage investment corporation or a mutual fund corporation and the new corporation is an investment corporation, a mortgage investment corporation or a mutual fund corporation, as the case may be, for the purpose of section 39.1, the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the predecessor corporation;

History: Para. 87(2)(bb.1) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(8), applicable to amalgamations that occur after 1993.

(cc) non-resident-owned investment corporation — in the case of a new corporation that is a non-resident-owned investment corporation,

(i) for the purpose of computing its allowable refundable tax on hand (within the meaning assigned by subsection 133(9)) at any time, where a predecessor corporation had allowable refundable tax on hand immediately before the amalgamation, the amount thereof shall be added to the total determined for A in the definition "allowable refundable tax on hand" in subsection 133(9),

(ii) for the purpose of computing its capital gains dividend account (within the meaning assigned by subsection 133(8)) at any time, where a predecessor corporation had an amount in its capital gains dividend account immediately before the amalgamation, that amount shall be added to the amount determined under paragraph (a) of the description of A in the definition "capital gains dividend account" in subsection 133(8), and

(iii) for the purpose of computing its cumulative taxable income (within the meaning assigned by subsection 133(9)) at any time, where a predecessor corporation had cumulative taxable income immediately before the amalgamation, the amount thereof shall be added to the total determined for A in the definition "cumulative taxable income" in subsection 133(9);

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(dd)–(hh) [Repealed under former Act]

(ii) public corporation — where a predecessor corporation was a public corporation immediately before the amalgamation, the new corporation shall be deemed to have been a public corporation at the commencement of its first taxation year;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(jj) interest on certain obligations — for the purposes of paragraph 81(1)(m), the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(kk) disposition of shares of controlled corporation — for the purposes of paragraph 40(2)(h),

(i) where a corporation was controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation and has, by reason of the amalgamation, become controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the new corporation, the new corporation shall be deemed to have acquired control of the corporation so controlled at the time control thereof was acquired by the predecessor corporation, and

(ii) where a predecessor corporation was immediately before the amalgamation controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a corporation that, immediately after the amalgamation, controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, the new corporation, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 256(5.1), (6.2) — Controlled directly or indirectly — control in fact. See also at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(ll) para. 20(1)(n) and subpara. 40(1)(a)(iii) amounts — notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, where any property was disposed of by a predecessor corporation, the new corporation shall, in computing

(i) the amount of any deduction under paragraph 20(1)(n) as a reserve in respect of the property sold in the course of business, and

(ii) the amount of its claim under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) or 44(1)(e)(iii) in respect of the disposition of the property, be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Subpara. 87(2)(ll)(ii) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 65(9), to add reference to subpara. 44(1)(e)(iii), applicable to amalgamations occurring and windings-up beginning after 1989.

(mm) idem — for the purposes of section 126.1, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Proposed Repeal — 87(2)(mm)

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 88(6), will repeal para. 87(2)(mm), applicable to amalgamations that occur, and windings-up that begin, after March 20, 2003.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 87(2)(mm) ensures that an amalgamated corporation will be treated as a continuation of, and the same corporation as, each of its predecessor corporations for the purposes of the provisions relating to UI premium tax credit. That paragraph is repealed as a consequence of the repeal of the provisions relating to the UI premium tax credit. For additional information, see the commentary to section 126.1.

History: Para. 87(2)(mm) added by 1994, c. 8, subsec. 9(1), applicable to amalgamations occurring, and windings-up beginning, after 1991.

(nn) refundable Part VII tax on hand — for the purpose of computing the refundable Part VII tax on hand of the new corporation at the end of any taxation year, there shall be added to the total determined under paragraph 192(3)(a) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which

(i) a predecessor corporation's refundable Part VII tax on hand at the end of its last taxation year

exceeds

(ii) the predecessor corporation's Part VII refund for its last taxation year;

Related Provisions: 87(2)(b) — Meaning of "last taxation year"; 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also list at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(oo) investment tax credit — for the purpose of applying subsection 127(10.2) to any corporation, the new corporation is deemed to have had

(i) a particular taxation year that

(A) where it was associated with another corporation in the new corporation's first taxation year, ended in the calendar year that precedes the calendar year in which that first year ends, and

(B) in any other case, immediately precedes that first year, and

(ii) taxable income for the particular year (determined before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for the particular year) equal to the total of all amounts each of which is a predecessor corporation's taxable income for its taxation year that ended immediately before the amalgamation (determined before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for that year);

History: Para. 87(2)(oo) amended by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 18(2), applicable to amalgamations that occur after 1995, except that, for amalgamations that occur in 1996, the expression "any corporation" shall be read as "the new corporation". For amalgamations that occur after May 23, 1985 and before 1996, para. (oo) shall be read without reference to the expression "paragraph 127.1(2)(a) and subparagraph 157(1)(b)(i)". Para. (oo) formerly read:

(oo) for the purposes of applying subsection 127(10.1), paragraph 127.1(2)(a)[12] and subparagraph 157(1)(b)(i) in respect of the first taxation year of the new corporation, the new corporation shall be deemed to have had a taxation year immediately preceding its first taxation year and to have had

(i) taxable income for that preceding taxation year equal to the total of amounts each of which is the taxable income of a predecessor corporation for its taxation year ending immediately before the amalgamation, and

(ii) a business limit for that preceding taxation year equal to the total of amounts each of which is the business limit of a predecessor corporation for its taxation year ending immediately before the amalgamation;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(oo.1) refundable investment tax credit and balance-due day — for the purpose of applying the definition "qualifying corporation" in subsection 127.1(2), and subparagraph (d)(i) of the definition "balance-due day" in subsection 248(1), to any corporation, the new corporation is deemed to have had

(i) a particular taxation year that

(A) where it was associated with another corporation in the new corporation's first taxation year, ended in the calendar year that precedes the calendar year in which that first year ends, and

(B) where clause (A) does not apply, immediately precedes that first year,

(ii) taxable income for the particular year (determined before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for the particular year) equal to the total of all amounts each of which is a predecessor corporation's taxable income for its taxation year that ended immediately before the amalgamation (determined before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for that year), and

(iii) a business limit for the particular year equal to the total of all amounts each of which is a predecessor corporation's business limit for its taxation year that ended immediately before the amalgamation;

[12] Sic. This refers to an earlier version of subsec. 127.1(2), which is now the definition of "qualifying corporation" in that subsec.

History: The opening words of para. 87(2)(oo.1) amended by 2002, c. 9, subsec. 30(2), applicable to taxation years that end after 2001. The opening words formerly read:

(oo.1) for the purpose of applying subparagraph 157(1)(b)(i) and the definition "qualifying corporation" in subsection 127.1(2) to any corporation, the new corporation is deemed to have had

Para. 87(2)(oo.1) added by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 18(3), applicable to amalgamations that occur after May 23, 1985, except that,

(a) for amalgamations that occur before 1997, the expression "any corporation" shall be read as "the new corporation";

(b) for the purpose of applying para. (oo.1) for the purpose of the definition "qualifying corporation" in subsec. 127.1(2), the business limits referred to in para. (oo.1), for taxation years that ended after June 1994 and began before 1996, shall be determined under s. 125 as that section read in its application to taxation years that ended before July 1994; and

(c) cl. (oo.1)(i)(A) does not apply

(i) for the purpose of applying the definition "qualifying corporation" in subsec. 127.1(2) to taxation years that ended before July 1994, and

(ii) for the purpose of applying subpara. 157(1)(b)(i) to taxation years that end before 1998.

(pp) cumulative offset account computation — for the purpose of computing the cumulative offset account (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.5(2)) of the new corporation at any time, there shall be added to the total otherwise determined under paragraph 66.5(2)(a) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which

(i) a predecessor corporation's cumulative offset account at the end of its last taxation year

exceeds

(ii) the amount deducted under subsection 66.5(1) in computing the predecessor corporation's income for its last taxation year;

Related Provisions: 87(2)(b) — Meaning of "last taxation year"; 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also list at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(qq) continuation of corporation [investment tax credit] — for the purpose of computing the new corporation's investment tax credit at the end of any taxation year, the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation, except that this paragraph does not affect the determination of the fiscal period of any corporation or the tax payable by any predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: See Related Provisions at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(qq) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(9), applicable to amalgamations that occur after April 26, 1995. The para. formerly read:

(qq) for the purpose of computing the new corporation's investment tax credit and employment tax credit at the end of any taxation year, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(rr) tax on taxable preferred shares — for the purposes of subsections 112(2.9), 191(4), and 191.1(2) and (4), the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

(ss) transferred liability for Part VI.1 tax — for the purposes of section 191.3, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

(tt) livestock — inclusion of deferred amount — for the purposes of subsections 80.3(3) and (5), the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

(uu) fuel tax rebates — for the purposes of paragraph 12(1)(x.1), the description of D.1 in the definition "non-capital loss" in subsection 111(8), and subsections 111(10) and (11), the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2) — Winding-up; 93(2)–(2.3) — Loss limitation on disposition of share. See also list at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(uu) amended by 1997, c. 26, s. 83, applicable to 1997 et seq. Para. (uu) formerly read:

(uu) for the purposes of paragraph 12(1)(x.1), the description of D.1 in the definition "non-capital loss" in subsection 111(8), clause 111(10)(a)(i)(B) and subsection 111(11), the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation.

Para. 87(2)(uu) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VI (1992, c. 29), s. 3, applicable to amalgamations occurring after 1991.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(vv) general rate income pool — if the new corporation is a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation in its first taxation year, in computing its general rate income pool at the end of that first taxation year there shall be added the total of all amounts determined under subsection 89(5) in respect of the corporation for that first taxation year; and

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2)(ix), 89(6) — Winding-up; 89(15) — Meaning of "deposit insurance corporation"; 125(7)"Canadian-controlled private corporation"(d) — Election not to be CCPC for purposes of 87(2)(vv). See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(vv) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 45(2), applicable to amalgamations that occur, and to windings-up that begin, after 2005.

(ww) low rate income pool — if the new corporation is neither a Canadian-controlled private corporation nor a deposit insurance corporation in its first taxation year, there shall be added in computing its low rate income pool at any time in that first taxation year the total of all amounts determined under subsection 89(9) in respect of the corporation for that first taxation year.

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.2)(ix), 89(10) — Winding-up; 89(15) — Meaning of "deposit insurance corporation"; 125(7)"Canadian-controlled private corporation"(d) — Election not to be CCPC for purposes of 87(2)(ww). See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2)(ww) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 45(2), applicable to amalgamations that occur, and to windings-up that begin, after 2005.

(2.01) Application of subsec. 37.1(5) — The definitions in subsection 37.1(5) apply to subsection (2).

Origin of subsec. 87(2.01): R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Supp.) (formerly contained in the opening words to subsec. 37.1(5)).

(2.1) Non-capital losses, etc., of predecessor corporations — Where there has been an amalgamation of two or more corporations, for the purposes only of

(a) determining the new corporation's non-capital loss, net capital loss, restricted farm loss, farm loss or limited partnership loss, as the case may be, for any taxation year, and

(b) determining the extent to which subsections 111(3) to (5.4) and paragraph 149(10)(c) apply to restrict the deductibility by the new corporation of any non-capital loss, net capital loss, restricted farm loss, farm loss or limited partnership loss, as the case may be, the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation, except that this subsection shall in no respect affect the determination of

(c) the fiscal period of the new corporation or any of its predecessors,

(d) the income of the new corporation or any of its predecessors, or

(e) the taxable income of, or the tax payable under this Act by, any predecessor corporation.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(a) — Taxation year-end; 87(2.11) — Losses, etc., on amalgamation with subsidiary wholly-owned corporation; 256(7) — Where control deemed not acquired. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Para. 87(2.1)(b) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(10), applicable to a corporation that becomes or ceases to be exempt from tax under Part I of the Act after April 26, 1995. The para. formerly read:

(b) determining the extent to which subsections 111(3) to (5.4) and paragraph 149(10)(d) apply to restrict the deductibility by the new corporation of any non-capital loss, net capital loss, restricted farm loss, farm loss or limited partnership loss, as the case may be,

MNR*, [1992] 2 C.T.C. 2700 (TCC) (Predecessor corporation's business not carried on by corporation resulting from amalgamation; non-capital losses not deductible).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-302R3: Losses of a corporation — the effect that acquisitions of control, amalgamations, and windings-up have on their deductibility — after January 15, 1987. See also at end of s. 87.

(2.11) Vertical amalgamations — Where a new corporation is formed by the amalgamation of a particular corporation and one or more of its subsidiary wholly-owned corporations, the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the particular corporation for the purposes of applying sections 111 and 126, subsections 127(5) to (26) and 181.1(4) to (7), Part IV and subsections 190.1(3) to (6) in respect of the particular corporation.

Related Provisions: 87(1.4) — Definition of "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation"; 87(2.1) — Non-capital losses, etc., of predecessor corporations; 87(11) — Vertical amalgamation — effects; 256(7) — Where control deemed not acquired.

History: Subsec. 87(2.11) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(11), applicable to amalgamations that occur after April 26, 1995. The subsec. formerly read:

(2.11) Losses, etc., on amalgamation with subsidiary wholly-owned corporation — Where a new corporation is formed by the amalgamation of a particular corporation and one or more of its subsidiary wholly-owned corporations, the new corporation shall, for the purposes of applying section 111 and Part IV in respect of the particular corporation, be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the particular corporation.

Subsec. 87(2.11) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 37(9), applicable to amalgamations occurring after 1989.

I.T. Technical News: 3 (subsection 87(2.11)).

(2.2) Amalgamation of insurers — Where there has been an amalgamation and one or more of the predecessor corporations was an insurer, the new corporation is, notwithstanding subsection (2), deemed, for the purposes of paragraphs 12(1)(d), (e), (e.1), (i) and (s) and 20(1)(l), (l.1), (p) and (jj) and 20(7)(c), subsection 20(22), sections 138, 138.1, 140, 142 and 148 and Part XII.3, to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each of those predecessor corporations.

Proposed Amendment — 87(2.2)

(2.2) Amalgamation of insurers — Where there has been an amalgamation and one or more of the predecessor corporations was an insurer, the new corporation is, notwithstanding subsection (2), deemed, for the purposes of paragraphs 12(1)(d), (e), (e.1), (i) and (s), subsection 12.5(8), paragraphs 20(1)(l), (l.1), (p) and (jj) and 20(7)(c), subsections 20(22) and 20.4(4), sections 138, 138.1, 140, 142 and 148 and Part XII.3, to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each of those predecessor corporations.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 19(3), will amend subsec. 87(2.2) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after September 2006.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 87(2.2) deals with the amalgamation of two or more corporations one or more of which is an insurer. Where this occurs, the resulting corporation is treated as a continuation of each of the predecessor insurance corporations for the purposes of section 138 and certain other provisions of the Act relating to insurers that are listed in subsection 87(2.2).

This subsection is amended to add references to new subsections 12.5(8) and 20.4(4). This change is proposed as a result of the introduction of new sections 12.5 and 20.4.

For further details, readers may refer to the commentary to new sections 12.5 and 20.4.

Related Provisions: 139.1(3)(g) — Where merger causes demutualization of insurer. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Subsec. 87(2.2) amended by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 18(4), applicable to amalgamations that occur after 1995. Subsec. (2.2) formerly read:

(2.2) Amalgamation of insurance corporations — Where there has been an amalgamation of two or more corporations and one or more of the predecessor corporations was an insurance corporation, the new corporation shall, notwithstanding subsection (2), be deemed, for the purposes of paragraphs 12(1)(d), (e), (i) and (s) and 20(1)(l), (l.1), (p) and (jj) and 20(7)(c), sections 138, 138.1, 140, 142 and 148 and Part XII.3 of this Act and section 33 of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each such predecessor corporation.

I.T. Application Rules: 69 (meaning of "chapter 148 of ...").

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

Proposed Addition — 87(2.3)

(2.3) Quebec credit unions — For the purpose of applying this section to an amalgamation governed by section 689 of An Act respecting financial services cooperatives, R.S.Q., c. C-67.3, an investment deposit of a credit union is deemed to be a share of a separate class of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation in respect of the amalgamation the adjusted cost base and paid up capital of which to the credit union is equal to the adjusted cost base to the credit union of the investment deposit immediately before the amalgamation if

(a) immediately before the amalgamation, the investment deposit is an investment deposit to which section 425 of the Savings and Credit Unions Act, R.S.Q., c. C-4.1, applies to the investment fund of that predecessor corporation; and

(b) on the amalgamation the credit union disposes of the investment deposit for consideration that consists solely of shares of a class of the capital stock of the new corporation.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 88(7), will add subsec. 87(2.3), applicable to amalgamations that occur after June 2001.

Technical Notes: New subsection 87(2.3) provides a special rule that applies to an "investment deposit" of a Quebec credit union in another Quebec credit union (the "predecessor corporation"). This rule applies where the credit union's investment deposit in the predecessor corporation is disposed of because of an amalgamation of credit unions that includes the predecessor corporation with that amalgamation being governed by section 689 of the Act Respecting Financial Services Cooperatives, R.S.Q., 2001, c. C-67.3. The credit union's investment deposit will, if certain conditions are met, be deemed to be a share of the capital stock of the predecessor corporation having an adjusted cost base and paid up capital equal to the adjusted cost base of the investment deposit to the credit union. The conditions that must be met are that

- immediately before the amalgamation the investment deposit must be an investment deposit (to which section 425 of the Savings and Credit Unions Act, R.S.Q., 2001, c. C-4.1 applies) in an investment fund of the predecessor corporation; and
- on the amalgamation the credit union disposes of the investment deposit for consideration that consists solely of shares of the capital stock of the new corporation.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 5, 2000:

La présente fait suite à votre lettre du 27 octobre 2000 et à la réponse que nous vous avions donnée en novembre 1999 (copie jointe) concernant la réorganisation proposée du [xxx]. Je crois savoir que vous avez discuté de la question avec Davine Roach et Kerry Harnish de cette division, le 16 novembre 2000.

Lors de votre rencontre du 10 octobre 2000 avec des représentants de la Direction de la politique de l'impôt, vous indiquiez que l'Agence des douanes et du revenu du Canada (« l'ADRC ») avait déterminé que les dépôts à participation ne constituent pas des actions aux fins de la Loi de l'impôt sur le revenu (la « Loi ») et qu'ils ne peuvent donc être transférés en franchise d'impôt au moment de la fusion (selon la définition au paragraphe 87(1) de la Loi) [xxx]. Dans votre lettre du 27 octobre 2000, vous demandez donc que la Loi soit modifiée:

- pour traiter chaque « dépôt à participation » d'un contribuable comme une « action » aux fins de la fusion,
- pour considérer que l'action réputée représentant le dépôt à participation a un prix de base rajusté et un capital versé équivalant au prix de base rajusté du dépôt par ailleurs déterminé pour le contribuable,
- pour mettre en place une règle spéciale relativement à l'attribution du coût d'une telle action à la nouvelle ou aux nouvelles actions en fonction du coût plutôt que de la juste valeur marchande. Selon la règle actuelle d'attribution des coûts prévue au paragraphe 87(4), un transfert de coûts pourrait donner lieu à des gains en capital non réalisés artificiels relativement à certaines des nouvelles actions acquises lors de la fusion.

Comme nous l'indiquions dans notre lettre de novembre 1999, nous sommes disposés à recommander au ministre des Finances que la Loi soit modifiée pour assurer le transfert libre d'impôt d'un dépôt à participation échangé pour une action lors de la fusion [xxx]. Plus précisément, nous sommes disposés à traiter un dépôt à participation comme s'il s'agissait d'une action aux fins de l'application des règles relatives aux fusions à l'article 87 de la Loi. Nous sommes aussi disposés à considérer que l'action réputée représentant le dépôt à participation a un prix de base rajusté et un capital versé équivalent au prix de base rajusté de la participation du contribuable dans un dépôt à participation en particulier.

Toutefois, nous ne sommes pas disposés à nous écarter de la formule d'attribution selon la juste valeur marchande prévue au paragraphe 87(4) de la Loi dans le cas des transactions réalisées dans le cadre de la fusion de [xxx]. La formule actuelle tient compte des cas où les nouvelles actions ne sont pas de la même categorie que les anciennes actions. Nous croyons toutefois savoir que l'ADRC a adopté une mesure administrative qui pourrait être utile dans votre cas.

Enfin, nous sommes aussi disposés à recommander que les changements susmentionnés (que nous acceptons de recommander au ministre) s'appliquent aux fusions réalisées après 1999. Si nos recommandations sont acceptées, on prévoit que les modifications seraient incluses plus tard dans un projet de loi technique.

Veuillez agréer, Monsieur, l'expression de mes sentiments les meilleurs.

Le directeur, Division de la législation de l'impôt, Direction de la politique de l'impôt
Brian Ernewein

(3) Computation of paid-up capital — Subject to subsection (3.1), where there is an amalgamation or a merger of 2 or more Canadian corporations, in computing at any particular time the paid-up capital in respect of any particular class of shares of the capital stock of the new corporation,

(a) there shall be deducted that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the paid-up capital, determined without reference to this subsection, in respect of all the shares of the capital stock of the new corporation immediately after the amalgamation or merger exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is the paid-up capital in respect of a share (except a share held by any other predecessor corporation) of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation or merger, that

(i) the paid-up capital, determined without reference to this subsection, of the particular class of shares of the capital stock of the new corporation immediately after the amalgamation or merger

is of

(ii) the paid-up capital, determined without reference to this subsection, in respect of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the new corporation immediately after the amalgamation or merger; and

(b) there shall be added an amount equal to the lesser of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deemed by subsection 84(3), (4) or (4.1) to be a dividend on shares of the particular class paid by the new corporation before the particular time

exceeds

(B) the total that would be determined under clause (A) if this Act were read without reference to paragraph (a), and

(ii) the amount required by paragraph (a) to be deducted in computing the paid-up capital of shares of the particular class.

Related Provisions: 87(3.1) — Election for 87(3) not to apply. See also at end of s. 87.

History: That portion of subsec. 87(3) preceding para. (a) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 37(10), applicable to amalgamations occurring after 1990. That portion formerly read:

(3) Computation of paid-up capital — Where there has been an amalgamation or a merger after March 31, 1977 of two or more Canadian corporations, in computing, at any particular time the paid-up capital in respect of any particular class of shares of the capital stock of the new corporation

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(3.1) Election for non-application of subsec. (3) — Where,

(a) there is an amalgamation of 2 or more corporations,

(b) all of the issued shares, immediately before the amalgamation, of each class of shares (other than a class of shares all of the issued shares of which were cancelled on the amalgamation) of the capital stock of each predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "exchanged class") are converted into all of the issued shares, immediately after the amalgamation, of a separate class of shares of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "substituted class"),

(c) immediately after the amalgamation, the number of shareholders of each substituted class, the number of shares of each substituted class owned by each shareholder, the number of issued shares of each substituted class, the terms and conditions of each share of a substituted class, and the paid-up capital of each substituted class determined without reference to the provisions of this Act are identical to the number of shareholders of the exchanged class from which the substituted class was converted, the number of shares of each such exchanged class owned by each shareholder, the number of issued shares of each such exchanged class, the terms and conditions of each share of such exchanged class, and the paid-up capital of each such exchanged class determined without reference to the provisions of this Act, respectively, immediately before the amalgamation, and

(d) the new corporation elects in its return of income filed in accordance with section 150 for its first taxation year to have the provisions of this subsection apply, for the purpose of computing at any particular time the paid-up capital in respect of any particular class of shares of the capital stock of the new corporation,

(e) subsection (3) does not apply in respect of the amalgamation, and

(f) each substituted class shall be deemed to be the same as, and a continuation of, the exchanged class from which it was converted.

History: Subsec. 87(3.1) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 37(11), applicable to amalgamations occurring after 1990.

(4) Shares of predecessor corporation — Where there has been an amalgamation of two or more corporations after May 6, 1974, each shareholder (except any predecessor corporation) who, immediately before the amalgamation, owned shares of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old shares") that were capital property to the shareholder and who received no consideration for the disposition of those shares on the amalgamation, other than shares of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new shares"), shall be deemed

(a) to have disposed of the old shares for proceeds equal to the total of the adjusted cost bases to the shareholder of those shares immediately before the amalgamation, and

(b) to have acquired the new shares of any particular class of the capital stock of the new corporation at a cost to the shareholder equal to that proportion of the proceeds described in paragraph (a) that

(i) the fair market value, immediately after the amalgamation, of all new shares of that particular class so acquired by the shareholder,

is of

(ii) the fair market value, immediately after the amalgamation, of all new shares so acquired by the shareholder, except that, where the fair market value of the old shares immediately before the amalgamation exceeds the fair market value of the new shares immediately after the amalgamation and it is reasonable to regard any portion of the excess (in this subsection referred to as the "gift portion") as a benefit that the shareholder desired to have conferred on a person related to the shareholder, the following rules apply:

(c) the shareholder shall be deemed to have disposed of the old shares for proceeds of disposition equal to the lesser of

(i) the total of the adjusted cost bases to the shareholder, immediately before the amalgamation, of the old shares and the gift portion, and

(ii) the fair market value of the old shares immediately before the amalgamation,

(d) the shareholder's capital loss from the disposition of the old shares shall be deemed to be nil,

(e) the cost to the shareholder of any new shares of any class of the capital stock of the new corporation acquired by the shareholder on the amalgamation shall be deemed to be that proportion of the lesser of

(i) the total of the adjusted cost bases to the shareholder, immediately before the amalgamation, of the old shares, and

(ii) the total of the fair market value, immediately after the amalgamation, of all new shares so acquired by the shareholder and the amount that, but for paragraph (d), would have been the shareholder's capital loss from the disposition of the old shares

that

(iii) the fair market value, immediately after the amalgamation, of the new shares of that class so acquired by the shareholder

is of

(iv) the fair market value, immediately after the amalgamation, of all new shares so acquired by the shareholder, and where the old shares were taxable Canadian property of the shareholder, the new shares shall be deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the shareholder.

(4.1) Exchanged shares — For the purposes of the definition "term preferred share" in subsection 248(1), where there has been an amalgamation of two or more corporations after November 16, 1978 and a share of any class of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new share") was issued in consideration for the disposition of a share of any class of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "exchanged share") and the terms and conditions of the new share were the same as, or substantially the same as, the terms and conditions of the exchanged share,

(a) the new share shall be deemed to have been issued at the time the exchanged share was issued;

(b) if the exchanged share was issued under an agreement in writing, the new share shall be deemed to have been issued under that agreement; and

(c) the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each such predecessor corporation.

Related Provisions: 87(9)(a.1) — Effect of triangular amalgamation. See also at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(4.2) Idem — Where there has been an amalgamation or merger of two or more corporations after November 27, 1986 and a share of any class of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new share") was issued to a shareholder in consideration for the disposition of a share by that shareholder of any class of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "exchanged share") and the terms and conditions of the new share were the same as, or substantially the same as, the terms and conditions of the exchanged share, for the purposes of applying the provisions of this subsection, subsections 112(2.2) and (2.4), Parts IV.1 and VI.1, section 258 and the definitions "grandfathered share", "short-term preferred share", "taxable preferred share" and "taxable RFI share" in subsection 248(1) to the new share, the following rules apply:

(a) the new share shall be deemed to have been issued at the time the exchanged share was issued;

(b) where the exchanged share was a share described in paragraph (a), (b), (c) or (d) of the definition "grandfathered share" in subsection 248(1), the new share shall be deemed to be the same share as the exchanged share for the purposes of that definition;

(c) the new share shall be deemed to have been acquired by the shareholder at the time the exchanged share was acquired by the shareholder;

(d) the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation;

(e) an election made under subsection 191.2(1) by a predecessor corporation with respect to the class of shares of its capital stock to which the exchanged share belonged shall be deemed to be an election made by the new corporation with respect to the class of shares of its capital stock to which the new share belongs; and

(f) where the terms or conditions of the exchanged share or an agreement in respect of the exchanged share specify an amount in respect of the exchanged share for the purposes of subsection 191(4) and an amount equal to the amount so specified in respect of the exchanged share is specified in respect of the new share for the purposes of subsection 191(4),

(i) for the purposes of subparagraphs 191(4)(d)(i) and (e)(i), the new share shall be deemed to have been issued for the same consideration as that for which the exchanged share was issued and to have been issued for the purpose for which the exchanged share was issued,

(ii) for the purposes of subparagraphs 191(4)(d)(ii) and (e)(ii), the new share shall be deemed to be the same share as the exchanged share and to have been issued for the purpose for which the exchanged share was issued, and

(iii) where the shareholder received no consideration for the disposition of the exchanged share other than the new share, for the purposes of subsection 191(4),

(A) in the case of an exchanged share to which subsection 191(4) applies because of paragraph 191(4)(a), the new share shall be deemed to have been issued for consideration having a fair market value equal to the consideration for which the exchanged share was issued, and

(B) in the case of an exchanged share to which subsection 191(4) applies because of an event described in paragraph 191(4)(b) or (c), the consideration for which the new share was issued shall be deemed to have a fair market value equal to the fair market value of the exchanged share immediately before the time that event occurred.

Related Provisions: 87(9)(a.1) — Effect of triangular amalgamation.

History: Para. 87(4.2)(f) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 65(10), applicable to 1988 et seq.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(4.3) Exchanged rights — Where there has been an amalgamation or merger of two or more corporations after June 18, 1987 and a right listed on a designated stock exchange to acquire a share of any class of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new right") was acquired by a shareholder in consideration for the disposition of a right described in paragraph (d) of the definition "grandfathered share" in subsection 248(1) to acquire a share of any class of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "exchanged right"), the new right shall be deemed to be the same right as the exchanged right for the purposes of paragraph (d) of the definition "grandfathered share" in subsection 248(1) where the terms and conditions of the new right were the same as, or substantially the same as, the terms and conditions of the exchanged right and the terms and conditions of the share receivable on an exercise of the new right were the same as, or substantially the same as, the terms and conditions of the share that would have been received on an exercise of the exchanged right.

Related Provisions: 87(9)(a.2) — Effect of triangular amalgamation. See also at end of s. 87.

History: Subsec. 87(4.3) amended to substitute "designated stock exchange" for "prescribed stock exchange" by 2007, c. 35, para. 68(2)(e), applicable after December 13, 2007.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(4.4) Flow-through shares — Where

(a) there is an amalgamation of two or more corporations each of which is a principal-business corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66(15)) or a corporation that at no time carried on business,

(b) a predecessor corporation entered into an agreement with a person at a particular time for consideration given by the person to the predecessor corporation,

(c) a share of the predecessor corporation

(i) that was a flow-through share (in this subsection having the meaning that would be assigned by subsection 66(15) if the definition "flow-through share" in that subsection were read without reference to the portion after paragraph (b) of that definition) was issued to the person before the amalgamation, or

(ii) that would (if it were issued) be a flow-through share, was to be issued to the person for the consideration under the agreement, and

(d) the new corporation

(i) issues a share (in this subsection referred to as a "new share") of any class of its capital stock on the amalgamation to the person in consideration for the disposition of the flow-through share of the predecessor corporation and the terms and conditions of the new share are the same as, or substantially the same as, the terms and conditions of the flow-through share, or

(ii) is obliged after the amalgamation to issue a new share of any class of its capital stock to the person under the obligation of the predecessor corporation to issue a flow-through share of the predecessor corporation to the person and the new share would not, if issued, be a prescribed share referred to in the definition "flow-through share" in subsection 66(15),

Proposed Amendment — 87(4.4)(c), (d)

(c) for the consideration under the agreement

(i) a share (in this subsection referred to as the "old share") of the predecessor corporation that was a flow-through share (other than a right to acquire a share) was issued to the person before the amalgamation, or

(ii) a right was issued to the person before the amalgamation to acquire a share that would, if it were issued, be a flow-through share, and

(d) the new corporation

(i) issues, on the amalgamation and in consideration for the disposition of the old share, a share (in this subsection referred to as a "new share") of any class of its capital stock to the person (or to any person or partnership that subsequently acquired the old share) and the terms and conditions of the new share are the same as, or substantially the same as, the terms and conditions of the old share, or

(ii) is, because of the right referred to in subparagraph (c)(ii), obliged after the amalgamation to issue to the person a share of any class of the new corporation's capital stock that would, if it were issued, be a flow-through share,

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 88(8), will amend paras. 87(4.4)(c) and (d) to read as above, applicable to amalgamations that occur after 1997.

Technical Notes: Subsection 87(4.4) applies where there is an amalgamation of two or more corporations and a predecessor corporation of the new corporation formed on the amalgamation had entered into a flow-through share agreement. The rules in subsection 87(4.4) generally enable the new corporation to renounce certain resource-related expenses incurred after the amalgamation to a flow-through shareholder.

Paragraph 87(4.4)(c) sets out certain conditions that must be satisfied for a new corporation to renounce expenses to a flow-through shareholder of a predecessor corporation. This paragraph is amended, effective for amalgamations that occur after 1997, to delete the unnecessary reference to the definition "flow-through share" in subsection 66(15) and to ensure that this paragraph is consistent with the amended definition "flow-through share" in subsection 66(15).

Paragraph 87(4.4)(d) sets out certain conditions that must be satisfied to qualify for the relief provided in subsection 87(4.4). Subparagraph 87(4.4)(d)(i) requires the new corporation to issue a new share to the flow-through share subscriber in consideration for the flow-through share. Current subparagraph 87(4.4)(d)(i) does not, however, contemplate the transfer of a flow-through share by the flow-through share subscriber ("original flow-through shareholder") prior to an amalgamation. Consequently, subsection 87(4.4) does not accommodate a renunciation by the new corporation to an original flow-through shareholder of expenses incurred by the new corporation if the original flow-through shareholder transferred those shares to another person. Subparagraph 87(4.4)(d)(i) is amended, effective for amalgamations that occur after 1997, to accommodate the issuance of a new share to a person other than the original flow-through shareholder. This amendment ensures that the new corporation may renounce resource expenses incurred after an amalgamation to an original flow-through shareholder on the same basis as if that person had owned the flow-through share at the time of the amalgamation.

for the purposes of subsection 66(12.66) and Part XII.6 and for the purposes of renouncing an amount under subsection 66(12.6), (12.601) or (12.62) in respect of Canadian exploration expenses or Canadian development expenses that would, but for the renunciation, be incurred by the new corporation after the amalgamation,

(e) the person shall be deemed to have given the consideration under the agreement to the new corporation for the issue of the new share,

(f) the agreement shall be deemed to have been entered into between the new corporation and the person at the particular time,

(g) the new share shall be deemed to be a flow-through share of the new corporation, and

(h) the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the predecessor corporation.

Related Provisions: 87(9)(a.21) — Effect of triangular amalgamation.

History: The portion of subsec. 87(4.4) between paras. (d) and (e) amended by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 18(5), applicable (as amended by 1998, c. 19, s. 308, deemed to have come into force on April 25, 1997) to amalgamations that occur after 1995, except that the expression "subsection 66(12.6), (12.601) or (12.62) in respect of Canadian exploration expenses or Canadian development expenses" in subsection 87(4.4) of the Act, as enacted by subsection (5), shall be read as "subsection 66(12.6), (12.601), (12.62) or (12.64) in respect of Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses or Canadian oil and gas property expenses" in respect of amalgamations that occur before 1999. This portion formerly read:

> for the purpose of subsection 66(12.66) and for the purposes of renouncing an amount under subsection 66(12.6), (12.601), (12.62) or (12.64) in respect of Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses or Canadian oil and gas property expenses that would, but for the renunciation, be incurred by the new corporation after the amalgamation,

That portion of subsec. 87(4.4) between paras. (d) and (e) amended by 1994, c. 8, subsec. 9(2), applicable to amalgamations occurring after December 2, 1992. That portion formerly read:

> for the purpose of subsection 66(12.66) and for the purpose of renouncing an amount under subsection 66(12.6), (12.62) or (12.64) in respect of Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses or Canadian oil and gas property expenses that would, but for the renunciation, be incurred by the new corporation after the amalgamation, Subsec. 87(4.4) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 65(11), applicable to amalgamations occurring after February 1986.

(5) Options to acquire shares of predecessor corporation — Where there has been an amalgamation of two or more corporations after May 6, 1974, each taxpayer (except any predecessor corporation) who immediately before the amalgamation owned a capital property that was an option to acquire shares of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old option") and who received no consideration for the disposition of that option on the amalgamation, other than an option to acquire shares of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new option"), shall be deemed

(a) to have disposed of the old option for proceeds equal to the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of that option immediately before the amalgamation, and

(b) to have acquired the new option at a cost to the taxpayer equal to the proceeds described in paragraph (a),

and where the old option was taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer, the new option shall be deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer.

Related Provisions: 7(1.4) — Employee stock options; 87(5.1) — ACB of option; 87(8) — Merger of foreign affiliate; 87(9)(a.3) — Rules applicable in respect of certain mergers; 107(2)(d.1)(iii), 107.4(3)(f) — Deemed taxable Canadian property retains status when rolled out of or into trust; 248(25.1) — Deemed taxable Canadian property retains status through trust-to-trust transfer. See also at end of s. 87.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(5.1) Adjusted cost base of option — Where the cost to a taxpayer of a new option is determined at any time under subsection (5),

(a) there shall be deducted after that time in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new option the total of all amounts deducted under paragraph 53(2)(g.1) in computing, immediately before that time, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the old option; and

(b) the amount determined under paragraph (a) shall be added after that time in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new option.

Related Provisions: 53(1)(q) — Addition to ACB for amount under 87(5.1)(b); 53(2)(g.1) — Reduction in ACB under 87(5.1)(a); 80.03(2)(a) — Deemed gain on disposition following debt forgiveness.

History: Subsec. 87(5.1) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 30(3), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994.

(6) Obligations of predecessor corporation — Notwithstanding subsection (7), where there has been an amalgamation of two or more corporations after May 6, 1974, each taxpayer (except any predecessor corporation) who, immediately before the amalgamation, owned a capital property that was a bond, debenture, mortgage, hypothecary claim, note or other similar obligation of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old property") and who received no consideration for the disposition of the old property on the amalgamation other than a bond, debenture, mortgage, hypothecary claim, note or other similar obligation respectively, of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new property") is, if the amount payable to the holder of the new property on its maturity is the same as the amount that would have been payable to the holder of the old property on its maturity, deemed

(a) to have disposed of the old property for proceeds equal to the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of that property immediately before the amalgamation; and

(b) to have acquired the new property at a cost to the taxpayer equal to the proceeds described in paragraph (a).

Related Provisions: 80(2) — Deemed settlement on amalgamation; 87(6.1) — ACB of property; 88(1)(e.2) — Application to winding-up. See also at end of s. 87.

History: The opening words of subsec. 87(6) amended to add "hypothecary claim" (twice) and to replace "shall ... be deemed" with "is ... deemed" by 2001, c. 17, s. 211, in force on June 14, 2001.

I.T. Application Rules: 26(23) (where taxpayer owned the old property since before 1972).

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(6.1) Adjusted cost base — Where the cost to a taxpayer of a particular property that is a bond, debenture or note is determined at any time under subsection (6) and the terms of the bond, debenture or note conferred upon the holder the right to exchange that bond, debenture or note for shares,

(a) there shall be deducted after that time in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the bond, debenture or note the total of all amounts deducted under paragraph 53(2)(g.1) in computing, immediately before that time, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the property for which the particular property was exchanged at that time; and

(b) the amount determined under paragraph (a) in respect of the particular property shall be added after that time in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the particular property.

Related Provisions: 53(1)(q) — Addition to ACB for amount under 87(6.1)(b); 53(2)(g.1) — Reduction in ACB under 87(6.1)(a); 80.03(2)(a) — Deemed gain on disposition following debt forgiveness.

History: Subsec. 87(6.1) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 30(4), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994.

(7) [Obligations of predecessor corporation] — Where there has been an amalgamation of two or more corporations after May 6, 1974 and

(a) a debt or other obligation of a predecessor corporation that was outstanding immediately before the amalgamation became a debt or other obligation of the new corporation on the amalgamation, and

(b) the amount payable by the new corporation on the maturity of the debt or other obligation, as the case may be, is the same as the amount that would have been payable by the predecessor corporation on its maturity,

the provisions of this Act

(c) shall not apply in respect of the transfer of the debt or other obligation to the new corporation, and

(d) shall apply as if the new corporation had incurred or issued the debt or other obligation at the time it was incurred or issued by the predecessor corporation under the agreement made on the day on which the predecessor corporation made an agreement under which the debt or other obligation was issued,

History: The opening words of subsec. 87(8) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 65(3), applicable to mergers and combinations that occur after 1995 and, where a taxpayer notifies the Minister of National Revenue in writing before the taxpayer's filing-due date for 2001 that the taxpayer makes the election referred to in subsec. 87(8), as amended, in respect of a merger or combination that occurred before 1999, the election is deemed to have been validly made in respect of the merger or combination. The opening words formerly read:

(8) Where there has been a foreign merger in which a taxpayer's shares or options to acquire shares of the capital stock of a corporation that was a predecessor foreign corporation immediately before the merger were exchanged for or became shares or options to acquire shares of the capital stock of the new foreign corporation or the foreign parent corporation, unless the taxpayer elects in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the taxation year in which the foreign merger took place not to have this subsection apply, subsections (4) and (5) apply to the taxpayer as if the references in those subsections to

Subsec. 87(8) amended by 1999, c. 22, subsec. 24(1), applicable to a taxpayer in respect of a merger or combination of foreign corporations

(a) that occurs after February 24, 1998, or

(b) that occurred

(i) before February 25, 1998 and in a taxation year of the taxpayer for which the taxpayer's normal reassessment period, as defined in subsec. 152(3.1), has not ended before 1999, or

(ii) after 1994 and before February 25, 1998 and in a taxation year of the taxpayer in which the taxpayer was exempt from tax under s. 149,

unless the taxpayer elects by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing, before January 1, 2000, that the amendment not apply to the taxpayer in respect of the merger or combination. Subsec. 87(8) formerly read:

(8) Merger of foreign affiliate — Where there has been a foreign merger in which the shares owned by a taxpayer of the capital stock of a corporation that was a predecessor foreign corporation immediately before the merger were exchanged for or became shares of the capital stock of the new foreign corporation, unless the taxpayer elects in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the taxation year in which the foreign merger took place not to have the provisions of this section apply, subsection (4) applies to the taxpayer as if the references therein to

(a) "amalgamation" were read as "foreign merger";

(b) "predecessor corporation" were read as "predecessor foreign corporation";

(c) "new corporation" were read as "new foreign corporation"; and

(d) "May 6, 1974" were read as "November 12, 1981".

(8.1) Definition of "foreign merger" — For the purposes of this section, "foreign merger" means a merger or combination of two or more corporations each of which was, immediately before the merger or combination, resident in a country other than Canada (each of which is in this section referred to as a "predecessor foreign corporation") to form one corporate entity resident in a country other than Canada (in this section referred to as the "new foreign corporation") in such a manner that, and otherwise than as a result of the distribution of property to one corporation on the winding-up of another corporation,

(a) all or substantially all the property (except amounts receivable from any predecessor foreign corporation or shares of the capital stock of any predecessor foreign corporation) of the predecessor foreign corporations immediately before the merger or combination becomes property of the new foreign corporation as a consequence of the merger or combination;

(b) all or substantially all the liabilities (except amounts payable to any predecessor foreign corporation) of the predecessor foreign corporations immediately before the merger or combination become liabilities of the new foreign corporation as a consequence of the merger or combination; and

(c) all or substantially all of the shares of the capital stock of the predecessor foreign corporations (except any shares or options owned by any predecessor foreign corporation) are exchanged for or become, because of the merger or combination,

(i) shares of the capital stock of the new foreign corporation, or

(ii) if, immediately after the merger, the new foreign corporation was controlled by another corporation (in this section referred to as the "foreign parent corporation") that was resident in a country other than Canada, shares of the capital stock of the foreign parent corporation.

History: Subsec. 87(8.1) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 65(4), applicable to mergers and combinations that occur after 1995. The subsec. formerly read:

(8.1) Definition of "foreign merger" — For the purposes of this section, "foreign merger" means a merger or combination of two or more corporations each of which was, immediately before the merger or combination, resident in a country other than Canada (each of which is in this section referred to as a "predecessor foreign corporation") to form one corporate entity resident in the country in which all the predecessor foreign corporations were resident (in this section referred to as the "new foreign corporation") in such manner that

(a) all or substantially all the property (except amounts receivable from any predecessor foreign corporation or shares of the capital stock of any predecessor foreign corporation) of the predecessor foreign corporations immediately before the merger or combination becomes property of the new foreign corporation by virtue of the merger or combination,

(b) all or substantially all the liabilities (except amounts payable to any predecessor foreign corporation) of the predecessor foreign corporations immediately before the merger or combination become liabilities of the new foreign corporation by virtue of the merger or combination, and

(c) all or substantially all of the shares of the capital stock of the predecessor foreign corporations (except any shares or options owned by any predecessor foreign corporation) are exchanged for or become, because of the merger or combination,

(i) shares of the capital stock of the new foreign corporation, or

(ii) if, immediately after the merger, the new foreign corporation was controlled by another foreign corporation (in this section referred to as the "foreign parent corporation") that was resident in the same country as the new foreign corporation, shares of the capital stock of the foreign parent corporation, otherwise than as a result of the distribution of property to one corporation on the winding-up of another corporation.

Para. 87(8.1)(c) amended by 1999, c. 22, subsec. 24(2), applicable to a taxpayer in respect of a merger or combination of foreign corporations

(a) that occurs after February 24, 1998, or

(b) that occurred

(i) before February 25, 1998 and in a taxation year of the taxpayer for which the taxpayer's normal reassessment period, as defined in subsec. 152(3.1), has not ended before 1999, or

unless the taxpayer elects by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing, before January 1, 2000, that the amendment not apply to the taxpayer in respect of the merger or combination. Para. 87(8.1)(c) formerly read:

(c) all or substantially all the shares of the capital stock of the predecessor foreign corporations (except any such shares owned by any predecessor foreign corporation) are exchanged for or become shares of the capital stock of the new foreign corporation by virtue of the merger or combination,

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 87.

(9) Rules applicable in respect of certain mergers [triangular amalgamation] — Where there has been a merger of two or more taxable Canadian corporations to form a new corporation that was controlled, immediately after the merger, by a taxable Canadian corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "parent") and, on the merger, shares of the capital stock of the parent (in this subsection referred to as "parent shares") were issued by the parent to persons who were, immediately before the merger, shareholders of a predecessor corporation, the following rules apply:

(a) for the purposes of paragraph (1)(c), subsection (4) and the Income Tax Application Rules, any parent shares received by a shareholder of a predecessor corporation shall be deemed to be shares of the capital stock of the new corporation received by the shareholder by virtue of the merger;

(a.1) for the purposes of subsections (4.1) and (4.2), a parent share issued to a shareholder in consideration for the disposition of a share of a class of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation shall be deemed to be a share of a class of the capital stock of the new corporation that was issued in consideration for the disposition of a share of a class of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation by that shareholder;

(a.2) for the purposes of subsection (4.3), a right listed on a designated stock exchange to acquire a share of a class of the capital stock of the parent shall be deemed to be a right listed on a designated stock exchange to acquire a share of a class of the capital stock of the new corporation;

Proposed Addition — 87(9)(a.21)

(a.21) for the purpose of paragraph (4.4)(d)

(i) each parent share received by a shareholder of a predecessor corporation is deemed to be a share of the capital stock of the new corporation issued to the shareholder by the new corporation on the merger, and

(ii) any obligation of the parent to issue a share of any class of its capital stock to a person in circumstances described in subparagraph (4.4)(d)(ii) is deemed to be an obligation of the new corporation to issue a share to the person;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 88(9), will add para. 87(9)(a.21), applicable to amalgamations that occur after 1997.

Technical Notes: New paragraph 87(9)(a.21), which is effective for amalgamations that occur after 1997, provides that a share of the parent issued to a shareholder on a triangular amalgamation is considered, for the purpose of paragraph 87(4.4)(d), to be a share issued by the new corporation and that a right to acquire a share of the parent issued to a person on a triangular amalgamation is deemed to be in consideration for a right to acquire a share of the new corporation. New paragraph 87(9)(a.21) therefore ensures that the requirements in subparagraphs 87(4.4)(d)(i) and (ii), that the new corporation issue a share or right to a person, are satisfied. As a result, a new corporation may renounce expenditures to a flow-through shareholder of a predecessor corporation in accordance with a flow-through share agreement concluded before the triangular amalgamation.

(a.3) for the purpose of applying subsection (5) in respect of the merger, the reference in that subsection to "the new corporation" shall be read as a reference to "the parent";

(a.4) for the purpose of paragraph (c), any shares of the new corporation acquired by the parent on the merger shall be deemed to be new shares;

(a.5) for the purpose of applying subsection (10) in respect of the merger,

(i) the reference in paragraph (10)(b) to "the new corporation" shall be read as a reference to "the new corporation or the parent, within the meaning assigned by subsection (9)", and

(ii) the references in paragraphs (10)(c) and (f) to "the new corporation" shall be read as references to "the public corporation described in paragraph (b)".

(b) in computing, at any particular time, the paid-up capital in respect of any particular class of shares of the capital stock of the parent that included parent shares immediately after the merger

(i) there shall be deducted that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the paid-up capital, determined without reference to this paragraph, in respect of all the shares of the capital stock of the parent immediately after the merger exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is the paid-up capital in respect of a share of the capital stock of the parent or a predecessor corporation (other than any share of a predecessor corporation owned by the parent or by another predecessor corporation and any share of a predecessor corporation owned by a shareholder other than the parent or another predecessor corporation that was not exchanged on the merger for parent shares) immediately before the merger that

(A) the paid-up capital, determined without reference to this paragraph, in respect of that particular class of shares of the capital stock of the parent immediately after the merger

is of

(B) the paid-up capital, determined without reference to this paragraph, in respect of all the issued and outstanding shares of the classes of the capital stock of the parent that included parent shares immediately after the merger, and

(ii) there shall be added an amount equal to the lesser of

(A) the amount, if any, by which

(I) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deemed by subsection 84(3), (4) or (4.1) to be a dividend on shares of the particular class paid by the parent before the particular time

exceeds

(II) the total that would be determined under subclause (I) if this Act were read without reference to subparagraph (i), and

(B) the amount required by subparagraph (i) to be deducted in computing the paid-up capital of shares of the particular class; and

(c) notwithstanding paragraph (4)(b), the parent shall be deemed to have acquired the new shares of any particular class of the capital stock of the new corporation at a cost equal to the total of

(i) the amount otherwise determined under paragraph (4)(b) to be the cost of those shares, and

(ii) in any case where the parent owned, immediately after the merger, all of the issued shares of the capital stock of the new corporation, such portion of

(A) the amount, if any, by which

(I) the amount by which the total of the money on hand of the new corporation and all amounts each of which is the cost amount to the new corporation of a property owned by it, immediately after the merger, exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of any debt owing by the new corporation, or of any other obligation of the new corporation to pay any amount, that was outstanding immediately after the merger,

exceeds

(II) the total of the adjusted cost bases to the parent of all shares of the capital stock of each predecessor corporation beneficially owned by it immediately before the merger

as is designated by the parent in respect of the shares of that particular class in its return of income under this Part for its taxation year in which the merger occurred, except that

(B) in no case shall the amount so designated in respect of the shares of a particular class exceed the amount, if any, by which the total fair market value, immediately after the merger, of the shares of that particular class issued by virtue of the merger exceeds the cost of those shares to the parent determined without reference to this paragraph, and

(C) in no case shall the total of the amounts so designated in respect of the shares of each class of the capital stock of the new corporation exceed the amount determined under clause (A).

Para. 87(9)(a.5) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(12), applicable to amalgamations that occur after April 26, 1995 except that, in its application to amalgamations that occurred before 1998, para. 87(9)(a.5) shall be read as follows:

(a.5) for the purpose of applying subsection (10) in respect of the merger,

(i) any share issued by the parent on the merger is deemed to have been issued by the new corporation, and

(ii) the reference in paragraph (10)(f) to "the new corporation" shall be read as a reference to "the corporation that issued the share";

Paras. 87(9)(a.3) and (a.4) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 37(13), applicable to amalgamations and mergers occurring after December 20, 1991.

Paras. 87(9)(a.1), (a.2) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 65(12), applicable to amalgamations and mergers occurring after 1986.

(10) Share deemed listed — Where

(a) a new corporation is formed as a result of an amalgamation,

(b) the new corporation is a public corporation,

(c) the new corporation issues a share (in this subsection referred to as the "new share") of its capital stock,

(d) the new share is issued in exchange for a share (in this subsection referred to as the "old share") of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation,

(e) immediately before the amalgamation, the old share was listed on a designated stock exchange, and

(f) the new share is redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the new corporation within 60 days after the amalgamation, the new share is deemed, for the purposes of subsection 116(6), the definitions "qualified investment" in subsections 146(1), 146.1(1) and 146.3(1), in section 204 and in subsections 205(1) and 207.01(1), and the definition "taxable Canadian property" in subsection 248(1), to be listed on the exchange until the earliest time at which it is so redeemed, acquired or cancelled.

Subsec. 87(10) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 117(13), applicable to amalgamations that occur after April 26, 1995 except that, in its application to amalgamations that occurred before July 1996, subsec. 87(10) shall be read without reference to para. (b).

(11) Vertical amalgamations — Where at any time there is an amalgamation of a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "parent") and one or more other corporations (each of which in this subsection is referred to as the "subsidiary") each of which is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the parent,

(a) the shares of the subsidiary are deemed to have been disposed of by the parent immediately before the amalgamation for proceeds equal to the proceeds that would be determined under paragraph 88(1)(b) if subsections 88(1) and (1.7) applied, with any modifications that the circumstances require, to the amalgamation; and

(b) the cost to the new corporation of each capital property of the subsidiary acquired on the amalgamation is deemed to be the amount that would have been the cost to the parent of the property if the property had been distributed at that time to the parent on a winding-up of the subsidiary and subsections 88(1) and (1.7) had applied to the winding-up.

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c)(vi)(B)(III)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Aug. 13, 2007:

Mr. Firoz Ahmed, Osler Hoskin & Harcourt LLP, Toronto

Dear Mr. Ahmed:

Thank you for your correspondence dated June 22, 2007 regarding the application of subsection 88(1) of the Income Tax Act (Act). In your correspondence, you asked us to consider an amendment to subparagraph 88(1)(c)(vi) of the Act that would ensure that the increase in the cost of non-depreciable capital property on the winding-up of a subsidiary would not be denied in the circumstances described below.

1. Vco is a taxable Canadian corporation that controls Target, another taxable Canadian corporation. Target owns all the shares of Subco and Sellco 1. Subco owns all the shares of Sellco 2.
2. Aco is a taxable Canadian corporation that deals at arm's length with Vco and Target.
3. Pco is a taxable Canadian corporation that is controlled by another corporation (Pco Holdings). Pco and Pco Holdings deal at arm's length with Vco, Target and Aco.
4. Aco incorporates a wholly-owned subsidiary (Asub) which acquires all the Target shares for cash.
5. Target is wound up into (or amalgamated with) Asub with the view to increasing the tax cost of the shares of Subco and Sellco 1, as provided by paragraphs 88(1)(c) and (d) of the Act.
6. Subco is then wound up into (or amalgamated with) Asub (or its successor) with a view to increasing the tax cost of the shares of Sellco 2, as provided by paragraphs 88(l)(c) and (d) of the Act.
7. Pco purchases the shares of Sellco 1 and Sellco 2 from Asub (or its successor) for cash.

Your concern is that subparagraph 88(1)(c)(vi) would preclude the increase in the cost of the shares of Subco and Sellco 1 on the winding-up (or amalgamation) of Target, as described in paragraph 5 above, and the increase in the cost of the shares of Sellco 2 on the winding-up (or amalgamation) of Subco, as described in paragraph 6 above.

Subparagraph 88(1)(c)(vi) operates to deny the increase in the cost of non-depreciable capital property distributed on the winding-up of a subsidiary if the distributed property or property substituted for the distributed property is acquired by a person or persons described in subclauses 88(1)(c)(vi)(B)(I) to (III). The purpose of the subparagraph is to deny that increase where one or more persons who had a significant interest in the subsidiary before the parent last acquired control of the subsidiary acquire a significant interest in the property, either directly or indirectly, as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the winding-up.

Your particular concern involves the inclusion in subclause 88(1)(c)(vi)(B)(III) of a corporation (other than a specified person or the subsidiary) of which a specified shareholder of the subsidiary is a specified shareholder. In your view, Pco would be a corporation described in this subclause in respect of the winding-up of Target and Subco because each of Sellco 1 and Sellco 2 will be a specified shareholder of Target and Subco prior to the acquisition of control of Target by Aco and will be a specified shareholder of Pco after Pco acquires the shares of Sellco 1 and Sellco 2. The reason that Sellco 1 and 2 will be specified shareholders of Target, Subco and Pco is that each of Sellco 1 and Sellco 2 is deemed to own the shares of Target and Subco owned by Vco and, following the acquisition of the shares of Sellco 1 and Sellco 2 by Pco, each is deemed to own the shares of Pco owned by Pco Holdings (see, in this respect, paragraph (a) of the definition "specified shareholder" in subsection 248(1)).

You submit that the denial of the cost base increase in these circumstances is contrary to the policy underlying subparagraph 88(l)(c)(vi). This provision is not intended to deny the cost base increase where the purchaser (in this case, Pco) is not a person described in subclauses 88(1)(c)(vi)(B)(I) to (III) prior to the acquisition of control of the subsidiary. In this respect, you note that Pco only becomes a person described in subclause 88(1)(c)(vi)(B)(III) because of the acquisition of the shares of Sellco 1 and Sellco 2. In the absence of this acquisition, Pco would not be a person described in subclause 88(1)(c)(vi)(B)(III).

We agree that, in the specific circumstances described above, Pco should not be a corporation described in subclause 88(1)(c)(vi)(B)(III) in respect of Target or Subco. Accordingly, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to ensure this result for windings-up that begin after August 2004, coincident with other amendments to paragraph 88(1)(c.2) that we have, in a letter dated August 13, 2004, agreed to recommend.

While I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister or Parliament will agree with our recommendation, I hope that this statement of our intentions is helpful to you.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, General Director–Legislation, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c) — Ineligible property

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Sept. 1, 2006:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your correspondence dated August 24, 2006 in which you recommend a technical amendment to the rules in subsection 88(1) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") governing the cost of property distributed to the parent corporation on the winding-up of a subsidiary.

Where subsection 88(1) of the Act applies, the parent corporation may elect to increase the cost of capital property (other than ineligible property) distributed on the winding-up within the limits set out in that subsection. Capital property will be ineligible property if, among other things, a person described in any of subclauses 88(1)(c)(vi)(B)(I) to (III) (a "restricted person") acquires, as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the winding-up, property distributed to the parent on the winding-up or property substituted for such property.

Your concern relates to a series of proposed transactions in which a restricted person will acquire property to be distributed to the parent on the winding up; however, the restricted person will not own the property at any time after the acquisition of control of the subsidiary. You note that subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(iv) of the Act deems property not to be property substituted for the property distributed on the winding-up if it is not owned by a restricted person at any time after the acquisition of control of the subsidiary. However, there is no similar provision dealing with acquisition of property distributed to the parent on the winding-up. Accordingly, the acquired property will be ineligible property.

We agree that ineligible property should not include property distributed to the parent on the winding-up of the subsidiary if a restricted person does not own the property at any time after the acquisition of control of the subsidiary. Accordingly, we will recommend to the Minister of Finance that an amendment be made to subsection 88(1) of the Act to ensure that such property is not treated as ineligible property.

We are prepared to recommend that the amendment apply to windings-up that begin after 2005. While we cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister or Parliament will agree with our recommendation, we hope that this statement of our position is helpful to you.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, General Director–Legislation, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.1)

(c.1) for the purpose of determining after the winding-up the amount to be included under subsection 14(1) in computing the parent's income in respect of the business carried on by the subsidiary immediately before the winding-up

(i) there shall be added to the amount otherwise determined for each of the descriptions of A and F in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5), the total of all amounts, each of which is the amount, if any,

(A) determined for the description of F in that definition in respect of that business immediately before the winding up,

(B) determined under this subparagraph as it applied to the subsidiary in respect of a winding-up before that time, or

(C) determined under paragraph 85(1)(d.11) as it applied to the subsidiary in respect of a disposition to the subsidiary before that time, and

(ii) there shall be added to the amount determined for the description of C in the formula in paragraph 14(1)(b), the total of all amounts, each of which is an amount that is

(A) one-half of the amount, if any, determined for the description of Q in that definition in respect of that business immediately before the winding up,

(B) determined under this subparagraph as it applied to the subsidiary in respect of a winding-up before that time, or

(C) determined under paragraph 85(1)(d.1) as it applied to the subsidiary in respect of a disposition to the subsidiary before that time;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 89(1), will amend para. 88(1)(c.1) to read as above, applicable in respect of the disposition of an eligible capital property by a subsidiary to a parent unless

(a) the disposition by the subsidiary occurred before December 21, 2002; and

(b) the parent disposed of the eligible capital property, before November 9, 2006 and in a taxation year of the parent ending after February 27, 2000, to a person with whom the parent did not deal at arm's length at the time of that disposition by the parent.

Technical Notes: Subparagraph 88(1)(a)(iii) generally provides that property of a subsidiary corporation is deemed to have been disposed of on its winding-up for proceeds of disposition equal to its cost amount to the subsidiary immediately before the winding-up. Under subparagraph 88(1)(c)(ii), the cost of such property to the parent corporation is equal to such proceeds of disposition. Paragraph 88(1)(c.1) applies similarly in the case of a winding-up as paragraph 85(1)(d.1) applies to a rollover of eligible capital property from a shareholder to a corporation. That is, it generally reduces, for the parent that has acquired an eligible capital property, the gain that would be included in income under paragraph 14(1)(b) on a subsequent disposition of the property. This adjustment takes into account the 1988 change of the rate of income inclusion and expenditure deductibility from ½ to ¾, by adjusting the calculation of variable Q in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5).

Paragraph 88(1)(c.1) is renumbered as subparagraph 88(1)(c.1)(ii), and is further amended to ensure that the adjustment, or an earlier adjustment to the subsidiary under paragraph 85(1)(d.1), is not lost on a subsequent disposition by way of winding-up.

Paragraph 88(1)(c.1) is further amended by the addition of new subparagraph (i), which applies similarly to the application of paragraph 85(1)(d.11) to a shareholder in respect of a disposition of an eligible capital property to a corporation. That is, new subparagraph 88(1)(c.1)(i) ensures that an amount that would have been recaptured depreciation to the subsidiary under subsection 14(1), if the subsidiary had instead disposed of the eligible capital property for fair market value proceeds, is subject to possible recapture in the hands of the parent upon a subsequent sale of the property. Amounts claimed under paragraph 20(1)(b) by the subsidiary after its "adjustment time" (as defined in subsection 14(5), i.e., generally the beginning of the first taxation year of the subsidiary that starts after June 30, 1988) are included in the amount subject to potential recapture, by means of an adjustment to variables A and F in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5), as it applies to the subsidiary for the purposes only of calculating any income or gain under subsection 14(1).

New subparagraph 88(1)(c.1)(i) also applies to ensure that the adjustment, or an earlier adjustment to the subsidiary under paragraph 85(1)(d.11), is not lost on a subsequent disposition by way of winding-up.

For additional information, refer to the commentary to paragraphs 85(1)(d.1) and (d.11).

Related Provisions: 85(1)(d.1)G, 85(1)(d.11)E — Application of (c.1)(i) on s. 85 election.

History: Para. 88(1)(c.1) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 38(3), applicable to distributions of property on the winding-up of a subsidiary in a taxation year of the subsidiary beginning after June 1988.

(c.2) ["specified person" and "specified shareholder"] — for the purposes of this paragraph and subparagraph (c)(vi),

(i) "specified person" at any time means the parent and each person that would, if this Act were read without reference to paragraph 251(5)(b), be related to the parent at that time and, for this purpose, a person shall be deemed not to be related to the parent where it can reasonably be considered that one of the main purposes of one or more transactions or events was to cause the person to be related to the parent so as to prevent a property that was distributed to the parent on the winding-up from being an ineligible property for the purpose of paragraph (c),

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.2)(i)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Feb. 23, 2007:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing further to your correspondence dated January 22, 2007 and further to your discussions with the Tax Legislation Division regarding the meaning of "specified person" in subparagraph 88(1)(c.2)(i) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). In your correspondence, you asked us to consider an amendment to that subparagraph that would clarify the meaning of specified person in the circumstances described below.

Subparagraph 88(1)(c.2)(i) of the Act defines "specified person" as the parent and each person related (other than because of paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the parent. The definition "specified person" is relevant for the purpose of paragraph 88(1)(c) of the Act in that a specified person may acquire property distributed to the parent on the winding-up of the subsidiary or property substituted for such property without engaging the bump denial rule in subparagraph 88(1)(c)(vi).

You are concerned that a person cannot be a specified person before the incorporation of the parent corporation. In your view, this could lead to the inappropriate application of the bump denial rule. In this respect, you asked us to consider the following series of transactions or events:

> Prior to the incorporation of the parent corporation ("Parent"), a taxable Canadian corporation ("Grandparent") will acquire common shares of the subsidiary corporation ("Subco") from an arm's length person. Grandparent will acquire sufficient common shares of Subco to become a specified shareholder of Subco but not enough to acquire control of Subco. To fund the acquisition of those Subco common shares, Grandparent will issue shares and debt to a corporation that is related to it ("Related Corporation"). Grandparent will then cause the Parent to be incorporated and, following the incorporation, Parent will acquire the remaining common shares of Subco from arm's length persons, thereby acquiring control of Subco. Grandparent will transfer its Subco common shares to Parent such that, after the transfer, Subco is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Parent. As a final step, Parent would like to wind-up Subco and to increase (i.e., bump) the adjusted cost base of certain non-depreciable capital property of Subco to be acquired by it on the winding-up as provided in paragraphs 88(1)(c) and (d) of the Act.

In the circumstances described above, the Related Corporation is a specified shareholder of Subco that will acquire substituted property (shares and debt of Grandparent) as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the winding-up of Subco. Therefore, the bump denial rule in paragraph 88(1)(c)(vi) of the Act will apply unless the Related Corporation is considered to be a specified person. In this respect, you note that subparagraph 88(1)(c.2)(i) defines "specified person" at any time to mean the parent and each person related to the parent at that time. Accordingly, you are concerned that the Related Corporation may not be a specified person because, at the time it acquired the shares and debt of Grandparent, Parent had not yet been incorporated. You submit that the denial of the bump in these circumstances would not be appropriate since the Related Corporation will be related to Parent from the time Parent was incorporated until the winding-up of Subco.

We agree that, in the circumstances described above, the Related Corporation should not be excluded from being a specified person before the incorporation of Parent solely because the Related Corporation and Parent did not co-exist during that time. Accordingly, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister that the definition "specified person" in subparagraph 88(1)(c.2)(i) be amended, applicable to windings-up that begin after 2006, so that, in respect of property acquired before the beginning of the winding-up of the subsidiary, a specified person would include a person that is related to the parent (within the meaning of subparagraph 88(1)(c.2)(i)) from the time the parent was incorporated until the beginning of the winding-up of the subsidiary.

While I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister or Parliament will agree with our recommendation, I hope that this statement of our intentions is helpful to you.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, General Director — Legislation, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.2)(iii)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Aug. 13, 2004:

Dear [xxx]:

Thank you for your letter of May 31, 2004 concerning the availability of the addition to the cost of non-depreciable capital property under paragraphs 88(1)(c) and (d) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") in the circumstances described below.

Your concern relates to a series of proposed transactions wherein a taxable Canadian corporation ("Bidco") will acquire control of another taxable Canadian corporation ("Subco") followed by a winding up of Subco into Bidco. Prior to the acquisition of control, Holdco will own all of the shares of Subco and Subco will own all the shares of another corporation ("Sellco"). As a condition of the sale of the Subco shares by Holdco to Bidco, Holdco and Subco/Bidco will enter into an agreement to sell ("purchase agreement") the shares of Sellco to an arm's length purchaser ("Pco"), which sale will occur shortly after the winding up of Subco. Prior to entering into the purchase agreement, Pco will not be a specified shareholder of Subco.

More specifically, you are concerned that the right to acquire the shares of Sellco under the purchase agreement would result in Pco being a specified shareholder of Subco, although Pco does not have, nor does it intend to acquire, any direct or indirect interest in the shares of Subco, Holdco or Bidco. Your concern relates to the application of the deeming rules in subsections 251(2), (3) and (5) combined with the definition of "specified shareholder" in subsection 248(1) of the Act.

In the circumstances described above, paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act would deem Pco, for the purpose of subsection 251(2), to be in the same position in relation to the control of Sellco as if it owned the shares of Sellco. As a result, Pco would be related to Sellco after entering into the purchase agreement. As Pco and Holdco would be related to the same corporation, they would be deemed by subsection 251(3) to be related to each other. Under the definition of "specified shareholder," Pco would be treated as owning all the shares of Subco owned by Holdco and, therefore, would be a specified shareholder of Subco before control of Subco is acquired by Bidco. Since Pco would be a specified shareholder of Subco and, since Pco will acquire the shares of Sellco as part of the series of transactions that includes the winding up of Subco, Bidco would be precluded from obtaining a bump in the adjusted cost base of the shares of Sellco acquired on the winding up of Subco.

We agree that where a person has a right to acquire a share of a corporation (the "downstream corporation") controlled by another corporation (the "upstream corporation") and the downstream corporation does not have a direct or indirect interest in any of the issued shares of the upstream corporation, the right should not, in and of itself, result in the person becoming a specified shareholder of the upstream corporation for the purpose of subparagraph 88(1)(c)(vi) of the Act. Accordingly, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister that paragraph 88(1)(c.2) of the Act be amended to exclude a right to acquire shares of a downstream corporation from being considered in determining if a person is a specified shareholder of the upstream corporation in circumstances where the downstream corporation does not have a direct or indirect interest in any of the issued shares of the upstream corporation.

We are prepared to recommend that the amendment apply to windings-up that begin after August 2004. While we cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister or Parliament will agree with our recommendation, we hope that this statement of our position is helpful to you.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Related Provisions: 88(1)(c.8) — Meaning of "specified class" for 88(1)(c.2)(iii)(A); 88(4) — Amalgamation deemed not to be acquisition of control.

History: Cl. 88(1)(c.2)(iii)(A) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 66(2), applicable to windings-up that begin after November 1994. The clause formerly read:

> (A) the reference in the definition "specified shareholder" in subsection 248(1) to "or of any other corporation that is related to the corporation" shall be read as "or of any other corporation that is related to the corporation and that has a significant direct or indirect interest in any issued shares of the capital stock of the corporation", and

Subpara. 88(1)(c.2)(iii) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 118(5), applicable to windings-up that begin after November 1994.

Para. 88(1)(c.2) added by 1995, c. 3, subsec. 24(2), applicable to winding-ups that begin after February 21, 1994.

(c.3) [substituted property] — for the purpose of clause (c)(vi)(B), property acquired by any person in substitution for particular property or properties distributed to the parent on the winding-up includes

(i) property (other than a specified property) owned by the person at any time after the acquisition of control referred to in clause (c)(vi)(A) the fair market value of which is, at that time, wholly or partly attributable to the particular property or properties, and

(ii) property owned by the person at any time after the acquisition of control referred to in clause (c)(vi)(A) the fair market value of which is, at that time, determinable primarily by reference to the fair market value of, or to any proceeds from a disposition of, the particular property or properties

but does not include

(iii) money,

(iv) property that was not owned by the person at any time after the acquisition of control referred to in clause (c)(vi)(A), or

(v) property described in subparagraph (i) if the only reason the property is described in that subparagraph is because a specified property described in any of subparagraphs (c.4)(i) to (iv) was received as consideration for the acquisition of a share of the capital stock of the subsidiary in the circumstances described in subparagraphs (c.4)(i) to (iv);

Proposed Addition — 88(1)(c.3)(vi), (vii)

(vi) a share of the capital stock of the subsidiary or a debt owing by it, if the share or debt, as the case may be, was owned by the parent immediately before the winding-up, or

(vii) a share of the capital stock of a corporation or a debt owing by a corporation, if the fair market value of the share or debt, as the case may be, was not, at any time after the beginning of the winding-up, wholly or partly attributable to property distributed to the parent on the winding-up;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 89(2), will add subparas. 88(1)(c.3)(vi) and (vii), applicable to windings-up that begin after 1997.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 88(1)(c) generally provides that the cost to the parent of each property distributed to it on the winding-up of a subsidiary is equal to the subsidiary's proceeds of disposition plus, where the property is a capital property and is not an ineligible property, an amount determined under paragraph 88(1)(d) in respect of the property. "Ineligible property" is described in subparagraphs 88(1)(c)(iii) to (vi). Pursuant to subparagraph 88(1)(c)(vi), ineligible property includes any property distributed to the parent on the winding-up if, as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the winding-up, the parent acquired control of the subsidiary and the property or property acquired in substitution for such property was acquired by a person or persons described in clause 88(1)(c)(vi)(B). Property acquired in substitution for property distributed on the winding-up ("substituted property") has its ordinary meaning and an extended meaning found in paragraph 88(1)(c.3).

Paragraph 88(1)(c.3) provides that substituted property includes property described in subparagraphs 88(1)(c.3)(i) and (ii) but excludes property described in subparagraphs 88(1)(c.3)(iii) to (v). Subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i) provides that, for the purpose of clause 88(1)(c)(vi)(B), substituted property includes property (other than a "specified property") owned by a person after the acquisition of control of the subsidiary where the fair market value of the property is wholly or partly attributable to property distributed to the parent on the winding-up. Subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(iv) ensures that property that would be substituted property under the ordinary meaning of the term will not be substituted property if it is not owned by the person after the acquisition of control.

Example 1 of the explanatory notes to the introduction of paragraph 88(1)(c.3) [see the explanatory notes to S.C. 1998, c.19 [1995-97 technical bill — ed.] (formerly Bill C-28)] describes a scenario under the heading Safe Income Crystallization that illustrates the application of subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(iv) to a situation involving a safe income crystallization prior to a takeover. In that example, Sco, a taxable Canadian corporation, owns 15% of Tco, a publicly traded taxable Canadian corporation. Another corporation ("Pco") makes a takeover offer for all the shares of Tco. In anticipation of the sale of the Tco shares, Sco incorporates Newco and transfers, on a tax-deferred basis under section 85, all of its Tco shares to Newco in exchange for Newco shares. The adjusted cost base and the paid-up capital of the Newco shares are then increased by the amount equal to the so-called "safe income" attributable to the Tco shares. Immediately thereafter, Sco sells the Newco shares to Pco for cash and Newco is wound up into Pco.

In the example, subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(iv) ensures that the Newco shares are not substituted property since Sco did not own the Newco shares after the acquisition of control of Newco by Pco. However, assuming that Tco is subsequently wound up into Pco, the non-depreciable capital property ("bump property") owned by Tco at the time of the acquisition of control of Tco would be ineligible property since, as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the winding up of Tco, property substituted for the bump property (i.e., the 15% of the Tco shares) would have been acquired by a specified shareholder of Tco (i.e., Newco) and would have been owned by Newco after the acquisition of control of Tco.

New subparagraphs 88(1)(c.3)(vi) and (vii), which apply to windings-up that begin after 1997, are enacted to ensure that certain shares or debt will not be substituted property even if they are owned by a specified shareholder after the acquisition of control of the subsidiary. Subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(vi) provides that shares or debt of the subsidiary will not be substituted property if such shares or debt are owned by the parent immediately before the winding-up of the subsidiary. Thus, in the example discussed above, the Tco shares, which are owned by Pco immediately before the winding-up of Tco, would not be substituted property.

Subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(vii) provides that a share or debt of a corporation will not be substituted property if the fair market value of the share or debt is not attributable, at any time after the winding-up process begins, to property acquired by the parent on the winding-up. This exemption would apply, for example, if an individual ("Mr. S"), who is a specified shareholder of Tco, incorporates Newco in contemplation of the takeover of Tco and transfers the Tco shares to Newco. Mr. S then transfers the Newco shares to Sco. Immediately after the increase in the adjusted cost base of the shares of Newco (i.e., following the safe income crystallization) Sco sells the Newco shares to Pco. In this scenario, the Sco shares owned by Mr. S after the sale would not be substituted property by reason of new subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(vii).

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 19, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

Thank you for your letter of November 30, 2001 concerning the application of paragraph 88(1)(c.3) of the Income Tax Act in the context of a takeover of a taxable Canadian corporation ("Targetco") wherein a specified shareholder of Targetco ("SCo") proposes to transfer its shares in Targetco to a new corporation ("Newco") prior to the completion of the takeover, so as to access SCo's share of the safe income of Targetco. You believe that the application of this provision gives rise to unintended tax consequences, and ask that consideration be given to amending that paragraph to ensure the appropriate tax consequences in the circumstances.

In particular, you advised us that a Canadian corporation ("Buyco") owns 51% of the shares of Targetco, a public corporation. Another corporation ("SCo") owns 15% of the shares of Targetco and is a specified shareholder of Targetco for the purposes of subsection 88(1) of the Act. SCo was also a specified shareholder of Targetco before Buyco last acquired control of Targetco. Buyco decides to acquire all of the remaining shares of Targetco. To this end, Buyco incorporates a wholly-owned subsidiary ("PCo") and transfers its shares of Targetco to PCo, thus resulting in an acquisition of control of Targetco by PCo. PCo then makes a cash takeover bid for all of the remaining shares of Targetco.

In anticipation of the successful takeover bid, SCo incorporates Newco and transfers all of its Targetco shares to Newco in exchange for shares in Newco. The adjusted cost base and paid-up capital of the Newco shares are increased through a safe income crystallization transaction involving Newco and SCo. On the takeover bid, PCo directly or indirectly acquires all of the shares of Targetco for cash by acquiring all of the Targetco shares held by the public and by acquiring all of the Newco shares held by SCo. Newco is wound up into PCo and an election is made under paragraph 88(1)(d) of the Act to "bump" the cost base of the shares of Targetco distributed to PCo on the winding-up. Immediately thereafter, Targetco is wound up into PCo.

The technical concern arises out of the combined application of clause 88(1)(c)(vi)(B) of the Act and the definition of substituted property in paragraph 88(1)(c.3) of the Act. In particular, you are of the view that the Newco shares could be property that is substituted for property acquired by PCo on the winding-up of Targetco and that is acquired by a person (SCo) that was a specified shareholder of Targetco before the last acquisition of control of Targetco. Paragraph 88(1)(c.3)(iv) of the Act does not exclude the Newco shares owned by SCo from the definition of substituted property because the Newco shares are owned by SCo after PCo acquires control of Targetco. Therefore, if the safe income crystallization is viewed as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the winding-up of Targetco, then the "bump" may be denied with respect to eligible property of Targetco distributed to PCo on the winding-up of Targetco.

You submit that, from a tax policy perspective, there is no reason that the safe income crystallization should result in the denial of the bump on the winding-up of Targetco. You contend that the bump denial rules are intended to eliminate "backdoor" purchase butterflies, namely transactions whereby a significant shareholder of the target corporation uses the subsection 88(1) bump rules to achieve what is, in effect, a tax-deferred sale of certain corporate assets of the target while maintaining a continuing interest in other corporate assets of the target. In your view, a safe income crystallization, such as the one described above, does not constitute or facilitate a backdoor purchase butterfly.

We agree that the safe income crystallization described above should not, in and of itself, result in the denial of the bump on otherwise eligible property distributed by Targetco to PCo. Accordingly, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance an amendment to the Act the effect of which will be to ensure that the shares of Newco are not substituted property for the purposes of paragraph 88(1)(c) of the Act.

If the above recommendation were acted upon, I would anticipate that such amendments would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.3)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 22, 2002:

Dear [xxx]:

Thank you for your letter of October 11, 2001 to Davine Roach of this Division concerning the application of the substituted property rules in paragraphs 88(1)(c.3) and (c.4) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

In particular, your concern relates to a series of proposed transactions wherein a taxable Canadian corporation ("Bidco") will acquire control of a public corporation ("Targetco"). Under the terms of the takeover, employees of Targetco will participate in the stock option plan of Bidco's parent corporation ("Parentco"). Parentco is a taxable Canadian corporation and owns all of the shares of Bidco. You indicate that a person ("Mr. X"), who is both an employee and specified shareholder of Targetco, holds options under Targetco's employee stock option plan. Concurrently with the closing of the takeover bid, Mr. X, along with other employees of Targetco, will exchange their Targetco options for Parentco options ("option exchange"). Mr. X is also a party to an arrangement with a trust that is governed by subsection 7(6) of the Act. Under that arrangement, Mr. X has an option to acquire Targetco shares ("trust option") from the trust. The trust will elect under the terms of the takeover bid to receive shares of Parentco and the trust option will be amended to reflect the substitution of the Targetco shares for Parentco shares. Following the takeover, Targetco will be wound-up into Bidco.

Your concern is that Mr. X may acquire property described in subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i) as a consequence of the option exchange and the amendment to the trust option. Accordingly, the addition to the adjusted cost base of certain non-depreciable capital property of Targetco provided in paragraphs 88(1)(c) and (d) (the "bump") may be unavailable on the winding-up of Targetco into Bidco.

You ask that we consider including, in the definition of specified property in paragraph 88(1)(c.4) of the Act, an option or right to acquire a share received in the circumstances described above. You argue that the option exchange and the amendment to the trust option is simply a proxy for an exchange of the underlying shares. Accordingly, you submit that there is no policy reason for treating the option exchange and the amendment to the trust option any differently from an exchange of Targetco shares for Parentco shares.

We agree that the option exchange and the amendment to the trust option described above, in and of themselves, should not result in the denial of the bump on the winding-up of Targetco into Bidco. Accordingly, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to ensure that the rights to acquire shares of Parentco received by Mr. X will not be substituted property within the meaning of subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i). We are also prepared to recommend that the amendment apply to windings-up that begin after 2001. If the above recommendation were acted upon, we would anticipate that the amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.3)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 26, 2007: See under 88(1)(c.4).

Related Provisions: 88(1)(c.4) — Meaning of specified property; 88(1)(c.6) — Where control acquired by way of articles of arrangement; 88(1)(c.7) — Extended meaning of depreciable property; 88(4) — Amalgamation deemed not to be acquisition of control; 248(5) — Substituted property; 256(6)–(9) — Whether control acquired.

History: Para. 88(1)(c.3) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 118(6), applicable to windings-up that begin after February 21, 1994 except that, in its application to windings-up that began before June 21, 1996 and to windings-up that begin after June 20, 1996 that are part of an arrangement that was substantially advanced, as evidenced in writing, before June 21, 1996, the para. shall be read as follows:

> (c.3) for the purpose of clause (c)(vi)(B), property acquired by any person in substitution for particular property or properties
> (i) includes property owned by the person at any time after the acquisition of control referred to in clause (c)(vi)(A) the fair market value of which is, at that time, determinable primarily by reference to the fair market value of the particular property or properties or by reference to any proceeds from a disposition of the particular property or properties, but
> (ii) does not include property that is money received as consideration for a disposition of the particular property or properties;

I.T. Technical News: 9 (the backdoor butterfly rule).

(c.4) ["specified property"] — for the purposes of subparagraphs (c.3)(i) and (v), a specified property is

(i) a share of the capital stock of the parent that was received as consideration for the acquisition of a share of the capital stock of the subsidiary by the parent or by a corporation that was a specified subsidiary corporation of the parent immediately before the acquisition,

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.4)(i)

(i) a share of the capital stock of the parent that was

(A) received as consideration for the acquisition of a share of the capital stock of the subsidiary by the parent or by a corporation that was a specified subsidiary corporation of the parent immediately before the acquisition, or

(B) issued for consideration that consists solely of money,

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 89(3), will amend subpara. 88(1)(c.4)(i) to read as above, applicable to windings-up that begin after 1997.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 88(1)(c.4) defines "specified property" for the purposes of subparagraphs 88(1)(c.3)(i) and (v). Specified property is excluded from the extended meaning of a substituted property found in subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i). Subparagraph 88(1)(c.4)(i) is amended to include, within the definition "specified property", shares of the parent issued for consideration that consists solely of money. This amendment, which applies to windings-up that begin after 1997, ensures that a specified shareholder that participates in a takeover by acquiring shares of the parent for cash consideration will not be considered to have acquired substituted property within the meaning assigned by subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i).

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Sept. 28, 2000:

Dear [xxx]:

This is in response to your letters of September 15 and 20, 2000, and further to your conversations with Davine Roach, regarding the application of the "specified property" rule in paragraph 88(l)(c.4) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") to the proposed transactions described in your letter. You believe this application gives rise to unintended tax consequences and ask that consideration be given to amending the paragraph to ensure the appropriate tax results in the circumstances.

Based on our understanding of the facts of the proposed transactions as described in your letter, JB1 and JB2 will make a joint bid through Bidco to acquire all the shares of Target for cash, JB1 is a specified shareholder of the Target and JB2 is not a specified shareholder of Target. JB1 will, amongst other things, contribute cash to Bidco, which will issue shares to JB1 in consideration for that cash. JB1 will not control Bidco at the time Bidco acquires control of Target. Target will be wound-up into Bidco and Bidco will seek to bump the cost of certain non-depreciable capital property distributed to Bidco on the wind-up of Target pursuant to paragraph 88(1)(c) of the Act. Bidco shares acquired by JB1 as consideration for the cash contribution will not qualify as "specified property" for the purposes of 88(l)(c)(vi) and consequently the so called "bump denial rule" in 88(l)(c)(vi) will cause the property distributed to Bidco on the winding up of Target to be an "ineligible property" for the purposes of the 88(1)(c) bump.

As you know, paragraph 88(l)(c.4) of the Act excludes property that is "specified property" from the extended definition of substituted property in subparagraph 88(l)(c.3)(i), which applies for the purpose of the bump denial rule in subparagraph 88(1)(c)(vi) of the Act. The statutory exclusions from the bump denial rule do not, however, anticipate joint takeover bids by a specified shareholder of the subsidiary and a third party, where such bids result in the acquisition of a non-controlling interest in the parent by the specified shareholder who acquired shares of the parent for cash prior to the acquisition of control of the subsidiary by the parent.

In these circumstances, we agree that the bump denial rule in subparagraph 88(1)(c)(vi) of the Act should not apply. Consequently, we will recommend to the Minister of Finance that an amendment be introduced to the Act to ensure that, in the circumstances described in your letter, the bump denial rule does not apply solely because JB1 acquired shares of Bidco for consideration consisting only of cash prior to Bidco acquiring control of Target. We would also recommend that such an amendment be effective for windings-up that begin after 1999.

If the recommendation is acted upon, I would anticipate that such an amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.4)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 22, 2002: See under 88(1)(c.3).

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.4)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 2, 2002:

Dear Mr. [xxx]

Thank you for your letters dated March 1 and 5, 2002 concerning the application of the substituted property rules in paragraphs 88(1)(c.3) and (c.4) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

In particular, your concern relates to a series of proposed transactions wherein a taxable Canadian corporation ("Bidco") acquires more than 66⅔% but less than 90% of the shares of another corporation ("Targetco") under a takeover bid. To complete the takeover, Bidco implements what is commonly referred to as an amalgamation squeeze out. On the amalgamation, a new corporation ("Amalco") will issue common shares to Bidco and redeemable preferred shares to the minority shareholders of Targetco. Amalco will redeem the redeemable preferred shares immediately after the amalgamation for consideration that includes common shares of Bidco, as required under the applicable securities law. Following the redemption, Amalco will be a wholly-owned subsidiary of Bidco. Amalco will then be wound-up into Bidco.

Your concern is that the redeemable preferred shares and the common shares of Bidco would not qualify as specified property as defined in paragraph 88(1)(c.4) of the Act and, therefore, such shares will be substituted property as defined in subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i) of the Act. Accordingly, the addition to the adjusted cost base of certain non-depreciable capital property of Amalco (the "bump") provided in paragraphs 88(1)(c) and (d) of the Act would be unavailable on the winding-up of Amalco into Bidco.

In your view, the redemption of the redeemable preferred shares for common shares of Bidco does not violate any policy objectives underlying the bump rules. You state that, if the minority shareholders had tendered their shares of Targetco to Bidco under the takeover bid, the Bidco common shares received by them would have been specified property and, as a result, would not have been substituted property for the purpose of subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i). Accordingly, you request that we consider amending the definition of specified property in paragraph 88(1)(c.4) to accommodate the redemption of the redeemable preferred shares of Amalco for common shares of Bidco.

We agree that the redemption of the redeemable preferred shares in consideration for common shares of Bidco should not, in the circumstances described above, affect the availability of the bump on the winding-up of Amalco into Bidco. Accordingly, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to ensure that the redeemable preferred shares of Amalco and the common shares of Bidco be considered specified property within the meaning of paragraph 88(1)(c.4). We are also prepared to recommend that the amendment apply to windings-up that begin after 2001. If the above recommendation were acted upon, we would anticipate that the amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.4)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 24, 2003:

Dear [xxx]:

Thank you for your letter of May 5, 2003 concerning the application of the substituted property rules in paragraphs 88(1)(c.3) and (c.4) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

In particular, your concern relates to the treatment of employee stock options in a series of proposed transactions wherein a taxable Canadian corporation that is a public corporation ("Acquireco") will acquire control of another taxable Canadian corporation that is also a public corporation ("Targetco").

Certain employees (including directors) of Targetco and other corporations related to Targetco (the "Optionholders") hold options to acquire Targetco Common Shares ("Targetco Options"). Under the terms of the takeover, Targetco Options that are unexercised on the date of the acquisition of Targetco will become options to acquire Acquireco common shares ("Acquireco Options") at a ratio that is consistent with the purchase price of the shares under the takeover transaction (the "Option Exchange"). Following the takeover, Targetco may be wound-up or amalgamated into Acquireco or a corporation related to Acquireco in circumstances where subsections 87(11) or 88(1) of the Act would apply. The Optionholders who receive Acquireco Options may in the aggregate be considered a "specified shareholder" of Targetco (as that term is applied in subparagraph 88(1)(c)(vi)).

Your concern is that the Optionholders may acquire "substituted property" as described in subparagraph 88(1)(c.3) as a consequence of the Option Exchange. Accordingly, the addition to the adjusted cost base of certain non-depreciable capital property of Targetco provided in paragraphs 88(l)(c) and (d) (the "bump") may be unavailable on the winding-up or amalgamation of Targetco into Acquireco or a corporation related to Acquireco.

You ask that we consider including, in the definition of specified property in paragraph 88(1)(c.4) of the Act, an option or right to acquire a share received in the circumstances described above. You argue that the Option Exchange is simply a proxy for an exchange of the underlying shares. Accordingly, you submit that there is no policy reason for treating the Option Exchange any differently from an exchange of Targetco shares for Acquireco shares.

Based on our understanding of the facts, we agree that the Option Exchange should not, in and of itself, result in the denial of the bump on the winding up of Targetco into Acquireco or a corporation related to Acquireco. Accordingly, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to ensure that the rights to acquire shares of Acquireco received by the Optionholders will not be substituted property within the meaning of subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i). We are also prepared to recommend that the amendment apply to windings-up that begin after 2001. If the above recommendation were acted upon, we would anticipate that the amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours very truly,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.4)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 31, 2004:

Dear [xxx]:

Thank you for your email of May 13, 2004 to Mr. Daryl Boychuk of this Division concerning the application of the substituted property rules in paragraphs 88(1)(c.3) and (c.4) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

In particular, your concern relates to a series of proposed transactions in which control of a taxable Canadian corporation ("[xxx]") will be acquired. The controlling shareholders of [xxx] (each of which is a "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" of "[xxx]") will amalgamate with [xxx] to create "[xxx]". Pursuant to the terms of the amalgamation, a wholly owned subsidiary of [xxx] ("[xxx]") will receive common shares of [xxx] and the public shareholders of [xxx] will receive redeemable preferred shares that will be redeemed immediately after the amalgamation. [xxx] will then be wound-up into [xxx] in circumstances described in subsection 88(1) of the Act.

You advised us that one of the shareholders of [xxx] (the "Shareholder") owns less than 10% of the issued shares of any class of [xxx]. However, there is a group of key employees of [xxx] who are also shareholders and option holders of [xxx] that, together with the Shareholder, may be viewed as a group described in subclause 88(1)(c.4)(vii)(B)(II).

To finance the acquisition of [xxx], [xxx] will issue debt in the U.S. and Canadian markets. As part of its general investment strategy, the Shareholder would like to subscribe for a portion of the debt. The debt in question would be non-participating, interest-bearing debt and would not differ from the debt issued to other lenders.

You are concerned that the subscription for any portion of the debt by the Shareholder could be viewed as an acquisition of property substituted for property acquired by [xxx] on the winding up of [xxx] within the meaning of subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i). You note that the debt would not be "specified property" as defined in paragraph 88(1)(c.4) since it would not be issued as consideration for the acquisition of a share of the capital stock of a corporation described in subparagraphs 88(1)(c.4)(ii) or (iv). Accordingly, the addition to the adjusted cost base of certain non-depreciable capital property of [xxx] provided in paragraphs 88(1)(c) and (d) (the "bump") may not be available on the winding-up of [xxx] into [xxx].

In your view, the denial of the bump in these circumstances would not be consistent with the tax policy underlying subparagraph 88(1)(c)(vi) in that the transactions do not facilitate a tax-deferred transfer of some of the assets of [xxx]. Moreover, an amendment to paragraph 88(1)(c.4) to exclude a debt issued to a specified shareholder for consideration that consists solely of money would be consistent with the proposed amendment to subparagraph 88(1)(c.4)(i).

We understand your concerns regarding the denial of the bump in the circumstances described in your letter and we do not dispute that the result appears to be inconsistent with the policy underlying subparagraph 88(1)(c)(vi). As discussed, we are reviewing subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i) and the definition of "specified property" in paragraph 88(1)(c.4) with a view to identifying those amendments that are necessary to ensure that the bump is not denied in appropriate circumstances. I trust that this letter is informative of our general position regarding your submission.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislative Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.4)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 15, 2005:

Dear [xxx]:

This is in reply to your letter dated March 16, 2005 and further to your discussions with Daryl Boychuk of this Division concerning the application of paragraphs 88(1)(c.3) and (c.4) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). In your letter, you asked us for clarification concerning the scope of certain proposed amendments referred to in correspondence released by the Tax Legislation Division. In particular, you have asked us to advise you whether these amendments, which relate to the meaning of specified property in paragraph 88(1)(c.4) of the Act and, by implication, to the meaning of substituted property in subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i) of the Act, will apply to shares and options of the parent corporation in the circumstances described below. In the alternative, you have asked us if we would be prepared to recommend amendments to the Act that would include such property within the meaning of specified property.

In addition, you asked us if we would be prepared to recommend an amendment to the Act that would ensure that certain publicly-traded warrants cancelled before the winding up of the subsidiary corporation, as described below, would not be substituted property within the meaning of subparagraph 88(1)(c)(vi).

In the situation described in your letter, a taxable Canadian corporation ("Parent") and its subsidiary wholly-owned corporation ("Subco") acquired control of another taxable Canadian corporation ("Target") by acquiring, pursuant to a takeover offer, more than 80% of the issued and outstanding common shares of Target. The only consideration issued for the Target shares was Parent shares. Although Target has outstanding options and warrants to acquire Target shares, the takeover offer did not extend to these options or warrants. All of the warrants ("Target Warrants") are listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Parent intends to acquire the remaining Target shares through a plan of arrangement. Prior to entering into the plan of arrangement, Subco will be wound up into Parent and, as a result, the Target shares acquired by Subco pursuant to the takeover offer will be transferred to Parent. In furtherance of the plan of arrangement, Parent has incorporated a new subsidiary wholly-owned corporation ("Newco") under the laws of Ontario.

The Target shareholders will be asked to approve a plan of arrangement pursuant to which Target will amalgamate with Newco to form Amalco. On the amalgamation, the Target shareholders, other than Parent (and any dissenting shareholders) will receive Parent shares on the same basis as they would have received had they tendered their Target shares under the takeover offer. As a consequence of the amalgamation, Parent will become the sole shareholder of Amalco. Each person that owns a Target Warrant or Target option will, on the amalgamation, exchange that option or warrant for an option or warrant, respectively, to acquire that number of shares of Parent that such holder would have acquired if the Target Warrant or Target option had been exercised and the Target shares so acquired exchanged for Parent shares under the takeover offer. The option exchange will be governed by subsection 7(1.4) of the Act and the warrant exchange will be governed by subsection 87(5) of the Act, as modified by paragraph 87(9)(a.3) of the Act. Subsequent to the amalgamation, Parent intends to cause Amalco to be wound up with the intention of making designations under paragraph 88(1)(d) of the Act in respect of capital property, owned by Target at the time Parent acquired control of Target, that is not ineligible property as defined in paragraph 88(1)(c) of the Act.

In your letter, you refer to correspondence from the Tax Legislation Division dated May 2, 2002 and June 24, 2003. The letter dated May 2, 2002 states that we are prepared to recommend to the Minister that an amendment to the Act be made to ensure that certain redeemable preferred shares acquired on an amalgamation (and the shares of the parent corporation acquired on the redemption of those shares) would be specified property within the meaning of paragraph 88(1)(c.4) of the Act. The letter dated June 24, 2003 states that we are prepared to recommend to the Minister that the Act be amended to ensure that the right to acquire shares of the parent corporation would not, in the circumstances described in the letter, be substituted property within the meaning of subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i) of the Act.

You have asked us if the recommended amendments referred to in our letters dated May 2, 2002 and June 24, 2003, would ensure that the Parent shares received by the shareholders of Target and the Parent options or warrants received by the holders of Target options and Target Warrants on the amalgamation of Newco and Target would be specified property within the meaning of paragraph 88(1)(c.4) of the Act. Alternatively, you have asked us if we would be prepared to recommend amendments to the Act that would include such property within the meaning of specified property.

In addition, you stated in your letter that if a specified shareholder of Target acquires Target Warrants prior to the effective date of the plan of arrangement, such acquisition would result in the denial of the paragraph 88(1)(c) bump on the winding up of Amalco into Parent since the Target Warrants will be property substituted for property owned by Target for the purpose of paragraph 88(1)(c)(vi). In your view, the Target Warrants should not be considered substituted property since they will be cancelled on the amalgamation and, therefore, will not, at any time after the beginning of the winding up of Amalco, derive any value from the Amalco assets.

We confirm that the recommended amendment referred to in our letter of May 2, 2002, if enacted, will ensure that the Parent shares acquired by the Target shareholders, on the amalgamation described above, will be specified property within the meaning of paragraph 88(1)(c.4) of the Act. In addition, we confirm that we are prepared to recommend to the Minister that paragaph 88(1)(c.4) of the Act be amended so that the Parent options and warrants acquired on the amalgamation described above, will be specified property within the meaning of paragraph 88(1)(c.4) of the Act. Lastly, we are of the view that the Target Warrants acquired prior to the effective date of the plan of arrangement should not, in the circumstances described above, be substituted property for the purpose of paragraph 88(1)(c)(vi) solely because of subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i). Accordingly, we will recommend to the Minister that the Act be amended to ensure that the Target Warrants will be specified property within the meaning of paragraph 88(1)(c.4) of the Act.

If the above recommendations are accepted, the amendments would be applicable to windings-up that begin after 2001. While we cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister or Parliament will agree with our recommendations, we hope that this statement of our intention is helpful to you.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.4)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Sept. 22, 2005:

Dear [xxx]:

We are writing in reply to your correspondence of August 19 and 26, 2005 and further to our telephone discussions concerning the application of the substituted property rules in paragraph 88(1)(c.3) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

In particular, your concern relates to a series of proposed transactions involving the acquisition of property substituted for property distributed on the winding-up of a subsidiary under subsection 88(1) of the Act.

You have advised us that a taxable Canadian corporation ("Buyco") proposes to acquire all the shares of another taxable Canadian corporation ("Subco1") for money. The owner of the Subco1 shares ("Canco") will also sell the shares of another corporation ("Subco2") to a corporation ("Parentco") that owns all the shares of Buyco. In consideration for the Subco2 shares, Canco will receive money and common shares of Parentco. As part of the same series of transactions or events that includes the acquisition of Subco1 and Subco2, Buyco will cause Subco1 to be wound up in circumstances described in subsection 88(1) of the Act.

You are concerned that the fair market value of the shares of Parentco acquired by Canco will be wholly or partly attributable to property distributed to Buyco on the winding-up of Subco1 and will not be "specified property" as defined in paragraph 88(1)(c.4). As such, the Parentco shares acquired by Canco would be property acquired in substitution for property distributed to Buyco on the winding-up of Subco1 within the meaning of subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i). Accordingly, the addition to the adjusted cost base of certain non-depreciable capital property of Subco1 (the "bump") provided in paragraphs 88(1)(c) and (d) would not be available on the winding-up of Subco1 into Buyco.

In your view, the denial of the bump in these circumstances is not appropriate for two reasons. First, the shares of Subco1 will be acquired for money (which is not property substituted for the property distributed on the winding-up of Subco1). Second, the shares of Parentco will be issued in consideration for property (shares of Subco2) that does not, and will not, as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the winding-up of Subco1, derive any value from the property distributed to Buyco on the winding-up of Subco1.

Based on our understanding of the facts and circumstances described above, we agree that the shares of Parentco acquired by Canco in consideration for the shares of Subco2 should not be considered to be property described in subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i) in respect of the winding-up of Subco1 into Buyco. Accordingly, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the definition "specified property" in paragraph 88(1)(c.4) be amended to ensure this result.

We will also recommend that this amendment be effective for the winding-up of Subco1 described above, which you anticipate will occur in September 2005. While we cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister or Parliament will agree with our recommendations, we hope that this statement of our position is helpful to you.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.4)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Jan. 20, 2006:

Dear [xxx]:

Thank you for your letter of January 12, 2006 regarding the definition "specified property" in paragraph 88(1)(c.4) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

In particular, your concern relates to circumstances where there is an acquisition of property by a person in the course of an amalgamation squeeze-out. The squeeze-out would follow a takeover bid in which a taxable Canadian corporation ("Parent") acquired more than 66⅔% but less than 90% of the shares of another taxable Canadian corporation ("Target"). The Parent would complete the squeeze-out by incorporating a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation, which would be amalgamated with Target in circumstances where the minority shareholders of Target would receive redeemable preferred shares of the amalgamated corporation. The preferred shares would then be redeemed and the redemption price would be satisfied by a combination of money and the delivery of shares of the Parent in the same proportions as the minority shareholders would have received if they had tendered their Target shares to the takeover bid.

In your letter, you note that subparagraph 88(1)(c.4)(v) of the Act includes, within the definition of specified property, preferred shares issued on an amalgamation squeeze-out if those shares are immediately redeemed, acquired or cancelled for money. In addition, you note that, in a letter issued on May 2, 2002, we stated that we would recommend that preferred shares issued on an amalgamation squeeze-out and shares of the Parent (delivered by the amalgamated corporation on the redemption of the preferred shares) be considered specified property within the meaning of paragraph 88(1)(c.4).

You note, however, that neither subparagraph 88(1)(c.4)(v) of the Act nor the proposed recommended amendment referred to in the May 2, 2002 letter specifically provide for the situation where the preferred shares of the amalgamated corporation are redeemed for consideration that consists of a combination of money and shares of the Parent. You point out that the same tax policy considerations that apply on the redemption of preferred shares of the amalgamated corporation for money or the redemption of preferred shares of the amalgamated corporation for shares of the Parent should also apply where the consideration received consists of a combination of money and shares of the Parent. Accordingly, you have asked us to consider an amendment to paragraph 88(1)(c.4) that would ensure that the preferred shares of the amalgamated corporation (that are redeemed for a combination of money and shares of the Parent) and the shares of the Parent that are acquired by the minority shareholders of the Target in partial consideration of the redemption of the preferred shares of the amalgamated corporation would, in the circumstances described above, be considered specified property within the meaning of paragraph 88(1)(c.4).

We agree that, in the circumstances outlined in your letter, both the preferred shares of the amalgamated corporation and the shares of the Parent should be specified property within the meaning of paragraph 88(1)(c.4). Accordingly, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister that, for windings-up that begin after 2005, the Act be amended to ensure this result. If the above recommendation were acted upon, we would anticipate that the amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(c.4)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 26, 2007:

Mr. John Unger, Torys LLP, Toronto

Dear Mr. Unger:

Further to our recent telephone conversations and your correspondence dated June 21, 2007, we are writing to confirm our public position as previously set out in our May 31, 2004 letter (a copy of which is attached).

In this regard, we confirm that we are reviewing subparagraph 88(1)(c.3)(i) and the definition of "specified property" in paragraph 88(1)(c.4), of the Income Tax Act, with a view to identifying those amendments that are necessary to ensure that the addition to the cost base of non-depreciable capital property distributed on the winding-up of a subsidiary, as provided by paragraph 88(1)(c) of the Act, is not denied in inappropriate circumstances.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, General Director — Legislation, Tax Policy Branch

(d) [increase in cost amounts (bump)] — the amount determined under this paragraph in respect of each property of the subsidiary distributed to the parent on the winding-up is such portion of the amount, if any, by which the total determined under subparagraph (b)(ii) exceeds the total of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of any property owned by the subsidiary immediately before the winding-up, equal to the cost amount to the subsidiary of the property immediately before the winding-up, plus the amount of any money of the subsidiary on hand immediately before the winding-up,

exceeds the total of

(B) all amounts each of which is the amount of any debt owing by the subsidiary, or of any other obligation of the subsidiary to pay any amount, that was outstanding immediately before the winding-up, and

(C) the amount of any reserve (other than a reserve referred to in paragraph 20(1)(n), subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) or 44(1)(e)(iii) of this Act or in subsection 64(1) or (1.1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as those two provisions read immediately before November 3,[13] 1981) deducted in computing the subsidiary's income for its taxation year during which its assets were distributed to the parent on the winding-up, and

(i.1) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of any share of the capital stock of the subsidiary disposed of by the parent on the winding-up or in contemplation of the winding-up, equal to the total of all amounts received by the parent or by a corporation with which the parent was not dealing at arm's length (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) in respect of the subsidiary) in respect of

(A) taxable dividends on the share or on any share (in this subparagraph referred to as a "replaced share") for which the share or a replaced share was substituted or exchanged to the extent that the amounts thereof were deductible from the recipient's income for any taxation year by virtue of section 112 or subsection 138(6) and were not amounts on which the recipient was required to pay tax under Part VII of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read on March 31, 1977, or

(B) capital dividends and life insurance capital dividends on the share or on any share (in this subparagraph referred to as a "replaced share") for which a share or a replaced share was substituted or exchanged, as is designated by the parent in respect of that capital property in its return of income under this Part for its taxation year in which the subsidiary was so wound up, except that

(ii) in no case shall the amount so designated in respect of any such capital property exceed the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at the time the parent last acquired control of the subsidiary exceeds the cost amount to the subsidiary of the property immediately before the winding-up, and

(iii) in no case shall the total of amounts so designated in respect of all such capital properties exceed the amount, if any, by which the total determined under subparagraph (b)(ii) exceeds the total of the amounts determined under subparagraphs (i) and (i.1).

History: Para. 88(1)(d.2) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 118(9), applicable to windings-up that begin after December 20, 1991. The para. formerly read:

(d.2) in determining, for the purposes of this paragraph and paragraphs (c) and (d), the time that a taxpayer last acquired control of the subsidiary, where control of the subsidiary was acquired from a person or group of persons (in this paragraph referred to as the "vendor") with whom the taxpayer was not (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) dealing at arm's length, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have last acquired control at the earlier of the time that the vendor last acquired control (within the meaning that would be assigned by subsection 186(2) if the reference therein to "another corporation" were read as "a person" and the references therein to "the other corporation" were read as "the person") of the subsidiary and the time that the vendor was deemed by this subsection to have last acquired control, except that in determining the time that a particular person or group of persons last acquired control of a corporation where at any time control of the corporation is acquired by the particular person or group of persons because of a bequest or an inheritance of shares of the capital stock of the corporation, for the purposes of this paragraph and subsection 186(2) in its application to this paragraph, the particular person or group of persons shall be deemed at that time, and at any time before that time, to have dealt at arm's length with the person who bequeathed the shares, or from whom the shares were inherited, and each other person who is related to that person;

Para. 88(1)(d.2) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 40(1), applicable to windings-up that begin after December 20, 1991. That para. formerly read:

(d.2) in determining for the purposes of this paragraph and paragraphs (c) and (d) the time that a taxpayer last acquired control of the subsidiary, where control of the subsidiary was acquired from a person or group of persons (in this paragraph referred to as the "vendor") with whom the taxpayer was not (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) dealing at arm's length, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have last acquired control at the earlier of the time that the vendor last acquired control (within the meaning that would be assigned by subsection 186(2) if the reference therein to "another corporation" were read as a reference to "a person" and the references therein to "the other corporation" were read as references to "the person") of the subsidiary and the time that the vendor was deemed by this subsection to have last acquired control, except that, in determining the time that a particular taxpayer last acquired control of a corporation where at any time control of the corporation is acquired by the particular taxpayer because of a bequest or an inheritance of shares of the capital stock of the corporation, for the purposes of this paragraph and subsection 186(2) in its application to this paragraph, the particular taxpayer shall be deemed at that time, and at any time before that time, to have dealt at arm's length with the person who bequeathed the shares, or from whom the shares were inherited, and each other person who is related to that person;

Para. 88(1)(d.2) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 38(4), applicable to windings-up beginning after December 20, 1991. Para (d.2) formerly read:

(d.2) in determining for the purposes of this paragraph and paragraphs (c) and (d) the time that a taxpayer last acquired control of the subsidiary, where control of the subsidiary was acquired (otherwise than by way of bequest or inheritance) from a person or group of persons (in this paragraph referred to as the "vendor") with whom the taxpayer was not (otherwise than by virtue of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) dealing at arm's length, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have last acquired control at the earlier of the time that the vendor last acquired control (within the meaning assigned by subsection 186(2) if the reference therein to "another corporation" were read as a reference to "a person" and the references therein to "the other corporation" were read as references to "the person") of the subsidiary and the time that the vendor was deemed by this subsection to have last acquired control;

(d.3) [control acquired due to death] — for the purposes of paragraphs (c), (d) and (d.2), where at any time control of a corporation is last acquired by an acquirer because of an acquisition of shares of the capital stock of the corporation as a consequence of the death of an individual, the acquirer is deemed to have last acquired control of the corporation immediately after the death from a person who dealt at arm's length with the acquirer;

History: Para. 88(1)(d.3) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 118(9), applicable to windings-up that begin after December 20, 1991.

Proposed Addition — 88(1)(d.4)

(d.4) [share in foreign affiliate of subsidiary] — for the purpose of subparagraph (d)(ii),

(i) if, at the time immediately before the winding-up, the subsidiary holds one or more shares of a foreign affiliate of the subsidiary, there shall be added to the cost amount, at that time, of each of those shares (referred to in this subpar-agraph as the "particular share") the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times B/C$$

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which

(A) the amount of a dividend received on any share of the foreign affiliate (or any other share of the foreign affiliate for which that share is substituted property) held by the subsidiary immediately before the winding-up, that was deductible under section 113 in computing the income of the subsidiary or of a corporation with which the subsidiary was not dealing at arm's length (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) in respect of the foreign affiliate),

exceeds

(B) the portion of that dividend that may reasonably be considered to have reduced the foreign affiliate's exempt or taxable surplus in respect of the subsidiary that arose after the acquisition of control of the subsidiary by the parent (determined on the assumption that a dividend is paid out of the foreign affiliate's exempt or taxable surplus, as the case may be, in respect of the subsidiary, in the reverse order to that in which it was added to the foreign affiliate's exempt or taxable surplus in respect of the subsidiary),

B is the fair market value of the particular share immediately before the winding-up, and

C is the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value of a share of the foreign affiliate held by the subsidiary immediately before the winding-up, and

(ii) if, at the time immediately before the winding-up, the subsidiary holds a partnership interest in a partnership (referred to in this subparagraph as a "holding partnership") which holds one or more shares of a foreign affiliate of the subsidiary, there shall be added to the cost amount, at that time, of the subsidiary's partnership interest in the holding partnership (referred to in this subparagraph as the "particular partnership interest"), the amount determined by the formula

where

D is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which

(A) the amount of a dividend received on any share of the foreign affiliate (or any other share of the foreign affiliate for which that share is substituted property) held by the holding partnership immediately before the winding-up, that was deductible under section 113 in computing the income of the subsidiary or of a corporation with which the subsidiary was not dealing at arm's length (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) in respect of the foreign affiliate),

exceeds

(B) the portion of that dividend that may reasonably be considered to have reduced the foreign affiliate's exempt or taxable surplus in respect of the subsidiary that arose after the acquisition of control of the subsidiary by the parent (determined on the assumption that a dividend is paid out of the foreign affiliate's exempt or taxable surplus, as the case may be, in respect of the subsidiary, in the reverse order to that in which it was added to the foreign affiliate's exempt or taxable surplus in respect of the subsidiary),

E is the fair market value of the particular partnership interest immediately before the winding-up, and

F is the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value of a partnership interest in the holding partnership held by the subsidiary immediately before the winding-up;

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 130(1), will add para. 88(1)(d.4), applicable to amalgamations that occur, and to windings-up that begin, after February 27, 2004 and if the taxpayer so elects in writing and files the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the day on which the amending legislation is assented to, the para. applies in respect of the taxpayer to all amalgamations that occur, and to all windings-up that begin, after December 20, 2002 and, notwithstanding subsecs. 152(4) to (5) of the Act, any assessment of the taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for any taxation year that begins before February 28, 2004 shall be made that is necessary to take the election into account.

Technical Notes: Subsection 88(1) provides rules that apply where a subsidiary has been wound up into its parent corporation where both corporations are taxable Canadian corporations and the parent owns at least 90% of the issued shares of each class of the capital stock of the subsidiary.

Subsection 88(1) is amended by adding proposed new paragraph (d.4) effective for amalgamations that occur after February 27, 2004 and to windings-up that begin after February 27, 2004. Taxpayers may elect to have the provision apply to all amalgamations that occur, and all windings-up that begin, after December 20, 2002.

In general terms, proposed new paragraph 88(1)(d.4) applies for the purpose of subparagraph 88(1)(d)(ii) and increases, in certain circumstances, the cost amount to the subsidiary of a share of a foreign affiliate of the subsidiary or the cost amount of a partnership interest in a partnership that holds such a share, thereby limiting the amount of a increase in cost base of a property to the parent that is the share or the interest in the partnership that might otherwise occur on an amalgamation or a winding up of the subsidiary.

New paragraph 88(1)(d.4) provides that

- if, at the time immediately before the winding-up, the subsidiary holds one or more shares of a foreign affiliate of the subsidiary, there shall be added to the cost amount, at that time, of each of those shares (referred to here as the "particular share") the amount determined by the formula

$$\frac{A \times B}{C}$$

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which

(A) the amount of a dividend received on any share of the foreign affiliate (or any other share of the foreign affiliate for which that share is substituted property) held by the subsidiary immediately before the winding-up, that was deductible under section 113 in computing the income of the subsidiary or of a corporation with which the subsidiary was not dealing at arm's length (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) in respect of the foreign affiliate),

exceeds

(B) the portion of that dividend that may reasonably be considered to have reduced the foreign affiliate's exempt or taxable surplus in respect of the subsidiary that arose after the acquisition of control of the subsidiary by the parent (determined on the assumption that a dividend is paid out of the foreign affiliate's exempt or taxable surplus, as the case may be, in respect of the subsidiary, in the reverse order to that in which it was added to the foreign affiliate's exempt or taxable surplus in respect of the subsidiary),

B is the fair market value of the particular share immediately before the winding-up, and

C is the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value of a share of the foreign affiliate held by the subsidiary immediately before the winding-up, and

- if, at the time immediately before the winding-up, the subsidiary holds a partnership interest in a partnership (a "holding partnership") which holds one or more shares of a foreign affiliate of the subsidiary, there shall be added to the cost amount, at that time, of the subsidiary's partnership interest in the holding partnership (referred to as the "particular partnership interest"), the amount determined by the formula

$$\frac{D \times E}{F}$$

where

D is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which

(A) the amount of a dividend received on any share of the foreign affiliate (or any other share of the foreign affiliate for which that share is substituted property) held by a holding partnership immediately before the winding-up, that was deductible under section 113 in computing the income of the subsidiary or of a corporation with which the subsidiary was not dealing at arm's length (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) in respect of the foreign affiliate),

exceeds

(B) the portion of that dividend that may reasonably be considered to have reduced the foreign affiliate's exempt or taxable surplus in respect of the subsidiary that arose after the acquisition of control of the subsidiary by the parent (determined on the assumption that a dividend is paid out of the foreign affiliate's exempt or taxable surplus, as the case may be, in respect of the subsidiary, in the reverse order to that in which it was added to the foreign affiliate's exempt or taxable surplus in respect of the subsidiary),

E is the fair market value of the particular partnership interest immediately before the winding-up, and

F is the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value of a partnership interest in a holding partnership held by the subsidiary immediately before the winding-up.

(e.3) [investment tax credit] — for the purpose of computing the parent's investment tax credit at the end of any particular taxation year ending after the subsidiary was wound up,

(i) property acquired or expenditures made by the subsidiary or an amount included in the investment tax credit of the subsidiary by virtue of paragraph (b) of the definition "investment tax credit" in subsection 127(9) in a taxation year (in this paragraph referred to as the "expenditure year") shall be deemed to have been acquired, made or included, as the case may be, by the parent in its taxation year in which the expenditure year of the subsidiary ended, and

(ii) there shall be added to the amounts otherwise determined for the purposes of paragraphs (f) to (k) of the definition "investment tax credit" in subsection 127(9) in respect of the parent for the particular year

(A) the amounts that would have been determined in respect of the subsidiary for the purposes of paragraph (f) of the definition "investment tax credit" in subsection 127(9) for its taxation year in which it was wound up if the reference therein to "a preceding taxation year" were read as a reference to "the year or a preceding taxation year",

(B) the amounts determined in respect of the subsidiary for the purposes of paragraphs (g) to (i) and (k) of the definition "investment tax credit" in subsection 127(9) for its taxation year in which it was wound up, and

(C) the amount determined in respect of the subsidiary for the purposes of paragraph (j) of the definition "investment tax credit" in subsection 127(9) for its taxation year in which it was wound up except that, for the purpose of the calculation in this clause, where control of the subsidiary has been acquired by a person or group of persons (each of whom is referred to in this clause as the "purchaser") at any time (in this clause referred to as "that time") before the end of the taxation year in which the subsidiary was wound up, there may be added to the amount determined under subparagraph 127(9.1)(d)(i) in respect of the subsidiary the amount, if any, by which that proportion of the amount that, but for subsections 127(3) and (5) and sections 126, 127.2 and 127.3, would be the parent's tax payable under this Part for the particular year, that,

(I) where the subsidiary carried on a particular business in the course of which a property was acquired, or an expenditure was made, before that time in respect of which an amount was included in computing the subsidiary's investment tax credit for its taxation year in which it was wound up, and the parent carried on the particular business throughout the particular year, the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts each of which is the parent's income for the particular year from the particular business, or the parent's income for the particular year from any other business substantially all the income of which was derived from the sale, leasing, rental or development of properties or the rendering of services similar to the properties sold, leased, rented or developed, or the services rendered, as the case may be, by the subsidiary in carrying on the particular business before that time, exceeds the total of the amounts, if any, deducted for the particular year under paragraph 111(1)(a) or (d) by the parent in respect of a non-capital loss or a farm loss, as the case may be, for a taxation year in respect of the particular business is of the greater of

(II) the amount determined under subclause (I), and

(III) the parent's taxable income for the particular year exceeds the amount, if any, calculated under subparagraph 127(9.1)(d)(i) in respect of the particular business or the other business, as the case may be, in respect of the parent at the end of the particular year to the extent that such amounts determined in respect of the subsidiary may reasonably be considered to have been included in computing the parent's investment tax credit at the end of the particular year by virtue of subparagraph (i), and, for the purposes of the definitions "first term shared-use-equipment" and "second term shared-use-equipment" in subsection 127(9), the parent shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the subsidiary;

Related Provisions: 88(1.3) — Rules relating to computation of income and tax of parent; 256(6)–(9) — Whether control acquired. See also at end of 88(1).

History: Subcl. 88(1)(e.3)(ii)(C)(I) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 40(2), applicable to windings-up that begin after December 21, 1992. That subcl. formerly read:

(I) where the subsidiary carried on a particular business in the course of which a property was acquired, or an expenditure was made, before that time in respect of which an amount was included in computing the subsidiary's investment tax credit for its taxation year in which it was wound up, the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts each of which is the parent's income for the particular year from the particular business, or the parent's income for the particular year from any other business substantially all the income of which was derived from the sale, leasing, rental or development of properties or the rendering of services similar to the properties sold, leased, rented or developed, or the services rendered, as the case may be, by the subsidiary in carrying on the particular business before that time, exceeds the total of the amounts, if any, deducted by the parent under paragraph 111(1)(a) or (d) for the particular year in respect of a non-capital loss or a farm loss, as the case may be, for a taxation year in respect of the particular business

The words following subpara. 88(1)(e.3)(ii) added by 1994, c. 8, s. 10, applicable to taxation years ending after December 2, 1992.

(e.4) [employment tax credit] — for the purpose of computing the parent's employment tax credit at the end of any particular taxation year ending after the subsidiary was wound up,

(i) the subsidiary's taxpayer employment credits for any taxation year (in this paragraph referred to as the "employment year") and any amounts required to be added by virtue of subsection 127(15) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, in computing the subsidiary's employment tax credit at the end of the employment year shall be deemed to be taxpayer employment credits of the parent for, and amounts required to be added by virtue of that subsection in computing the parent's employment tax credit at the end of, its taxation year in which the employment year of the subsidiary ended, and

(ii) there shall be added to the amounts otherwise determined under paragraphs 127(16)(c) and (d) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, in respect of the parent for the particular taxation year, the amounts that would have been determined under those paragraphs in respect of the subsidiary for its taxation year in which it was wound-up if the reference in paragraph 127(16)(c) of that Act to "the five immediately preceding taxation years" were read as a reference to "that taxation year or the five immediately preceding taxation years" to the extent that those amounts determined in respect of the subsidiary may reasonably be considered to be in respect of a taxpayer employment credit or an amount required to be added by virtue of subsection 127(15) of that Act that is included in computing the parent's employment tax credit at the end of the particular year by virtue of subparagraph (i);

I.T. Application Rules: 69 (meaning of "Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952").

History: Para. 88(1)(e.5) repealed by 1996, c. 21, subsec. 16(2), applicable to windings-up that begin after June 1995. The para. formerly read:

(e.5) for the purpose of computing the refundable dividend tax on hand (within the meaning assigned by subsection 129(3)) of the parent at the end of any particular taxation year ending after the subsidiary was wound up, the amount, if any, by which

(i) the subsidiary's refundable dividend tax on hand at the end of its taxation year during which it was wound up

exceeds

(ii) the subsidiary's dividend refund (within the meaning assigned by subsection 129(1)) for its taxation year referred to in subparagraph (i) shall, if

(iii) the subsidiary was a private corporation at the end of the year during which it was wound up, and

(iv) the parent was a private corporation

(A) where the subsidiary was wound up in the particular year, at the time immediately after the winding-up, and

(B) in any other case, continuously from the time of the winding-up until the time immediately after the beginning of the particular year, be added to the total determined for the particular year under subsection 129(3) from which the total of amounts determined under paragraphs 129(3)(c) to (e) is subtracted, except that no amount shall be so added in respect of the subsidiary where subsection 129(1.2) would have applied to deem a dividend paid by the subsidiary immediately before the winding-up not to be a taxable dividend for the purpose of subsection 129(1);

Para. 88(1)(e.5) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 38(5), applicable to the computation of refundable dividend tax on hand (within the meaning assigned by subsec. 129(3) as amended) for 1993 et seq. Para. (e.5) formerly read:

(e.5) for the purpose of computing the refundable dividend tax on hand (within the meaning assigned by subsection 129(3)) of the parent at the end of any taxation year ending after the subsidiary was wound up, the amount, if any, by which

(i) the subsidiary's refundable dividend tax on hand at the end of its taxation year during which it was wound up

exceeds

(ii) the subsidiary's dividend refund (within the meaning assigned by subsection 129(1)) for its taxation year referred to in subparagraph (i) shall, if the parent has been a private corporation continuously from the time of the winding-up to the end of the taxation year, be added to the total determined under subsection 129(3) from which the parent's dividend refunds are to be subtracted, except that the amount to be added to the total determined under subsection 129(3) shall be deemed to be nil where, had a dividend been paid by the subsidiary immediately before the winding-up, subsection 129(1.2) would have applied to deem the dividend not to be a taxable dividend;

(e.6) [charitable donations] — where a subsidiary has made a gift in a taxation year (in this section referred to as the "gift year"), for the purposes of computing the amount deductible under section 110.1 by the parent for its taxation years ending after the subsidiary was wound up, the parent shall be deemed to have made a gift in each of its taxation years in which a gift year of the subsidiary ended equal to the amount, if any, by which the total of all gifts made by the subsidiary in the gift year exceeds the total of all amounts deducted by the subsidiary under section 110.1 of this Act or paragraph 110(1)(a), (b) or (b.1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, in respect of those gifts;

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(e.6)

(e.6) [charitable donations] — if a subsidiary has made a gift in a taxation year (in this section referred to as the "gift year"), for the purposes of computing the amount deductible under section 110.1 by the parent for its taxation years that end after the subsidiary was wound up, the parent is deemed to have made a gift, in each of its taxation years in which a gift year of the subsidiary ended, equal to the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts, each of which is the amount of a gift or, in the case of a gift made after December 20, 2002, the eligible amount of the gift, made by the subsidiary in the gift year exceeds the total of all amounts deducted under section 110.1 by the subsidiary in respect of those gifts;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 89(4), will amend para. 88(1)(e.6) to read as above, applicable to windings-up that begin after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 88(1)(e.6) permits a parent corporation to deduct the amount of a subsidiary's charitable gifts, gifts to Her Majesty, gifts to certain cultural institutions and ecological gifts, to the extent that they were not deducted by the subsidiary prior to the time of its winding-up. Paragraph 88(1)(e.6) is amended, consequential to the addition of new subsection 248(31), to allow the parent to deduct the eligible amount of a gift made after December 20, 2002 that was not deducted by the subsidiary. For additional details, see the commentary to new subsection 248(31).

Related Provisions: 110.1(1.2) — No carryforward of donations after change in control; 248(30)–(33) — Determination of eligible amount of gift.

I.T. Application Rules: 69 (meaning of "chapter 148 of ...").

(e.61) [donation of non-qualifying securities] — the parent is deemed for the purpose of section 110.1 to have made any gift deemed by subsection 118.1(13) to have been made by the subsidiary after the subsidiary ceased to exist;

History: Para. 88(1)(e.61) added by 1998, c. 19, s. 16, applicable after July 1997.

(e.7) [foreign tax credit] — for the purposes of

(i) determining the amount deductible by the parent under subsection 126(2) for any taxation year commencing after the commencement of the winding-up, and

(ii) determining the extent to which subsection 126(2.3) applies to reduce the amount that may be claimed by the parent under paragraph 126(2)(a),

any unused foreign tax credit (within the meaning of subsection 126(7)) of the subsidiary in respect of a country for a particular taxation year (in this section referred to as the "foreign tax year"), to the extent that it exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is claimed in respect thereof under paragraph 126(2)(a) in computing the tax payable by the subsidiary under this Part for any taxation year, shall be deemed to be an unused foreign tax credit of the parent for its taxation year in which the subsidiary's foreign tax year ended;

Related Provisions: 88(1.3) — Rules relating to computation of income and tax of parent. See also at end of 88(1).

(e.8) [investment tax credit — expenditure limit] — for the purpose of applying subsection 127(10.2) to any corporation (other than the subsidiary)

(i) where the parent is associated with another corporation in a taxation year (in this paragraph referred to as the "current year") of the parent that begins after the parent received an asset of the subsidiary on the winding-up and that ends in a calendar year,

(A) the parent's taxable income for its last taxation year that ended in the preceding calendar year (determined before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for that last year) is deemed to be the total of

(I) its taxable income for that last year (determined before applying this paragraph to the winding-up and before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for that last year), and

(II) the total of the subsidiary's taxable incomes for its taxation years that ended in that preceding calendar year (determined without reference to clause (B) and before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for those years), and

(B) the subsidiary's taxable income for each of its taxation years that ends after the first time that the parent receives an asset of the subsidiary on the winding-up of the subsidiary is deemed to be nil, and

(ii) where the parent received an asset of the subsidiary on the winding-up before the current year and is not associated with any corporation in the current year, the parent's taxable income for its immediately preceding taxation year (determined before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for that preceding year) is deemed to be the total of

(A) its taxable income for that preceding taxation year (determined before applying this paragraph to the winding-up and before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for that preceding taxation year), and

(B) the total of the subsidiary's taxable incomes for its taxation years that ended in the calendar year in which that preceding taxation year ended (determined before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for those years);

History: Para. 88(1)(e.8) amended by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 19(1), applicable for the purpose of applying subsecs. 127(10.1) and (10.2) to taxation years that begin after 1995, except that, for taxation years that begin in 1996, the expression "any corporation (other than the subsidiary)" shall be read as "the parent". For windings-up that begin after May 23, 1985, para. (e.8) shall be read without reference to the expression "the definition "qualifying corporation" in subsection 127.1(2) and subparagraph 157(1)(b)(i)". Para. (e.8) formerly read:

(e.8) for the purposes of subsection 127(10.1), the definition "qualifying corporation" in subsection 127.1(2) and subparagraph 157(1)(b)(i),

(i) the taxable income of the parent for its taxation year during which it received the assets of the subsidiary on the winding-up shall be deemed to be the total of its taxable income for that year as otherwise determined and the taxable incomes of the subsidiary for its taxation years ending in the calendar year in which that year ended, and

(ii) the business limit of the parent for that year shall be deemed to be the total of its business limit for that year as otherwise determined and the business limits of the subsidiary for its taxation years ending in the calendar year in which that year ended;

That portion of para. 88(1)(e.8) preceding subpara. (i) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 66(9), to substitute "the definition "qualifying corporation" in subsection 127.1(2)" for "paragraph 127.1(2)(a)", applicable to windings-up beginning after May 23, 1985.

(e.9) [refundable ITC and balance-due day] — for the purpose of applying the definition "qualifying corporation" in subsection 127.1(2), and subparagraph (d)(i) of the definition "balance-due day" in subsection 248(1), to any corporation (other than the subsidiary)

(i) where the parent is associated with another corporation in a taxation year (in this paragraph referred to as the "current year") of the parent that begins after the parent received an asset of the subsidiary on the winding-up and ends in a calendar year,

(A) the parent's taxable income for its last taxation year that ended in the preceding calendar year (determined before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for that last year) is deemed to be the total of

(I) its taxable income for that last year (determined before applying this paragraph to the winding-up and before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for that last year), and

(II) the total of the subsidiary's taxable incomes for its taxation years that ended in that preceding calendar year (determined without reference to subparagraph (iii) and before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for those years), and

(B) the parent's business limit for that last year is deemed to be the total of

(I) its business limit (determined before applying this paragraph to the winding-up) for that last year, and

(II) the total of the subsidiary's business limits (determined without reference to subparagraph (iii)) for its taxation years that ended in that preceding calendar year,

(ii) where the parent received an asset of the subsidiary on the winding-up before the current year and subparagraph (i) does not apply,

(A) the parent's taxable income for its immediately preceding taxation year (determined before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for that preceding year) is deemed to be the total of

(I) its taxable income for that preceding taxation year (determined before applying this paragraph to the winding-up and before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for that preceding taxation year), and

(II) the total of the subsidiary's taxable incomes for the subsidiary's taxation years that end in the calendar year in which that preceding taxation year ended (determined before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for those years), and

(B) the parent's business limit for that preceding taxation year is deemed to be the total of

(I) its business limit (determined before applying this paragraph to the winding-up) for that preceding taxation year, and

(II) the total of the subsidiary's business limits (determined without reference to subparagraph (iii)) for the subsidiary's taxation years that end in the calendar year in which that preceding taxation year ended, and

(iii) where the parent and the subsidiary are associated with each other in the current year, the subsidiary's taxable income and the subsidiary's business limit for each taxation year that ends after the first time that the parent receives an asset of the subsidiary on the winding-up are deemed to be nil;

History: The opening words of para. 88(1)(e.9) amended by 2002, c. 9, s. 31, applicable to taxation years that end after 2001. The opening words formerly read:

(e.9) [instalments and refundable ITCs] — for the purpose of applying subparagraph 157(1)(b)(i) and the definition "qualifying corporation" in subsection 127.1(2) to any corporation (other than the subsidiary)

Para. 88(1)(e.9) added by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 19(2), applicable to windings-up that begin after May 23, 1985, except that

(a) the expression "any corporation (other than the subsidiary)" shall be read as "the parent" with respect to windings-up that begin before 1997;

(b) for the purpose of applying para. (e.9) for the purpose of the definition "qualifying corporation" in subsec. 127.1(2), the business limits referred to in para. (e.9), for taxation years that ended after June 1994 and began before 1996, shall be determined under s. 125 as that section read in its application to taxation years that ended before July 1994; and

(c) subpara. (e.9)(i) does not apply

(i) for the purpose of applying the definition "qualifying corporation" in subsec. 127.1(2) to taxation years that ended before July 1994, and

(ii) for the purpose of applying subpara. 157(1)(b)(i) to taxation years that end before 1998.

(f) [depreciable property] — where property that was depreciable property of a prescribed class of the subsidiary has been distributed to the parent on the winding-up and the capital cost to the subsidiary of the property exceeds the amount deemed by paragraph (a) to be the subsidiary's proceeds of disposition of the property, for the purposes of sections 13 and 20 and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a),

(i) notwithstanding paragraph (c), the capital cost to the parent of the property shall be deemed to be the amount that was the capital cost of the property to the subsidiary, and

(ii) the excess shall be deemed to have been allowed to the parent in respect of the property under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) in computing income for taxation years before the acquisition by the parent of the property;

I.T. Application Rules: 20(1.2) (transfer of depreciable property by person who owned it before 1972).

(g) [insurance corporation] — where the subsidiary was an insurance corporation,

(i) for the purposes of paragraphs 12(1)(d), (e), (e.1), (i) and (s) and 20(1)(l), (l.1), (p) and (jj) and 20(7)(c), subsection 20(22), sections 138, 138.1, 140, 142 and 148 and Part XII.3, the parent is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the subsidiary, and

Proposed Amendment — 88(1)(g)(i)

(i) for the purposes of paragraphs 12(1)(d), (e), (e.1), (i) and (s), subsection 12.5(8), paragraphs 20(1)(l), (l.1), (p) and (jj) and 20(7)(c), subsections 20(22) and 20.4(4), sections 138, 138.1, 140, 142 and 148 and Part XII.3, the parent is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the subsidiary, and

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 20, will amend subpara. 88(1)(g)(i) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after September 2006.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 88(1) deals with the winding-up of a corporation that is a subsidiary into its parent. Subparagraph 88(1)(g)(i) treats the parent corporation as a continuation of a subsidiary that is an insurance corporation for the purposes of certain provisions relating to insurers listed in subparagraph 88(1)(g)(i). This subparagraph is amended to add references to proposed new subsections 12.5(8) and 20.4(4). This change is proposed as a result of the introduction of new sections 12.5 and 20.4.

For further details, readers may refer to the commentary to new sections 12.5 and 20.4.

(ii) for the purpose of determining the amount of the gross investment revenue required to be included under subsection 138(9) in the income of the subsidiary and the parent and the amount of gains and losses of the subsidiary and the parent from property used by them in the year or held by them in the year in the course of carrying on an insurance business in Canada

(A) the subsidiary and the parent shall, in addition to their normal taxation years, be deemed to have had a taxation year ending immediately before the time when the property of the subsidiary was transferred to, and the obligations of the subsidiary were assumed by, the parent on the winding-up, and

(B) for the taxation years of the subsidiary and the parent following the time referred to in clause (A), the property transferred to, and the obligations assumed by, the parent on the winding-up shall be deemed to have been transferred or assumed, as the case may be, on the last day of the taxation year ending immediately before that time and the parent shall be deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of the subsidiary with respect to that property, those obligations and the insurance businesses carried on by the subsidiary;

History: Subpara. 88(1)(g)(i) amended by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 19(3), applicable to windings-up that begin after 1995. Subpara. (i) formerly read:

(i) for the purposes of paragraphs 12(1)(d), (e), (i) and (s) and 20(1)(l), (l.1), (p) and (jj) and 20(7)(c), sections 138, 138.1, 140, 142 and 148 and Part XII.3 of this Act and section 33 of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, the parent shall, notwithstanding paragraph (e.2), be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the subsidiary, and

I.T. Technical News [subsec. 88(1)]: 16 (Continental Bank case).

Forms [subsec. 88(1)]: T2 SCH 24: First time filer after incorporation, amalgamation or winding-up of a subsidiary into a parent.

(1.1) Non-capital losses, etc., of subsidiary — Where a Canadian corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "subsidiary") has been wound up and not less than 90% of the issued shares of each class of the capital stock of the subsidiary were, immediately before the winding-up, owned by another Canadian corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "parent") and all the shares of the subsidiary that were not owned by the parent immediately before the winding-up were owned at that time by a person or persons with whom the parent was dealing at arm's length, for the purpose of computing the taxable income of the parent under this Part and the tax payable under Part IV by the parent for any taxation year commencing after the commencement of the winding-up, such portion of any non-capital loss, restricted farm loss, farm loss or limited partnership loss of the subsidiary as may reasonably be regarded as its loss from carrying on a particular business (in this subsection referred to as the "subsidiary's loss business") and any other portion of any non-capital loss or limited partnership loss of the subsidiary as may reasonably be regarded as being derived from any other source or being in respect of a claim made under section 110.5 for any particular taxation year of the subsidiary (in this subsection referred to as "the subsidiary's loss year"), to the extent that it

(a) was not deducted in computing the taxable income of the subsidiary for any taxation year of the subsidiary, and

(b) would have been deductible in computing the taxable income of the subsidiary for any taxation year beginning after the commencement of the winding-up, on the assumption that it had such a taxation year and that it had sufficient income for that year, shall, for the purposes of this subsection, paragraphs 111(1)(a), (c), (d) and (e), subsection 111(3) and Part IV,

(c) in the case of such portion of any non-capital loss, restricted farm loss, farm loss or limited partnership loss of the subsidiary as may reasonably be regarded as its loss from carrying on the subsidiary's loss business, be deemed, for the taxation year of the parent in which the subsidiary's loss year ended, to be a non-capital loss, restricted farm loss, farm loss or limited partnership loss, respectively, of the parent from carrying on the subsidiary's loss business, that was not deductible by the parent in computing its taxable income for any taxation year that commenced before the commencement of the winding-up,

(d) in the case of any other portion of any non-capital loss or limited partnership loss of the subsidiary as may reasonably be regarded as being derived from any other source, be deemed, for the taxation year of the parent in which the subsidiary's loss year ended, to be a non-capital loss or a limited partnership loss, respectively, of the parent that was derived from the source from which the subsidiary derived the loss and that was not deductible by the parent in computing its taxable income for any taxation year that commenced before the commencement of the winding-up, and

(d.1) in the case of any other portion of any non-capital loss of the subsidiary as may reasonably be regarded as being in respect of a claim made under section 110.5, be deemed, for the taxation year of the parent in which the subsidiary's loss year ended, to be a non-capital loss of the parent in respect of a claim made under section 110.5 that was not deductible by the parent in computing its taxable income for any taxation year that commenced before the commencement of the winding-up,

(e) where at any time control of the parent or subsidiary has been acquired by a person or group of persons, no amount in respect of the subsidiary's non-capital loss or farm loss for a taxation year ending before that time is deductible in computing the taxable income of the parent for a particular taxation year ending after that time, except that such portion of the subsidiary's non-capital loss or farm loss as may reasonably be regarded as its loss from carrying on a business and, where a business was carried on by the subsidiary in that year, such portion of the non-capital loss as may reasonably be regarded as being in respect of an amount deductible under paragraph 110(1)(k) in computing its taxable income for the year is deductible only

Proposed Amendment — 88(1.1)(e) opening words

(e) where control of the parent has been acquired by a person or group of persons at any time after the commencement of the winding-up, or control of the subsidiary has been acquired by a person or group of persons at any time whatever, no amount in respect of the subsidiary's non-capital loss or farm loss for a taxation year ending before that time is deductible in computing the taxable income of the parent for a particular taxation year ending after that time, except that such portion of the subsidiary's non-capital loss or farm loss as may reasonably be regarded as its loss from carrying on a business and, where a business was carried on by the subsidiary in that year, such portion of the non-capital loss as may reasonably be regarded as being in respect of an amount deductible under paragraph 110(1)(k) in computing its taxable income for the year is deductible only

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 89(5), will amend the opening words of para. 88(1.1)(e) to read as above, applicable to windings-up that begin after May 1996.

Technical Notes: Subsection 88(1.1) allows a parent corporation under certain circumstances to use losses of a subsidiary corporation that has been wound up. Paragraph 88(1.1)(e) limits the use that can be made of the former subsidiary's non-capital losses and farm losses where either the parent or the subsidiary has undergone an acquisition of control. In its current form, the paragraph applies these limits regardless of when the acquisition of control took place. This can produce results that are unnecessarily restrictive. If, for example, a newly-acquired corporation is made the parent of an existing subsidiary that has losses, but the subsidiary itself has not undergone an acquisition of control since it incurred those losses, there is no reason for paragraph 88(1.1)(e) to limit the use that the parent corporation can make of the subsidiary's losses after the winding-up.

To ensure that it applies more appropriately, paragraph 88(1.1)(e) is amended to distinguish between acquisitions of control of the parent corporation and acquisitions of control of the subsidiary. In respect of the parent, the limits imposed by the provision will apply only where a person or group of persons has acquired control after the commencement of the winding-up. In respect of the subsidiary, those limits will continue to apply if control has been acquired at any time.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Oct. 26, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

This is further to your discussions with officials of this Division and your letter of September 25, 2001 to Lawrence Purdy, in which you request our views on whether the tax consequences of the application of paragraph 88(1.1)(e) of the Income Tax Act (Act) to a series of transactions accord with the Department's income tax policies.

You describe a series of transactions that is comprised of three main steps and involves three corporations, Parentco, Lossco and Profitco. By way of background, Parentco controls Lossco, which has accumulated non-capital losses and has not been subject to a change of control since these losses arose. First, Parentco acquires control of Profitco, which is expected to continue to profit in future taxation years. Control of Lossco is then transferred to Profitco, after which the last step is to wind-up Lossco into Profitco.

It does seem that, as you suggest, the change in control of the parent, Profitco, would trigger the application of paragraph 88(1.1)(e). The effect would be to restrict the use of the losses of Lossco by Profitco following the winding-up. This would occur despite the fact that, as I have mentioned, the loss arose while Lossco was part of Parentco's corporate group. You express the view that this result is contrary to the policies that underlie the Act.

As you point out, an amalgamation, rather than a winding-up, of Profitco and Lossco would allow the newly formed company — which could in substance be Profitco — to use Lossco's losses without restrictions. This is so because subsection 87(2.1) of the Act stipulates that, for the purposes of subsections 111(3) to 111(5.4) of the Act, the new corporation is deemed to be a continuation of each predecessor corporation. Subsection 111(5) would apply only to restrict the losses, if any, of Profitco, since it, unlike Lossco, would have been subject to an acquisition of control.

In principle, we agree that the application of paragraph 88(1.1)(e) to transactions akin to that which you describe produces an anomalous result, since it restricts the use of losses where there has been no change in the ultimate control of the corporation that produced the losses. Further, the differential treatment in cases of this sort between windings-up and amalgamations is unintended.

Currently, paragraph 88(1.1)(e) may be triggered where at any time the parent has undergone a change of control. This aspect of the provision could be refined to apply to acquisitions of control of the parent subsequent to the winding-up. This would ensure that the paragraph would not apply to the type of situation discussed above. Further, its effect would be consistent with the present treatment of loss utilizations after a change in control: any winding-up of a subsidiary that had undergone even an indirect change in control prior to the winding-up would still trigger the application of paragraph 88(1.1)(e); and the parent's use of the losses of the subsidiary would be restricted if the parent were subject to an acquisition of control after the winding-up.

I am therefore prepared to recommend an amendment along the lines described above. I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Oct. 29, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

I write further to my letter of October 26, 2001, which outlines our intention to recommend an amendment to paragraph 88(1.1)(e) of the Income Tax Act, and the request you subsequently made to Lawrence Purdy that we indicate as of what date we are prepared to recommend that the amendment come into force.

We intend to recommend that the amendment take effect for windings-up that commence after October 25, 2001. As you know, although we have no reason to believe that such an amendment would be controversial, I am not in a position to offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with this or any aspect of the recommendation.

I trust that the above will be of some assistance.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, July 2, 2003:

Dear [xxx]:

Further to our meeting in December 2002, concerning the coming into force of a proposed amendment to subsection 88(1.1) of the Income Tax Act, I am writing to inform you of the results of our consideration of this matter.

As you know, we recently issued a letter stating our intention to recommend amending the rules concerning the treatment of losses where a company that is part of a winding-up transaction has undergone an acquisition of control. More specifically, paragraph 88(1.1)(e) of the Act would be amended to apply, in respect of a parent corporation, only to acquisitions of control that take place after the winding up has begun. In this way, the parent's use of losses incurred by the former subsidiary while it was a member of the group would not be restricted by subsection 88(1.1).

Your submission recommends that the proposed change apply to windings-up begun as early as June 1996. This would accommodate a particular transaction that was undertaken at that time. As you have noted in support of your request, the current rules produce a result that is not appropriate in policy terms, which would also be true in respect of a transaction occurring in 1996. Further, there have been no other requests or issues that have come to the attention of CCRA respecting the coming into force of the proposed amendment.

As a consequence, we are prepared to recommend that the proposed amendments to paragraph 88(1.1)(e) apply to windings-up begun after May 1996.

Of course, we cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, we trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(i) if that business is carried on by the subsidiary or the parent for profit or with a reasonable expectation of profit throughout the particular year, and

(ii) to the extent of the total of the parent's income for the particular year from that business and, where properties were sold, leased, rented or developed or services rendered in the course of carrying on that business before that time, from any other business substantially all of the income of which was derived from the sale, leasing, rental or development, as the case may be, of similar properties or the rendering of similar services,

(1.3) Computation of income and tax of parent — For the purpose of paragraphs (1)(e.3), (e.6) and (e.7), subsections (1.1) and (1.2), section 110.1, subsections 111(1) and (3) and Part IV, where a parent corporation has been incorporated or otherwise formed after the end of an expenditure year, gift year, foreign tax year or loss year, as the case may be, of a subsidiary of the parent, for the purpose of computing the taxable income of, and the tax payable under this Part and Part IV by, the parent for any taxation year,

(a) it shall be deemed to have been in existence during the particular period beginning immediately before the end of the subsidiary's first expenditure year, gift year, foreign tax year or loss year, as the case may be, and ending immediately after it was incorporated or otherwise formed;

(b) it shall be deemed to have had, throughout the particular period, fiscal periods ending on the day of the year on which its first fiscal period ended; and

(c) it shall be deemed to have been controlled, throughout the particular period, by the person or persons who controlled it immediately after it was incorporated or otherwise formed.

Related Provisions: 88(1)(e.6) — Meaning of "gift year"; 256(6), (6.1) — Meaning of "controlled".

History: Para. 88(1.3)(a) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 38(6), applicable to windings-up commencing after 1988. Para. (a) formerly read:

> (a) it shall be deemed to have been in existence during the particular period commencing immediately before the end of the subsidiary's first foreign tax year, gift year or loss year, as the case may be, and ending immediately after it was incorporated or otherwise formed;

(1.4) Qualified expenditure of subsidiary — For the purposes of this subsection and section 37.1, where the rules in subsection (1) applied to the winding-up of a subsidiary, for the purpose of computing the income of its parent for any taxation year commencing after the subsidiary has been wound up, the following rules apply:

(a) where the parent's base period consists of fewer than three taxation years, its base period shall be determined on the assumption that it had taxation years in each of the calendar years preceding the year in which it was incorporated, each of which commenced on the same day of the year as the day of its incorporation;

(b) the qualified expenditure made by the parent in a particular taxation year in its base period shall be deemed to be the total of the amount thereof otherwise determined and the qualified expenditure made by the subsidiary in its taxation year ending in the same calendar year as the particular year;

(c) the total of the amounts paid to the parent by persons referred to in subparagraphs (b)(i) to (iii) of the definition "expenditure base" in subsection 37.1(5) in a particular taxation year in its base period shall be deemed to be the total otherwise determined and all those amounts paid to the subsidiary by a person referred to in those subparagraphs in the subsidiary's taxation year ending in the same calendar year as the particular year; and

(d) there shall be added to the total of the amounts otherwise determined in respect of the parent under subparagraphs 37.1(3)(b)(i) and (iii) respectively, the total of the amounts determined under those subparagraphs in respect of the subsidiary.

(1.41) Application of subsec. 37.1(5) — The definitions in subsection 37.1(5) apply to subsection (1.4).

Origin of subsec. 88(1.41): R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Supp.) (formerly contained in the opening words to subsec. 37.1(5)).

(1.5) Parent continuation of subsidiary — For the purposes of section 29 of the Income Tax Application Rules, subsection 59(3.3) and sections 66, 66.1, 66.2, 66.21, 66.4 and 66.7, where the rules in subsection (1) applied to the winding-up of a subsidiary, its parent is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the subsidiary.

History: Subsec. 88(1.5) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 66(4), applicable to windings-up that occur after 2000. The subsec. formerly read:

> (1.5) For the purposes of section 29 of the Income Tax Application Rules, subsection 59(3.3) and sections 66, 66.1, 66.2, 66.4 and 66.7, where the rules in subsection (1) applied to the winding-up of a subsidiary, its parent shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the subsidiary.

Subsec. 88(1.5) added by 1985, c. 45, subsec. 43(9), applicable with respect to windings-up commencing after 1982.

(1.6) Idem — Where a corporation that carries on a farming business and computes its income from that business in accordance with the cash method is wound up in circumstances to which subsection (1) applies and, at the time that is immediately before the winding-up of the corporation, owned inventory that was used in connection with that business,

(a) for the purposes of subparagraph (1)(a)(iii), the cost amount to the corporation at that time of property purchased by it that is included in that inventory shall be deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount, if any, that would be included under paragraph 28(1)(c) in computing the corporation's income for its last taxation year beginning before that time if that year had ended at that time,

B is the value (determined in accordance with subsection 28(1.2)) to the corporation at that time of the purchased inventory that is distributed to the parent on the winding-up,

C is the value (determined in accordance with subsection 28(1.2)) of all of the inventory purchased by the corporation that was owned by it in connection with that business at that time, and

D is the lesser of

(i) such additional amount as the corporation designates in respect of the property, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the amount determined for A in respect of the property;

(b) for the purpose of subparagraph 28(1)(a)(i), the disposition of the inventory and the receipt of the proceeds of disposition therefor shall be deemed to have occurred at that time and in the course of carrying on the business; and

(c) where the parent carries on a farming business and computes its income therefrom in accordance with the cash method, for the purposes of section 28,

(i) an amount equal to the cost to the parent of the inventory shall be deemed to have been paid by it, and

(ii) the parent shall be deemed to have purchased the inventory for an amount equal to that cost, in the course of carrying on that business and at the time it acquired the inventory.

History: Subsec. 88(1.6) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 66(14), applicable to windings-up beginning after July 13, 1990.

(1.7) Interpretation — For the purposes of paragraphs (1)(c) and (d), where a parent of a subsidiary did not deal at arm's length with another person (other than a corporation the control of which was acquired by the parent from a person with whom the parent dealt at arm's length) at any time before the winding-up of the subsidiary, the parent and the other person are deemed never to have dealt with each other at arm's length, whether or not the parent and the other person coexisted.

Related Provisions: 87(11) — Application to vertical amalgamation; 256(6)–(9) — Whether control acquired.

History: Subsec. 88(1.7) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 118(12), applicable to windings-up that begin after February 21, 1994.

(2) Winding-up of [other] Canadian corporation — Where a Canadian corporation (other than a subsidiary to the winding-up of which the rules in subsection (1) applied) has been wound up after 1978 and, at a particular time in the course of the winding-up, all or substantially all of the property owned by the corporation immediately before that time was distributed to the shareholders of the corporation,

(a) for the purposes of computing the corporation's

(i) capital dividend account,

(i.1) capital gains dividend account (within the meaning assigned by subsection 131(6)), where the corporation is an investment corporation,

(ii) capital gains dividend account (within the meaning assigned by section 133), and

(iii) pre-1972 capital surplus on hand, at the time (in this paragraph referred to as the "time of computation") immediately before the particular time,

(iv) the taxation year of the corporation that otherwise would have included the particular time shall be deemed to have ended immediately before the time of computation, and a new taxation year shall be deemed to have commenced at that time, and

(v) each property of the corporation that was so distributed at the particular time shall be deemed to have been disposed of by the corporation immediately before the end of the taxation year so deemed to have ended for proceeds equal to the fair market value of the property immediately before the particular time;

(vi) [Repealed]

(b) where the corporation is, by virtue of subsection 84(2), deemed to have paid at the particular time a dividend (in this paragraph referred to as the "winding-up dividend") on shares of any class of its capital stock, the following rules apply:

(i) such portion of the winding-up dividend as does not exceed the corporation's capital dividend account immediately before that time or capital gains dividend account immediately before that time, as the case may be, shall be deemed, for the purposes of an election in respect thereof under subsection 83(2), 131(1) (as that subsection applies for the purposes of section 130) or 133(7.1), as the case may be, and where the corporation has so elected, for all other purposes, to be the full amount of a separate dividend,

(i.1) [Repealed under former Act]

(ii) the portion of the winding-up dividend equal to the lesser of the corporation's pre-1972 capital surplus on hand immediately before that time and the amount by which the winding-up dividend exceeds

(A) the portion thereof in respect of which the corporation has made an election under subsection 83(2), or

(B) the portion thereof in respect of which the corporation has made an election under subsection 133(7.1), as the case may be, shall be deemed not to be a dividend,

(iii) notwithstanding the definition "taxable dividend" in subsection 89(1), the winding-up dividend, to the extent that it exceeds the total of the portion thereof deemed by subparagraph (i) to be a separate dividend for all purposes and the portion deemed by subparagraph (ii) not to be a dividend, shall be deemed to be a separate dividend that is a taxable dividend, and

(iv) each person who held any of the issued shares of that class at the particular time shall be deemed to have received that proportion of any separate dividend determined under subparagraph (i) or (iii) that the number of shares of that class held by the person immediately before the particular time is of the number of issued shares of that class outstanding immediately before that time; and

(c) for the purpose of computing the income of the corporation for its taxation year that includes the particular time, paragraph 12(1)(t) shall be read as follows:

"(t) the amount deducted under subsection 127(5) or (6) in computing the taxpayer's tax payable for the year or a preceding taxation year to the extent that it was not included under this paragraph in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year or is not included in an amount determined under paragraph 13(7.1)(e) or 37(1)(e) or subparagraph 53(2)(c)(vi) or (h)(ii) or the amount determined for I in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection 13(21) or L in the definition "cumulative Canadian exploration expense" in subsection 66.1(6);".

(2.1) Definition of "pre-1972 capital surplus on hand" — For the purposes of subsection (2), "pre-1972 capital surplus on hand" of a particular corporation at a particular time means the amount, if any, by which the total of

(a) the corporation's 1971 capital surplus on hand on December 31, 1978 within the meaning of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read on that date,

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a capital property of the corporation owned by it on December 31, 1971 and disposed of by it after 1978 and before the particular time, equal to the amount, if any, by which the lesser of its fair market value on valuation day (within the meaning assigned by section 24 of the Income Tax Application Rules) and the corporation's proceeds of disposition of that capital property exceeds its actual cost to the corporation determined without reference to the Income Tax Application Rules other than subsections 26(15), (17) and (21) to (27) of that Act,

(c) where before the particular time a subsidiary (to the winding-up of which the rules in subsection (1) applied) of the particular corporation has been wound up after 1978, an amount equal to the pre-1972 capital surplus on hand of the subsidiary immediately before the commencement of the winding-up, and

(d) where the particular corporation is a new corporation formed as a result of an amalgamation (within the meaning of section 87) after 1978 and before the particular time, the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a predecessor corporation, equal to the predecessor corporation's pre-1972 capital surplus on hand immediately before the amalgamation

(e) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a capital property (other than depreciable property) of the corporation owned by it on December 31, 1971 and disposed of by it after 1978 and before the particular time equal to the amount, if any, by which its actual cost to the corporation determined without reference to the Income Tax Application Rules, other than subsections 26(15), (17) and (21) to (27) of that Act, exceeds the greater of the fair market value of the property on valuation day (within the meaning assigned by section 24 of that Act) and the corporation's proceeds of disposition of the property.

Related Provisions: 84(2) — Distribution on winding-up, etc.; 87(2)(t) — Deemed date of acquisition; 88(2.2) — Determination of pre-1972 CSOH; 88(2.3) — Actual cost of certain depreciable property.

(2.2) Determination of pre-1972 capital surplus on hand — For the purposes of determining the pre-1972 capital surplus on hand of any corporation at a particular time after 1978, the following rules apply:

(a) an amount referred to in paragraphs (2.1)(b) and (e) in respect of the corporation shall be deemed to be nil, where the property disposed of is

(i) a share of the capital stock of a subsidiary, within the meaning of subsection (1), that was disposed of on the winding-up of the subsidiary where that winding-up commenced after 1978,

(ii) a share of the capital stock of another Canadian corporation that was controlled, within the meaning assigned by subsection 186(2), by the corporation immediately before the disposition and that was disposed of by the corporation after 1978 to a person with whom the corporation was not dealing at arm's length immediately after the disposition, other than by a disposition referred to in paragraph (b), or

(iii) subject to subsection 26(21) of the Income Tax Application Rules, a share of the capital stock of a particular corporation that was disposed of by the corporation after 1978, on an amalgamation, within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1), where the corporation controlled, within the meaning assigned by subsection 186(2), both the particular corporation immediately before the amalgamation and the new corporation immediately after the amalgamation; and

(b) where another corporation that is a Canadian corporation owned a capital property on December 31, 1971 and subsequently disposed of it to the corporation in a transaction to which section 85 applied, the other corporation shall be deemed not to have disposed of that property in the transaction and the corporation shall be deemed to have owned that property on December 31, 1971 and to have acquired it at an actual cost equal to the actual cost of that property to the other corporation.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-488R2: Winding-up of 90%-owned taxable Canadian corporations (archived). See also at end of s. 88.

(2.3) Actual cost of certain depreciable property — For the purpose of subsection (2.1), the actual cost of the depreciable property that was acquired by a corporation before the commencement of its 1949 taxation year that is capital property referred to in that subsection shall be deemed to be the capital cost of that property to the corporation (within the meaning assigned by section 144 of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read in its application to the 1971 taxation year).

I.T. Application Rules: 69 (meaning of "chapter 148 of ...").

(3) Dissolution of foreign affiliate — Where on the dissolution of a controlled foreign affiliate (within the meaning assigned by subsection 95(1)) of a taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as the "disposing affiliate") one or more shares of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer have been disposed of to the taxpayer,

(a) the disposing affiliate's proceeds of disposition of each such share and the cost thereof to the taxpayer shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the adjusted cost base to the disposing affiliate of the share immediately before the dissolution, or such greater amount as the taxpayer claims not exceeding the fair market value of the share immediately before the dissolution; and

(b) the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the shares of the disposing affiliate shall be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which the total of

(i) the cost to the taxpayer of the shares of the other foreign affiliate, as determined in paragraph (a), and

(ii) the fair market value of any property (other than the shares referred to in subparagraph (i)) disposed of by the disposing affiliate to the taxpayer on the dissolution,

exceeds

(iii) the total of all debts owing by the disposing affiliate, and of all amounts of other obligations of the disposing affiliate to pay amounts, otherwise than as or on account of a dividend owing by the disposing affiliate to the taxpayer or to persons with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, that were outstanding immediately before the dissolution and that were assumed or cancelled by the taxpayer on the dissolution.

Proposed Amendment — 88(3)

(3) Distributions of property of a foreign affiliate — If, at any time, a taxpayer resident in Canada receives a property from a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (the property received and the foreign affiliate from which the property was received being referred to in this subsection as the "distributed property" and the "disposing foreign affiliate", respectively), on a dissolution and a liquidation of the disposing foreign affiliate, on a redemption of shares of the capital stock of the disposing foreign affiliate, as a payment of a dividend by the disposing foreign affiliate, or as a distribution of property by the disposing foreign affiliate,

(a) where the distributed property was, immediately before that time, a share of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer and an excluded property of the disposing foreign affiliate, the distributed property

(i) is deemed to have been disposed of, at that time, by the disposing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer for proceeds of disposition that are equal to

(A) unless a valid election is made under clause (B), the adjusted cost base to the disposing foreign affiliate of the distributed property, immediately before that time, and

(B) the amount that the taxpayer elects in the prescribed manner and in the prescribed time in respect of the distributed property, which amount may not be less than the adjusted cost base to the disposing foreign affiliate of the distributed property immediately before that time and may not exceed the fair market value, at that time, of the distributed property, and

(ii) is deemed to have been acquired, at that time, by the taxpayer at a cost equal to the amount, determined under subparagraph (i), to be the disposing foreign affiliate's proceeds of disposition of the distributed property;

(b) where the distributed property is property to which paragraph (a) does not apply, the distributed property is deemed

(i) to have been disposed of, at that time, by the disposing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer for proceeds of disposition that are equal to the fair market value, at that time, of the distributed property, and

(ii) to have been acquired, at that time, by the taxpayer at a cost equal to the amount, determined under subparagraph (i), to be the disposing foreign affiliate's proceeds of disposition of the distributed property;

(c) where the taxpayer disposed of shares of the capital stock of the disposing foreign affiliate on the dissolution and liquidation of the disposing foreign affiliate or on the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of shares of the disposing foreign affiliate, as the case may be, the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the shares are deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the cost to the taxpayer of a distributed property received by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition of the shares, and

B is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a debt owing by the disposing foreign affiliate, or of an obligation of the disposing foreign affiliate to pay an amount, (other than a dividend payable to the taxpayer or to persons with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length) that was assumed or cancelled by the taxpayer because of the dissolution and liquidation or because of the redemption, acquisition or cancellation;

(d) where the taxpayer received distributed property as a dividend or a distribution of property, the amount of the dividend paid by the disposing foreign affiliate or the amount of the distribution of property made by the disposing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer, as case may be, is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

D is the total of all amounts each of which is the cost to the taxpayer of a distributed property received by the taxpayer from the disposing foreign affiliate as the payment of a dividend or as the distribution of property, as the case may be, and

E is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a debt owing by the disposing foreign affiliate or of an obligation of the disposing foreign affiliate to pay an amount (other than a dividend payable to the taxpayer or to persons with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length) that was assumed or cancelled by the taxpayer because of the payment of the dividend or because of the distribution;

(e) the amount of a distribution of property made, at that time, by the disposing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer, is to be deducted in computing the taxpayer's adjusted cost base of a particular share of the capital stock of disposing foreign affiliate held by the taxpayer, at that time, to the extent that it is reasonable to consider the distribution to be a payment made by the disposing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer as

(i) a return of an amount that was received by the disposing foreign affiliate as consideration for the issuance of the particular share, or

(ii) a return of an amount of contributed surplus that was received by the disposing foreign affiliate before that time, as a contribution of capital to the disposing foreign affiliate by the shareholder that held the particular share at the time of the contribution; and

(f) the amount of a distribution of property made, at that time, by the disposing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer is to be included in computing the taxpayer's income as income from property that is the shares of the capital stock of the disposing foreign affiliate held at that time by the taxpayer, to the extent that it is not deducted, under paragraph (e), in computing the adjusted cost base of a particular share of the capital stock of the disposing foreign affiliate held by the taxpayer.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 130(2), will amend subsec. 88(3) to read as above, applicable to property received after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes: Subsection 88(3) provides for rules that apply on the dissolution of a controlled foreign affiliate (a "disposing affiliate") of a taxpayer resident in Canada. For example, shares of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer that are transferred to the taxpayer on the dissolution of the disposing affiliate will be considered to have been disposed of by the controlled foreign affiliate, and to have been acquired by the taxpayer, for the adjusted cost base or such greater amount as the taxpayer claims not exceeding the fair market value of the shares. Also, in general terms, the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the taxpayer's shares of the capital stock of the controlled foreign affiliate disposed of on the dissolution are deemed to be the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts each of which is the cost to the taxpayer of property received by the taxpayer from the controlled foreign affiliate on the dissolution exceeds the total of all debts of the controlled foreign affiliate that were assumed or cancelled by the taxpayer on the dissolution.

In general terms, subsection 88(3) is being amended to be applicable to property received, by a taxpayer resident in Canada from a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada, in the following circumstances:

- on a dissolution and liquidation of the foreign affiliate,
- on a redemption of shares by the foreign affiliate,
- as payment of a dividend by the foreign affiliate, or
- as a distribution of property by the foreign affiliate.

This amendment applies to property received after February 27, 2004.

Proposed subsection 88(3) provides for the following rules if, at any time (referred to in this commentary as the "distribution time"), a taxpayer resident in Canada receives, in the circumstances described above, a property from a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (the property received and the foreign affiliate from which the property was received being referred to in this subsection as the "distributed property" and the "disposing foreign affiliate", respectively):

- If the distributed property was, immediately before the distribution time, a share of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer and an excluded property of the disposing foreign affiliate,
  - the distributed property is deemed to have been disposed of, at the distribution time, by the disposing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer for proceeds of disposition that are equal to
    - unless a valid election referred to below is made, the adjusted cost base to the disposing foreign affiliate of the distributed property, immediately before that time, and
    - the amount that the taxpayer elects in the prescribed manner and in the prescribed time (see proposed new section 5919 of the Income Tax Regulations) in respect of the distributed property, which amount may not be less than the adjusted cost base to the disposing foreign affiliate of the distributed property immediately before that time and may not exceed the fair market value, at that time, of the distributed property, and
  - the distributed property is deemed to have been acquired, at that time, by the taxpayer at a cost equal to the amount determined to be the disposing foreign affiliate's proceeds of disposition of the distributed property.
- If the distributed property is not, immediately before the distribution time, both a share of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer and an excluded property of the disposing foreign affiliate,
  - the distributed property is deemed to have been disposed of, at that time, by the disposing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer for proceeds of disposition that are equal to the fair market value, at that time, of the distributed property, and
  - the distributed property is deemed to have been acquired, at that time, by the taxpayer at a cost equal to the amount determined to be the disposing foreign affiliate's proceeds of disposition of the distributed property.
- If the taxpayer disposed of shares of the capital stock of the disposing foreign affiliate on the dissolution and liquidation of the disposing foreign affiliate or on the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of shares of the disposing foreign affiliate, as the case may be, the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the shares are deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the cost to the taxpayer of a distributed property received by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition of the shares, and

B is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a debt owing by the disposing foreign affiliate or of an obligation of the disposing foreign affiliate to pay an amount (other than a dividend payable to the taxpayer or to persons with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length) that was assumed or cancelled by the taxpayer because of the dissolution and liquidation or because of the redemption, acquisition or cancellation.

- If the taxpayer has received distributed property as a dividend or a distribution of property, the amount of the dividend paid by the disposing foreign affiliate or the amount of the distribution of property made by the disposing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer, as case may be, is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

D is the total of all amounts each of which is the cost to the taxpayer of a distributed property received by the taxpayer from the disposing foreign affiliate as the payment of a dividend or as the distribution of property, as the case may be, and

E is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a debt owing by the disposing foreign affiliate or of an obligation of the disposing foreign affiliate to pay an amount (other than a dividend payable to the taxpayer or to persons with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length) that was assumed or cancelled by the taxpayer because of the payment of the dividend or because of the distribution.

- The amount of a distribution of property made, at the distribution time, by the disposing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer, is to be deducted in computing the taxpayer's adjusted cost base of a particular share of the capital stock of the disposing foreign affiliate held by the taxpayer, at that time, to the extent that it is reasonable to consider the distribution as a payment made by the disposing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer as
  - a return of an amount that was received by the disposing foreign affiliate as consideration for the issuance of the particular share, or — a return of an amount of contributed surplus that was received by the disposing foreign affiliate, before the distribution time, as a contribution of capital to the disposing foreign affiliate by the shareholder that held the particular share at that time of the contribution.

- The amount of a distribution of property made, at the distribution time, by the disposing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer is to be included in computing the taxpayer's income as income from property that is the shares of the capital stock of disposing foreign affiliate held at that time by the taxpayer, to the extent that it is not deducted in computing the adjusted cost base of a particular share of the capital stock of the disposing foreign affiliate held by the taxpayer.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Aug. 19, 2004:

Dear [xxx]:

We are responding to your correspondence and related communications made on behalf of [xxx] in connection with proposed subsection 88(3) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"), as contained in the draft technical amendments released on February 27, 2004 by the Minister of Finance, the Honourable Ralph Goodale.

In your correspondence and communications, you mention the case where a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada makes a payment to the taxpayer of an amount in respect of shares held by the taxpayer of a particular class of shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate. For the purposes of your submission, you ask us to assume that

- the payment in question is not a dividend under the relevant foreign corporation law governing the foreign affiliate and is a reduction or a return to the taxpayer of the shares' portion of the paid-up capital in respect of the particular class of shares under that law, and
- the amount of the payment in question does not exceed the taxpayer's pro-rata portion (based on the proportion that the number of shares of the particular class of shares held by the taxpayer is of the total number of outstanding shares of the particular class) of the amount of money that had been received by the foreign affiliate on the issuance of shares of the particular class or received by another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer on the issuance of shares of the capital stock of that other foreign affiliate that were exchanged for shares of the particular class.

Under the Act as it currently reads, the payment in question would be treated as a return of the paid-up capital of the shares of the particular class held by the taxpayer and would be deducted, under paragraph 53(2)(b), in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the shares. No amount would, under the Act as it currently reads, be included in the income of the taxpayer in respect of the payment except amounts that may be required to be included in the taxpayer's income because of a gain that could arise, under subsection 40(3), in respect of the payment if the amount of the payment exceeded the taxpayer's adjusted cost base of those shares held by the taxpayer.

The proposed subsection 88(3) of the Act that was included in the February 27, 2004 draft technical amendments was not intended to change the tax outcome described above in respect of the payment made as a return of the paid-up capital of the shares of the foreign affiliate described above. Although our Branch is studying further revisions to that proposed subsection 88(3), it is not intended that any such revisions that we would recommend to the Minister of Finance would change that tax outcome in respect of such a payment. I can also confirm that the operation of that proposed subsection 88(3) is not intended to be dependent upon the source of the funds used by the foreign affiliate of the taxpayer to make such a payment to the taxpayer.

I trust that the foregoing provides the clarifications sought.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Jan. 19, 2005:

Dear [xxx]:

Subject: Subsection 88(3) of the Income Tax Act

Thank you for your letter dated July 30, 2004 in connection with proposed subsection 88(3) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"), as contained in the draft technical amendments released on February 27, 2004 by the Minister of Finance.

Your letter relates to the application of that proposed subsection 88(3) to a proposed distribution of money to a taxpayer resident in Canada by a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer made in respect of shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate held by the taxpayer. According to your letter, that distribution is in respect of amounts included in the shares' portion of the paid-up capital (determined under the relevant foreign corporation law) in respect of the class of shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate to which the shares belong.

Your concern is that the portion of a distribution that is not treated by proposed subsection 88(3) as a reduction to the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the shares would be treated by that proposed subsection as income from property (other than dividends) from the shares. You request that that proposed subsection 88(3) be revised so as to treat the amount of that distribution made to the taxpayer in respect of the shares, to the extent that the amount exceeds the total of the amounts of the reductions in respect of the distribution to the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the shares, as the payment of a dividend on the shares. You argue that such a revision to proposed subsection 88(3) would, where the taxpayer is a corporation, enable the taxpayer to benefit from the deductions permitted under section 113 of the Act in respect of dividends paid by the foreign affiliate that are prescribed by the Income Tax Regulations to be paid out of the foreign affiliate's exempt surplus in respect of the taxpayer.

From a tax policy perspective, we agree that, in the circumstances described in your letter, it would be appropriate to make the change you have requested. We are currently considering revisions to that proposed subsection 88(3) of the Act, and the requested revision to subsection 88(3) that is described in this letter is to be included in our recommendations to the Minister of Finance.

Thank you again for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Aug. 16, 2005:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your letter dated July 11, 2005 with respect to proposed subsection 88(3) of the Income Tax Act as contained in the foreign affiliate proposals announced on February 27, 2004 by the Minister of Finance. You requested confirmation of certain possible modifications to that proposed subsection 88(3) and, presumably, certain other modifications to section 88 of the Act that would apply in the case of certain liquidations and dissolutions of foreign affiliates of a taxpayer resident in Canada.

As noted in your letter, existing subsection 88(3) of the Act provides that, where a property of a controlled foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada that is a share (the "disposed share") of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer is disposed of to the taxpayer on the dissolution of the controlled foreign affiliate (the "dissolved foreign affiliate"), the dissolved foreign affiliate's proceeds of disposition of the disposed share are deemed to equal its adjusted cost base to the dissolved foreign affiliate immediately before the dissolution (or such greater amount as the taxpayer claims not exceeding the fair market value of the disposed share). The taxpayer's cost of the disposed share is deemed to equal the disposed foreign affiliate's proceeds of disposition in respect of the disposed share. In accordance with the results determined under section 69 of the Act, each other type of property of the dissolved foreign affiliate that is disposed of by the dissolved foreign affiliate to the taxpayer on the dissolution is treated as having been disposed of by the dissolved foreign affiliate for proceeds, and to have been acquired by the taxpayer at a cost, equal to that property's fair market value. The taxpayer's proceeds from the disposition of the shares of the capital stock of the dissolved foreign affiliate are deemed to equal the amount (if any) by which the total cost to the taxpayer of all the property disposed of to the taxpayer by the dissolved foreign affiliate on the dissolution exceeds the total amount of debts and other obligations of the dissolved foreign affiliate (other than dividends payable to the taxpayer or non-arm's length persons) that are assumed or cancelled by the taxpayer on the dissolution.

As you know, proposed subsection 88(3), as contained in the February 2004 proposals, substantially changed the scope and operation of the rule. In particular, the scope of the rule was extended to cover all distributions of property by all foreign affiliates of the taxpayer to the taxpayer, whether or not the distribution was on the dissolution of the foreign affiliate or the foreign affiliate was a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer. For example, a distribution of a property by a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer (the "distributing foreign affiliate") to the taxpayer as a dividend in kind receives the same treatment as the distribution of that property to the taxpayer on a share redemption made by the distributing foreign affiliate or in the course of a liquidation and dissolution of the distributing foreign affiliate. As well, in contrast to existing subsection 88(3), shares of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that are distributed by the distributing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer would be treated differently under the February 2004 proposals, depending on whether or not the shares are excluded property of the foreign affiliate. Where such a distributed share is an excluded property of the foreign affiliate, under the February 2004 proposals, the taxpayer is permitted to elect to treat the distributing foreign affiliate's proceeds of disposition of the share as being an amount that is equal to the adjusted cost base, immediately before the distribution, of the share or such greater amount that does not exceed the fair market value of the share immediately before the distribution. Where it is not, the share is treated, in accordance with the results that would be obtained under section 69, as having been disposed of by the distributing foreign affiliate for proceeds of disposition equal to the fair market value of the share immediately before the distribution.

In your letter, you refer to comments made by Department of Finance officials that the Tax Legislation Division is considering requested revisions to proposed subsection 88(3) that would provide an additional and distinct rule in circumstances where a distributing foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that is wholly-owned or substantially wholly-owned by the taxpayer, distributes, in the course of its liquidation and dissolution, property to the taxpayer in respect of shares of the capital stock of the distributing foreign affiliate held by the taxpayer. Under such revisions, the taxpayer would be able to elect the distributing foreign affiliate's proceeds of distribution and the taxpayer's cost for each property of the distributing foreign affiliate (not only excluded property) that is distributed by it to the taxpayer in such circumstances. The revisions would provide that the taxpayer could elect an amount that would result in no gain or loss of the distributing foreign affiliate in respect of the distributed property, or such greater amount (not exceeding the distributed property's fair market value) that would result in a gain of the distributing foreign affiliate in respect of the distributed property. You request confirmation that such revisions will be recommended to the Minister of Finance.

From a tax policy viewpoint, we would support such an additional and distinct rule in subsection 88(3) provided that the distributing foreign affiliate is wholly-owned or substantially wholly-owned by the taxpayer. In those circumstances, it could be considered that no substantial change in the ultimate economic interests in the distributed property of the distributing foreign affiliate could occur by reason of the liquidation and dissolution of the distributing foreign affiliate. We note that subsection 88(1) requires ownership of not less than 90 percent of shares of each class and, all things being equal, we would propose to apply the same threshold in the context of subsection 88(3). Based, however, on discussions with representatives of the tax community on this point, we are prepared to adopt a different test in connection with subsection 88(3) to determine whether the taxpayer meets the equity ownership threshold in the foreign affiliate to qualify for such an additional and distinct rule in that subsection. The test would require the taxpayer to hold shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate such that, in total, the taxpayer has at least 90 percent of the voting rights at a general meeting of the foreign affiliate in all circumstances (immediately before the commencement of the liquidation and dissolution of the foreign affiliate) and such that the fair market value of all properties distributed to the taxpayer, in respect of shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate, by the foreign affiliate in the course of the liquidation and dissolution is equal to at least 90 percent of the total fair market value of all properties distributed to all shareholders of the foreign affiliate, in respect of shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate, by the foreign affiliate in the course of the liquidation and dissolution.

Although the technical details of the possible modifications to that proposed subsection 88(3) and to section 88 of the Act are still being finalized, we can confirm, in general terms, our intention to recommend that modifications be made to that proposal and to section 88 and other relevant provisions of the Act. Those recommended modifications would treat a liquidation and dissolution of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada as a qualifying liquidation and dissolution of that foreign affiliate of the taxpayer if the taxpayer meets the required equity ownership threshold in the foreign affiliate. In general terms, the recommended modifications would also provide for the following tax rules in respect of a qualifying liquidation and dissolution of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada where the taxpayer so elects in writing to have those tax rules apply in respect of the qualifying liquidation and dissolution of the foreign affiliate:

- the foreign affiliate would be deemed to have disposed of each property (the "distributed property") that is distributed, in the course of the qualifying liquidation and dissolution, by the foreign affiliate to the taxpayer in respect of shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate held by the taxpayer for proceeds of disposition (assuming that the foreign affiliate has not received consideration from the taxpayer in respect of the distributed property that exceeds the amount described below as the "relevant cost amount" of the distributed property) that are equal to the greater of
  - the "relevant cost amount" of the distributed property to the foreign affiliate in respect of the taxpayer (being essentially the amount that would generally result in no gain or loss to the foreign affiliate in respect of the taxpayer in respect of the disposition of the distributed property), and
  - the amount elected by that taxpayer (not exceeding the fair market value of the particular distributed property);
- any income or taxable capital gain of the foreign affiliate derived from the disposition of the distributed property would be included in computing the foreign affiliate's foreign accrual property income in respect of the taxpayer;
- the taxpayer's cost of the distributed property would be deemed to be equal to the foreign affiliate's proceeds of disposition of that property;
- the amount of the distribution made by the foreign affiliate to the taxpayer in respect of the distributed property would be deemed to be equal to the amount, if any, by which the cost to the taxpayer of the distributed property exceeds the total of all of the following amounts:
  - the portion of an amount owing by or of an obligation of the foreign affiliate (other than dividends payable to the taxpayer or non-arm's length persons) that was assumed or cancelled by the taxpayer because of that distribution of the distributed property, and
  - the cost to the foreign affiliate of a property that was received by the foreign affiliate from the taxpayer as consideration for that distribution by the foreign affiliate of the distributed property; and
- the portion of the amount of the distribution made by the foreign affiliate to the taxpayer in respect of the distributed property that relates to a particular share of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate would be treated as
  - a return of the paid-up capital in respect of the particular share in respect of the taxpayer to the extent of the "foreign paid-up capital" in respect of the particular share in respect of the taxpayer (generally, the particular share's portion of the total amounts contributed by the foreign affiliate's shareholders to the foreign affiliate in respect of the shares of the class to which the particular share belongs, provided that those shareholder contributions were in respect of shares issued to or held by those shareholders), and
  - a dividend paid by the foreign affiliate to the taxpayer resident in Canada in respect of the particular share to the extent that that portion of the amount of the distribution is not treated as a return of the paid-up capital in respect of the particular share in respect of the taxpayer.

We would recommend that such revisions to proposed subsection 88(3) of the Act and to section 88 and other relevant provisions of the Act apply to a liquidation and a dissolution, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada, that begins after February 27, 2004.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 12, 2006:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your letters dated December 12, 2005 and January 30, 2006 with respect to proposed subsection 88(3) and paragraph 95(2)(e.1) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") as contained in the foreign affiliate proposals announced on February 27, 2004 by the Minister of Finance. You have requested confirmation of certain possible modifications to proposed subsection 88(3) and paragraph 95(2)(e.1) and certain other identified related provisions of the Act that would apply to a liquidation and dissolution, after February 27, 2004, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada.

Subsection 88(3) of the Act

As noted in your correspondence, existing subsection 88(3) of the Act provides that, where a property of a controlled foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada that is a share of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer is disposed of to the taxpayer on the dissolution of the controlled foreign affiliate (the "disposing foreign affiliate"), the disposing foreign affiliate's proceeds of disposition of the share are deemed to equal its adjusted cost base to the disposing foreign affiliate immediately before the dissolution (or such greater amount as the taxpayer claims not exceeding the fair market value of the share). The taxpayer's cost of the share is deemed to equal the disposing foreign affiliate's proceeds of disposition in respect of the share. In accordance with the results determined under section 69 of the Act, each other type of property of the disposing foreign affiliate that is disposed of by the disposing foreign affiliate to the taxpayer on the dissolution is treated as having been disposed of by the disposing foreign affiliate for proceeds, and to have been acquired by the taxpayer at a cost, equal to that property's fair market value. Existing subsection 88(3) also provides that the taxpayer's proceeds from the disposition of shares held by the taxpayer in the capital stock of the disposing foreign affiliate are deemed to equal the amount (if any) by which the total cost to the taxpayer of all the property disposed of to the taxpayer by the disposing foreign affiliate on the dissolution exceeds the total amount of debts and other obligations of the disposing foreign affiliate (other than dividends payable to the taxpayer or non-arm's length persons) that are assumed or cancelled by the taxpayer on the dissolution.

In your correspondence, you asked for confirmation of our intention to recommend that proposed subsection 88(3) be revised to provide an additional and distinct rule in circumstances where a foreign affiliate (the "disposing foreign affiliate") of a taxpayer resident in Canada distributes, in the course of its liquidation and dissolution, property to the taxpayer in respect of shares of the capital stock of the disposing foreign affiliate held by the taxpayer. Under such a revision, the taxpayer would be able to elect to treat the amount of the disposing foreign affiliate's proceeds of distribution for each property of the disposing foreign affiliate (not only excluded property) that is distributed by it to the taxpayer in such circumstances as being such a particular amount that would result in no gain or loss of the disposing foreign affiliate in respect of the distributed property, or to be such an amount (not exceeding the distributed property's fair market value) that would result in a gain of the disposing foreign affiliate in respect of the distributed property. That particular amount would also be treated as the amount of the taxpayer's cost for that distributed property.

From a tax policy viewpoint, such an additional and distinct rule in subsection 88(3) would be supportable provided that the disposing foreign affiliate is wholly-owned or substantially wholly-owned by the taxpayer. It could, in those circumstances, be considered that no substantial change in the ultimate economic interests in the distributed property of the disposing foreign affiliate would occur by reason of the liquidation and dissolution of the disposing foreign affiliate. We note that subsection 88(1) requires ownership of not less than 90% of the shares of each class and, all things being equal, we would propose to apply the same threshold in the context of subsection 88(3). Based, however, on discussions with representatives of the tax community on this point, we are prepared to adopt a different test in connection with subsection 88(3) to determine whether the taxpayer meets the equity ownership threshold in the disposing foreign affiliate to qualify for such an additional and distinct rule in that subsection. The test would require the taxpayer to hold shares of the capital stock of the disposing foreign affiliate such that, in total, the taxpayer has at least 90% of the voting rights at a general meeting of the disposing foreign affiliate in all circumstances (immediately before the commencement of the liquidation and dissolution of the disposing foreign affiliate) and such that the fair market value of all properties distributed to the taxpayer, in respect of shares of the capital stock of the disposing foreign affiliate, by the disposing foreign affiliate in the course of the liquidation and dissolution is equal to at least 90% of the total fair market value of all properties distributed to all shareholders of the disposing foreign affiliate, in respect of shares of the capital stock of the disposing foreign affiliate, by the disposing foreign affiliate in the course of the liquidation and dissolution.

Although the technical details of the possible modifications to that proposed subsection 88(3) and to the related provisions of the Act are still being finalized, we can confirm, in general terms, our intention to recommend that modifications be made to that proposal and to the other relevant provisions of the Act. Those recommended modifications would treat a liquidation and dissolution of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada as a qualifying liquidation and dissolution of that foreign affiliate of the taxpayer if the taxpayer meets the required equity ownership threshold in the foreign affiliate. In general terms, the recommended modifications would also provide for the following tax rules in respect of a qualifying liquidation and dissolution of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada where the taxpayer so elects in writing to have those tax rules apply in respect of the qualifying liquidation and dissolution of the foreign affiliate:

1. the foreign affiliate would be deemed to have disposed of each property (the "distributed property") that is distributed, in the course of the qualifying liquidation and dissolution, by the foreign affiliate to the taxpayer in respect of shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate held by the taxpayer for proceeds of disposition (assuming that the foreign affiliate has not received consideration from the taxpayer in respect of the distributed property that exceeds the amount described below as the "relevant cost amount" of the distributed property) that are equal to the greater of
   - the "relevant cost amount" of the distributed property to the foreign affiliate in respect of the taxpayer (being essentially the amount that would generally result in no gain or loss to the foreign affiliate in respect of the taxpayer in respect of the disposition of the distributed property), and
   - where the foreign affiliate is a controlled foreign affiliate of that taxpayer, the amount elected by that taxpayer (not exceeding the fair market value of the particular distributed property);
2. any income or taxable capital gain of the foreign affiliate derived from the disposition of the distributed property would be included in computing the foreign affiliate's foreign accrual property income in respect of the taxpayer;
3. the taxpayer's cost of the distributed property would be deemed to be equal to the foreign affiliate's proceeds of disposition of that property;
4. the amount of the distribution made by the foreign affiliate to the taxpayer in respect of the distributed property would be deemed to be equal to the amount, if any, by which the cost to the taxpayer of the distributed property exceeds the total of all of the following amounts:
   - the portion of an amount owing by or of an obligation of the foreign affiliate (other than dividends payable to the taxpayer or non-arm's length persons) that was assumed or cancelled by the taxpayer because of that distribution of the distributed property, and
   - the cost to the foreign affiliate of a property that was received by the foreign affiliate from the taxpayer as consideration for that distribution by the foreign affiliate of the distributed property;
5. the portion of the amount of the distribution made by the foreign affiliate to the taxpayer in respect of the distributed property that relates to a particular share of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate would not be treated as proceeds of disposition of the foreign affiliate of the distributed property and would be treated as
   - a return of the paid-up capital in respect of the particular share in respect of the taxpayer to the extent of the "foreign paid-up capital" in respect of the particular share in respect of the taxpayer, and
   - a dividend paid by the foreign affiliate to the taxpayer resident in Canada in respect of the particular share to the extent that that portion of the amount of the distribution is not treated as a return of the paid-up capital in respect of the particular share in respect of the taxpayer;
6. any loss of the taxpayer resident in Canada from the disposition of a particular share of the foreign affiliate that was redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the foreign affiliate in the course of the liquidation and the dissolution would be deemed to be nil;
7. generally, the foreign paid-up capital of a particular share of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate of the taxpayer resident in Canada in respect of the taxpayer would be the particular share's portion of the foreign paid-up capital of the class of shares of the foreign affiliate's capital stock to which the particular share belongs;
8. generally, the foreign paid-up capital of a particular class of shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate of the taxpayer resident in Canada would be the total amounts contributed by the foreign affiliate's shareholders to the foreign affiliate in respect of the shares of the class to which the particular share belongs, provided that those shareholder contributions were in respect of shares issued to or held by those shareholders;
9. however, in computing the foreign paid-up capital of a particular class of shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate of the taxpayer resident in Canada in respect of the taxpayer, where property other than money is contributed to the foreign affiliate in respect of shares of the particular class of shares of the foreign affiliate, the amount added in respect of that contribution of property to the foreign paid-up capital of the particular class of shares of the foreign affiliate in respect of the taxpayer would be determined by reference to the cost to the foreign affiliate of that contributed property, except that, where the contributed property is shares of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, the amount added would be limited to the foreign paid-up capital in respect of the shares of the other foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of the taxpayer; and
10. the amounts required to be determined under that proposed subsection 88(3) and the related provisions of the Act would be determined in Canadian dollars because those amounts are relevant for Canadian tax purposes.

We propose to recommend to the Minister of Finance that such revisions to proposed subsection 88(3) of the Act and to the other relevant provisions of the Act apply to a liquidation and dissolution, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada, that begins after February 27, 2004.

[The CRA states that it does not comment on comfort letters, but has a brief comment on this one: VIEWS doc 2008-0276731C6 — ed.]

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 9, 2006:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your letter dated May 4, 2006 with respect to proposed subsection 88(3) and paragraph 95(2)(e.1) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") as contained in the foreign affiliate proposals announced on February 27, 2004.

You were told, in our letter to you dated April 12, 2006, that we are considering modifications to proposed subsection 88(3) and paragraph 95(2)(e.1) of the Act that would characterize the amount of the distribution (determined in respect of a distribution of property in respect of a share of the capital stock of the disposing foreign affiliate) as a dividend paid on the share to the extent that the amount of the distribution exceeds the amount treated by the foreign affiliate as a reduction of the foreign paid-up capital in respect of the share.

You have asked, and we can confirm, that the portion of the amount of a distribution made in respect of a share that is treated by the foreign affiliate of a taxpayer as a reduction of the foreign paid-up capital in respect of the share (not exceeding the amount, immediately before the distribution, of the foreign paid-up capital in respect of the share) will not be a dividend under the foreign affiliate proposals and will reduce the shareholder's adjusted cost base of the share. The foreign affiliate will, therefore, be permitted to distribute property to the shareholder as a return of foreign paid-up capital in respect of a share determined in respect of the taxpayer prior to making distributions of property in respect of any existing surplus of the foreign affiliate determined in respect of the taxpayer.

The amount by which the amount of the distribution in respect of a share exceeds the portion of the amount of the distribution that is treated by the foreign affiliate as a reduction of the foreign paid-up capital in respect of the share is to be characterized as a dividend received by the shareholder on the share. The normal surplus distribution rules will apply to determine the portion of the dividend that is paid out of the various surplus pots of the foreign affiliate determined in respect of the taxpayer. To the extent that a dividend received on a share is paid out of the foreign affiliate's pre-acquisition surplus determined in respect of the taxpayer, the dividend will reduce the shareholder's adjusted cost base of the share.

I trust that these comments have provided the clarification requested. Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 9, 2006:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your letter concerning proposed subsection 88(3) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") as contained in the foreign affiliate proposals announced on February 27, 2004. In your letter, you express your concern about the wording of draft subparagraphs 88(3)(e)(i) and (ii).

In your letter, you mention the situation where, prior to February 27, 2004, a corporation resident in Canada contributed cash, for no consideration, to a wholly-owned controlled foreign affiliate ("CFA") of the corporation as a contribution of capital in respect of the ordinary shares (common shares) of CFA. Under the relevant foreign corporation law, that capital contribution resulted in contributed surplus of the CFA. Pursuant to paragraph 53(1)(c) of the Act, the taxpayer's adjusted cost base of the ordinary shares of CFA held by the taxpayer increased because of that capital contribution.

You have also indicated that CFA would like to return the contributed surplus to the holders of its ordinary shares. You maintain that, under that foreign corporate law, CFA must make a bonus issuance of ordinary shares in order to increase the legal share capital (in this case, the par value) of those shares and reduce the contributed surplus in respect of the ordinary shares by the amount of the contribution of capital referred to above. CFA must then pass a resolution to make a pro rata reduction of the par value of all its ordinary shares (including the bonus shares) the total of which would equal the amount of that contribution of capital.

You are concerned that the return of the par value in respect of a share would not meet the requirements under the February 2004 draft wording of proposed subparagraph 88(3)(e)(i) of the Act. This concern arises because the par value in respect of a share being returned to the holders of the ordinary shares was received by the CFA as a contribution of capital rather than on the issuance of ordinary shares.

We intend to recommend certain modifications to the proposed foreign affiliate amendments that, if acted upon, may address the concerns expressed. Under the modified rules, the taxpayer would be required to determine the foreign paid-up capital of each class of shares of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada. The foreign paid-up capital of a particular share would be determined by dividing the foreign paid-up capital of the class by the number of issued and outstanding shares of the class. The total foreign paid-up capital of the foreign affiliate would be equal to the total foreign paid-up capital for all classes of shares of the foreign affiliate.

As well, the modifications will provide rules for the purposes of determining the foreign paid-up capital of a class of shares of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer. The foreign paid-up capital of a class of shares of the foreign affiliate will, for example, be reduced by the amount of distributions made by the foreign affiliate as consideration for a return of the paid-up capital in respect of a share of the class. As well, rules are to be provided for the purpose of determining the amounts to be added in computing the foreign paid-up capital in respect of a class of shares of the foreign affiliate in respect of property received by the foreign affiliate for the issuance of shares of the class or as a contribution of capital in respect of shares of the class.

A foreign affiliate that notifies its shareholders that it is making a distribution of property to them as a return of all or a portion of the amounts included in the foreign paid-up capital in respect of shares of a particular class of the foreign affiliate can treat the distribution as a reduction of the foreign paid-up capital in respect of those shares rather than as payment of a dividend on those shares, to the extent that the foreign paid-up capital in respect of those shares exists immediately before the distribution. The distribution must have the same character for all shareholders of that class.

For example, in the situation you describe in your letter and assuming that all of the ordinary shares (other than the bonus shares) were issued for cash, the foreign paid-up capital, at any particular time, of the class of shares to which the ordinary shares belong would be determined as follows. There would be added the total of all amounts received, before the particular time, by CFA on the issuance of ordinary shares or as a contribution of capital in respect of the ordinary shares from holders of the ordinary shares. There would be deducted the total of all amounts paid, before the particular time, by CFA to the holders of ordinary shares as a return of the foreign paid-up capital in respect of those ordinary shares. The foreign paid-up capital, at any particular time, of a particular ordinary share would be determined by dividing the foreign paid-up capital, at that time, of the class to which the particular ordinary share belongs by the number, at that time, of issued and outstanding ordinary shares of that class.

It will be recommended that the above-mentioned modifications would apply to distributions made after February 27, 2004. However, if the taxpayer makes an election that applies in respect of all of its foreign affiliates, there would be a transitional version of new subsection 88(3) that would include a provision that would generally determine the paid-up capital of a class of shares of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer and of a share of that class by reference to the amounts added under the relevant foreign corporate law to the paid-up capital or the contributed surplus in respect of the class of shares.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 1, 2008:

Ms. Sandra Jack, Mr. John Burghardt, and Mr. Brett Anderson
Felesky Flynn LLP, Calgary, AB

Dear Ms. Jack, Mr. Burghardt and Mr. Anderson:

I am writing in response to your letter of December 13, 2007 concerning subsection 88(3) of the Income Tax Act (Act). In your letter you have asked for confirmation of the Department's intention to recommend to the Minister of Finance certain amendments as described in letters dated August 16, 2005 and April 12, 2006 from Mr. Brian Ernewein.

As you know, it was stated in the 2007 Budget documents, and confirmed in the 2008 Budget, that previously released proposals (the "2004 FA proposals") in respect of the taxation of income from foreign affiliates would be reviewed and evaluated in view of the international tax measures announced in the 2007 Budget. Certain of these 2004 FA proposals, as modified to take into account some of the 2007 Budget measures, were enacted by Bill C-28 that received Royal Assent on December 14, 2007.

The review and evaluation referred to in the 2007 Budget documents is still in progress in respect of the remaining 2004 FA proposals, including the modifications to subsection 88(3) of the Act. Accordingly, it is possible that further changes may be made in this area of the tax law. However, we would in that event recommend to the Minister of Finance that any further changes to the proposed modifications to subsection 88(3) of the Act (including any recommended modifications as described in the letters referred to above) incorporated appropriate transitional provisions to ensure that the changes did not impair any beneficial effect of those proposed modifications for the period before the conclusion of the review.

While I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with our recommendations, I hope that this statement of our intentions is helpful to you.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Gerard Lalonde, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

88.1 [Repealed]

Proposed Addition — 88.1 — SIFT wind-ups

88.1 (1) Application — Subsection (2) applies to a trust's distribution of property to a taxpayer if

(a) the distribution is a SIFT trust wind-up event;

(b) the trust is

(i) a SIFT wind-up entity whose only beneficiary, at all times at which the trust makes a distribution that is a SIFT trust wind-up event, is a taxable Canadian corporation, or

(ii) a trust whose only beneficiary, at all times at which the trust makes a distribution that is a SIFT trust wind-up event, is another trust described by subparagraph (i);

(c) where the trust is a SIFT wind-up entity, the distribution occurs no more than 60 days after the earlier of

(i) the first SIFT trust wind-up event of the trust, and

(ii) the first distribution to the trust that is a SIFT trust wind-up event of another trust; and

(d) if the property is shares of the capital stock of a taxable Canadian corporation,

(i) the property was not acquired by the trust on a distribution to which subsection 107(3.1) applies, and

(ii) the trust elects in writing, filed with the Minister on or before the trust's filing-due date for its taxation year that includes the time of the distribution, that this section apply to the distribution.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): New section 88.1 is one of a series of amendments intended to provide for the income tax effects on a reorganization into corporate form of a SIFT wind-up entity. Section 88.1 provides for the tax consequences on a trusts distribution that is a SIFT trust wind-up event (as defined in subsection 248(1)). The section allows certain trusts (i.e., a SIFT wind-up entity and its wholly-owned subsidiary trusts) to access the wind-up rules in subsections 88 (1) to (1.7) (and section 87 and subsection 256(7) as they apply for those purposes) in respect of such a distribution.

New subsection 88.1(1) sets out the conditions that must be met in order for the rules in subsection 88.1(2) to apply to a trust's distribution of property to a taxpayer.

Subsection 88.1(1) requires that the distribution be a "SIFT trust wind-up event", as defined in subsection 248(1). Only certain trusts qualify as distributing trusts for this purpose. The distributing trust must be a "SIFT wind-up entity" that has only a taxable Canadian corporation as its beneficiary, or a trust the only beneficiary of which is such a SIFT wind-up entity. As a result, subsection 88.1(2) will apply only to a distribution by a "subsidiary" trust made at a time at which its "parent" trust is a SIFT wind-up entity wholly-owned, in turn, by a taxable Canadian corporation (i.e. a SIFT wind-up corporation, in respect of the parent trust). Where the SIFT wind-up entity trust's immediate subsidiary trust has, in turn, its own subsidiary trust, the SIFT wind-up entity trust's subsidiary trust must first be wound-up, such that the "lower" tier trust takes the place as the SIFT wind-up entity trust's immediate subsidiary trust.

Subsection 88.1(1) also imposes timing requirements on distributions by the SIFT wind-up entity trust in order for subsection 88.1(2) to apply to the distribution. A distribution by the SIFT wind-up entity trust must be made no more than 60 days after the earlier of its first SIFT trust wind-up event distribution and the first SIFT trust wind-up event distribution to it by a subsidiary trust.

Finally, paragraph 88.1(1)(d) provides an ordering rule with respect to the interaction of subsection 88.1(2) and subsection 107(3.1). Where the property distributed is shares of a taxable Canadian corporation, that paragraph provides that subsection 88.1(2) will apply only if:

- the trust did not acquire the shares on a distribution to which subsection 107(3.1) applies, and
- the trust elects that section 88.1 apply to the distribution.

(2) SIFT trust wind-up event — If this subsection applies to a trust's distribution of property to a taxpayer, subsections 88(1) to (1.7), and section 87 and paragraphs 256(7)(a) to (e) as they apply for the purposes of those subsections, apply, with any modifications that the circumstances require, as if

(a) the trust were a taxable Canadian corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "subsidiary") that is not a private corporation;

(b) where the taxpayer is a SIFT wind-up entity, the taxpayer were a taxable Canadian corporation that is not a private corporation;

(c) the distribution were a winding-up of the subsidiary;

(d) the taxpayer's interest as a beneficiary under the trust were shares of a single class of shares of the capital stock of the subsidiary owned by the taxpayer;

(e) paragraph 88(1)(b) deemed the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the shares described in paragraph (d) and owned by the taxpayer immediately before the distribution to be equal to the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the taxpayer's interest as a beneficiary under the trust immediately before the distribution;

(f) each trust, a majority-interest beneficiary (in this subsection, within the meaning assigned by section 251.1) of which is another trust that is by operation of this subsection treated as if it were a corporation, were a corporation; and

(g) except for the purposes of subsections 88(1.1) and (1.2), the taxpayer last acquired control of the subsidiary and of each corporation (including a trust that is by operation of this subsection treated as if it were a corporation) controlled by the subsidiary at the time, if any, at which the taxpayer last became a majority-interest beneficiary of the trust.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): New subsection 88.1(2) allows the rules in subsections 88(1) to (1.7) to apply to a trust's distribution, subject to certain modifications. The modifications treat the trust as a taxable Canadian corporation that is not a private corporation, the distribution by the trust as the winding up of the corporation, and the taxpayer's interest as a beneficiary of the trust as shares of the corporation. In addition:

- paragraph 88(1)(b) does not apply to determine the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of its interest as a beneficiary — these proceeds are instead deemed to be equal to the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the interest immediately before the distribution (this rule, however, does not displace the application of subparagraph 88(1)(b)(ii) as it otherwise applies, for example for purposes of paragraph 88(1)(d));
- each trust, a majority interest beneficiary (within the meaning assigned by section 251.1) of which is another trust deemed to be a corporation, is itself treated as a corporation; and
- except for the purposes of subsection 88(1.1) and (1.2), the taxpayer is treated as having last acquired control of the subsidiary and of each corporation (including a trust deemed to be a corporation) controlled by the subsidiary at the time at which the taxpayer last became a majority interest beneficiary (within the meaning assigned by section 251.1) under the trust;

In applying the provisions in subsections 88(1) to (1.7) for these purposes, section 87 and paragraphs 256(7)(a) to (e) are also made to apply. In respect of all of these provisions, other modifications are to be made as the circumstances require. For example, in applying paragraphs 256(7)(a) to (e) for the purposes of subsections 88(1.1) and (1.2) in respect of the winding up of a trust, a provision requiring that corporations be related is intended, if the circumstances require, to be read as though the reference to a corporation included the trust.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 21, will add s. 88.1, applicable after July 14, 2008, except that subsec. 88.1(1) is to be read without reference to its para. (c) in its application to a trust's distribution of property, if this distribution occurs no more than 60 days after the date of Royal Assent of the amending legislation.

88.1 Corporate emigration — Where at any particular time after August 28, 1980 a corporation that was incorporated in Canada, other than a corporation that was not at any time resident in Canada,

(a) has been granted articles of continuance, or similar corporate constitutional documents, in a jurisdiction outside Canada, or

(b) has become resident in a jurisdiction outside Canada and would, as a consequence thereof, be exempt from tax under this Part on income from any source outside Canada derived by it after the particular time by virtue of any Act of Parliament or anything approved, made or declared to have the force of law under any Act of Parliament,

the following rules apply:

(c) the corporation's taxation year that would otherwise have included the particular time shall be deemed to have ended immediately before the particular time and a new taxation year of the corporation shall be deemed to have commenced at the particular time,

(d) the corporation shall be deemed not to be a Canadian corporation at the particular time and all subsequent times,

(g) each property deemed by paragraph (e) to have been disposed of by the corporation shall be deemed to have been reacquired by it immediately after the particular time at a cost equal to the proceeds of disposition of the property as determined in that paragraph.

89. (1) Definitions — In this subdivision,

Proposed Addition — 89(1)"adjusted taxable income"

"adjusted taxable income" of a corporation for a taxation year is the amount determined by the formula

A – B – C

where

A is

(a) unless paragraph (b) applies, the corporation's taxable income for the taxation year, and

(b) if the corporation is a deposit insurance corporation in the taxation year, nil,

B is the amount determined by multiplying the amount, if any, deducted by the corporation under subsection 125(1) for the taxation year by the quotient obtained by dividing 100 by the rate of the deduction provided under that subsection for the taxation year, and

C is

(a) if the corporation is a Canadian-controlled private corporation in the taxation year, the lesser of the corporation's aggregate investment income for the taxation year and the corporation's taxable income for the taxation year, and

(b) in any other case, nil;

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 22(3), will add the definition "adjusted taxable income" to subsec. 89(1), applicable to 2006 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The new definition "adjusted taxable income" of a corporation is relevant for the determination of the corporation's "general rate income pool" (GRIP). This new definition in effect replaces that portion of the existing definition of GRIP represented by (D – E – F).

"Adjusted taxable income" of a corporation for a taxation year is the amount determined by the formula:

A – B – C

A is the corporation's taxable income for the taxation year, unless the corporation is a deposit insurance corporation (DIC), in which case the A amount is nil. (The taxable income of most DICs is already taxed at a preferential rate under subsection 137.1(9).)

B is, in general terms, the taxable income in respect of which the corporation has benefited from the small business deduction under 125(1).

If the corporation is a Canadian-controlled private corporation, the amount C is the lesser of the corporation's aggregate investment income for the particular taxation year and its taxable income for the taxation year. In any other case, the amount C is nil.

Related Provisions: 89(1)"general rate income pool"A:D — Application of adjusted taxable income; 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

"Canadian corporation" at any time means a corporation that is resident in Canada at that time and was

(a) incorporated in Canada, or

(b) resident in Canada throughout the period that began on June 18, 1971 and that ends at that time, and, for greater certainty, a corporation formed at any particular time by the amalgamation or merger of, or by a plan of arrangement or other corporate reorganization in respect of, 2 or more corporations (otherwise than as a result of the acquisition of property of one corporation by another corporation, pursuant to the purchase of the property by the other corporation or as a result of the distribution of the property to the other corporation on the winding-up of the corporation) is a Canadian corporation because of paragraph (a) only if

(c) that reorganization took place under the laws of Canada or a province, and

(d) each of those corporations was, immediately before the particular time, a Canadian corporation;

Related Provisions: 134 — NRO not a Canadian corporation; 219 — Additional tax on corporations (other than Canadian corporations) carrying on business in Canada; 219.1 — Tax when corporation ceases to be Canadian corporation; 248(1)"Canadian corporation" — Definition applies to entire Act; 248(1)"corporation" — meaning of "incorporated in Canada"; 250 — Resident in Canada.

History: The definition "Canadian corporation" in subsec. 89(1) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 42(1), applicable June 15, 1994. That definition formerly read:

"Canadian corporation" at any time means a corporation that was resident in Canada at that time and was

(a) incorporated in Canada, or

(b) resident in Canada throughout the period commencing June 18, 1971 and ending at that time;

"capital dividend account" of a corporation at any particular time means the amount, if any, by which the total of

(a) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount if any, by which

(A) the amount of the corporation's capital gain from a disposition (other than a disposition that is the making of a gift after December 8, 1997 that is not a gift described in subsection 110.1(1)) of a property in the period beginning at the beginning of its first taxation year (that began after the corporation last became a private corporation and that ended after 1971) and ending immediately before the particular time (in this definition referred to as "the period")

Proposed Amendment — 89(1)"capital dividend account"(a)(i)(A)

(A) the amount of the corporation's capital gain — computed without reference to subparagraphs 52(3)(a)(ii) and 53(1)(b)(ii) — from the disposition (other than a disposition that is the making of a gift after

December 8, 1997 that is not a gift described in subsection 110.1(1)) of a property in the period beginning at the beginning of its first taxation year that began after the corporation last became a private corporation and that ended after 1971 and ending immediately before the particular time (in this definition referred to as "the period")

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 90(1), will amend cl. (a)(i)(A) of the definition "capital dividend account" in subsec. 89(1) to read as above, applicable in respect of a disposition that occurs after November 8, 2006.

Technical Notes: Clauses (a)(i)(A) and (a)(ii)(A) of the definition "capital dividend account" are amended to provide that a corporation's capital gain or loss from the disposition of a property is computed for capital dividend account purposes without reference to subparagraph 52(3)(a)(ii) and 53(1)(b)(ii). In general, this amendment means that no capital dividend election may be made in respect of a corporation's capital gain from disposing of shares to the extent that gain arises because the cost of the shares does not include amounts described in those amended subparagraphs, which are more fully discussed in the commentary accompanying those amendments. Essentially, this amendment ensures that those subparagraphs cannot be used in conjunction with a capital dividend election to convert corporate surplus into capital gains upon which a capital dividend election could be made.

(b) all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a dividend received by the corporation on a share of the capital stock of another corporation in the period, which amount was, by virtue of subsection 83(2), not included in computing the income of the corporation,

(c) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount required to have been included under this paragraph as it read in its application to a taxation year that ended before February 28, 2000,

(c.1) the amount, if any, by which

(i) ½ of the total of all amounts each of which is an amount required by paragraph 14(1)(b) to be included in computing the corporation's income in respect of a business carried on by the corporation for a taxation year that is included in the period and that ended after February 27, 2000 and before October 18, 2000,

exceeds

(ii) where the corporation has deducted an amount under subsection 20(4.2) in respect of a debt established by it to have become a bad debt in a taxation year that is included in the period and that ended after February 27, 2000 and before October 18, 2000, or has an allowable capital loss for such a year because of the application of subsection 20(4.3), the amount determined by the formula

$$V + W$$

where

V is ½ of the value determined for A under subsection 20(4.2) in respect of the corporation for the last such taxation year that ended in the period, and

W is ⅓ of the value determined for B under subsection 20(4.2) in respect of the corporation for the last such taxation year that ended in the period, and

(iii) in any other case, nil,

(c.2) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount required by paragraph 14(1)(b) to be included in computing the corporation's income in respect of a business carried on by the corporation for a taxation year that is included in the period and that ends after October 17, 2000,

exceeds

(ii) where the corporation has deducted an amount under subsection 20(4.2) in respect of a debt established by it to have become a bad debt in a taxation year that is included in the period and that ends after October 17, 2000, or has an allowable capital loss for such a year because of the application of subsection 20(4.3), the amount determined by the formula

$$X + Y$$

where

X is the value determined for A under subsection 20(4.2) in respect of the corporation for the last such taxation year that ended in the period, and

Y is 1/3 of the value determined for B under subsection 20(4.2) in respect of the corporation for the last such taxation year that ended in the period, and

(iii) in any other case, nil,

(d) the amount, if any, by which the total of

(i) all amounts each of which is the proceeds of a life insurance policy of which the corporation was a beneficiary on or before June 28, 1982 received by the corporation in the period and after 1971 in consequence of the death of any person, and

(ii) all amounts each of which is the proceeds of a life insurance policy of which the corporation was not a beneficiary on or before June 28, 1982 received by the corporation in the period and after May 23, 1985 in consequence of the death of any person exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is the adjusted cost basis (within the meaning assigned by subsection 148(9)) of a policy referred to in subparagraph (i) or (ii) to the corporation immediately before that person's death,

(e) the amount of the corporation's life insurance capital dividend account immediately before May 24, 1985,

(f) all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a distribution made in the period by a trust to the corporation in respect of capital gains of the trust equal to the lesser of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the amount of the distribution,

exceeds

(B) the amount designated under subsection 104(21) by the trust (other than a designation to which subsection 104(21.4) applies) in respect of the net taxable capital gains of the trust attributable to those capital gains, and

(ii) the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times B$$

where

A is the fraction or whole number determined when 1 is subtracted from the reciprocal of the fraction under paragraph 38(a) applicable to the trust for the year, and

B is the amount referred to in clause (i)(B), and

(g) all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a distribution made by a trust to the corporation in the period in respect of a dividend (other than a taxable dividend) paid on a share of the capital stock of another corporation resident in Canada to the trust during a taxation year of the trust throughout which the trust was resident in Canada equal to the lesser of

(i) the amount of the distribution, and

(ii) the amount designated under subsection 104(20) by the trust in respect of the corporation in respect of that dividend, exceeds the total of all capital dividends that became payable by the corporation after the commencement of the period and before the particular time;

"eligible dividend" means

(a) a taxable dividend that is received by a person resident in Canada, paid after 2005 by a corporation resident in Canada and designated, as provided under subsection (14), to be an eligible dividend, and

(b) in respect of a person resident in Canada, an amount that is deemed by subsection 96(1.11) or 104(16) to be a taxable dividend that is received by the person;

Related Provisions: 82(1)(a.1), 82(1)(b)(ii) — 45% gross-up for eligible dividend; 89(14) — Designation of eligible dividend; 96(1.11)(b) — Publicly-traded partnership distribution deemed to be eligible dividend; 104(16) — Income trust distribution deemed to be eligible dividend; 121 — 11/18ths dividend tax credit for eligible dividend; 185.1 — Penalty tax on excessive eligible dividend designation; 248(1)"eligible dividend" — Definition applies to entire Act; 260(1.1), (5) — Dividend compensation payment deemed to be eligible dividend.

History: The definition "eligible dividend" in subsec. 89(1) amended by 2007, c. 29, s. 6, deemed to have come into force on October 31, 2006. It formerly read:

> "eligible dividend" means a taxable dividend that is received by a person resident in Canada, paid after 2005 by a corporation resident in Canada and designated, as provided under subsection (14), to be an eligible dividend;

The definition "eligible dividend" added to subsec. 89(1) by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(1), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005.

"excessive eligible dividend designation", made by a corporation in respect of an eligible dividend paid by the corporation at any time in a taxation year, means

(a) unless paragraph (c) applies to the dividend, if the corporation is in the taxation year a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation, the amount, if any, determined by the formula

$$(A - B) \times \frac{C}{A}$$

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of an eligible dividend paid by the corporation in the taxation year,

B is the greater of nil and the corporation's general rate income pool at the end of the taxation year, and

C is the amount of the eligible dividend,

(b) unless paragraph (c) applies to the dividend, if the corporation is not a corporation described in paragraph (a), the amount, if any, determined by the formula

$$A \times \frac{B}{C}$$

where

A is the lesser of

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is an eligible dividend paid by the corporation at that time, and

(ii) the corporation's low rate income pool at that time,

B is the amount of the eligible dividend, and

C is the amount determined under subparagraph (i) of the description of A, and,

(c) an amount equal to the amount of the eligible dividend, if it is reasonable to consider that the eligible dividend was paid in a transaction, or as part of a series of transactions, one of the main purposes of which was to artificially maintain or increase the corporation's general rate income pool, or to artificially maintain or decrease the corporation's low rate income pool;

Related Provisions: 125(7)"Canadian-controlled private corporation"(d) — Election not to be CCPC for purposes of definition; 185.1 — Penalty tax on excessive designation; 248(1)"excessive eligible dividend designation" — Definition applies to entire Act; 248(10) — Series of transactions; 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: The definition "excessive eligible dividend designation" added to subsec. 89(1) by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(1), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005.

Proposed Addition — 89(1)"general rate factor"

"general rate factor" of a corporation for a taxation year is the total of

(a) that proportion of 0.68 that the number of days in the taxation year that are before 2010 is of the number of days in the taxation year,

(b) that proportion of 0.69 that the number of days in the taxation year that are in 2010 is of the number of days in the taxation year,

(c) that proportion of 0.70 that the number of days in the taxation year that are in 2011 is of the number of days in the taxation year, and

(d) that proportion of 0.72 that the number of days in the taxation year that are after 2011 is of the number of days in the taxation year;

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 22(3), will add the definition "general rate factor" to subsec. 89(1), applicable to 2006 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The new definition "general rate factor" is relevant for the determination of a corporation's "general rate income pool" (GRIP). The general rate factor of a corporation for a taxation year is the total of

(a) 0.68 for any portion of the taxation year that falls before 2010,

(b) 0.69 for any portion of the taxation year that falls in 2010,

(c) 0.70 for any portion of the taxation year that falls in 2011, and

(d) 0.72 for any portion of the taxation year that falls after 2011.

Related Provisions: 89(1)"general rate income pool"A:D — Application of general rate factor.

"general rate income pool" at the end of a particular taxation year, of a taxable Canadian corporation that is a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation in the particular taxation year, is the positive or negative amount determined by the formula

$$A - B$$

where

A is the positive or negative amount that would, before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for the particular taxation year, be determined by the formula

$$C + 0.68(D - E - F) + G + H - I$$

where

C is the corporation's general rate income pool at the end of its preceding taxation year,

D is

(a) unless paragraph (b) applies, the corporation's taxable income for the particular taxation year, and

(b) if the corporation is a deposit insurance corporation in the particular taxation year, nil,

E is the amount determined by multiplying the amount, if any, deducted by the corporation under subsection 125(1) for the particular taxation year by the quotient obtained by dividing 100 by the rate of the deduction provided under that subsection for the particular taxation year,

F is

(a) if the corporation is a Canadian-controlled private corporation in the particular taxation year, the lesser of the corporation's aggregate investment income for the particular taxation year and the corporation's taxable income for the particular taxation year, and

(b) in any other case, nil,

G is the total of all amounts each of which is

(a) an eligible dividend received by the corporation in the particular taxation year, or

(b) an amount deductible under section 113 in computing the taxable income of the corporation for the particular taxation year,

H is the total of all amounts determined under subsections (4) to (6) in respect of the corporation for the particular taxation year, and

I is

(a) unless paragraph (b) applies, the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of an eligible dividend paid by the corporation in its preceding taxation year

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an excessive eligible dividend designation made by the corporation in its preceding taxation year, or

(b) if subsection (4) applies to the corporation in the particular taxation year, nil, and

B is 68% of the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of the corporation's full rate taxable incomes (as would be defined in the definition "full rate taxable income" in subsection 123.4(1), if that definition were read without reference to its subparagraphs (a)(i) to (iii)) for the corporation's preceding three taxation years, determined without taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences, for those preceding taxation years, that arise in respect of the particular taxation year,

exceeds

(b) the total of the corporation's full rate taxable incomes (as would be defined in the definition "full rate taxable income" in subsection 123.4(1), if that definition were read without reference to its subparagraphs (a)(i) to (iii)) for those preceding taxation years;

Proposed Amendment — 89(1)"general rate income pool"

"general rate income pool" at the end of a particular taxation year, of a taxable Canadian corporation that is a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation in the particular taxation year, is the positive or negative amount determined by the formula

$$A - B$$

where

A is the positive or negative amount that would, before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for the particular taxation year, be determined by the formula

$$C + D + E + F - G$$

where

C is the corporation's general rate income pool at the end of its preceding taxation year,

D is the amount, if any, that is the product of the corporation's general rate factor for the particular taxation year multiplied by its adjusted taxable income for the particular taxation year,

E is the total of all amounts each of which is

(a) an eligible dividend received by the corporation in the particular taxation year, or

(b) an amount deductible under section 113 in computing the taxable income of the corporation for the particular taxation year,

F is the total of all amounts determined under subsections (4) to (6) in respect of the corporation for the particular taxation year, and

G is

(a) unless paragraph (b) applies, the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of an eligible dividend paid by the corporation in its preceding taxation year

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an excessive eligible dividend designation made by the corporation in its preceding taxation year, or

(b) if subsection (4) applies to the corporation in the particular taxation year, nil, and

B is the amount determined by the formula

$$H \times (I - J)$$

where

H is the corporation's general rate factor for the particular taxation year,

I is the total of the corporation's full rate taxable incomes (as would be defined in the definition "full rate taxable income" in subsection 123.4(1), if that definition were read without reference to its subparagraphs (a)(i) to (iii)) for the corporation's preceding three taxation years, determined without taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences, for those preceding taxation years, that arise in respect of the particular taxation year, and

J is the total of the corporation's full rate taxable incomes (as would be defined in the definition "full rate taxable income" in subsection 123.4(1), if that definition were read without reference to its subparagraphs (a)(i) to (iii)) for those preceding taxation years;

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 22(1), will amend the definition "general rate income pool" in subsec. 89(1) to read as above, applicable to 2006 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The "general rate income pool" (GRIP), the definition of which is one of those included in subsection 89(1), is relevant for determining the extent to which a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation (DIC) can pay eligible dividends in any given taxation year. Generally, a corporation's GRIP is calculated based on the corporation's taxable income subject to tax at the general corporate tax rate. The formula contained in this definition contains a factor of 0.68, which is intended to approximate the after-tax earnings of the corporation, assuming a notional combined federal-provincial general corporate rate of 32%.

There are two main changes to the definition. Instead of a fixed 0.68 factor, there is now defined a "general rate factor", determined specifically for each corporation and each taxation year, in subsection 89(1). The definition is also amended to clarify that the calculation of that part of the formula in variable A of the definition represented by "0.68(D – E – F)" cannot yield a negative result.

With these changes, the other variables contained in the GRIP formula have been renumbered and revised accordingly.

In addition, existing variable B is rewritten as a formula. This improves clarity without effecting any substantive change.

"life insurance capital dividend account [para. 89(1)(b.2)]" — [Repealed under former Act]

"low rate income pool", at any particular time in a particular taxation year, of a corporation (in this definition referred to as the "non-CCPC") that is resident in Canada and is in the particular taxation year neither a Canadian-controlled private corporation nor a deposit insurance corporation, is the amount determined by the formula

$$(A + B + C + D + E + F) - (G + H)$$

where

A is the non-CCPC's low rate income pool at the end of its preceding taxation year,

B is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deductible under section 112 in computing the non-CCPC's taxable income for the year in respect of a taxable dividend (other than an eligible dividend) that became payable, in the particular taxation year but before the particular time, to the non-CCPC by a corporation resident in Canada,

C is the total of all amounts determined under subsections (8) to (10) in respect of the non-CCPC for the particular taxation year,

D is

(a) if the non-CCPC would, but for paragraph (d) of the definition "Canadian-controlled private corporation" in subsection 125(7), be a Canadian-controlled private corporation in its preceding taxation year, 80% of its aggregate investment income for its preceding taxation year, and

(b) in any other case, nil,

E is

(a) if the non-CCPC was not a Canadian-controlled private corporation in its preceding taxation year, 80% of the amount determined by multiplying the amount, if any, deducted by the corporation under subsection 125(1) for that preceding taxation year by the quotient obtained by dividing 100 by the rate of the deduction provided under that subsection for that preceding taxation year, and

(b) in any other case, nil,

F is

(a) if the non-CCPC was an investment corporation in its preceding taxation year, four times the amount, if any, deducted by it under subsection 130(1) for its preceding taxation year, and

(b) in any other case, nil,

G is the total of all amounts each of which is a taxable dividend (other than an eligible dividend, a capital gains dividend within the meaning assigned by subsection 130.1(4) or 131(1) or a taxable dividend deductible by the non-CCPC under subsection 130.1(1) in computing its income for the particular taxation year or for its preceding taxation year) that became payable, in the particular taxation year but before the particular time, by the non-CCPC, and

H is the total of all amounts each of which is an excessive eligible dividend designation made by the non-CCPC in the particular taxation year but before the particular time;

History: The definition "low rate income pool" added to subsec. 89(1) by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(1), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005, except that in applying the definition for taxation years that began before 2006, the description of B shall be read as follows:

B is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deductible under section 112 in computing the non-CCPC's taxable income for the year in respect of a taxable dividend (other than an eligible dividend) that became payable, in the particular taxation year and after 2005, but before the particular time, to the non-CCPC by a corporation resident in Canada,

"paid-up capital" at any particular time means,

(a) in respect of a share of any class of the capital stock of a corporation, an amount equal to the paid-up capital at that time, in respect of the class of shares of the capital stock of the corporation to which that share belongs, divided by the number of issued shares of that class outstanding at that time,

(b) in respect of a class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation,

(i) where the particular time is before May 7, 1974, an amount equal to the paid-up capital in respect of that class of shares at the particular time, computed without reference to the provisions of this Act,

(ii) where the particular time is after May 6, 1974, and before April 1, 1977, an amount equal to the paid-up capital in respect of that class of shares at the particular time, computed in accordance with the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read on March 31, 1977, and

(iii) where the particular time is after March 31, 1977, an amount equal to the paid-up capital in respect of that class of shares at the particular time, computed without reference to the provisions of this Act except subsections 51(3) and 66.3(2) and (4), sections 84.1 and 84.2, subsections 85(2.1), 85.1(2.1), 86(2.1), 87(3) and (9), 128.1(2) and (3), 138(11.7), 139.1(6) and (7), 192(4.1) and 194(4.1) and section 212.1,

Proposed Amendment — 89(1)"paid-up capital"(b)(iii)

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 22(2), will amend subpara. (b)(iii) of the definition "paid-up capital" in subsec. 89(1) to substitute "85.1(2.1) and (8)" for "85.1(2.1)", applicable after December 19, 2007.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The definition "paid-up capital" is contained in subsection 89(1). Paragraph (b) of the definition defines "paid-up capital" in respect of a class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation. Subparagraph (b)(iii) of the definition provides that, after March 31, 1977, paid-up capital is to be calculated without reference to any provisions of the Act other than those listed in the subparagraph.

The definition "paid-up capital" is amended in conjunction with a series of other amendments intended to provide for the income tax effects on a reorganization into corporate form of a SIFT wind-up entity. The amendment adds references to new subsection 85.1(8).

except that, where the corporation is a cooperative corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 136(2)) or a credit union and the statute by or under which it was incorporated does not provide for paid-up capital in respect of a class of shares, the paid-up capital in respect of that class of shares at the particular time, computed without reference to the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which

(iv) the total of the amounts received by the corporation in respect of shares of that class issued and outstanding at that time

exceeds

(v) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount or part thereof described in subparagraph (iv) repaid by the corporation to persons who held any of the issued shares of that class before that time, and

(c) in respect of all the shares of the capital stock of a corporation, an amount equal to the total of all amounts each of which is an amount equal to the paid-up capital in respect of any class of shares of the capital stock of the corporation at the particular time;

History: Subpara. (b)(iii) of the definition "paid-up capital" amended by 2000, c. 19, s. 14, applicable after December 15, 1998. The subpara. formerly read:

(iii) where the particular time is after March 31, 1977, an amount equal to the paid-up capital in respect of that class of shares at the particular time, computed without reference to the provisions of this Act except subsections 51(3) and 66.3(2) and (4), sections 84.1 and 84.2, subsections 85(2.1), 85.1(2.1), 86(2.1), 87(3) and (9), 128.1(2) and (3), 138(11.7), 192(4.1) and 194(4.1) and section 212.1,

Subpara. (b)(iii) of the definition "paid-up capital" in subsec. 89(1) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 42(2), applicable to determinations of paid-up capital after August 1992, except that, in applying the subpara. before 1993, it shall be read without reference to "128.1(2) and (3)". That subpara. formerly read:

(iii) where the particular time is after March 31, 1977, an amount equal to the paid-up capital in respect of that class of shares at the particular time, computed without reference to the provisions of this Act except subsections 66.3(2) and (4), sections 84.1 and 84.2, subsections 85(2.1), 85.1(2.1), 87(3) and (9), 138(11.7), 192(4.1) and 194(4.1) and section 212.1,

That portion of para. (b) of "paid-up capital" following subpara. (iii) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 67(3), applicable after 1988.

History: Para. (a) of the definition "public corporation" in subsec. 89(1) amended to substitute "designated stock exchange" for "prescribed stock exchange" by 2007, c. 35, s. 23, applicable after December 13, 2007.

The definition "public corporation" in subsec. 89(1) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 17(3), applicable to 1995 et seq. The definition formerly read:

"public corporation" at any particular time means a corporation that was resident in Canada at the particular time, if

(a) at the particular time, a class or classes of shares of the capital stock of the corporation were listed on a prescribed stock exchange in Canada,

(b) at any time after June 18, 1971 and

(i) before the particular time, it elected in prescribed manner to be a public corporation, and at the time of the election it complied with prescribed conditions relating to the number of its shareholders, dispersal of ownership of its shares, public trading of its shares and size of the corporation, or

(ii) before a day 30 days before the particular time, it was, by notice in writing to the corporation, designated by the Minister to be a public corporation, and at the time it was so designated it complied with the conditions referred to in subparagraph (i),

unless subsequent to the election or designation, as the case may be, and before the particular time, it ceased to be a public corporation by virtue of paragraph (c), or

(c) at any time after June 18, 1971 and before the particular time, it was a public corporation, unless after the time it last became a public corporation and

(i) before the particular time, it elected in prescribed manner not to be a public corporation, and at the time it so elected it complied with prescribed conditions relating to the number of its shareholders, dispersal of ownership of its shares and public trading of its shares, or

(ii) before a day 30 days before the particular time, it was, by notice in writing to the corporation, designated by the Minister not to be a public corporation, and at the time it was so designated it complied with the conditions referred to in subparagraph (i),

in which case it shall be deemed thereupon to have ceased to be a public corporation, except that where a corporation's first taxation year ended after 1971 and the corporation has, after 1971 and on or before the day on or before which it was required by section 150 to file its return of income for that year, become a public corporation, it shall, if it so elected in that return, be deemed to have been a public corporation from the commencement of that year until the day on which it so became a public corporation;

"tax equity [para. 89(1)(h)]" — [Repealed under former Act]

"taxable Canadian corporation" means a corporation that, at the time the expression is relevant,

(a) was a Canadian corporation, and

(b) was not, by virtue of a statutory provision, exempt from tax under this Part;

Proposed Amendment — 89(1)"taxable Canadian corporation"(b)

(b) was not, by reason of a statutory provision other than paragraph 149(1)(t), exempt from tax under this Part;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 90(5), will amend para. (b) of the definition "taxable Canadian corporation" in subsec. 89(1) to read as above, applicable in respect of taxation years that end after 1999.

Technical Notes: Paragraph (b) of the definition "taxable Canadian corporation" in subsection 89(1) is amended to clarify that a farming or fishing insurer to which paragraph 149(1)(t) applies is a taxable Canadian corporation.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Feb. 21, 2000:

Dear [xxx]:

Thank you for your letter of November 8, 1999 regarding section 87 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") and the treatment accorded thereunder to insurance corporations earning premium income in respect of the insurance of property used in farming or fishing.

In your letter you express concern that an amalgamation of insurers of farmers and fishermen partially, or totally, exempt from tax under paragraph 149(1)(t) of the Act could trigger significant tax consequences. You ask that I consider amending the Act so that insurers of farmers and fishermen can, on amalgamation, benefit from the tax rollover provisions contained in section 87.

There does not appear to be a policy reason for not allowing subsection 87(1) of the Act to apply to an amalgamation of two or more farmers' and fishermen's insurers described in paragraph 149(1)(t) of the Act. Consequently, I am prepared to support an amendment to the Act to provide that subsection 87(1) of the Act apply to amalgamations of insurers exempt, or partially exempt, from tax under paragraph 149(1)(t) occurring after 1999.

Thank you for your helpful advice on this matter.

Sincerely,

The Honourable Paul Martin, P.C., M.P.
Minister of Finance

(1.01) Application of subsec. 138(12) — The definitions in subsection 138(12) apply to this section.

Origin of subsec. 89(1.01): R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Supp.) (formerly contained in the opening words to subsec. 138(12)).

(1.1) Capital dividend account where control acquired — Where at any particular time after March 31, 1977 a corporation that was, at a previous time, a private corporation controlled directly or indirectly in any manner whatever by one or more non-resident persons becomes a Canadian-controlled private corporation (otherwise than by reason of a change in the residence of one or more of its shareholders), in computing the corporation's capital dividend account at and after the particular time there shall be deducted the amount of the corporation's capital dividend account immediately before the particular time.

Related Provisions: 256(5.1), (6.2) — Controlled directly or indirectly — control in fact; 256(7) — Where control deemed not acquired.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-66R6: Capital dividends.

(1.2) Capital dividend account of tax-exempt corporation — Where at any particular time after November 26, 1987 a corporation ceases to be exempt from tax under this Part on its taxable income, in computing the corporation's capital dividend account at and after the particular time there shall be deducted the amount of the corporation's capital dividend account (computed without reference to this subsection) immediately after the particular time.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-66R6: Capital dividends.

(2) Where corporation is beneficiary — For the purposes of this section,

(a) where a corporation was a beneficiary under a life insurance policy on June 28, 1982, it shall be deemed not to have been a beneficiary under such a policy on or before June 28, 1982 where at any time after December 1, 1982 a prescribed premium has been paid under the policy or there has been a prescribed increase in any benefit on death under the policy; and

(b) where a corporation becomes a beneficiary under a life insurance policy by virtue of an amalgamation or a winding-up to which subsection 87(1) or 88(1) applies, it shall be deemed to have been a beneficiary under the policy throughout the period during which its predecessor or subsidiary, as the case may be, was a beneficiary under the policy.

Regulations: 309 (prescribed increase, prescribed premium).

(3) Simultaneous dividends — Where a dividend becomes payable at the same time on more than one class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, for the purposes of sections 83, 84 and 88, the dividend on any such class of shares shall be deemed to become payable at a different time than the dividend on the other class or classes of shares and to become payable in the order designated

(a) by the corporation on or before the day on or before which its return of income for its taxation year in which such dividends become payable is required to be filed; or

(b) in any other case, by the Minister.

(4) GRIP addition — becoming CCPC — If, in a particular taxation year, a corporation is a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation but was, in its preceding taxation year, a corporation resident in Canada other than a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation, there may be included in computing the corporation's general rate income pool at the end of the particular taxation year, the amount determined by the formula

$$A + B + C - D - E - F - G - H$$

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount to the corporation of a property immediately before the end of its preceding taxation year;

B is the amount of any money of the corporation on hand immediately before the end of its preceding taxation year;

C is the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of all amounts that, if the corporation had had unlimited income for its preceding taxation year from each business carried on, and from each property held, by it in that preceding taxation year and had realized an unlimited amount of capital gains for that preceding taxation year, would have been deductible under subsection 111(1) in computing its taxable income for that preceding taxation year

(b) the total of all amounts deducted under subsection 111(1) in computing the corporation's taxable income for that preceding taxation year;

D is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of any debt owing by the corporation, or of any other obligation of the corporation to pay any amount, that was outstanding immediately before the end of its preceding taxation year;

E is the paid up capital, immediately before the end of its preceding taxation year, of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation;

F is the total of all amounts each of which is a reserve deducted in computing the corporation's income for its preceding taxation year;

G is the corporation's capital dividend account, if any, immediately before the end of its preceding taxation year; and

H is the corporation's low rate income pool immediately before the end of its preceding taxation year.

Related Provisions: 125(7)"Canadian-controlled private corporation"(d) — Election not to be CCPC for purposes of 89(4); 249(3.1) — Deemed year-end on becoming CCPC; 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: Subsec. 89(4) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(2), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005.

(5) GRIP addition — post-amalgamation — If a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new corporation") is formed as a result of an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)), there shall be included in computing the new corporation's general rate income pool at the end of its first taxation year the total of all amounts each of which is

(a) in respect of a predecessor corporation that was, in its taxation year that ended immediately before the amalgamation (in this paragraph referred to as its "last taxation year"), a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation, the positive or negative amount determined in respect of the predecessor corporation by the formula

where

A is the predecessor corporation's general rate income pool at the end of its last taxation year, and

B is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is an eligible dividend paid by the predecessor corporation in its last taxation year

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an excessive eligible dividend designation made by the predecessor corporation in its last taxation year; or

(b) in respect of a predecessor corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "non-CCPC predecessor") that was, in its taxation year that ended immediately before the amalgamation (in this paragraph referred to as its "last taxation year"), not a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation, the amount determined by the formula

$$A + B + C - D - E - F - G - H$$

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount to the non-CCPC predecessor of a property immediately before the end of its last taxation year,

B is the amount of any money of the non-CCPC predecessor on hand immediately before the end of its last taxation year,

C is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts that, if the non-CCPC predecessor had had unlimited income for its last taxation year from each business carried on, and from each property held, by it in that last taxation year and had realized an unlimited amount of capital gains for that last taxation year, would have been deductible under subsection 111(1) in computing its taxable income for that last taxation year

(ii) the total of all amounts deducted under subsection 111(1) in computing the non-CCPC predecessor's taxable income for its last taxation year,

D is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of any debt owing by the non-CCPC predecessor, or of any other obligation of the non-CCPC predecessor to pay any amount, that was outstanding immediately before the end of its last taxation year,

E is the paid up capital, immediately before the end of its last taxation year, of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the non-CCPC predecessor,

F is the total of all amounts each of which is a reserve deducted in computing the non-CCPC predecessor's income for its last taxation year,

G is the non-CCPC predecessor's capital dividend account, if any, immediately before the end of its last taxation year, and

H is the non-CCPC predecessor's low rate income pool immediately before the end of its last taxation year.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(vv) — Application on amalgamation; 88(1)(e.2)(ix) — Application on windup; 125(7)"Canadian-controlled private corporation"(d) — Election not to be CCPC for purposes of 89(5); 257 — Formula in para. (b) cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: Subsec. 89(5) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(2), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005.

(6) GRIP addition — post-winding-up — If subsection 88(1) applies to the winding-up of a subsidiary into a parent (within the meanings assigned by that subsection) that is a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation, there shall be included in computing the parent's general rate income pool at the end of its taxation year that immediately follows the taxation year during which it receives the assets of the subsidiary on the winding-up

(a) if the subsidiary was, in its taxation year during which its assets were distributed to the parent on the winding-up (in this paragraph referred to as its "last taxation year"), a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation, the positive or negative amount determined by the formula formula

where

A is the subsidiary's general rate income pool at the end of its last taxation year, and

B is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is an eligible dividend paid by the subsidiary in its last taxation year

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an excessive eligible dividend designation made by the subsidiary in its last taxation year; and

(b) in any other case, the amount determined by the formula

$$A + B + C - D - E - F - G - H$$

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount to the subsidiary of a property immediately before the end of its taxation year during which its assets were distributed to the parent on the winding-up (in this paragraph referred to as its "last taxation year"),

B is the amount of any money of the subsidiary on hand immediately before the end of its last taxation year,

C is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts that, if the subsidiary had had unlimited income for its last taxation year from each business carried on, and from each property held, by it in that last taxation year and had realized an unlimited amount of capital gains for that last taxation year, would have been deductible under subsection 111(1) in computing its taxable income for that last taxation year

(ii) the total of all amounts deducted under subsection 111(1) in computing the subsidiary's taxable income for its last taxation year,

D is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of any debt owing by the subsidiary, or of any other obligation of the subsidiary to pay any amount, that was outstanding immediately before the end of its last taxation year,

E is the paid up capital, immediately before the end of its last taxation year, of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the subsidiary,

F is the total of all amounts each of which is a reserve deducted in computing the subsidiary's income for its last taxation year,

G is the subsidiary's capital dividend account, if any, immediately before the end of its last taxation year, and

H is the subsidiary's low rate income pool immediately before the end of its last taxation year.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(vv), 88(1)(e.2)(ix) — Application on windup; 125(7)"Canadian-controlled private corporation"(d) — Election not to be CCPC for purposes of 89(6); 257 — Formula in para. (b) cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: Subsec. 89(6) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(2), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005.

(7) GRIP addition for 2006 — If a corporation was (or, but for an election under subsection (11), would have been), throughout its first taxation year that includes any part of January 1, 2006, a Canadian-controlled private corporation, its general rate income pool at the end of its immediately preceding taxation year is deemed to be the greater of nil and the amount determined by the formula

$$A - B$$

where

A is the total of

(a) 63% of the total of all amounts each of which is the corporation's full rate taxable income (as defined in subsection 123.4(1)), for a taxation year of the corporation that ended after 2000 and before 2004, determined before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for that taxation year,

(b) 63% of the total of all amounts each of which is the corporation's full rate taxable income (as would be defined in subsection 123.4(1), if that definition were read without reference to its subparagraphs (a)(i) and (ii)), for a taxation year of the corporation that ended after 2003 and before 2006, determined before taking into consideration the specified future tax consequences for that taxation year, and

(c) all amounts each of which was deductible under subsection 112(1) in computing the corporation's taxable income for a taxation year of the corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "particular corporation") that ended after 2000 and before 2006, and is in respect of a dividend received from a corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "payer corporation") that was, at the time it paid the dividend, connected (within the meaning assigned by subsection 186(4)) with the particular corporation, to the extent that it is reasonable to consider, having regard to all the circumstances (including but not limited to other shareholders having received dividends from the payer corporation), that the dividend was attributable to an amount that is, or if this subsection applied to the payer corporation would be, described in this paragraph or in paragraph (a) or (b) in respect of the payer corporation; and

B is the total of all amounts each of which is a taxable dividend paid by the corporation in those taxation years.

Proposed Amendment — Use of incorrect GRIP calculation for 2006

CRA news release, July 10, 2007: Update on Eligible Dividends

The Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) would like to provide an update on two issues.

1) [See under 89(11) — ed.]

2) The CRA has recently determined that a former version of T2 Schedule 53 — General Rate Income Pool (GRIP) Calculation (2006 and Later Tax Years), a form used to calculate the GRIP pursuant to subsection 89(7) of the Act, did in some situations, for the 2006 taxation year, produce an excessive balance. Unfortunately, this fault in the form was also built into software packages sold by commercial vendors. The CRA posted a revised T2 Schedule 53 on its website on June 13, 2007, and is working with software companies to correct this problem. If any corporation has paid out a dividend in excess of its eligible GRIP amount due to reliance on the CRA's T2 Schedule 53, its representative should send details to Mr. Wayne Adams, Director General of Income Tax Rulings (see contact information below) as soon as possible after the revised form is available. Corporations that paid an excessive dividend as a result of the error in the form will not be subject to the penalty tax set out in Part III.1 of the Act, provided they contact Mr. Adams before December 31, 2007, to identify steps to restore the proper balance.

Related Provisions: 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: Subsec. 89(7) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(2), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005 except that it applies only to the first taxation year of a corporation that includes any part of January 1, 2006.

Forms: T2 SCH 53: General rate income pool (GRIP) calculation (2006 and later tax years).

(8) LRIP addition — ceasing to be CCPC — If, in a particular taxation year, a corporation is neither a Canadian-controlled private corporation nor a deposit insurance corporation but was, in its preceding taxation year, a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation, there shall be included in computing the corporation's low rate income pool at any time in the particular taxation year the amount determined by the formula

$$A + B + C - D - E - F - G - H$$

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount to the corporation of a property immediately before the end of its preceding taxation year;

B is the amount of any money of the corporation on hand immediately before the end of its preceding taxation year;

C is the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of all amounts that, if the corporation had had unlimited income for its preceding taxation year from each business carried on, and from each property held, by it in that preceding taxation year and had realized an unlimited amount of capital gains for that preceding taxation year, would have been deductible under subsection 111(1) in computing its taxable income for that preceding taxation year

(b) the total of all amounts deducted under subsection 111(1) in computing the corporation's taxable income for its preceding taxation year;

D is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of any debt owing by the corporation, or of any other obligation of the corporation to pay any amount, that was outstanding immediately before the end of its preceding taxation year;

E is the paid up capital, immediately before the end of its preceding taxation year, of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation;

F is the total of all amounts each of which is a reserve deducted in computing the corporation's income for its preceding taxation year;

G is

(a) if the corporation is not a private corporation in the particular taxation year, the corporation's capital dividend account, if any, immediately before the end of its preceding taxation year, and

(b) in any other case, nil; and

H is the positive or negative amount determined by the formula

$$I - J$$

where

I is the corporation's general rate income pool at the end of its preceding taxation year, and

J is the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is an eligible dividend paid by the corporation in its preceding taxation year

exceeds

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an excessive eligible dividend designation made by the corporation in its preceding taxation year.

History: Subsec. 89(8) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(2), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005.

(9) LRIP addition — amalgamation — If a corporation that is resident in Canada and that is neither a Canadian-controlled private corporation nor a deposit insurance corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new corporation") is formed as a result of the amalgamation or merger of two or more corporations one or more of which is a taxable Canadian corporation, there shall be included in computing the new corporation's low rate income pool at any time in its first taxation year the total of all amounts each of which is

(a) in respect of a predecessor corporation that was, in its taxation year that ended immediately before the amalgamation, neither a Canadian-controlled private corporation nor a deposit insurance corporation, the predecessor corporation's low rate income pool at the end of that taxation year; and

(b) in respect of a predecessor corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "CCPC predecessor") that was, throughout its taxation year that ended immediately before the amalgamation (in this paragraph referred to as its "last taxation year"), a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a deposit insurance corporation, the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount to the CCPC predecessor of a property immediately before the end of its last taxation year,

B is the amount of any money of the CCPC predecessor on hand immediately before the end of its last taxation year,

C is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts that, if the CCPC predecessor had had unlimited income for its last taxation year from each business carried on, and from each property held, by it in that last taxation year and had realized an unlimited amount of capital gains for that last taxation year, would have been deductible under subsection 111(1) in computing its taxable income for that last taxation year

(ii) the total of all amounts deducted under subsection 111(1) in computing the CCPC predecessor's taxable income for its last taxation year,

D is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of any debt owing by the CCPC predecessor, or of any other obligation of the CCPC predecessor to pay any amount, that was outstanding immediately before the end of its last taxation year,

E is the paid up capital, immediately before the end of its last taxation year, of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the CCPC predecessor,

F is the total of all amounts each of which is a reserve deducted in computing the CCPC predecessor's income for its last taxation year,

G is

(i) if the new corporation is not a private corporation in its first taxation year, the CCPC predecessor's capital dividend account, if any, immediately before the end of its last taxation year, and

(ii) in any other case, nil, and

H is the positive or negative amount determined by the formula

$$I - J$$

where

I is the CCPC predecessor's general rate income pool at the end of its last taxation year, and

J is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is an eligible dividend paid by the CCPC predecessor in its last taxation year

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an excessive eligible dividend designation made by the CCPC predecessor in its last taxation year.

History: Subsec. 89(9) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(2), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005.

(10) LRIP addition — winding-up — If, in a particular taxation year, a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "parent") is neither a Canadian-controlled private corporation nor a deposit insurance corporation and in the particular taxation year all or substantially all of the assets of another corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "subsidiary") were distributed to the parent on a dissolution or winding-up of the subsidiary, there shall be included in computing the parent's low rate income pool at any time in the particular taxation year that is at or after the end of the subsidiary's taxation year (in this subsection referred to as the subsidiary's "last taxation year") during which its assets were distributed to the parent on the winding-up,

(a) if the subsidiary was, in its last taxation year, neither a Canadian-controlled private corporation nor a deposit insurance corporation, the subsidiary's low rate income pool immediately before the end of that taxation year; and

(b) in any other case, the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount to the subsidiary of a property immediately before the end of its last taxation year,

B is the amount of any money of the subsidiary on hand immediately before the end of its last taxation year,

C is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts that, if the subsidiary had had unlimited income for its last taxation year from each business carried on, and from each property held, by it in that last taxation year and had realized an unlimited amount of capital gains for that last taxation year, would have been deductible under subsection 111(1) in computing its taxable income for that last taxation year

(ii) the total of all amounts deducted under subsection 111(1) in computing the subsidiary's taxable income for its last taxation year,

D is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of any debt owing by the subsidiary, or of any other obligation of the subsidiary to pay any amount, that was outstanding immediately before the end of its last taxation year,

E is the paid up capital, immediately before the end of its last taxation year, of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the subsidiary,

History: Subsec. 89(10) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(2), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005.

(11) Election: non-CCPC — Subject to subsection (12), a corporation that files with the Minister on or before its filing-due date for a particular taxation year an election in prescribed form to have this subsection apply is deemed for the purposes described in paragraph (d) of the definition "Canadian-controlled private corporation" in subsection 125(7) not to be a Canadian-controlled private corporation at any time in or after the particular taxation year.

Proposed Amendment — Election under 89(11) for 2006

CRA news release, July 10, 2007: Update on Eligible Dividends

The Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) would like to provide an update on two issues.

1) Subsection 89(11) of the Income Tax Act ("the Act") permits a Canadian Controlled Private Corporation (CCPC) to elect not to be a CCPC by using the Form T2002 — Election or Revocation of an election not to be a Canadian controlled private corporation (2006 and later tax year). The election is effective for that year and subsequent years, beginning in the 2006 fiscal year. As the measure was not passed into law until February 2007, some private corporations whose fiscal year ended early in 2006 and who may have wished to make this election were required to file their T2 returns before that date and before the prescribed form was made available. For that reason, the election under Subsection 89(11) for the 2006 taxation year will be considered to have been filed on time if filed on, or before, December 31, 2007.

2) [See under 89(7) — ed.]

Related Provisions: 89(12) — Revocation of election; 220(2.1) — Extension of time for filing election.

History: Subsec. 89(11) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(2), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005.

Forms: T2002: Election, or revocation of an election, not to be a CCPC.

(12) Revoking election — If a corporation files with the Minister on or before its filing-due date for a particular taxation year a notice in prescribed form revoking, as of the end of the particular taxation year, an election described in subsection (11), the election ceases to apply to the corporation at the end of the particular taxation year.

Related Provisions: 89(13) — Consent required for re-election.

History: Subsec. 89(12) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(2), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005.

Forms: T2002: Election, or revocation of an election, not to be a CCPC.

(13) Repeated elections — consent required — If a corporation has, under subsection (12), revoked an election, any subsequent election under subsection (11) or subsequent revocation under subsection (12) is invalid unless

(a) the Minister consents in writing to the subsequent election or the subsequent revocation, as the case may be; and

(b) the corporation complies with any conditions imposed by the Minister.

History: Subsec. 89(13) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(2), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005.

(14) Dividend designation — A corporation designates a dividend it pays at any time to be an eligible dividend by notifying in writing at that time each person or partnership to whom it pays all or any part of the dividend that the dividend is an eligible dividend.

Proposed Administrative Change — Dividend designation

CRA news release, Dec. 20, 2006 [VIEWS doc 2006-0217891Z0]: Designation of Eligible Dividends

Canadian resident individuals who receive eligible dividends in 2006 and subsequent years will be entitled to a higher gross-up and dividend tax credit. Corporations have to designate each eligible dividend that they pay, and notify shareholders in writing that the dividend is eligible. A corporation must make every effort to notify shareholders of an eligible dividend. The following are general guidelines for corporations to follow.

A. Notification of Shareholders

For the 2006 Year

All Corporations

For 2006, we will accept designations based on identification of eligible dividends on the T3 and T5 slips. Other acceptable methods are posting a notice on the corporation's website, and in corporate reports or shareholder publications.

For 2007 and Subsequent Taxation Years

Public Corporations

For 2007 and subsequent taxation years, for public corporations, we will accept that notification has been made if, before or at the time the dividends are paid, a designation is made stating that all dividends are eligible dividends unless indicated otherwise. Acceptable methods of making a designation are posting a notice on the corporation's website, and in corporate quarterly or annual reports or shareholder publications. We will consider that a notice posted on a corporate website is notification that an eligible dividend is paid to shareholders until the notice is removed. Similarly, a notice in an annual or quarterly report that an eligible dividend has been paid is considered valid for that year or quarter, respectively. Alternatively, if a public corporation issues a press release announcing the declaration of a dividend, a statement in the press release indicating that the dividend is an eligible dividend will be sufficient proof that notification was given to each shareholder.

All Other Corporations:

For 2007 and subsequent taxation years, for all corporations other than public corporations, the notification requirements of proposed subsection 89(14) must be met each time a dividend is paid. Examples of notification could include identifying eligible dividends through letters to shareholders and dividend cheque stubs, or where all shareholders are Directors of a corporation, a notation in the Minutes.

Shareholders Whose Mailing Address is Outside the Country

Notification of a designation must be given to all shareholders who receive a dividend, including those whose mailing address is outside the country, and even if Part XIII tax is withheld from the payment. The address of record is not conclusive proof of residency.

A dividend received by a non-resident shareholder cannot qualify as an eligible dividend. If a corporation pays a dividend to a non-resident shareholder that would otherwise be an eligible dividend if paid to a resident shareholder, there is no impact on the eligibility of the dividends paid to other resident shareholders of the corporation.

B. Designation of Portion of Dividend Paid on Class of Shares

All shares of a particular class of shares have the same attributes and therefore, a designation of eligible dividends must include all the shareholders of that class. A designation will not be accepted in respect of the portion of the dividend paid to certain shareholders of a class of shares.

A designation will not be accepted if a corporation designates a fraction of a dividend paid to each shareholder to be an eligible dividend. However, because the legislation is retroactive to dividends paid before the announcement of the new measure, we will allow dividends to be designated as two separate dividends for all dividends paid in 2006. In addition, where a corporation designates two separate dividends, an ineligible dividend and an eligible dividend, these two separate dividends can be paid in one cheque.

C. Dividends Received by Trusts

Trusts will generally not know for some time whether dividends received by them in 2006 are eligible dividends. Where a trust has received from a corporation an amount of dividends paid in 2006 and that corporation has not, before the trust's deadline for issuing its own T3 slips, notified shareholders (using one or more of the methods described in section A above) of whether the dividends are eligible dividends, then the trust can make reasonable assumptions in determining whether to identify those dividends as eligible dividends. However, the trust accepts responsibility to re-issue proper T3 information slips and T3 returns promptly if the assumption proves to be inaccurate, except for amounts that are less than $100.

Many mutual fund trusts have a December 15 year-end. Dividends received by such trusts in the portion of their 2006 taxation year from December 16 to December 31, 2005, will not qualify as eligible dividends. Such trusts can use a reasonable method to estimate the amount of such dividends, e.g., 1/24 of all dividends received by the trust in its 2006 taxation year. Dividends paid by a corporation in the 2005 calendar year (and, therefore, not eligible dividends) should have been reported by the corporation before the end of February 2006. In filing their T3 returns for 2005, trusts with Dec 15 years-end would be expected to have already determined (as part of filing their 2005 T3 returns) what portion, if any, of such reported dividends paid in 2005 were received in the last two weeks of 2005. These dividends received in the last two weeks of 2005 would have been held-over for reporting in their 2006 T3 returns and the trust would be expected to have a record of these amounts.

D. Dividends Received by Partnerships

Partnership law and the relevant partnership agreement dictate that dividends are allocated to the partners. If the dividends and partners meet the conditions in subsection 89(1) of the Income Tax Act, then a partner's share of such dividends would be eligible dividends received by that partner. Therefore, each partner's share of a dividend received by a partnership is considered, for the purposes of all provisions relating to an eligible dividend, to be a dividend received by the partner.

Related Provisions: 185.1 — Penalty tax on excessive eligible dividend designation; 248(7)(a) — Notification deemed received once it is mailed.

History: Subsec. 89(14) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 47(2), applicable to taxation years that end after 2005 except that, in respect of a dividend paid before February 21, 2007, a designation under subsec. 89(14) is deemed to have been made in a timely manner if it is made on or before May 22, 2007.

(15) Meaning of expression "deposit insurance corporation" — For the purposes of paragraphs 87(2)(vv) and (ww) (including, for greater certainty, in applying those paragraphs as provided under paragraph 88(1)(e.2)), the definitions "excessive eligible dividend designation", "general rate income pool", and "low rate income pool" in subsection (1) and subsections (4) to (6) and (8) to (10), a corporation is a deposit insurance corporation if it would be a deposit insurance corporation as defined in the definition "deposit insurance corporation" in subsection 137.1(5) were that definition read without reference to its paragraph (b) and were this Act read without reference to subsection 137.1(5.1).

89.1 [Repealed under former Act]

Subdivision i — Shareholders of Corporations Not Resident in Canada

90. Dividends received from non-resident corporation — In computing the income for a taxation year of a taxpayer resident in Canada, there shall be included any amounts received by the taxpayer in the year as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of, dividends on a share owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a corporation not resident in Canada.

Related Provisions: 82(1) — Dividends received from corporation resident in Canada; 113(1) — Deduction for dividend received from foreign affiliate; 139.1(4)(f), (g) — Deemed dividend on demutualization of insurance corporation; 139.2 — Deemed dividend on distribution by mutual holding corporation.

Definitions [s. 90]: "amount" — 248(1); "Canada" — 255; "corporation" — 248(1), Interpretation Act 35(1); "dividend" — 248(1); "resident in Canada" — 94(3)(a)(viii), 250; "share" — 248(1); "taxation year" — 249; "taxpayer" — 248(1).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-451R: Deemed disposition and acquisition on ceasing to be or becoming resident in Canada.

91. (1) Amounts to be included in respect of share of foreign affiliate — In computing the income for a taxation year of a taxpayer resident in Canada, there shall be included, in respect of each share owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, as income from the share, the percentage of the foreign accrual property income of any controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, for each taxation year of the affiliate ending in the taxation year of the taxpayer, equal to that share's participating percentage in respect of the affiliate, determined at the end of each such taxation year of the affiliate.

Proposed Amendment — 91(1)

91. (1) Amounts to be included in respect of share of foreign affiliate — In computing the income for a particular taxation year of a taxpayer resident in Canada, there shall be included, in respect of each share owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, as income from the share, the percentage of the foreign accrual property income of any controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, for each taxation year of the affiliate that ends in the particular taxation year, equal to that share's participating percentage in respect of the affiliate determined

(a) at the end of each such taxation year of the affiliate; and

(b) without regard to each share in respect of which subsection 94.2(9) applies to the taxpayer for the particular taxation year.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 16(1), will amend subsec. 91(1) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after 2006, except that it also applies to a taxation year of a taxpayer that begins before 2007 if ss. 94.1 to 94.4, as enacted by Bill C-10, apply to that taxation year of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes: Subsection 91(1) provides that a taxpayer that is resident in Canada must include in computing income an amount in respect of each share owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer.

Subsection 91(1) is amended so that it does not result in additional income for a taxpayer in respect of shares that are participating interests in a "tracking entity" to which the prescribed rate regime under section 94.1 or the mark-to-market regime under section 94.2 applies by reason of the application of subsection 94.2(9). The shares of a taxpayer in the capital stock of a corporation that is a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer will generally be treated as "exempt interests" (as defined in new subsection 94.1(1)), and therefore not subject to the income inclusions under subsections 94.1(4), 94.2(4) or 94.3(4). However, if subsection 94.2(9) applies in respect of those shares (in particular, note that paragraph 94.2(9)(b) does not exclude the application of subsection 94.2(9) to an exempt interest that is an interest in a controlled foreign affiliate) either of subsections 94.1(4) or 94.2(4) will apply generally to require an amount to be included in computing the income of the taxpayer. Because of subparagraph 94.3(2)(b)(i), the accrual regime in section 94.3 will not apply in respect of an interest to which subsection 94.2(9) applies. The exception provided for such shares under subsection 91(1) is intended solely to prevent any incidence of double taxation that might otherwise arise.

For more details on the application of sections 94.1 to 94.4, see the commentary on those provisions.

Proposed Amendment — Advisory panel on international taxation

Related Provisions: 17(1)(b)(iii) — Amount included as FAPI not taxed under rule for loan to non-resident; 152(6.1) — Reassessment to apply FAPI loss carryback. See also at end of s. 91.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-392: Meaning of the term "share"; IT-451R: Deemed disposition and acquisition on ceasing to be or becoming resident in Canada.

Information Circulars: 77-9R: Books, records and other requirements for taxpayers having foreign affiliates.

(2) Reserve where foreign exchange restriction — Where an amount in respect of a share has been included in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year by virtue of subsection (1) or (3) and the Minister is satisfied that, by reason of the operation of monetary or exchange restrictions of a country other than Canada, the inclusion of the whole amount with no deduction for a reserve in respect thereof would impose undue hardship on the taxpayer, there may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year such amount as a reserve in respect of the amount so included as the Minister deems reasonable in the circumstances.

Related Provisions: 91(3) — Reserve included in income following year.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-392: Meaning of the term "share".

(3) Reserve for preceding year to be included — In computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year, there shall be included each amount in respect of a share that was deducted by virtue of subsection (2) in computing the taxpayer's income for the immediately preceding year.

(4) Amounts deductible in respect of foreign taxes — Where, by virtue of subsection (1), an amount in respect of a share has been included in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year or for any of the 5 immediately preceding taxation years (in this subsection referred to as the "income amount"), there may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year the lesser of

(a) the product obtained when

(i) the portion of the foreign accrual tax applicable to the income amount that was not deductible under this subsection in any previous year is multiplied by

(ii) the relevant tax factor, and

Proposed Amendment — 91(4)(a)(ii)

(ii) the taxpayer's relevant tax factor for the year, and

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 16(2), will amend subpara. 91(4)(a)(ii) to read as above, applicable to 2002 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 91(4) provides for a deduction in computing the income of a taxpayer resident in Canada. The deduction is available where the taxpayer has included an amount under subsection 91(1) in computing income in respect of a share of the capital stock of a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer. The deduction is generally determined with reference to foreign taxes payable by the affiliate and a "relevant tax factor". The "relevant tax factor" for a resident taxpayer is designed to permit a deduction for the resident taxpayer that will result in tax relief that is a proxy for a foreign tax credit in respect of foreign taxes payable by a controlled foreign affiliate of the resident taxpayer.

Subsection 91(4) is amended to explicitly link the "relevant tax factor" to the resident taxpayer and the taxation year for which the deduction under subsection 91(4) is claimed. For more detail on the definition "relevant tax factor" in subsection 95(1), see the commentary on that provision.

(b) the amount, if any, by which the income amount exceeds the total of the amounts in respect of that share deductible under this subsection in any of the 5 immediately preceding taxation years in respect of the income amount.

(5) Amounts deductible in respect of dividends received — Where in a taxation year a taxpayer resident in Canada has received a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation that was at any time a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, there may be deducted, in respect of such portion of the dividend as is prescribed to have been paid out of the taxable surplus of the affiliate, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, the lesser of

(a) the amount by which that portion of the dividend exceeds the amount, if any, deductible in respect thereof under paragraph 113(1)(b), and

(b) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts required by paragraph 92(1)(a) to be added in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the share before the dividend was so received by the taxpayer

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts required by paragraph 92(1)(b) to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the share before the dividend was so received by the taxpayer.

Related Provisions: 20(13) — Deduction for dividend; 91(5.1) — Deduction of dividend by shareholder; 91(6) — Amounts deductible re dividends received; 91(7) — Where share acquired by partner from partnership; 94.4(4)(a)(i)(D) — Prevention of double taxation. See also at end of s. 91.

Regulations: 5900(1)(b), 5900(3) (portion of dividend prescribed to be paid out of taxable surplus).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-392: Meaning of the term "share".

Proposed Addition [to be repealed without taking effect] — Enacted effective 2012 — 91(5.1)–(5.3)

(5.1) Deduction of dividend by shareholder — [effective 2012] Where in a taxation year a corporation resident in Canada receives a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation that was at any time a foreign affiliate of the corporation and subsection (5) does not apply in respect of that dividend, there may be deducted, in respect of such portion of the dividend as is prescribed to have been paid out of the taxable surplus of the affiliate, in computing the corporation's income for the year, the lesser of

(a) the amount, if any, by which that portion of the dividend exceeds the amount, if any, deductible in respect of the dividend under paragraph 113(1)(b), and

(b) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts required under subparagraph 92(1)(a)(ii) to be added in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the share before the dividend was so received by the corporation

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts required under paragraph 92(1)(b) to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the share before the dividend was so received by the taxpayer.

(5.2) Deduction of dividend by member of partnership — [effective 2012] Where in a taxation year a corporation is deemed under section 93.1 to have received a dividend from a foreign affiliate, there may be deducted, in respect of such portion of the dividend as is prescribed to have been paid out of the taxable surplus of the affiliate, in computing the corporation's income for the year, the lesser of

(a) the amount, if any, by which that portion of the dividend exceeds the amount, if any, deductible in respect of the dividend under paragraph 113(1)(b), and

(b) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts required under subparagraph 53(1)(e)(xiv) to be added in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the partnership interest that are reasonably attributable to a share in respect of which the dividend was paid

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts required under subparagraph 53(2)(c)(xiii) to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the partnership interest that are reasonably attributable to a share in respect of which the dividend was paid.

Related Provisions: 53(2)(c)(xiii) — Deduction from ACB of partnership interest.

(5.3) Deduction of capital gain by member of partnership — [effective 2012] Where in a taxation year a taxpayer is a member of a partnership, there may be deducted from the taxpayer's income for the taxation year an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) ½ the amount of the taxpayer's specified proportion (within the meaning of paragraph 18.2(10)(b)) of any capital gain that is attributable to a disposition by the partnership of a share of the capital stock of a corporation, and

(b) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts required under subparagraph 53(1)(e)(xiv) to be added in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of its interest in the partnership that are reasonably attributable to the share

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts required under subparagraph 53(2)(c)(xiii) to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the partnership interest that are reasonably attributable to the share.

Related Provisions: 53(2)(c)(xiii) — Deduction from ACB of partnership interest.

Application: S.C. 2007, c. 35 (Bill C-28, Royal Assent December 14, 2007), s. 24, added subsecs. 91(5.1) to (5.3), applicable after 2011. However, they will be repealed before taking effect, as proposed in the Jan. 27, 2009 Budget.

Proposed Repeal — 91(5.1)–(5.3)

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 23, will repeal subsecs. 91(5.1)–(5.3), applicable after 2011.

Federal Budget, Notice of Ways and Means Motion, Jan. 27, 2009: (24) That, consequential to the repeal of section 18.2 of the Act: . . .

(b) subparagraphs 53(1)(e)(xiv) and 53(2)(c)(xiii) and subsections 91(5.1) to (5.3) of the Act be repealed applicable after 2011; . . .

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Jan. 27, 2009: [See at end of 18.2, which is to be repealed before it takes effect — ed.]

(6) Idem — Where a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer that is a taxable Canadian corporation is acquired by the taxpayer from another corporation resident in Canada with which the taxpayer is not dealing at arm's length, for the purpose of subsection (5), any amount required by section 92 to be added or deducted, as the case may be, in computing the adjusted cost base to the other corporation of the share shall be deemed to have been so required to be added or deducted, as the case may be, in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the share.

(7) Shares acquired from a partnership — For the purpose of subsection (5), where a taxpayer resident in Canada acquires a share of the capital stock of a corporation that is immediately after the acquisition a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer from a partnership of which the taxpayer, or a corporation resident in Canada with which the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length at the time the share was acquired, was a member (each such person referred to in this subsection as the "member") at any time during any fiscal period of the partnership that began before the acquisition,

(a) that portion of any amount required by subsection 92(1) to be added to the adjusted cost base to the partnership of the share of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate equal to the amount included in the income of the member because of subsection 96(1) in respect of the amount that was included in the income of the partnership because of subsection (1) or (3) in respect of the foreign affiliate and added to that adjusted cost base, and

(b) that portion of any amount required by subsection 92(1) to be deducted from the adjusted cost base to the partnership of the share of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate equal to the amount by which the income of the member from the partnership under subsection 96(1) was reduced because of the amount deducted in computing the income of the partnership under subsection (2), (4) or (5) and deducted from that adjusted cost base is deemed to be an amount required by subsection 92(1) to be added or deducted, as the case may be, in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the share.

History: Subsec. 91(7) added by 2001, c. 17, s. 68, applicable to shares acquired after November 1999.

Enacted Amendment — 92(1) — Effective 2012 but to be amended

92. (1) Adjusted cost base of share of foreign affiliate — [effective 2012] In computing, at any time in a taxation year, the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer resident in Canada of any share owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer,

(a) there shall be added in respect of that share

(i) any amount included in respect of that share under subsection 91(1) or (3) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or any preceding taxation year (or that would have been required to have been so included in computing the taxpayer's income but for subsection 56(4.1) and sections 74.1 to 75 of this Act and section 74 of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952), and

(ii) the taxable earnings base adjustment (as defined in subsection 18.2(1)) of the taxpayer in respect of the share for the year or any preceding taxation year; and

(b) there shall be deducted in respect of that share

(i) any amount deducted by the taxpayer under subsection 91(2) or (4), and

(ii) any dividend received by the taxpayer before that time, to the extent of the amount deducted by the taxpayer, in respect of the dividend, under subsection 91(5) or (5.1)

in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or any preceding taxation year (or that would have been deductible by the taxpayer but for subsection 56(4.1) and sections 74.1 to 75 of this Act and section 74 of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952).

Application: S.C. 2007, c. 35 (Bill C-28, Royal Assent December 14, 2007), s. 25, amended subsec. 92(1) to read as above, applicable after 2011; but this will never come into effect as per 2009 Budget changes below.

Proposed Amendment — 92(1)

(1) Adjusted cost base of share of foreign affiliate — In computing, at any time in a taxation year, the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer resident in Canada of any share owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer,

(a) there shall be added in respect of that share any amount included in respect of that share under subsection 91(1) or (3) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or any preceding taxation year (or that would have been required to have been so included in computing the taxpayer's income but for subsection 56(4.1) and sections 74.1 to 75 of this Act and section 74 of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952); and

(b) there shall be deducted in respect of that share

(i) any amount deducted by the taxpayer under subsection 91(2) or (4), and

(ii) any dividend received by the taxpayer before that time, to the extent of the amount deducted by the taxpayer, in respect of the dividend, under subsection 91(5)

in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or any preceding taxation year (or that would have been deductible by the taxpayer but for subsection 56(4.1) and sections 74.1 to 75 of this Act and section 74 of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952).

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 24, will amend subsec. 92(1) to read as above, applicable after 2011.

Federal Budget, Notice of Ways and Means Motion, Jan. 27, 2009: (24) That, consequential to the repeal of section 18.2 of the Act: . . .

(c) subsection 92(1) be amended, applicable after 2011, to repeal subparagraph 92(1)(a)(ii) and to remove the reference to section 91(5.1) in subparagraph 92(1)(b)(ii).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-392: Meaning of the term "share".

Proposed Addition — 92(1.1)–(1.4)

(1.1) Where subsec. (1.3) applies — Subsection (1.3) applies to a holder of a share (referred to in this subsection and subsections (1.2) and (1.3) as the "relevant share") of a foreign affiliate (referred to in this subsection and subsection (1.2) as the "relevant foreign affiliate") of a particular corporation resident in Canada in computing at any time (referred to in this subsection and subsections (1.2) and (1.3) as the "computation time") the adjusted cost base to the holder of the relevant share, if, at the computation time, there is a specified section 93 election related to the relevant share.

Technical Notes: New subsection 92(1.1) provides that new subsection 92(1.3) will apply to the holder of a share of a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada in computing at any time the adjusted cost base of the share if there is a "specified section 93 election" related to the share. Subsection 92(1.1) defines that share as the "relevant share", and defines such a time as the "computation time", for the purposes of subsections 92(1.2) and (1.3). Also, subsection 92(1.1) defines that foreign affiliate as the "relevant foreign affiliate", for the purpose of subsection 92(1.2).

For information regarding the coming-into-force of this subsection, refer to the commentary regarding new subsection 92(1.4).

Related Provisions: 92(1.2) — Specified section 93 election.

(1.2) Specified s. 93 election — An election made by the particular corporation resident in Canada under subsection 93(1) or (1.2), as the case may be, in respect of a share of a particular foreign affiliate of the particular corporation that is disposed of at a time (referred to in this subsection as the "election time") before the computation time is, at the computation time, a specified section 93 election related to the relevant share if

(a) the particular foreign affiliate has, at the election time, an equity percentage in the relevant foreign affiliate;

(b) the relevant foreign affiliate was, at the election time, a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation;

(c) throughout the period that begins at the election time and ends at the computation time,

(i) the holder held the relevant share, and

(ii) the holder was

(A) a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation,

(B) a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada that was related to the particular corporation,

(C) a partnership of which a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation was a member, or

(D) a partnership of which a foreign affiliate, of a corporation resident in Canada that was related to the particular corporation, was a member;

(d) the relevant share was, at the election time, excluded property of the holder (or would have been, at the election time, excluded property of the holder if the holder had been a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation); and

(e) the relevant share is, at the computation time, excluded property of the holder (or would have been, at the computation time, excluded property of the holder if the holder had been a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation or of a corporation resident in Canada that is related to the particular corporation).

Technical Notes: New subsection 92(1.2) establishes, for the purposes of subsections 92(1.1) and (1.3), whether an election made under subsection 93(1) or (1.2) by a particular corporation resident in Canada in respect of a share of a particular foreign affiliate of the particular corporation that is disposed of at a time before the computation time is, at the computation time, a "specified section 93 election" related to the relevant share. The time of that disposition is referred to in subsection 92(1.2) as the "election time".

Such an election is, at the computation time, a "specified section 93 election" related to the relevant share for the purposes of subsections 92(1.1) and (1.3) if

- the particular foreign affiliate has, at the election time, an equity percentage in the relevant foreign affiliate;
- the relevant foreign affiliate was, at the election time, a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation;
- throughout the period that begins at the election time and ends at the computation time;
  - the holder held the relevant share, and
  - the holder was
    - a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation,
    - a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada that was related to the particular corporation,
    - a partnership of which a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation was a member, or
    - a partnership of which a foreign affiliate, of a corporation resident in Canada that was related to the particular corporation, was a member;
- the relevant share was, at the election time, excluded property of the holder (or would at that time have been excluded property of the holder if the holder had been a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation); and
- the relevant share is, at the computation time, excluded property of the holder (or would at that time have been excluded property of the holder if the holder had been a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation or of a corporation resident in Canada that is related to the particular corporation).

For information regarding the coming-into-force of this subsection, refer to the commentary regarding new subsection 92(1.4).

(1.3) Adjustments to adjusted cost base — If this subsection applies, the following rules apply in determining the adjusted cost base to the holder of the relevant share for the purposes described in subsection (1.4):

(a) there shall be added, to the adjusted cost base to the holder of the relevant share, the amount prescribed in respect of the relevant share in respect of the specified section 93 election, and

(b) there shall be deducted, from the adjusted cost base to the holder of the relevant share, the amount prescribed in respect of the relevant share in respect of the specified section 93 election.

Technical Notes: New subsection 92(1.3) contains rules that require adjustments to the adjusted cost base to the holder of the "relevant share". See the commentary to new subsection 92(1.1) for information regarding the circumstances that make subsection 92(1.3) apply. The adjustments are for the purposes described in subsection 92(1.4).

Under the rules contained in subsection 92(1.3), there is to be added to, or deducted from, as the case may be, the adjusted cost base to the holder of the relevant share the amount prescribed in new section 5911 of the Income Tax Regulations in respect of the specified section 93 election related to the relevant share.

Related Provisions: 92(1.1) — Conditions for 92(1.3) to apply.

Regulations: 5911(1) (amount prescribed for 92(1.3)(a)); 5911(2) (amount prescribed for 92(1.3)(b)).

(1.4) Applicability of subsec. (1.3) — The purposes described in this subsection are

(a) the computation, at any time after the election time, of the exempt surplus or deficit, the taxable surplus or deficit, and the underlying foreign tax, of the holder, in respect of the particular corporation resident in Canada or in respect of any other person that would, at the time after the election time, and if the taxpayer referred to in subparagraphs 95(2)(f)(iv) to (vii) were the particular corporation, be described by any of those subparagraphs; and

(b) the application, at any time after the election time, of paragraphs 95(2)(c.1) to (e.6).

Technical Notes: New subsection 92(1.4) sets out the purposes for which the adjustments described in new subsection 92(1.3) are applicable.

Those purposes are

- the computation of the exempt surplus or deficit, the taxable surplus or deficit, and the underlying foreign tax, of the holder, in respect of the corporation resident in Canada, or in respect of any other person referred to in subparagraphs 95(2)(f)(iv) to (vii) on the assumption that the taxpayer referred to in those subparagraphs were the particular corporation resident in Canada, and
- the application of paragraphs 95(2)(c.1) to (e.6), at any time after the time of the election.

Coming-into-Force

New subsections 92(1.1) to (1.4) apply in respect of elections made under subsection 93(1) or (1.2) in respect of dispositions that occur after December 20, 2002.

However, new subsections 92(1.1) to (1.4) will not apply in respect of elections made under subsection 93(1) or (1.2) in respect of a disposition by a vendor of a share if one of the following conditions are met:

- the disposition was required to be made under an agreement in writing made by the vendor on or before December 20, 2002,
- the disposition occurs on or before February 27, 2004 and either
  - a valid election was made by the taxpayer to have new paragraphs 95(2)(c.1) to (e.6) not apply (and to have a modified version of the draft paragraphs 93(1.4) to (1.6) that were announced on December 20, 2002 apply) to dispositions made after December 20, 2002 and on or before February 27, 2004, or
  - none of new paragraphs 88(3)(a), 95(2)(c.2) and 95(2)(d) to (e.5) applies to the disposition, or
- the disposition occurs after February 27, 2004 and that disposition is required to be made under an agreement in writing made by the vendor on or before February 27, 2004, and none of paragraphs 88(3)(a), 95(2)(c.2) and 95(2)(d) to (e.5) applies to the disposition.

For information about the aforementioned election and the aforementioned modified version of subsections 93(1.4) to (1.6), refer to the commentary to new paragraphs 95(2)(c.1) to (c.6).

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), s. 131, will add subsecs. 92(1.1)-(1.4), applicable in respect of elections made under subsec. 93(1) or (1.2) in respect of dispositions that occur after December 20, 2002, except that the new subsecs. do not apply in respect of an election made under subsec. 93(1) or (1.2) in respect of a disposition by a vendor of a share

(a) that is required to be made under an agreement in writing made by the vendor before December 21, 2002;

(b) that occurs before February 28, 2004, if a valid election in respect of the vendor was made under subsec. 133(40) [application of amendment to 95(2)(c.1)-(c.6)] or if none of paras. 88(3)(a), 95(2)(c.2) and 95(2)(d) to (e.5) applies to the disposition; or

(c) that occurs after February 27, 2004 if that disposition is required to be made under an agreement in writing made by the vendor before February 28, 2004 and if none of paras. 88(3)(a), 95(2)(c.2) and 95(2)(d) to (e.5) applies to the disposition.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Feb. 26, 2008: [See at end of Proposed Addition of 95(2)(c.1)–(c.6) for confirmation that these proposals will proceed — ed.]

(2) Deduction in computing adjusted cost base — In computing, at any time in a taxation year,

(a) the adjusted cost base to a corporation resident in Canada (in this subsection referred to as an "owner") of any share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation, or

(b) the adjusted cost base to a foreign affiliate (in this subsection referred to as an "owner") of a person resident in Canada of any share of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of that person, there shall be deducted, in respect of any dividend received on the share before that time by the owner of the share, an amount equal to the amount, if any, by which

(c) such portion of the amount of the dividend so received as was deductible by virtue of paragraph 113(1)(d) from the income of the owner for the year in computing the owner's taxable income for the year or as would have been so deductible if the owner had been a corporation resident in Canada,

exceeds

(d) such portion of any income or profits tax paid by the owner to the government of a country other than Canada as may reasonably be regarded as having been paid in respect of the portion described in paragraph (c).

Related Provisions: 53(2)(b) — ACB deductions; 91(6) — Amounts deductible re dividends received.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-392: Meaning of the term "share".

(3) Idem — In computing, at any time in a taxation year, the adjusted cost base to a corporation resident in Canada of any share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation, there shall be deducted an amount in respect of any dividend received on the share by the corporation before that time equal to such portion of the amount so received as was deducted under subsection 113(2) from the income of the corporation for the year or any preceding year in computing its taxable income.

Related Provisions: 53(2)(b) — ACB deductions.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-392: Meaning of the term "share".

(4) Disposition of a partnership interest — Where a corporation resident in Canada or a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada has at any time disposed of all or a portion of an interest in a partnership of which it was a member, there shall be added, in computing the proceeds of disposition of that interest, the amount determined by the formula

$$(A - B) \times (C/D)$$

where

A is the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that was deductible under paragraph 113(1)(d) by the member from its income in computing its taxable income for any taxation year of the member that began before that time in respect of any portion of a dividend received by the partnership, or would have been so deductible if the member were a corporation resident in Canada,

exceeds

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is the portion of any income or profits tax paid by the partnership or the member of the partnership to a government of a country other than Canada that can reasonably be considered as having been paid in respect of the member's share of the dividend described in paragraph (a);

B is the total of

(a) the total of all amounts each of which was an amount added under this subsection in computing the member's proceeds of a disposition before that time of another interest in the partnership, and

(b) the total of all amounts each of which was an amount deemed by subsection (5) to be a gain of the member from a disposition before that time of a share by the partnership;

C is the adjusted cost base, immediately before that time, of the portion of the member's interest in the partnership disposed of by the member at that time; and

D is the adjusted cost base, immediately before that time, of the member's interest in the partnership immediately before that time.

Related Provisions: 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: Subsec. 92(4) added by 2001, c. 17, s. 69, applicable to dispositions that occur after November 1999.

(5) Deemed gain from the disposition of a share — Where a partnership has, at any time in a fiscal period of the partnership at the end of which a corporation resident in Canada or a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada was a member, disposed of a share of the capital stock of a corporation, the amount determined under subsection (6) in respect of such a member is deemed to be a gain of the member from the disposition of the share by the partnership for the member's taxation year in which the fiscal period of the partnership ends.

History: Subsec. 92(5) added by 2001, c. 17, s. 69, applicable to dispositions that occur after November 1999.

(6) Formula — The amount determined for the purposes of subsection (5) is the amount determined by the formula

A – B

where

A is the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that was deductible under paragraph 113(1)(d) by the member from its income in computing its taxable income for a taxation year in respect of any portion of a dividend received by the partnership on the share in a fiscal period of the partnership that began before the time referred to in subsection (5) and ends in the member's taxation year, or would have been so deductible if the member were a corporation resident in Canada,

exceeds

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is the portion of any income or profits tax paid by the partnership or the member to a government of a country other than Canada that can reasonably be considered as having been paid in respect of the member's share of the dividend described in paragraph (a); and

B is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that was added under subsection (4) in computing the member's proceeds of a disposition before the time referred to in subsection (5) of an interest in the partnership.

Related Provisions: 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: Subsec. 92(6) added by 2001, c. 17, s. 69, applicable to dispositions that occur after November 1999.

93. (1) Election re disposition of share in foreign affiliate — For the purposes of this Act, where a corporation resident in Canada so elects, in prescribed manner and within the prescribed time, in respect of any share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation disposed of by it or by another foreign affiliate of the corporation,

(a) the amount (in this subsection referred to as the "elected amount") designated by the corporation in its election not exceeding the proceeds of disposition of the share shall be deemed to have been a dividend received on the share from the affiliate by the disposing corporation or disposing affiliate, as the case may be, immediately before the disposition and not to have been proceeds of disposition; and

Proposed Amendment — 93(1)(a)

(a) the amount (which may not exceed the lesser of the proceeds of disposition of the share and the amount prescribed in respect of the share) designated by the corporation in its election (referred to in this subsection as the "elected amount") is deemed

(i) to have been a dividend received on the share from the affiliate by the disposing corporation or the disposing affiliate, as the case may be, immediately before the disposition, and

(ii) not to have been received as proceeds of disposition; and

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 132(1), will amend para. 93(1)(a) to read as above, applicable on the same basis as the addition of subsecs. 92(1.1)–(1.4) above.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 93(1)(a) provides that the amount elected in respect of the proceeds of disposition cannot exceed the proceeds of disposition of the share otherwise determined and that the amount elected is deemed to be a dividend received on the share and is deemed not to be proceeds of disposition. The amendments to subparagraph 93(1)(a) provide that the amount elected in respect of the proceeds of disposition of the share cannot exceed those proceeds of disposition otherwise determined, nor exceed the amount prescribed, under proposed new subsection 5902(6) of the Regulations, in respect of the share being disposed of.

Refer to the coming-into-force commentary below [proposed 93(1.4)] to determine the coming-into-force dates for these amendments.

(b) where subsection 40(3) applies to the disposing corporation or disposing affiliate, as the case may be, in respect of the share,

(i) the amount deemed by that subsection to be the gain of the disposing corporation or disposing affiliate, as the case may be, from the disposition of the share shall, except for the purposes of paragraph 53(1)(a), be deemed to be equal to the amount, if any, by which

(A) the amount deemed by that subsection to be the gain from the disposition of the share determined without reference to this subparagraph

exceeds

(B) the elected amount, and

(ii) for the purposes of determining the exempt surplus, exempt deficit, taxable surplus, taxable deficit and underlying foreign tax of the affiliate in respect of the corporation resident in Canada (within the meanings assigned by Part LIX of the Income Tax Regulations), the affiliate is deemed to have redeemed at the time of disposition shares of a class of its capital stock.

Related Provisions: 40(3) — Deemed gain where amounts to be deducted from ACB exceed cost plus amounts to be added to ACB; 93(1.1) — Election re share in foreign affiliate; 93(1.4) — Where no election permitted; 93(5) — Late filed elections; 93.1(1) — Where shares are owned by partnership; 95(2)(c.1)–(c.6) — Suspended gain for FAPI on internal disposition by FA of another FA; 95(2)(f) — Determination of certain components of foreign accrual property income; Reg. 5900(2) — No election for dividend to have been paid out of taxable surplus; Reg. 5905(2) — Where shares of foreign affiliate are redeemed or cancelled.

History: Subpara. 93(1)(b)(ii) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 70(1), applicable to dispositions that occur after November 1999. The subpara. formerly read:

(ii) for the purposes of determining the exempt surplus, exempt deficit, taxable surplus, taxable deficit and underlying foreign tax of the affiliate in respect of the corporation resident in Canada (within the meanings assigned by the regulations for the purpose of section 95), the affiliate shall be deemed at the time of disposition to have redeemed shares of a class of its capital stock.

Subsec. 93(1) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 69(1), applicable to 1987 et seq. Subsec. 93(1) formerly read:

93. (1) Election re disposition of share in foreign affiliate — Where at any time a corporation resident in Canada has so elected, in prescribed manner and within the prescribed time, in respect of any share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation disposed of by it or by another foreign affiliate of the corporation, for the purposes of this Act, an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the amount designated by the corporation in its election, and

(b) the proceeds of disposition of the share

shall be deemed to have been a dividend received on the share from the affiliate by the disposing corporation or disposing affiliate, as the case may be, immediately before the disposition and not to have been proceeds of disposition.

Selected Cases [subsec. 93(1)]: Terrador Investments Ltd. v. R., [1999] 3 C.T.C. 520 (FCA); leave to appeal to SCC refused (May 18, 2000), File 27499 (No bad debt possible where statute deemed amount to have been received).

(1.1) Idem — Where at any time shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada that are excluded property are disposed of by another foreign affiliate of the corporation (other than a disposition to which paragraph 95(2)(c), (d) or (e) applies), the corporation shall be deemed to have made an election at that time under subsection (1) in respect of each such share disposed of and in the election to have designated an amount equal to such amount as is prescribed.

Proposed Amendment — 93(1.1)

(1.1) Deemed election — If at any time shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada are disposed of by another foreign affiliate of the corporation, the corporation is deemed

(a) to have made an election at that time under subsection (1) in respect of each of those shares; and

(b) to have designated, in the election, the amount prescribed in respect of each of those shares.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 132(2), will amend subsec. 93(1.1) to read as above, applicable on the same basis as the addition of subsecs. 92(1.1)–(1.4) above.

Technical Notes: Subsection 93(1.1) provides that the rules in subsection 93(1) will automatically apply in respect of a disposition of a share of a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada by another foreign affiliate of the corporation, without the need for an election, where the share disposed of was "excluded property" (as defined in subsection 95(1)) of the vendor (other than a disposition, of a share that is excluded property, to which paragraph 95(2)(c), (d) or (e) applies). The amount of the deemed election in respect of the proceeds of disposition of the share is determined by the Regulations but will not in any event exceed the vendor's capital gain otherwise determined in respect of the disposition.

Subsection 93(1.1) is amended

- to remove the requirement that the shares be excluded property of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada that disposed of the share, and
- to remove the rule that made the deemed election apply in respect of a disposition, of a share that is an excluded property, to which paragraph 95(2)(c), (d) or (e) applies. (Such a rule is no longer needed, as the excluded property requirement has been removed altogether.)

(1.2) Disposition of a share of a foreign affiliate held by a partnership — Where a particular corporation resident in Canada or a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation (each of which is referred to in this subsection as the "disposing corporation") would, but for this subsection, have a taxable capital gain from a disposition by a partnership, at any time, of shares of a class of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation and the particular corporation so elects in prescribed manner in respect of the disposition,

Proposed Amendment — 93(1.2) opening words

(1.2) Disposition of shares of a foreign affiliate held by a partnership — If a particular corporation resident in Canada or a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation (each of which is referred to in this subsection as the "disposing corporation") would, but for this subsection, have a taxable capital gain from a disposition by a partnership, at any time, of shares of a class of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation and the particular corporation so elects in prescribed manner and within the prescribed time in respect of the disposition,

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 132(3), will amend the opening words of subsec. 93(1.2) to read as above, applicable to dispositions that occur after November 1999.

Technical Notes: Subsection 93(1.2) provides that, where a particular corporation resident in Canada or a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation (each of which is referred to as the "disposing corporation") would, but for that subsection, have a taxable capital gain from a disposition by the partnership of a particular share of a class of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation, and the disposing corporation elects in prescribed manner in respect of the gain, the amount designated in the election will reduce the taxable capital gain and will be grossed-up and treated as a dividend received on the particular share by the disposing corporation.

Subsection 93(1.2) is being amended in the following ways:

- The preamble of that section is amended to add a requirement that the election in respect of the disposition be filed "within the prescribed time". ...

(a) twice

(i) the amount designated by the particular corporation (which amount shall not exceed the amount that is equal to the proportion of the taxable capital gain of the partnership that the number of shares of that class of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate, determined as the amount, if any, by which the number of those shares that were deemed to have been owned by the disposing corporation for the purposes of subsection 93.1(1) immediately before the disposition exceeds the number of those shares that were deemed to have been owned for those purposes by the disposing corporation immediately after the disposition, is of the number of those shares of the foreign affiliate that were owned by the partnership immediately before the disposition), or

Proposed Amendment — 93(1.2)(a)(i)

(i) the amount that the particular corporation designates that may not exceed the lesser of

(A) the amount determined by the formula

$$K \times L/M$$

where

K is the taxable capital gain of the partnership,

L is the number of shares of that class of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate, determined as the amount, if any, by which the number of those shares that were deemed to have been owned by the disposing corporation for the purposes of subsection 93.1(1) immediately before the disposition exceeds the number of those shares that were deemed to have been owned for those purposes by the disposing corporation immediately after the disposition, and

M is the number of those shares of the foreign affiliate that were owned by the partnership immediately before the disposition, and

(B) the amount prescribed in respect of the share, or

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 132(4), will amend subpara. 93(1.2)(a)(i) to read as above, applicable on the same basis as the addition of subsecs. 92(1.1)–(1.4) above.

Technical Notes: Subsection 93(1.2) is being amended in the following ways: ...

- Subparagraph (a)(i) of that section is amended to provide that the amount designated by the corporation in the election cannot exceed the lesser of two amounts.
- The first amount is the amount determined by the following formula

$$K \times L/M$$

where

K is the taxable capital gain of the partnership,

L is the number of shares of that class of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate, determined as the amount, if any, by which the number of those shares that were deemed to have been owned by the disposing corporation for the purposes of subsection 93.1(1) immediately before the disposition exceeds the number of those shares that were deemed to have been owned for those purposes by the disposing corporation immediately after the disposition, and

M is the number of those shares of the foreign affiliate that were owned by the partnership immediately before the disposition; and

- the second amount is the amount prescribed in respect of the share (see new Regulation 5902(7)).

Refer to the coming-into-force commentary below [proposed 93(1.4)] to determine the coming-into-force dates for these amendments.

(ii) where subsection (1.3) applies, the amount prescribed for the purpose of that subsection in respect of those shares is deemed to have been a dividend received immediately before that time on the number of those shares of the foreign affiliate which shall be determined as the amount, if any, by which the number of those shares that the disposing corporation was deemed to own for the purpose of subsection 93.1(1) immediately before the disposition exceeds the number of those shares of the foreign affiliate that the disposing corporation was deemed to own for the purposes of subsection 93.1 (1) immediately after the disposition;

(b) notwithstanding section 96, the disposing corporation's taxable capital gain from the disposition of those shares is deemed to be the amount, if any, by which the disposing corporation's taxable capital gain from the disposition of the shares otherwise determined exceeds the amount designated by the particular corporation in respect of the shares;

(c) for the purpose of any regulation made under this subsection, the disposing corporation is deemed to have disposed of the number of those shares of the foreign affiliate which shall be determined as the amount, if any, by which the number of those shares that the disposing corporation was deemed to own for the purposes of subsection 93.1(1) immediately before the disposition exceeds the number of those shares that the disposing corporation was deemed to own for those purposes immediately after the disposition;

(d) for the purposes of section 113 in respect of the dividend referred to in paragraph (a), the disposing corporation is deemed to have owned the shares on which that dividend was received; and

(e) where the disposing corporation has a taxable capital gain from the partnership because of the application of subsection 40(3) to the partnership in respect of those shares, for the purposes of this subsection, the shares are deemed to have been disposed of by the partnership.

History: Subsec. 93(1.2) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 70(4) to replace the reference to the expression "4/3 of" with a reference to the word "twice", applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000.

Proposed Amendment — Application of S.C. 2001, c. 17, subsec. 70(4)

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), s. 201, will amend the application of the addition of subsec. 93(1.2) by S.C. 2001, c. 17, subsec. 70(4) (2000 Budget bill), deemed in force on June 14, 2001, so that the Notes will read as follows:

> Subsec. 93(1.2) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 70(4) to replace the reference to the expression "4/3 of" with a reference to the word "twice", applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000 except that, for a taxation year of a taxpayer that includes February 28, 2000 or October 17, 2000, or began after February 28, 2000 and ended before October 17, 2000, the reference to the word "twice" shall be read as a reference to the expression "the fraction that is the reciprocal of the fraction in para. 38(a), as amended by 2001, c. 17, that applies to the taxpayer for the year, multiplied by".

Technical Notes: Section 93 contains a number of rules relating to the disposition of shares of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada.

Subsection 93(1.2) provides that, where a particular corporation resident in Canada or a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation (each of which is referred to as the "disposing corporation") would, but for this subsection, have a taxable capital gain from a partnership from the disposition by the partnership of shares of a class of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation, and the disposing corporation so elects in prescribed manner in respect of the gain, the amount designated will reduce the taxable capital gain and will be grossed up and recharacterized as a dividend received on the share by the disposing corporation.

Paragraph 93(1.2)(a) provides that twice the amount designated by the disposing corporation in respect of the shares (or where subsection 93(1.3) applies, twice the amount determined under that subsection) will be treated as a dividend received on the shares by the disposing corporation from the foreign affiliate.

Before the present amendment, subsection 93(1.2) was applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000. This amendment ensures that, for a taxation year of a taxpayer that includes either February 28, 2000 or October 17, 2000 or began after February 28, 2000 and ended before October 17, 2000, the reference to the word "twice" is to read as references to the reciprocal of the capital gains inclusion rate applicable to the corporation resident in Canada or to the foreign affiliate for the taxation year. This amendment corrects a technical deficiency.

Subsec. 93(1.2) added by the said c. 17, subsec. 70(2), applicable to dispositions that occur after November 1999.

Regulations: 5902 (prescribed manner, prescribed time).

(1.3) Deemed election — Where a foreign affiliate of a particular corporation resident in Canada has a gain from the disposition by a partnership at any time of shares of a class of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation that are excluded property, the particular corporation is deemed to have made an election under subsection (1.2) in respect of the number of shares of the foreign affiliate which shall be determined as the amount, if any, by which the number of those shares that the disposing corporation was deemed to own for the purposes of subsection 93.1(1) immediately before the disposition exceeds the number of those shares that the disposing corporation was deemed to own for those purposes immediately after the disposition.

Related Provisions: Reg. 5902(7) — Deemed amount designated.

History: Subsec. 93(1.3) added by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 70(2), applicable to dispositions that occur after November 1999.

Proposed Addition — 93(1.4)

(1.4) No election — Notwithstanding subsections (1) to (1.3), no election may be made under subsection (1) or (1.2) by a corporation in respect of a disposition of a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation if any of paragraph 88(3)(a) and subparagraphs 95(2)(d)(i), (d.1)(i), (e)(i), (e.1)(i), (e.2)(i), (e.3)(i), (e.4)(i) and (e.5)(i) applies to the disposition.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 132(5), will add subsec. 93(1.4), applicable to dispositions that occur after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes: New subsection 93(1.4) provides that, notwithstanding subsections 93(1) to (1.3), no election may be made under subsection 93(1) or (1.2) by a corporation in respect of a disposition of a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation if any of paragraph 88(3)(a) and subparagraphs 95(2)(d)(i), (d.1)(i), (e)(i), (e.1)(i), (e.2)(i), (e.3)(i), (e.4)(i) and (e.5)(i) applies to the disposition.

Refer to the coming-into-force commentary below to determine the coming-into-force dates for this new subsection.

Coming-into-Force (ITA 93(1)(a), (1.1), (1.2), (1.3) and (1.4))

The amendments to paragraph 93(1)(a), to subsection 93(1.1) and to subparagraph 93(1.2)(a)(i) apply to dispositions that occur after December 20, 2002.

However, those amendments will not apply in respect of dispositions by a vendor if one of the following conditions are met:

- the disposition is required to be made under an agreement in writing made by the vendor on or before December 20, 2002,
  - the disposition occurs on or before February 27, 2004 and either
    - a valid election was made by the taxpayer to have new paragraphs 95(2)(c.1) to (c.6) not apply (and to have a modified version of the draft paragraphs 93(1.4) to (1.6) that were announced on December 20, 2002 apply) to dispositions made after December 20, 2002 and on or before February 27, 2004, or
    - none of new paragraphs 88(3)(a), 95(2)(c.2), and 95(2)(d) to (e.5) of the Act applies to the disposition, or
  - the disposition occurs after February 27, 2004, that disposition is required to be made under an agreement in writing made by the vendor on or before February 27, 2004 and none of new paragraphs 88(3)(a), 95(2)(c.2) and 95(2)(d) to (e.5) applies to the disposition.

For information about the aforementioned election and the aforementioned modified version of subsections 93(1.4) to (1.6), refer to the commentary to new paragraphs 95(2)(c.1) to (c.6).

The amendment to the preamble of subsection 93(1.2) applies to dispositions that occur after November 1999.

New subsection 93(1.4) applies to dispositions that occur after February 27, 2004.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Feb. 26, 2008: [See at end of Proposed Addition of 95(2)(c.1)–(c.6) for confirmation that these proposals will proceed — ed.]

(2) Loss limitation on disposition of share — Where

(a) a corporation resident in Canada has a loss from the disposition by it at any time of a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "affiliate share"), or

(b) a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada has a loss from the disposition by it at any time of a share of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada that is not excluded property (in this subsection referred to as the "affiliate share"), the amount of the loss is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

$$A - (B - C)$$

Proposed Amendment — 93(2) formula

$$A - (B - C) + D$$

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 132(6), will amend the formula in subsec. 93(2) to read as above, applicable to taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after February 27, 2004, except that if the taxpayer so elects in writing and files the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the day on which the amending legislation is assented to, the amendment applies to taxation years, of the taxpayer and of all the taxpayer's foreign affiliates, that begin after 1994, and, notwithstanding subsecs. 152(4) to (5), any assessment of the taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for any of those taxation years that begin on or before February 27, 2004 shall be made that is necessary to take the election into account.

Technical Notes: Subsection 93(2) provides rules for the purpose of determining the loss of a corporation resident in Canada from the disposition of a share of a foreign affiliate of the corporation or the loss of a foreign affiliate of the corporation from a disposition of a share of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the corporation that is not excluded property to the foreign affiliate that disposed of the share.

The amount of the loss, determined without reference to this subsection, is reduced by exempt dividends received, on the share or a share for which the share was substituted, by the corporation resident in Canada, by another corporation resident in Canada that is related to the corporation or by a foreign affiliate of either of those corporations resident in Canada (to the extent that the exempt dividends have not already reduced losses or allowable capital losses of those corporations or foreign affiliates under subsection 93(2), (2.1), (2.2) or (2.3)). The term "exempt dividend" is defined in subsection 93(3).

Subsection 93(2) is being amended to permit the corporation resident in Canada or its foreign affiliate to restore a loss from a disposition of a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada to the extent of the lesser of two amounts.

- The first amount is the reduction of that loss which is attributable to exempt dividends.
- The second amount is the total of the following gains determined in respect of the corporation resident in Canada or the foreign affiliate, as the case may be, that disposed of the share:
  - The foreign exchange gain arising on the settlement or extinguishment of an obligation issued or incurred to acquire the share.
  - The foreign exchange gain arising on the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of shares issued to acquire the share.
  - The gain arising under an agreement that provides for the purchase, sale or exchange of a currency, or from the disposition of a currency, that was entered into or acquired for hedging the foreign exchange exposure arising in connection with the acquisition of the share.

First, the formula in subsection 93(2) is amended by adding the new variable "D" and will read as follows:

$$A - (B - C) + D$$

where

A is the amount of the loss determined without reference to this subsection,

B is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount received before that time, in respect of an exempt dividend on the affiliate share or on a share for which the affiliate share was substituted, by

(a) the corporation resident in Canada,

(b) a corporation related to the corporation resident in Canada,

(c) a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or

(d) a foreign affiliate of a corporation related to the corporation resident in Canada,

C is the total of

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount by which a loss (determined without reference to this section), from another disposition at or before that time by a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B of the affiliate share or a share for which the affiliate share was substituted, was reduced under this subsection in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B,

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is twice the amount by which an allowable capital loss (determined without reference to this section), of a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B from a previous disposition by a partnership of the affiliate share or a share for which the affiliate share was substituted, was reduced under subsection (2.1) in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B,

(c) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount by which a loss (determined without reference to this section), from a disposition at or before that time by a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B of an interest in a partnership, was reduced under subsection (2.2) in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B, and

(d) the total of all amounts each of which is twice the amount by which an allowable capital loss (determined without reference to this section), of a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B from a disposition at or before that time by a partnership of an interest in another partnership, was reduced under subsection (2.3) in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B.

Proposed Addition — 93(2)D

D is the lesser of

(a) the amount, if any, by which the amount determined for B exceeds the amount determined for C, and

(b) the total of the following amounts determined in respect of the corporation resident in Canada or the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be,

(i) the amount of the capital gain determined under paragraph 39(2)(a) for the taxation year that includes that time in respect of

(A) the settlement or extinguishment of an obligation of the corporation resident in Canada or of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, that can reasonably be considered to have been issued or incurred in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate share by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, or

(B) the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of a share of the capital stock of a corporation resident in Canada or of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, that can reasonably be considered to have been issued in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate share by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, and

(ii) the amount of any gain realized by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, under an agreement that provides for the purchase, sale or exchange of currency, or from the disposition of a currency, which agreement or currency, as the case may be, can reasonably be considered to have been entered into or acquired, by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, for the principal purpose of hedging the foreign exchange exposure arising in connection with the acquisition of the affiliate share.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 132(7), will add the description of D to subsec. 93(2), applicable on the same basis as the amendment to the formula above.

Technical Notes: Second, the addition to the loss under new variable "D" will be determined as the lesser of

- The reduction of the loss in respect of exempt dividends (determined as (B - C) in the formula), and
- The total of the following amounts determined in respect of the corporation resident in Canada or the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be:

— the amount of the capital gain determined under paragraph 39(2)(a) for the taxation year that includes that time in respect of

- the settlement or extinguishment of an obligation of the corporation resident in Canada or of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, that can reasonably be considered to have been issued or incurred in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate share by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, or
- the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of a share of the capital stock of a corporation resident in Canada or of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, that can reasonably be considered to have been issued in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate share by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, and — the amount of any gain realized by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, under an agreement that provides for the purchase, sale or exchange of currency, or from the disposition of a currency, which agreement or currency, as the case may be, can reasonably be considered to have been entered into or acquired, by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate resident in Canada, as the case may be, for the principal purpose of hedging the foreign exchange exposure arising in connection with the acquisition of the affiliate share.

Coming-into-Force (ITA 93(2), 93(2.1), 93(2.2) and 93(2.3))

The amendments to subsections 93(2), 93(2.1), 93(2.2) and (2.3) apply to taxation years, of foreign affiliates of a taxpayer, that begin after February 27, 2004. However, if the taxpayer so elects in writing and files that election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxation year in which these amendments are assented to, the amendments will apply taxation years of the taxpayer and all foreign affiliates of the taxpayer that begin after 1994.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Feb. 12, 2001:

Angelo Nikolakakis, Stikeman Elliott, Toronto

Dear Mr. Nikolakakis:. . .

Relationship between 93(2) and 39(2)

Finally you have submitted that subsection 93(2) should not apply to deny a loss on the disposition of the shares of a foreign affiliate where the loss results from the fluctuation in the value of a foreign currency, particularly where subsection 39(2) also applies to require the recognition of a corresponding gain.

Although we will wish to give further consideration to the issue of how best to identify both gains and losses related to such shares, we are prepared to recommend that an amendment be made to subsection 93(2) of the Act to address your concerns.

Effective Date

It will be recommended that the amendments be made effective for taxation years commencing after announcement date. It will also be recommended that taxpayer be permitted to elect to have the amendments apply to the 1994 and subsequent taxation years of foreign affiliates where the taxpayer so elects in respect of all the taxpayer's foreign affiliates ...

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

History: Subsec. 93(2) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 70(5) to replace the references to the expression "4/3 of" with references to the word "twice", applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000 except that, for a taxation year of a taxpayer that includes February 28, 2000 or October 17, 2000, or began after February 28, 2000 and ended before October 17, 2000, the references to the word "twice" shall be read as references to the expression "the fraction that is the reciprocal of the fraction in para. 38(a), as amended by 2001, c. 17, that applies to the taxpayer for the year, multiplied by".

Subsec. 93(2) amended by the said c. 17, subsec. 70(3), applicable to dispositions that occur after November 1999. The subsec. formerly read:

(2) Loss limitation on disposition of share — Where

(a) a corporation resident in Canada has disposed of a share of the capital stock of any foreign affiliate of the corporation, or

(b) a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada has disposed of a share of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the corporation, the amount of the loss of the disposing corporation from the disposition of the share shall be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which

(c) the amount that would be the loss of the disposing corporation therefrom if this Act were read without reference to this subsection

exceeds

(d) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts received before the disposition of the share in respect of exempt dividends on the share or a share for which the share was substituted by

(A) the disposing corporation,

(B) a corporation related to the disposing corporation,

(C) a foreign affiliate of the disposing corporation, or

(D) a foreign affiliate of a corporation related to the disposing corporation

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount by which a loss from a previous disposition of the share or a share for which the share was substituted by a corporation referred to in any of clauses (i)(A) to (D) has been reduced because of this subsection.

That portion of subsec. 93(2) following para. (b) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 69(2), applicable to the determination of losses arising in 1985 et seq., except that, in its application to such losses from dispositions occurring before July 13, 1990, para. (d) shall be read as follows:

(d) the total of all amounts in respect of exempt dividends received by the disposing corporation on the share at any time before the disposition.

That portion of subsec. 93(2) formerly read:

the amount of any capital loss of the disposing corporation from the disposition of the share shall be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which the amount of the capital loss therefrom otherwise determined exceeds the total of all amounts in respect of exempt dividends received by the disposing corporation on the share at any time before the disposition.

Interpretation Bulletins: See at end of s. 93.

(2.1) Loss limitation — disposition of share by partnership — Where

(a) a corporation resident in Canada has an allowable capital loss from a disposition at any time by a partnership of a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "affiliate share"), or

(b) a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada has an allowable capital loss from a disposition at any time by a partnership of a share of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada that would not be excluded property of the affiliate if the affiliate owned the share immediately before it was disposed of (in this subsection referred to as the "affiliate share"), the amount of the allowable capital loss is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

$$A - (B - C)$$

Proposed Amendment — 93(2.1) formula

$$A - (B - C) + D$$

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 132(8), will amend the formula in subsec. 93(2.1) to read as above, applicable on the same basis as the amendment to the formula in 93(2).

Technical Notes: Subsection 93(2.1) provides rules for the purpose of determining the allowable capital loss of a corporation resident in Canada from the disposition by a partnership of a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation and for the purpose of determining the allowable capital loss of a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada from a disposition by a partnership of a share of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the corporation that would not be excluded property of the foreign affiliate if the foreign affiliate owned the share immediately before it was disposed of.

The amount of the allowable capital loss otherwise determined is reduced by ½ of the exempt dividends received, on the share or a share for which the share was substituted, by the corporation resident in Canada, by another corporation resident in Canada that is related to the corporation resident in Canada, or by a foreign affiliate of either of those corporations resident in Canada (to the extent that the exempt dividends have not already reduced losses or allowable capital losses of those corporations or foreign affiliates under subsection 93(2), (2.1), (2.2) or (2.3)). The term "exempt dividend" is defined in subsection 93(3) .

Subsection 93(2.1) is being amended to permit the corporation resident in Canada or its foreign affiliate to restore an allowable capital loss from a disposition by a partnership of a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada to the extent of the lesser of two amounts.

The addition to the loss under new variable "D" will be determined as the lesser of

- The first amount is the reduction of that allowable capital loss which is attributable to exempt dividends.
- The second amount is ½ of the total of the following gains determined in respect of the corporation resident in Canada or the foreign affiliate, as the case may be,
  - — The foreign exchange gain arising on the settlement of an obligation issued or incurred to acquire the share.
  - — The foreign exchange gain arising on the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of shares issued to acquire the share.
  - — The gain arising under an agreement that provides for the purchase, sale or exchange of a currency, or from the disposition of a currency, that was entered into or acquired for hedging the foreign exchange exposure arising in connection with the acquisition of the share.

First, the formula in subsection 93(2.1) is amended by adding the new variable "D" and will read as follows:

$$A - (B - C) + D$$

where

A is the amount of the allowable capital loss determined without reference to this subsection,

B is ½ of the total of all amounts each of which was received before that time, in respect of an exempt dividend on the affiliate share or on a share for which the affiliate share was substituted, by

(a) the corporation resident in Canada,

(b) a corporation related to the corporation resident in Canada,

(c) a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or

(d) a foreign affiliate of a corporation related to the corporation resident in Canada, and

C is the total of

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount by which an allowable capital loss (determined without reference to this section), of a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B from a disposition at or before that time by a partnership of the affiliate share or a share for which the affiliate share was substituted, was reduced under this subsection in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B,

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is ½ of the amount by which a loss (determined without reference to this section), of a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B from another disposition at or before that time of the affiliate share or a share for which the affiliate share was substituted, was reduced under subsection (2) in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B,

(c) the total of all amounts each of which is ½ of the amount by which a loss (determined without reference to this section), from a disposition at or before that time by a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B of an interest in a partnership, was reduced under subsection (2.2) in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B, and

(d) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount by which an allowable capital loss (determined without reference to this section), of a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B from a disposition at or before that time by a partnership of an interest in another partnership, was reduced under subsection (2.3) in respect of exempt dividends referred to in the description of B.

Proposed Addition — 93(2.1)D

D is the lesser of

(a) the amount, if any, by which the amount determined for B exceeds the amount determined for C, and

(b) one-half of the total of the following amounts determined in respect of the corporation resident in Canada or the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be,

(i) the amount of the capital gain of the corporation resident in Canada, of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or of the partnership (to the extent that such a gain is reasonably attributable to the corporation resident in Canada, or to the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be) determined under paragraph 39(2)(a) for the taxation year that includes that time in respect of

(A) the settlement or extinguishment of an obligation of the corporation resident in Canada, of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or of the partnership, as the case may be, that can reasonably be considered to have been issued or incurred in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate share by the partnership, or

(B) the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of a share of the capital stock of the corporation resident in Canada or of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, that can reasonably be considered to have been issued in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate share by the partnership, and

(ii) the amount of any gain realized by the partnership (to the extent that the gain is reasonably attributable to the corporation resident in Canada or to the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be), by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, under an agreement that provides for the purchase, sale or exchange of currency, or from the disposition of a currency, which agreement or currency, as the case may be, can reasonably be considered to have been entered into or acquired, by the partnership, by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, for the principal purpose of hedging the foreign exchange exposure arising in connection with the acquisition of the affiliate share.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 132(9), will add the description of D to subsec. 93(2.1), applicable on the same basis as the amendment to the formula in 93(2).

Technical Notes: Second, the addition to the allowable capital loss under new variable "D" will be determined as the lesser of:

- The reduction of the allowable capital loss in respect of exempt dividends (determined as (B - C) in the formula), and
- ½ of the total of the following amounts determined in respect of the corporation resident in Canada or the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be,
  - — the amount of the capital gain of the corporation resident in Canada, of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or of the partnership (to the extent that such a gain is reasonably attributable to the corporation resident in Canada, or to the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be) determined under paragraph 39(2)(a) for the taxation year that includes that time in respect of

- the settlement or extinguishment of an obligation of the corporation resident in Canada, of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or of the partnership, as the case may be, that can reasonably be considered to have been issued or incurred in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate share by the partnership, or
- the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of a share of the capital stock of a corporation resident in Canada or of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, that can reasonably be considered to have been issued in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate share by the partnership, and

— the amount of any gain realized by the partnership (to the extent that the gain is reasonably attributable to the corporation resident in Canada or to the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be), by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, under an agreement that provides for the purchase, sale or exchange of currency, or from the disposition of a currency, which agreement or currency, as the case may be, can reasonably be considered to have been entered into or acquired, by the partnership, by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, for the principal purpose of hedging the foreign exchange exposure arising in connection with the acquisition of the affiliate share.

Refer to the coming-into-force commentary [under 93(2)D] to determine the coming-into-force for this new subsection.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(u)(ii) — Amalgamation; 93(3) — Exempt dividends; 93.1(2) — Dividend on shares of foreign affiliate held by partnership; 257 — Formula amounts cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: Subsec. 93(2.1) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 70(6) to replace the references to the fraction "3/4" with references to the fraction "1/2", applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000 except that, for a taxation year of a taxpayer that includes February 28, 2000 or October 17, 2000, or began after February 28, 2000 and ended before October 17, 2000, the references to the fraction "1/2" shall be read as references to the fraction in para. 38(a), as amended by 2001, c. 17, that applies to the taxpayer for the year.

Subsec. 93(2.1) added by the said c. 17, subsec. 70(3), applicable to dispositions that occur after November 1999.

(2.2) Loss limitation — disposition of partnership interest — Where

(a) a corporation resident in Canada has a loss from the disposition by it at any time of an interest in a partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "partnership interest"), which has a direct or indirect interest in shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada (in this subsection referred to as "affiliate shares"), or

(b) a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada has a loss from the disposition by it at any time of an interest in a partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "partnership interest"), which has a direct or indirect interest in shares of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada that would not be excluded property if the shares were owned by the affiliate (in this subsection referred to as "affiliate shares"),

the amount of the loss is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

$$A - (B - C)$$

Proposed Amendment — 93(2.2) formula

$$A - (B - C) + D$$

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 132(10), will amend the formula in subsec. 93(2.2) to read as above, applicable on the same basis as the amendment to the formula in 93(2).

Technical Notes: Subsection 93(2.2) provides rules for the purpose of determining the loss of a corporation resident in Canada from the disposition of an interest in a partnership that holds interests in shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada or the loss of a foreign affiliate of the corporation from a disposition of an interest in a partnership that holds interests in shares of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the corporation that would not be excluded property of the foreign affiliate if the foreign affiliate owned the share immediately before it was disposed of.

The amount of the loss otherwise determined is reduced by exempt dividends received on the shares, or shares for which the shares were substituted, by the corporation resident in Canada, by another corporation resident in Canada that is related to the corporation, or a by foreign affiliate of either of those corporations resident in Canada (to the extent that the exempt dividends have not already reduced losses or allowable capital losses of those corporations or foreign affiliates under subsection 93(2), (2.1), (2.2) or (2.3)). The term "exempt dividend" is defined in subsection 93(3) .

Subsection 93(2.2) is being amended to permit the corporation resident in Canada or its foreign affiliate to restore a loss arising on the disposition of an interest in a partnership that holds interests in shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada to the extent of the lesser of two amounts.

- The first amount is the reduction of the loss attributable to exempt dividends.
- The second amount is the sum of the following gains determined in respect of the corporation or the foreign affiliate, as the case may be, that disposed of the partnership interest
  - — The foreign exchange gain arising on the settlement of an obligation issued or incurred to acquire the share interests held by the partnership.
  - — The foreign exchange gain arising on the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of shares issued to acquire share interests held by the partnership.
  - — The gain arising under an agreement that provides for the purchase, sale or exchange of a currency, or from the disposition of a currency, that was entered into or acquired for hedging the foreign exchange exposure arising in connection with the acquisition of the share interests held by the partnership.

First, the formula in subsection 93(2.2) is being amended by adding the new variable "D" and will read as follows:

$$A - (B - C) + D$$

where

A is the amount of the loss determined without reference to this subsection,

B is the total of all amounts each of which was received before that time, in respect of an exempt dividend on affiliate shares or on shares for which affiliate shares were substituted, by

(a) the corporation resident in Canada,

(b) a corporation related to the corporation resident in Canada,

(c) a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or

(d) a foreign affiliate of a corporation related to the corporation resident in Canada, and

C is the total of

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount by which a loss (determined without reference to this section), from another disposition at or before that time by a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B of affiliate shares or shares for which affiliate shares were substituted, was reduced under subsection (2) in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B,

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is twice the amount by which an allowable capital loss (determined without reference to this section), of a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B from another disposition at or before that time by a partnership of affiliate shares or shares for which affiliate shares were substituted, was reduced under subsection (2.1) in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B,

(c) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount by which a loss (determined without reference to this section), from a disposition at or before that time by a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B of an interest in a partnership, was reduced under this subsection in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B, and

(d) the total of all amounts each of which is twice the amount by which an allowable capital loss (determined without reference to this section), of a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B from a disposition at or before that time by a partnership of an interest in another partnership, was reduced under subsection (2.3) in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B.

Proposed Addition — 93(2.2)D

D is the lesser of

(a) the amount, if any, by which the amount determined for B exceeds the amount determined for C, and

(b) the total of the following amounts determined in respect of the corporation resident in Canada or the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be,

(i) the amount of the capital gain of the corporation resident in Canada, of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or of the partnership (to the extent that such a gain is reasonably attributable to the corporation resident in Canada, or to the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be) determined under paragraph 39(2)(a) for the taxation year that includes that time in respect of

(A) the settlement or extinguishment of an obligation of the corporation resident in Canada, of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or of the partnership, as the case may be, that can reasonably be considered to have been issued or incurred in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate shares, or

(B) the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of a share of the corporation resident in Canada or of the foreign affiliate resident in Canada, as the case may be, or of an interest in the partnership that can reasonably be considered to have been issued in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate shares, and

(ii) the amount of any gain realized by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, under an agreement that provides for the purchase, sale or exchange of currency, or from the disposition of a currency, which agreement or currency, as the case may be, can reasonably be considered to have been entered into or acquired by the corporation resident in Canada, by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or by the partnership, as the case may be, for the principal purpose of hedging the foreign exchange exposure arising in connection with the acquisition of the affiliate shares.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 132(11), will add the description of D to subsec. 93(2.2), applicable on the same basis as the amendment to the formula in 93(2).

Technical Notes: Second, the addition to the loss under new variable "D" will be determined as the lesser of

- The reduction of the loss in respect of exempt dividends (determined as (B - C) in the formula), and
- The total of the following amounts determined in respect of the corporation resident in Canada or the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be,
  - the amount of the capital gain of the corporation resident in Canada, of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or of the partnership (to the extent that such a gain is reasonably attributable to the corporation resident in Canada, or to the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be) determined under paragraph 39(2)(a) for the taxation year that includes that time in respect of
    - the settlement or extinguishment of an obligation of the corporation resident in Canada, of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or of the partnership, as the case may be, that can reasonably be considered to have been issued or incurred in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate shares, or
    - the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of a share of the corporation resident in Canada or of the foreign affiliate resident in Canada, as the case may be, or of an interest in the partnership that can reasonably be considered to have been issued in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate shares, and
  - the amount of any gain realized by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, under an agreement that provides for the purchase, sale or exchange of currency, or from the disposition of a currency, which agreement or currency, as the case may be, can reasonably be considered to have been entered into or acquired by the corporation resident in Canada, by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or by the partnership, as the case may be, for the principal purpose of hedging the foreign exchange exposure arising in connection with the acquisition of the affiliate shares.

Refer to the coming-into-force commentary [under 93(2)D] to determine the coming-into-force dates for this new subsection.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(u)(ii) — Amalgamation; 93(3) — Exempt dividends; 93.1(1) — Where shares are owned by partnership; 93.1(2) — Dividend on shares of foreign affiliate held by partnership; 257 — Formula amounts cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: Subsec. 93(2.2) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 70(7) to replace the references to the expression "4/3 of" with references to the word "twice", applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000 except that, for a taxation year of a taxpayer that includes February 28, 2000 or October 17, 2000, or began after February 28, 2000 and ended before October 17, 2000, the references to the word "twice" shall be read as references to the expression "the fraction that is the reciprocal of the fraction in para. 38(a), as amended by 2001, c. 17, that applies to the taxpayer for the year, multiplied by".

Subsec. 93(2.2) added by the said c. 17, subsec. 70(3), applicable to dispositions that occur after November 1999.

(2.3) Loss limitation — disposition of partnership interest — Where

(a) corporation resident in Canada has an allowable capital loss from a partnership from a disposition at any time of an interest in another partnership that has a direct or indirect interest in shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada (in this subsection referred to as "affiliate shares"), or

(b) a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada has an allowable capital loss from a partnership from a disposition at any time by a partnership of an interest in another partnership that has a direct or indirect interest in shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada that would not be excluded property of the affiliate if the affiliate owned the shares immediately before the disposition (in this subsection referred to as "affiliate shares"), the amount of the allowable capital loss is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

$$A - (B - C)$$

Proposed Amendment — 93(2.3) formula

$$A - (B - C) + D$$

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 132(12), will amend the formula in subsec. 93(2.3) to read as above, applicable on the same basis as the amendment to the formula in 93(2).

Technical Notes: Subsection 93(2.3) provides rules for the purpose of determining the allowable capital loss of a corporation resident in Canada from the disposition by a partnership of an interest in another partnership that has interests in shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada and for determining the allowable capital loss of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada from a disposition by a partnership of an interest in another partnership that has interests in shares of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada that would not be excluded property if the shares were owned by the foreign affiliate.

The amount of the allowable capital loss otherwise determined is reduced by ½ of the exempt dividends received, on the share or a share for which the share was substituted, by the corporation resident in Canada, by another corporation resident in Canada that is related to the corporation, or by a foreign affiliate of either of those corporations resident in Canada (to the extent that the exempt dividends have not already reduced losses or allowable capital losses of those corporations or foreign affiliates under subsection 93(2), (2.1), (2.2) or (2.3)). The term "exempt dividend" is defined in subsection 93(3).

Subsection 93(2.3) is being amended to permit the corporation resident in Canada or its foreign affiliate to restore an allowable capital loss from a disposition by a partnership of an interest in another partnership that has interests in shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada to the extent of the lesser of two amounts.

- The first amount is the reduction of the allowable capital loss attributable to exempt dividends.

- The second amount is one-half of the total of the following gains determined in respect of the corporation resident in Canada or the foreign affiliate, as the case may be,
  - The foreign exchange gain arising on the settlement of an obligation issued or incurred to acquire the share.
  - The foreign exchange gain arising on the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of shares issued to acquire the share.
  - The gain arising under an agreement that provides for the purchase, sale or exchange of a currency, or from the disposition of a currency, that was entered into or acquired for hedging the foreign exchange exposure arising in connection with the acquisition of the share.

First, the formula in subsection 93(2.3) is being amended by adding the new variable "D" and will read as follows:

$$A - (B - C) + D$$

where

A is the amount of the allowable capital loss determined without reference to this subsection,

B is ½ of the total of all amounts each of which was received before that time, in respect of an exempt dividend on affiliate shares or on shares for which affiliate shares were substituted, by

(a) the corporation resident in Canada,

(b) a corporation related to the corporation resident in Canada,

(c) a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or

(d) a foreign affiliate of a corporation related to the corporation resident in Canada, and

C is the total of

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is ½ of the amount by which a loss (determined without reference to this section), of a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B from another disposition at or before that time of affiliate shares or shares for which affiliate shares were substituted, was reduced under subsection (2) in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B,

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount by which an allowable capital loss (determined without reference to this section), of a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B from a disposition at or before that time by a partnership of affiliate shares or shares for which affiliate shares were substituted, was reduced under subsection (2.1) in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B,

(c) the total of all amounts each of which is ½ of the amount by which a loss (determined without reference to this section), from a disposition at or before that time by a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B of an interest in a partnership, was reduced under subsection (2.2) in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B, and

(d) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount by which an allowable capital loss (determined without reference to this section), of a corporation or foreign affiliate described in the description of B from a disposition at or before that time by a partnership of an interest in another partnership, was reduced under this subsection in respect of the exempt dividends referred to in the description of B.

Proposed Addition — 93(2.3)D

D is the lesser of

(a) the amount, if any, by which the amount determined for B exceeds the amount determined for C, and

(b) one-half of the total of the following amounts determined in respect of the corporation resident in Canada or the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be,

(i) the amount of the capital gain of the corporation resident in Canada, of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, or of the partnership (to the extent that such a gain is reasonably attributable to the corporation resident in Canada, or to the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be) determined under paragraph 39(2)(a) for the taxation year that includes that time in respect of

(A) the settlement or extinguishment of an obligation of the corporation resident in Canada, of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, of the partnership or of the other partnership, as the case may be, that can reasonably be considered to have been issued or incurred in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate shares, or

(B) the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of a share of the corporation resident in Canada or of the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, or of an interest in the partnership or in the other partnership, as the case may be, that can reasonably be considered to have been issued in relation to the acquisition of the affiliate shares, and

(ii) the amount of any gain realized by a partnership (to the extent that such gain is reasonably attributable to the corporation resident in Canada or to the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be), by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, under an agreement that provides for the purchase, sale or exchange of currency, or from the disposition of a currency, which agreement or currency, as the case may be, can reasonably be considered to have been entered into or acquired by the partnership, by the corporation resident in Canada or by the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be, for the principal purpose of hedging the foreign exchange exposure arising in connection with the acquisition of the affiliate shares.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 132(13), will add the description of D to subsec. 93(2.3), applicable on the same basis as the amendment to the formula in 93(2).

Technical Notes: Second, the addition to the allowable capital loss under new variable "D" will be determined as the lesser of:

- The reduction of the allowable capital loss in respect of exempt dividends (determined as (B - C) in the formula), and
- ½ of the total of the following amounts determined in respect of the corporation resident in Canada or the foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada, as the case may be,

Subsec. 93(2.3) added by the said c. 17, subsec. 70(3), applicable to dispositions that occur after November 1999.

(3) Exempt dividends — For the purposes of subsections (2) to (2.3),

(a) a dividend received by a corporation resident in Canada is an exempt dividend to the extent of the amount in respect of the dividend that is deductible from the income of the corporation for the purpose of computing the taxable income of the corporation because of paragraph 113(1)(a), (b) or (c); and

(b) a dividend received by a particular foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada from another foreign affiliate of the corporation is an exempt dividend to the extent of the amount, if any, by which the portion of the dividend that was not prescribed to have been paid out of the pre-acquisition surplus of the other affiliate exceeds the total of such portion of the income or profits tax that can reasonably be considered to have been paid in respect of that portion of the dividend by the particular affiliate or by a partnership in which the particular affiliate had, at the time of the payment of the income or profits tax, a partnership interest, either directly or indirectly.

History: Subsec. 93(3) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 70(9), applicable to dispositions that occur after November 1999. The subsec. formerly read:

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2),

(a) a dividend received by a corporation resident in Canada is an exempt dividend to the extent of the amount in respect of the dividend that is deductible from the income of the corporation in computing its taxable income by virtue of paragraph 113(1)(a), (b) or (c); and

(b) a dividend received by a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada from another foreign affiliate of that corporation is an exempt dividend to the extent of the amount, if any, by which the portion of the dividend that was not prescribed to have been paid out of the pre-acquisition surplus of that other affiliate exceeds such portion of any income or profits tax paid by the first-mentioned affiliate as may reasonably be regarded as having been paid in respect of that portion of the dividend.

Regulations: 5900(1)(c) (amount prescribed to have been paid out of pre-acquisition surplus).

(4) Loss on disposition of shares of foreign affiliate — Where a taxpayer resident in Canada or a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as the "vendor") has acquired shares of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as the "acquired affiliate") on the disposition of shares of any other foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (other than a disposition to which subsection 40(3.4) applies),

(a) the capital loss therefrom otherwise determined shall be deemed to be nil; and

(b) in computing the adjusted cost base to the vendor of all shares of any particular class of the capital stock of the acquired affiliate owned by the vendor immediately after the disposition, there shall be added an amount determined by the formula

$$(A - B) \times \frac{C}{D}$$

where

A is the cost amount to the vendor immediately before the disposition of the shares disposed of,

B is the total of

(i) the proceeds of disposition of the shares disposed of, and

(ii) the total of all amounts deducted under paragraph (2)(d) in computing losses of the vendor from the dispositions of the shares disposed of,

C is the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of all shares of that particular class owned by it at that time, and

D is the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of all shares of the capital stock of the acquired affiliate owned by it at that time.

History: The opening words of subsec. 93(4) amended by 1998, c. 19, s. 120, applicable, subject to s. 247 of 1998, c. 19 (grandfathering rule reproduced at the end of the Act), to dispositions of property that occur after April 26, 1995. The opening words formerly read:

(4) Where a taxpayer resident in Canada or a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as the "vendor") has acquired shares of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as the "acquired affiliate") on the disposition of shares of any other foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (other than a disposition to which subsection 85(4) applies), the following rules apply:

Para. 93(4)(b) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 69(3), applicable to dispositions of shares occurring after July 13, 1990. Para. 93(4)(b) formerly read:

(b) in computing the adjusted cost base to the vendor of all shares of any particular class of the capital stock of the acquired affiliate owned by it immediately after the disposition there shall be added the amount that is equal to that proportion of the amount, if any, by which

(i) the cost amount to it immediately before the disposition of the shares disposed of

exceeds

(ii) the proceeds of the disposition

that

(iii) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of all shares of that class owned by it at that time,

is of

(iv) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of all shares of the capital stock of the acquired affiliate owned by it at that time.

Interpretation Bulletins: See at end of s. 93.

(5) Late filed elections — Where the election referred to in subsection (1) was not made on or before the day on or before which the election was required by that subsection to be made, the election shall be deemed to have been made on that day if, on or before the day that is 3 years after that day,

(a) the election is made in prescribed manner; and

(b) an estimate of the penalty in respect of that election is paid by the corporation when that election is made.

Regulations: 5902 (prescribed manner).

(5.1) Special cases — Where, in the opinion of the Minister, the circumstances of a case are such that it would be just and equitable

(a) to permit an election under subsection (1) to be made after the day that is 3 years after the day on or before which the election was required by that subsection to be made, or

(b) to permit an election made under subsection (1) to be amended,

the election or amended election shall be deemed to have been made on the day on or before which the election was so required to be made if

(c) the election or amended election is made in prescribed form, and

(d) an estimate of the penalty in respect of the election or amended election is paid by the corporation when the election or amended election is made,

and where this subsection applies to the amendment of an election, that election shall be deemed not to have been effective.

Forms: T2107: Election for a disposition of shares in a foreign affiliate.

(6) Penalty for late filed election — For the purposes of this section, the penalty in respect of an election or amended election referred to in paragraph (5)(a) or (5.1)(c) is an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) ¼ of 1% of the amount designated in the election or amended election for each month or part of a month during the period commencing with the day on or before which the election is required by subsection (1) to be made and ending on the day the election is made, and

(b) an amount, not exceeding $8,000, equal to the product obtained by multiplying $100 by the number of months each of which is a month all or part of which is during the period referred to in paragraph (a).

Related Provisions: 93(7) — Assessment of penalty; 220(3.1) — Waiver of penalty by CRA.

(7) Unpaid balance of penalty — The Minister shall, with all due dispatch, examine each election and amended election referred to in paragraph (5)(a) or (5.1)(c), assess the penalty payable and send a notice of assessment to the corporation, and the corporation shall pay forthwith to the Receiver General the amount, if any, by which the penalty so assessed exceeds the total of all amounts previously paid on account of that penalty.

(ii) where another foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada is a member of the partnership, the amount included in that other affiliate's income in respect of the dividend referred to in paragraph (a) shall not exceed the amount that would be included in its income pursuant to subsection 96(1) in respect of the partnership dividend received by the partnership if the value for H in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsection 95(1) were nil and this Act were read without reference to this subsection.

Proposed Amendment — 93.1(2)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 19, 2006:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your many recent letters, e-mails and phone calls relating to certain narrow issues arising from the foreign affiliate proposals announced on February 27, 2004 by the Minister of Finance. . . .

Draft subsections 93.1(2) and 95(2.2) of the Act

Subsection 93.1(1) provides that, for the purpose of determining whether (for the limited purposes described in that subsection) a non-resident corporation is a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada, the shares of a non-resident corporation are deemed to be owned by the members of the partnership in the proportion that the fair market value of their interests in the partnership is of the fair market value of all members' interests in the partnership. That rule applies on an iterative basis, such that, where members of a partnership that owns (or is deemed by that rule to own) the shares of a non-resident corporation are themselves partnerships, those shares are deemed to be owned by the members of those other partnerships using the same proportionality rule.

Subsection 93.1(2) applies where a corporation resident in Canada is a member of a partnership that owns shares of a non-resident corporation that is deemed by subsection 93.1(1) to be a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada. It provides, for the purposes of sections 93 and 113, that, where the non-resident corporation pays a dividend to the partnership, the corporation resident in Canada is deemed to receive a share of that dividend equal to the proportion that the fair market value of its interest in the partnership is of the fair market value of all interests in the partnership. Thus, the corporation resident in Canada can benefit from the deductions available under section 113 in respect of dividends on shares of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada.

However, unlike subsection 93.1(1), subsection 93.1(2) is not an iterative rule that applies through a chain of partnerships; therefore, it does not apply where (as in the example that you provided in your February 28 letter) the corporation resident in Canada is a member of a partnership that is itself a member of the partnership that owns the shares in the non-resident corporation. As a result, in your example, the corporation resident in Canada would not be able to claim a deduction under subsection 113(1) in respect of dividends from the non-resident corporation that are included, because of subsection 96(1), in the income of the corporation resident in Canada.

You have also identified issues with respect to the application of current subsection 95(2.2) of the Act where the shares of the non-resident corporation are acquired by a partnership rather than by a person referred to in paragraph (a) of that subsection. For the purpose of subsection 95(2), paragraph 95(2.2)(a) deems that corporation to be a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest throughout a year. That paragraph applies where that corporation either became or ceased to be a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in the year and that corporation was, at the beginning of the year or the end of the year, a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest.

You express the view that the reference, in paragraph 95(2.2)(a), to a "person" acquiring or disposing of shares of the capital stock of that corporation would not cover the case where the shares are acquired or disposed of by a partnership and the governing partnership law of the partnership is such that the members of the partnership are not considered to acquire or dispose of the shares. You make a similar observation with respect to applying the reference, in subparagraph 95(2.2)(b)(i), to "person" in the case where shares of that corporation or any other corporation are acquired or disposed of by a partnership.

A clarification of the intended application of subsections 93.1(2) and 95(2.2) is appropriate. Consequently, we will propose that

- section 93.1 be modified to provide a rule, for the purposes of subsection 93.1(2), that
  - — where a particular partnership owns (or is deemed by that rule to own) at any time a partnership interest in another partnership, each member of the particular partnership is deemed to own, at that time, the partnership interest in the other partnership in the proportion that the fair market value at that time of the member's partnership interest in the particular partnership is of the fair market value at that time of all members' partnership interests in the particular partnership, and
  - — a person or partnership that is a member (or is deemed by that rule to be a member) of a particular partnership that is a member of another partnership is deemed to be a member of the other partnership,
- subsection 93.1(1) be amended so that the rule in that amended subsection
  - — applies for the purposes of subsection 95(2,2), and
  - — continues to apply for the purposes of determining (for the limited purposes as presently referred to in that subsection) whether a non-resident corporation is a foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada, and
- paragraphs 95(2.2)(a) and (b) be amended [done by S.C. 2007, c. 35 — ed.] so that the expression "person" in subparagraphs 95(2)(a)(i) and (b)(i) is replaced by the expression "person or partnership".

It is contemplated that

- the new rule (referred to above) in section 93.1 would have effect for dividends received after November 1999, and
- the revisions to paragraphs 95(2.2)(a) and (b), and the revision to subsection 93.1(1) to extend the ambit of the rule in that subsection so that it applies for the purpose of subsection 95(2.2), would have effect for taxation years of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer that end after 1999.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

94. (1) Application of certain provisions to trusts not resident in Canada — Where,

(a) at any time in a taxation year of a trust that is not resident in Canada or that, but for paragraph (c), would not be so resident, a person beneficially interested in the trust (in this section referred to as a "beneficiary") was

(i) a person resident in Canada,

(ii) a corporation or trust with which a person resident in Canada was not dealing at arm's length, or

(iii) a controlled foreign affiliate of a person resident in Canada, and

(b) at any time in or before the taxation year of the trust,

(i) the trust, or a non-resident corporation that would, if the trust were resident in Canada, be a controlled foreign affiliate of the trust, has, other than in prescribed circumstances, acquired property, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, from

(A) a particular person who

(I) was the beneficiary referred to in paragraph (a), was related to that beneficiary or was the uncle, aunt, nephew or niece of that beneficiary,

(II) was resident in Canada at any time in the 18 month period before the end of that year or, in the case of a person who has ceased to exist, was resident in Canada at any time in the 18 month period before the person ceased to exist, and

(III) in the case of an individual, had before the end of that year been resident in Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, more than 60 months, or

(B) a trust or corporation that acquired the property, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, from a particular person described in clause (A) with whom it was not dealing at arm's length and the trust was not

(C) an inter vivos trust created at any time before 1960 by a person who at that time was a non-resident person,

(D) a testamentary trust that arose as a consequence of the death of an individual before 1976, or

(E) governed by a foreign retirement arrangement, or

(ii) all or any part of the interest of the beneficiary in the trust was acquired directly or indirectly by the beneficiary by way of

(A) purchase,

(B) gift, bequest or inheritance from a person referred to in clause (i)(A) or (B), or

(C) the exercise of a power of appointment by a person referred to in clause (i)(A) or (B), the following rules apply for that taxation year of the trust:

(c) where the amount of the income or capital of the trust to be distributed at any time to any beneficiary of the trust depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, any discretionary power,

(i) the trust is deemed for the purposes of this Part and sections 233.3 and 233.4 to be a person resident in Canada no part of whose taxable income is exempt because of section 149 from tax under this Part and whose taxable income for the year is the amount, if any, by which the total of

(A) the amount, if any, that would but for this subparagraph be its taxable income earned in Canada for the year,

(B) the amount that would be its foreign accrual property income for the year if

(I) except for the purpose of applying subsections 104(4) to (5.2) to days after 1998 that are determined under subsection 104(4), the trust were a non-resident corporation all the shares of which were owned by a person who was resident in Canada,

(II) the description of A in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsection 95(1) were, in respect of dividends received after 1998, read without reference to paragraph (b) of that description,

(III) the descriptions of B and E in that definition were, in respect of dispositions that occur after 1998, read without reference to "other than dispositions of excluded property to which none of paragraphs (2)(c), (d) and (e) apply",

(IV) the value of C in that definition were nil, and

(V) for the purposes of computing the trust's foreign accrual property income, the consequences of the application of subsections 104(4) to (5.2) applied in respect of days after 1998 that are determined under subsection 104(4),

(C) the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts each of which is an amount required by subsection 91(1) or (3) to be included in computing its income for the year exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by it for that year under subsection 91(2), (4) or (5), and

(D) the amount, if any, required by section 94.1 to be included in computing its income for the year

exceeds

(E) the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by it under subsection 91(2), (4) or (5) in computing its income for the year exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is an amount included in computing its income for the year because of subsection 91(1) or (3), and

(ii) for the purposes of section 126,

(A) the amount that would be determined under subparagraph (i) in respect of the trust for the year, if that subparagraph were read without reference to clause (i)(A), is deemed to be income of the trust for the year from sources in the country other than Canada in which the trust would, but for subparagraph (i), be resident, and

(B) any income or profits tax paid by the trust for the year (other than any tax paid because of this section), to the extent that it can reasonably be regarded as having been paid in respect of that income, is deemed to be non-business income tax paid by the trust to the government of that country, and

(d) in any other case, for the purposes of subsections 91(1) to (4) and sections 95 and 233.4,

(i) the trust shall, with respect to any beneficiary under the trust the fair market value of whose beneficial interest in the trust is not less than 10% of the aggregate fair market value of all beneficial interests in the trust, be deemed to be a non-resident corporation that is controlled by the beneficiary,

(ii) the trust shall be deemed to be a non-resident corporation having a capital stock of a single class divided into 100 issued shares, and

(iii) each beneficiary under the trust shall be deemed to own at any time the number of the issued shares that is equal to the proportion of 100 that

(A) the fair market value at that time of the beneficiary's beneficial interest in the trust

is of

(B) the fair market value at that time of all beneficial interests in the trust.

(3) Deduction in computing taxable income — In computing the amount of taxable income of a trust to which paragraph (1)(c) applies for any taxation year, there may be deducted such portion of the amount that would, but for this subsection, be included in computing the taxable income of the trust for the year by virtue of clauses (1)(c)(i)(B) and (C) as may reasonably be considered as having become an amount payable in the year within the meaning of subsection 104(24) to a beneficiary.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-342R: Trusts — income payable to beneficiaries; IT-451R: Deemed disposition and acquisition on ceasing to be or becoming resident in Canada.

(4) Deduction from foreign accrual property income — In computing the foreign accrual property income of a trust to which paragraph (1)(d) applies for any taxation year, there may be deducted such portion of the amount that would, but for this subsection, be the foreign accrual property income of the trust as may reasonably be considered as having become an amount payable in the year within the meaning of subsection 104(24) to a beneficiary.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-342R: Trusts — income payable to beneficiaries; IT-451R: Deemed disposition and acquisition on ceasing to be or becoming resident in Canada.

(5) Adjusted cost base of capital interest in trust — In computing, at any time in a taxation year, the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer resident in Canada of a capital interest in a trust to which paragraph (1)(d) applies,

(a) there shall be added any amount required by subsection 91(1) or (3) to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or any preceding taxation year (or that would have been so required to be included but for subsection 56(4.1) and sections 74.1 to 75 of this Act and section 74 of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952) in respect of that interest; and

(b) there shall be deducted any amount deducted by the taxpayer by reason of subsection 91(2) or (4) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or any preceding taxation year (or that would have been so deductible by the taxpayer but for subsection 56(4.1) and sections 74.1 to 75 of this Act and section 74 of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952) in respect of that interest.

Related Provisions: 53(1)(d.1) — Addition to ACB; 53(2)(b.1) — Reduction in ACB.

(6) Where financial assistance given — For the purposes of paragraph (1)(b), a trust or a non-resident corporation shall be deemed to have acquired property from any person who has given a guarantee on its behalf or from whom it has received any other financial assistance whatever.

Proposed Amendment — 94

Technical Notes: OVERVIEW

Existing Rules

Section 94 sets out rules that tax certain income earned by certain non-resident trusts. Section 94 generally applies if a person resident in Canada has transferred or loaned property to a non-resident trust that has one or more beneficiaries that are resident in Canada.

Section 94 uses two different methods to impose tax, depending on the terms of the non-resident trust.

If the amount to be distributed to a beneficiary of the trust depends upon a discretionary power, paragraph 94(1)(c) deems the trust to be resident in Canada for the purposes of Part I of the Act and deems its taxable income for tax purposes to be the total of its Canadian source income and its foreign accrual property income, if any. Each beneficiary is jointly and severally liable to pay the Canadian tax of the trust. However, the liability can be enforced against a particular beneficiary only to the extent that the beneficiary has received a distribution from the trust or proceeds from the sale of an interest in the trust.

For other non-resident trusts to which section 94 applies, paragraph 94(1)(d) provides that it is to be treated in much the same manner that a non-resident corporation is treated. If a Canadian resident beneficiary holds an interest in the trust with a fair market value equal to 10% or more of the total fair market value of all beneficial interests in the trust, the trust is deemed to be a controlled foreign affiliate of the beneficiary. Consequently, the foreign accrual property income rules apply to the trust and the beneficiary, requiring the beneficiary to include a portion of the foreign accrual property income of the trust in income. On the other hand, beneficiaries whose beneficial interests are less than 10% of the total fair market value of all interests in the trust may be subject to tax under the offshore investment fund rules in section 94.1. If section 94.1 does not apply, such beneficiaries are taxed only if trust income becomes payable to them in the year in which it arises.

New Rules

New section 94 takes a different approach to the taxation of non-resident trusts (NRTs). In general, if a Canadian resident contributes property to a NRT, then the trust is deemed resident in Canada for a number of purposes, and the contributor, the NRT and certain Canadian resident beneficiaries of the trust may all become jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable to pay Canadian tax on the world-wide income of the trust. (The English-language expression "jointly and severally" no longer exists in the civil law of the province of Quebec and has been replaced in that civil law with the expression "solidarily". In the English-language version of section 94, the expression "solidarily" is added to the expression "jointly and severally", which latter expression is maintained for common-law purposes. The French-language version of new section 94 uses only the expression "solidaire" as this expression is appropriate for both the civil and common-law. These changes ensure that the Act appropriately reflects both the civil law of the province of Quebec and the law of other provinces.)

Except as indicated otherwise, the amendments to section 94 apply to trust taxation years that begin after 2006.

In addition,

- a trust created in 2001 may elect in writing (by filing the election with the Minister on or before the trust's filing-due date for the trust's taxation year in which the amending legislation is assented to) to have new section 94 apply to its taxation years that begin in 2001,
- a trust created in 2002 may elect in writing (by filing the election with the Minister on or before the trust's filing-due date for the trust's taxation year in which the amending legislation is assented to) to have new section 94 apply to its taxation years that begin in 2002,
- a trust created in 2003 may elect in writing (by filing the election with the Minister on or before the trust's filing-due date for the trust's taxation year in which the amending legislation is assented to) to have new section 94 apply to its taxation years that begin in 2003,
- a trust created in 2004 may elect in writing (by filing the election with the Minister on or before the trust's filing-due date for the trust's taxation year in which the amending legislation is assented to) to have new section 94 apply to its taxation years that begin in 2004,
- a trust created in 2005 may elect in writing (by filing the election with the Minister on or before the trust's filing-due date for the trust's taxation year in which the amending legislation is assented to) to have new section 94 apply to its taxation years that begin in 2005, and
- a trust created in 2006 may elect in writing (by filing the election with the Minister on or before the trust's filing-due date for the trust's taxation year in which the amending legislation is assented to) to have new section 94 apply to its taxation years that begin in 2006.

Note that, under the coming-into-force provision for new section 94, any election or form (but for greater certainty, not including returns of income) referred to in new section 94 that would otherwise be required to be filed before 120 days after Royal Assent is deemed to have been filed with the Minister of National Revenue on a timely basis if it is filed with the Minister of National Revenue within 365 days after Royal Assent.

For more detail on filing obligations regarding returns of income, contact the Canada Revenue Agency.

The following table briefly summarizes section 94 and related rules.

Issue	Summary	References
1. Which trusts are subject to the new NRT rules?	A. In general, a trust (other than an exempt foreign trust) will be subject to tax for a taxation year as a trust resident in Canada if a contribution was made to the trust by an entity (other than a recent immigrant to Canada) that is resident in Canada at a specified time (generally, the end of the year).	S. 94(3) "entity", "exempt foreign trust", "resident contributor", "specified time" — s. 94(1) "contribution" — s. 94(1) and (2)
	B. In addition, a trust (other than an exempt foreign trust) will generally be subject to Canadian tax for a taxation year if there is a resident beneficiary under the trust. More specifically if: • a contribution was made by an entity when the entity was resident in Canada (or generally within a 60-month period before the entity became resident in Canada or within a 60-month period after the entity ceased to be resident in Canada), • where the contributing entity is an individual (other than a trust), at the specified time the individual had been resident in Canada for more than 60 months, and • at the specified time there is an entity (other than a specified charity or successor beneficiary) that is resident in Canada and is a beneficiary under the trust.	S. 94(3) and (10) "beneficiary", "connected contributor", "entity", "non-resident time", "resident beneficiary", "specified charity", "specified time", "successor beneficiary" — s. 94(1) "contribution" — s. 94(1) and (2)
2. Who is responsible for the tax payable by an NRT?	The trust is required to pay tax. If it fails to do so, each contributor referred to in 1(A) and/or each beneficiary referred to in 1(B) is jointly and severally or solidarily liable with the trust for the tax. However, the amount recoverable from an entity that is simply a beneficiary is limited to the beneficiary's recovery limit. Relief is also available in some cases for a contributor whose contribution to the trust is insignificant relative to other contributions made to the trust.	Jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable: paragraphs 94(3)(d) and (e) Limit to amount recoverable — 94(7) Recovery limit — 94(8) Determination of fair market value — 94(9) Definitions — 94(1)
3. Where the NRT rules apply to a trust for a taxation year, how will the trust's tax liabilities be calculated?	A. Canadian rules generally apply to the trust as if the trust were resident in Canada throughout the year for the purpose of computing the trust's income.	s. 94(3)(a) and 94(4)
	B. Explicit rule treats the trust as becoming resident in Canada, with resulting adjustment to cost amount of property.	s. 94(3)(c)
	C. Part XII.2 does not apply to the trust. Explicit exemption from Part XIII tax on amounts distributed to the trust, although payer must still withhold. Part XIII will generally apply to amounts (other than exempt amounts) paid or credited by the trust to non-resident beneficiaries	s. 94(3)(a)(viii) and (ix) and (4)(c) and 215 and 216(4.1) "exempt amount" — s. 94(1)
	D. Flow-through of income to resident and non-resident beneficiaries permitted, subject to special rules in the event that Canadian-source income is distributed to non-residents.	s. 94(3)(a)(ix) and 104(7.01) — special rules

Dept. of Finance news release 2001-120, Dec. 17, 2001: Non-Resident Trusts and Foreign Investment Entities

Finance Minister Paul Martin today announced a one-year delay of the effective date of income tax proposals affecting non-resident trusts and foreign investment entities.

Draft income tax legislation to implement these proposals, which were first put forward in the 1999 budget, was released for comment on August 2, 2001. Several detailed submissions have recently been received by the Department concerning the proposed legislation. Minister Martin noted that it is important to carefully consider these submissions before finalizing changes in this complex area of the income tax system.

Accordingly, it is proposed that the effective date for the new income tax rules affecting non-resident trusts and foreign investment entities be delayed by one year, generally to take effect for taxation years that begin after 2002. This delay will allow for full consideration, in the first part of next year, of all of the submissions that have been received, in order to finalize and implement these proposals before the end of 2002.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 31, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

I an responding to your letter to Len Farber dated May 1, 2001 concerning the Legislative Proposals and Explanatory Notes on Taxation of Non-Resident Trusts and Foreign Investment Entities (the "Legislative Proposals") released by the Department of Finance by way of Finance Canada News Release number 2000-050, dated June 22, 2000. As you know, Finance Canada News Release number 2000-064, dated September 7, 2000, states that the implementation date for the Legislative Proposals will be delayed by one year, to taxation years that begin after 2001.

Firstly, you suggested that the Legislative Proposals should be revised to allow a trust to elect to have the rules in proposed amended section 94 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") apply to the trust in respect of trust taxation years that begin after 2000. You noted that such a revision would be especially useful in cases such as where the trust is formed in 2001 and that the availability of such an election would obviate the need for the trust to report for the 2001 taxation year under the rules in existing subsection 94(1) and then to switch over to the rules in proposed new section 94 for the 2002 and subsequent taxation years.

We have no objections to this suggestion and we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance a revision to the implementation provision for proposed new section 94. The recommended implementation provision would provide that

- in general, proposed new section 94 would apply to trust taxation years that begin after 2001, and
- proposed new section 94 would apply to taxation years of the trust that begin after 2000, if the trust was formed in 2001 and has, on or before the trust's filing-due date for the taxation year of the trust that includes the day on which the Act implementing proposed new section 94 receives Royal Assent, notified the Minister of National Revenue in writing of its election to have proposed new subsection 94 apply to taxation years of the trust that begin after 2000.

Secondly, you made suggestions concerning paragraph (h) of the proposed new definition "exempt foreign trust" in proposed new subsection 94(1) . That paragraph essentially results in a trust described in paragraph (c) of the definition "exempt trust" in subsection 233.2(1) (i.e., a unit trust that has at least 150 beneficiaries in respect of the same class of units of the trust and meets the other conditions prescribed by section 4801.1 of the Income Tax Regulations) being an "exempt foreign trust" for the purpose of proposed new section 94. A unit trust that would not be subject to the rules in proposed new section 94 relating to non-resident trusts (the "new NRT rules") could, however, be subject to the rules in proposed new sections 94.1 and 94.2 relating to foreign investment entities (the "new FIE rules"). You pointed out that paragraph (h) of the proposed definition "exempt foreign trust" (as presently worded in the Legislative Proposals) could result in a situation where a unit trust would be subject to the new NRT rules in a particular taxation year of the trust if the trust did not, at the end of the particular year, have at least 150 beneficiaries, but would become subject to the new FIE rules in the subsequent year if, at the end of that subsequent year, the trust had at least 150 beneficiaries. You suggested that the Legislative Proposals should be revised to allow a trust to have the right to make an election, applicable to a current taxation year of the trust and all subsequent taxation years, to have the definition "exempt foreign trust" read without reference to paragraph (h).

We have no objections to this suggestion and we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance a revision to paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in proposed new subsection 94(1). The recommended revision would provide that a non-resident trust that is, at the particular time, a trust described in paragraph (c) of the definition "exempt trust" in subsection 233.2(1) will not be a trust described in paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in proposed new subsection 94(1) for the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time (referred to in this letter as the trust's "current year") if it meets all the following conditions:

- the trust has, on or before the trust's filing-due date for the taxation year of the trust that is the later of
  - the "electing year" (as defined below) of the trust,

  and
  - the taxation year of the trust that includes the day on which the Act implementing new section 94 receives Royal Assent, notified the Minister of National Revenue in writing that the trust is electing to have the definition "exempt foreign trust" read without reference to paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" for the "electing year" of the trust and for all subsequent taxation years of the trust, and

- throughout the period that begins at the beginning of the trust's "electing year" and ends at the end of the trust's current year (referred to in this letter as the "specified period"), all of the income of the trust for Canadian income tax purposes in any particular taxation year of the trust was paid, or became payable, in the particular year to a beneficiary under the trust.

For this purpose, the trust's "electing year" means the first particular taxation year of the trust in respect of which both of the following conditions are met:

- the trust is an "exempt foreign trust" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) at the end of the particular year and would, but for paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in new subsection 94(1), have been deemed by new subsection 94(3) to be resident in Canada in the particular year, and
- the trust was, because of new subsection 94(3) or existing subsection 94(l) of the Act, deemed to be resident in Canada in the trust's taxation year immediately preceding the particular year.

Thirdly, you made a suggestion for a change to paragraph (a) of the definition "foreign investment entity" in proposed new subsection 94.1(1) with a view to simplification of the drafting. While we will continue to consider your suggestion, we cannot at this time recommend the adoption of your suggestion.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

[This amendment is incorporated into the proposed legislation below — ed.]

CRA Notice, Jan. 3, 2008: Non-resident trusts and foreign investment entities

The 1999 federal budget contained proposed changes to the taxation of non-resident trusts (NRTs) and their beneficiaries and to the taxation of Canadian taxpayers who hold interests in foreign investment entities. The proposed changes, which were to apply to tax years that began after 2002, are generally designed to ensure that income earned indirectly by Canadian taxpayers through foreign intermediaries is not taxed at a more favourable rate than would be the case were the income earned without the involvement of those intermediaries.

On November 9, 2006, legislation to implement those changes was tabled in Parliament. The legislation, included in Bill C-10, would generally apply to tax years that begin after 2006, instead of tax years that begin after 2002. However, as discussed in more detail below, provision has been made to allow taxpayers to elect an earlier application of the rules as far back as their first tax year beginning after 2002 (or, for certain non-resident trusts, beginning after 2000). As a result of this change in the proposed implementation date, taxpayers who filed based on the proposed changes for a tax year that began before 2007 will need to either elect an earlier application of the rules or amend their tax returns.

Taxpayers who have filed their returns based on the proposed legislation but who do not intend to make an election should write to the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) as soon as possible to request an adjustment to their tax returns. Taxpayers should include the reasons for the reassessment and supporting documentation, along with amended information slips where applicable. Taxpayers who do not have the proper documentation to ask for a reassessment within the normal reassessment period and who need additional time to produce such documentation can file a waiver request to permit the CRA to reassess beyond the normal reassessment period. For more information, see Form T2029, Waiver in Respect of The Normal Reassessment Period.

NRTs may elect to apply the proposed legislation to any of their tax years that begin after 2002 (and before 2007) and subsequent tax years (or, where the trust was created in 2001 or 2002, the trust may elect to have the legislation apply for the tax year in which the trust was created and subsequent tax years). Taxpayers who hold interests in foreign investment entities may elect to apply the proposed legislation to any of their tax years that begin after 2002 (and before 2007) and subsequent tax years. To make an election, NRTs and taxpayers who hold interests in foreign investment entities will have to send a letter to the CRA on or before their filing due date for the tax year in which the legislation applies.

Adjustment requests and elections for NRTs should be sent to the International Tax Services Office. Adjustment requests and elections by taxpayers who hold interests in foreign investment entities should be sent to the local tax centre.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Jan. 27, 2009: Non-Resident Trusts and Foreign Investment Entities

Outstanding proposals for non-resident trusts and foreign investment entities, first introduced in the 1999 Budget, apply in respect of arrangements under which Canadian residents seek to avoid Canadian tax through the use of foreign intermediaries under circumstances designed to circumvent the application of existing anti-avoidance rules. The Government has received submissions, including the [International Taxation Advisory] Panel's recommendations [see under 18.2 — ed.], on these proposals; the Government supports the fundamental policy objective of ensuring that Canadian taxpayers should not be able to avoid paying their fair share of income tax through the use of foreign intermediaries, but will review the existing proposals in light of these submissions before proceeding with measures in this area.

94. Treatment of trusts with Canadian contributors — (1) Definitions — The definitions in this subsection apply in this section.

"arm's length transfer", at any time by an entity (referred to in this definition as the "transferor") means a transfer or loan (which transfer or loan is referred to in this definition as the "transfer") of property (other than a restricted property) that is made at that time (referred to in this definition as the "transfer time") by the transferor to a particular entity (referred to in this definition as the "recipient") where

(a) it is reasonable to conclude that none of the reasons (determined by reference to all the circumstances including the terms of a trust, an intention, the laws of a country or the existence of an agreement, a memorandum, a letter of wishes or any other arrangement) for the transfer is the acquisition at any time by any entity of an interest as a beneficiary under a non-resident trust; and

(b) the transfer

(i) is a payment of interest, of a dividend, of rent, of a royalty or of any other return on investment, or any substitute for such a return on investment, in respect of a particular property held by the recipient, if

(A) the transfer is not a transfer described in paragraph (2)(g), or the transfer is a transfer described in paragraph (2)(g) that is an acquisition by the recipient of

(I) a unit of a mutual fund trust or of a trust that would be a mutual fund trust if section 4801 of the Income Tax Regulations were read without reference to paragraph 4801(b),

(II) a share of the capital stock of a mutual fund corporation, or

(III) a particular share of the capital stock of a corporation (other than a closely-held corporation) which particular share is identical to a share that is, at the transfer time, of a class that is listed on a designated[14] stock exchange, and

(B) the fair market value of the property, at the transfer time, is not more than the amount that the transferor would have transferred at the transfer time in respect of the particular property to the recipient if the transferor dealt at arm's length with the recipient,

(ii) is a payment made by a corporation on a reduction of the paid-up capital in respect of shares of a class of its capital stock held by the recipient, if

(A) the transfer is not a transfer described in paragraph (2)(g), and

(B) the amount of the payment is not more than the lesser of the amount of the reduction and the consideration for which the shares were issued,

(iii) is a refund in whole or in part of a gift that the recipient made to the transferor, if the recipient is a trust and the transferor is at the transfer time a specified charity in respect of the recipient,

(iv) is a transfer

(A) in exchange for which, the recipient transfers or loans property (other than a restricted property) to the transferor, or becomes obligated to transfer or loan property (other than a restricted property) to the transferor, and

(B) for which it is reasonable to conclude

(I) having regard only to the transfer and the exchange, that the transferor would have been willing to make the transfer if the transferor dealt at arm's length with the recipient, and

[14]Changed from "prescribed" by S.C. 2007, c. 35, subsec. 100(2).

(II) that the terms and conditions, and circumstances, under which the transfer was made would have been acceptable to the transferor if the transferor dealt at arm's length with the recipient,

(v) is made in satisfaction of an obligation that arose because of a transfer to which subparagraph (iv) applied, if

(A) the transfer is not a transfer described in paragraph (2)(g),

(B) the transferor would have been willing to make the transfer if the transferor dealt at arm's length with the recipient, and

(C) the terms and conditions, and circumstances, under which the transfer was made would have been acceptable to the transferor if the transferor dealt at arm's length with the recipient,

(vi) is a payment of an amount owing by the transferor under a written agreement the terms and conditions of which, when entered into, were terms and conditions that, having regard only to the amount owing and the agreement, persons dealing at arm's length with each other would have entered into, if the transfer is not a transfer described in paragraph (2)(g),

(vii) is a payment made before 2002 to a trust, to a corporation controlled by the trust or to a partnership of which the trust is a majority interest partner in repayment of or otherwise in respect of a particular loan made by the trust, corporation or partnership to the transferor, or

(viii) is a payment made after 2001 to a trust, to a corporation controlled by the trust or to a partnership of which the trust is a majority interest partner, in repayment of or otherwise in respect of a particular loan made by the trust, corporation or partnership to the transferor and either

(A) they would have been willing to enter into the particular loan if they dealt at arm's length with each other and the payment is not a transfer described in paragraph (2)(g), or

(B) the payment is made before 2005 in accordance with fixed repayment terms agreed to before June 23, 2000.

Technical Notes: A loan or transfer of property by an "entity" in respect of a trust will generally not be considered a "contribution" to the trust where the loan or transfer is an "arm's length transfer". In these circumstances, the transferor entity generally will not, because of that loan or transfer, be considered to be a "contributor" to the trust. Accordingly, subsection 94(3) does not apply to a non-resident trust as a consequence only of an "arm's length transfer" in respect of the trust unless a deemed contribution or deemed contributor rule applies. (For more information on the definitions "contribution", "contributor" and "entity" in subsection 94(1), see the commentary on those definitions.)

The definition "arm's length transfer" also is relevant in applying the rules in new paragraphs 94(2)(a) and (c). Under those rules, a loan or transfer of property made to an entity other than a particular trust may, in specified circumstances, result in a transfer of property being considered to have been made to the particular trust. (For more information, see the commentary on new subsection 94(2).)

If property transferred or loaned is "restricted property", the transfer or loan will not be an arm's length transfer. (For more information on the definition "restricted property", see the commentary on that definition.)

Under paragraph (a) of the definition, a transfer or loan will be an arm's length transfer only if it is reasonable to conclude that none of the reasons (determined by reference to all the circumstances including the terms of a trust, an intention, the laws of a country or the existence of an agreement, a memorandum, a letter of wishes or any other arrangement) for the transfer is the acquisition at any time by any entity of an interest as a beneficiary under a non-resident trust.

Under subparagraphs (b)(i) and (ii) of the definition, an arm's length transfer includes, in general terms, an arm's length return on investment (conferred by the entity in which the investment is made) and certain payments made by a corporation on a reduction of the paid up capital in respect of shares of a class of the corporation's capital stock.

Under subparagraph (b)(iii) of the definition, an arm's length transfer includes a transfer to a trust by a "specified charity" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) in respect of the trust that is made by the specified charity for the purpose of refunding in whole or in Part a gift previously made to the specified charity entity by the trust.

For more information on the definition "specified charity", see the commentary on that definition.

Under subparagraph (b)(iv) of the definition, an arm's length transfer includes a transfer in exchange for which, the recipient transfers or loans property (other than a restricted property) to the transferor, or becomes obligated to so transfer or loan such property, and for which it is reasonable to conclude

- having regard only to the transfer and the exchange that the transferor would have been willing to make the transfer if the transferor dealt at arm's length with the recipient, and
- that the terms and conditions, and circumstances, under which the transfer was made would have been acceptable to the transferor if the transferor dealt at arm's length with the recipient,

Under subparagraph (b)(v) of the definition, an arm's length transfer includes a transfer that is made in satisfaction of an obligation that arose because of a transfer to which subparagraph (b)(iv) applied, if

- the transfer is not a transfer described in paragraph 94(2)(g),
- the transferor would have been willing to make the transfer if the transferor dealt at arm's length with the recipient, and
- the terms and conditions, and circumstances, under which the transfer was made would have been acceptable to the transferor if the transferor dealt at arm's length with the recipient.

Under subparagraph (b)(vi) of the definition, an arm's length transfer includes a transfer that is a payment of an amount owing by the transferor under a written agreement the terms and conditions of which, when entered into, were terms and conditions that, having regard only to the amount owing and the agreement, persons dealing at arm's length with each other would have entered into, if the transfer is not a transfer described in paragraph 94(2)(g).

Under subparagraph (b)(vii) of the definition, an arm's length transfer includes a transfer that is a payment made before 2002 to a trust, to a corporation controlled by the trust or to a partnership of which the trust is a majority interest partner, in repayment of or otherwise in respect of a particular loan made by the trust, corporation or partnership, as the case may be, to the transferor.

Finally, under subparagraph (b)(viii) of the definition, an arm's length transfer includes a transfer that is a payment made after 2001 to a trust, to a corporation controlled by the trust or to a partnership of which the trust is a majority interest partner, in repayment of or otherwise in respect of a particular loan made by the trust, corporation or partnership, as the case may be, to the transferor in circumstances where either

- they would have been willing to enter the particular loan if they dealt at arm's length with each other and the payment is not a transfer described in paragraph 94(2)(g), or
- the payment is made before 2005 in accordance with fixed repayment terms agreed to before June 23, 2000.

The definition "arm's length transfer" generally applies to trust taxation years that begin after 2006. However, where a trust elects, by notifying the Minister in writing on or before its filing-due date for its taxation year that includes the day on which the amending legislation introducing section 94 is assented to, the definition "arm's length transfer" will be read without reference to a loan or transfer of property that is made before 2003 and identified in the election. This electing provision recognizes that the definition "arm's length transfer" in the new rules does not have an equivalent under existing subsection 94(1). In particular, a non-resident trust now considered resident by reason of existing subsection 94(1) might not be described in new subsection 94(3) and would no longer be considered resident, which would result in the change in residency rules in subsection 128.1(4) applying. The election, which is found in the coming-into-force provision of the amending legislation, effectively permits a trust to continue to be deemed resident.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation; 94(4)(c) [proposed] — Deeming non-resident trust to be resident in Canada does not apply; 248(12) — Identical properties.

"beneficiary", under a trust, includes

(a) an entity that is beneficially interested in the trust; and

(b) an entity that would be beneficially interested in the trust if

(i) each reference in subsection 248(25) to "person" were read as a reference to "entity (as defined by subsection 94(1))", and

(ii) the reference in subparagraph 248(25)(b)(ii) to

(A) "any arrangement in respect of the particular trust" were read as a reference to "any arrangement (including, for greater certainty, the terms or conditions of a share, or any arrangement in respect of a share, of the capital stock of a corporation that is beneficially interested in the particular trust) in respect of the particular trust", and

(B) "the particular person or partnership might" were read as a reference to "the particular person or partnership becomes (or could become on the exercise of any discretion by any entity), directly or indirectly, entitled to any amount derived, directly or indirectly, from the income or capital of the particular trust or might".

Technical Notes: Under paragraph (a) of the new definition "beneficiary" in subsection 94(1), a beneficiary under a trust includes an entity beneficially interested in the trust.

Under paragraph (b) of that definition, a beneficiary under a trust also includes an entity (including a person) that would be beneficially interested in the trust if

- each reference in subsection 248(25) to a "person" were read as a reference to an "entity" (as defined by new section 94), and
- for greater certainty, the reference in subparagraph 248(25)(b)(ii) to

(A) "any arrangement in respect of the particular trust" were read as a reference to "any arrangement (including the terms or conditions of a share, or any arrangement in respect of a share, of the capital stock of a corporation that is beneficially interested in the particular trust) in respect of the particular trust", and

(B) "the particular person or partnership might" were read as a reference to "the particular person or partnership becomes (or could become on the exercise of any discretion by any entity), directly or indirectly, entitled to any amount derived, directly or indirectly, from the income or capital of the particular trust or might".

For the purposes of the Act, the expression "beneficially interested" has the meaning assigned by subsection 248(25).

Related Provisions: 94.1(1)"beneficiary" — Application of definition to foreign investment entities; 248(25) — Meaning of "beneficially interested".

"closely-held corporation", at any time, means a corporation, other than a corporation in respect of which

(a) there is at least one class of shares of its capital stock that includes shares prescribed for the purpose of paragraph 110(1)(d);

(b) it is reasonable to conclude that at that time, in respect of each class of shares described by paragraph (a), shares of the class are held by at least 150 entities each of whom holds shares, of the class, that have a total fair market value of at least $500; and

(c) it is reasonable to conclude that at that time in no case does a particular entity (or the particular entity together with any other entity with whom the particular entity does not deal at arm's length) hold shares of the capital stock of the corporation

(i) that would give the particular entity (or the particular entity together with those other entities) 10% or more of the votes that could be cast under any circumstance at an annual meeting of shareholders of the corporation if the meeting were held at that time, or

(ii) that have a fair market value of 10% or more of the fair market value of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the corporation.

Technical Notes: The definition "closely-held corporation" is relevant in applying subparagraph (b)(i) of the definition "arm's length transfer" and the definition "restricted property". (For more information on the definitions "arm's length transfer" and "restricted property" in subsection 94(1), see the commentary on those definitions.)

A closely-held corporation, at any time, means a corporation, other than a corporation in respect of which

- there is at least one class of shares of its capital stock that includes shares prescribed for the purpose of paragraph 110(1)(d);
- it is reasonable to conclude that at that time, in respect of each class of shares of the corporation's capital stock that are shares prescribed for the purpose of paragraph 110(1)(d), shares of the class are held by at least 150 entities each of whom holds shares, of the class, that have a total fair market value of at least $500 — i.e., in general terms, the shares must be widely-held; and
- it is reasonable to conclude that at that time in no case does a particular entity (or the particular entity together with any other entity with whom the particular entity does not deal at arm's length) hold shares of the capital stock of the corporation
  - that would give the particular entity (or the particular entity together with those other entities) 10% or more of the votes that could be cast under any circumstance at an annual meeting of shareholders of the corporation if the meeting were held at that time, or
  - that have a fair market value of 10% or more of the fair market value of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the corporation.

This amendment generally applies in respect of trusts for taxation years that begin after July 18, 2005. However, a trust may make a special election (provided for in the coming-into-force provision for new section 94) to have the definition as described above apply in respect of it for taxation years that begin after 2006 (or where the trust qualifies to so elect under the coming-into-force provision of new section 94, for its taxation years that begin after 2000, after 2001, after 2002, after 2003, after 2004, or after 2005). If the trust does not make the special election, then for its taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005, in respect of the trust a closely-held corporation at any time, means a corporation, other than a corporation in respect of which

- there is at least one class of shares of its capital stock that class is not a specified class (within the meaning assigned by subsection 256(1.1),
- it is reasonable conclude that at that time the shares of those classes (other than such a specified class) are held by at least 150 entities each of whom holds shares that have a total fair market value of at least $500, and
- it is reasonable conclude that the total number of issued and outstanding shares of a class (other than such a specified class) held by a particular entity or by any other entity with whom the particular entity does not deal at arm's length is not more than 10% of the total number of the issued and outstanding shares of that class.

Subsection 94(16) is an anti-avoidance provision that applies in determining whether a corporation is a closely-held corporation at any time. For more detail, see the commentary on that provision.

Related Provisions: 94(16)(a) — Anti-avoidance rule re 150 entities.

"connected contributor", to a trust at a particular time, means an entity (including an entity that has ceased to exist) that is a contributor to the trust at the particular time, other than an entity

(a) that is an individual (other than a trust) who was, at or before the particular time, resident in Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, not more than 60 months (but not including an individual who, before the particular time, was never non-resident); or

(b) all of whose contributions to the trust made at or before the particular time were made at a non-resident time of the entity.

Technical Notes: The definition "connected contributor" is relevant in determining whether a beneficiary is, at a particular time, a "resident beneficiary" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) under a non-resident trust. Under new paragraph 94(3)(d), such a resident beneficiary can, to an extent, be liable for the trust's income tax. For more information, see the commentary on subsections 94(3) and (7) to (10), subparagraph 152(4)(b)(vi) and subsections 160(2.1) and (3).

A connected contributor at a particular time is any entity, including an entity that has ceased to exist, that is a "contributor" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) to the trust at that time, other than

- an individual who was resident in Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, not more than 60 months (but not including a trust or an individual who before that time was never non-resident), or
- an entity all of whose contributions to the trust made at or before that time occurred at a "non-resident time" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) of the entity.

For more information on the definitions "contributor", "resident beneficiary" and "non-resident time" in subsection 94(1), see the commentary on those definitions.

In the context of the definition "connected contributor", reference should also be made to new paragraphs 94(2)(a) to (m) (which extend the circumstances in which a transfer is considered to occur for the purposes of section 94), new paragraphs 94(2)(n) to (q), subsections 94(11) to (13) (which generally extend the circumstances in which a contribution is considered to be made for the purposes of section 94 and may apply to deem an entity to be a connected contributor to a trust), and paragraphs 94(2)(r) to (u) (which generally narrow the circumstances in which a contribution is considered to be made for the purposes of section 94). Reference should also be made to new subsection 94(10), which applies where a contributor becomes resident in Canada within 60 months after making a contribution to a trust.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamation — continuing corporation; 94(10) [proposed] — Where contributor becomes resident in Canada within 60 months; 94(13) [proposed] — Deemed connected contributor to transferee trust.

"contribution", to a trust by a particular entity, means

(a) a transfer or loan (other than an arm's length transfer) of property to the trust by the particular entity;

(b) if a particular transfer or loan (other than an arm's length transfer) of property is made by the particular entity as part of a series of transactions or events that includes another transfer or loan (other than an arm's length transfer) of property to the trust by another entity, that other transfer or loan to the extent that it can reasonably be considered to have been made in respect of the particular transfer or loan; and

(c) if the particular entity becomes obligated to make a particular transfer or loan (other than a transfer or loan that would, if it were made, be an arm's length transfer) of property as part of a series of transactions or events that includes another transfer or loan (other than an arm's length transfer) of property to the trust by another entity, that other transfer or loan to the extent that it can reasonably be considered to have been made in respect of the obligation.

Technical Notes: Where a "contribution" is made at or before a particular time to a non-resident trust by an entity, that entity will be considered to be a "contributor" at the particular time and, in certain cases, will be jointly and severally or solidarily liable under subsection 94(3) for the trust's income taxes. (For more detail on the expression "solidarily", please refer to the introductory commentary above on new section 94.) For more information on subsection 94(3), see the commentary on that subsection.

Under paragraph (a) of the definition, a "contribution" to a trust by a particular entity means a loan or transfer of property (in this commentary referred to as a "transfer") by the entity to the trust (other than an "arm's length transfer", as defined in new subsection 94(1)).

Under paragraphs (b) and (c) of the definition "contribution", a contribution is also considered to have been made by a particular entity where

- the particular entity makes a particular transfer (other than an "arm's length transfer") as part of a series of transactions or events that includes another transfer (other than an arm's length transfer), to the trust, by another entity; or
- the particular entity becomes obligated to make a particular transfer (other than a transfer that would, if it were made, be an "arm's length transfer") as part of a series of transactions or events that includes another transfer (other than an arm's length transfer), to the trust, by another entity.

In these circumstances, the other transfer is considered to be a contribution to the trust by the particular entity only to the extent that the other transfer can reasonably be considered to have been made in respect of the particular transfer or the particular entity's obligation to make the particular transfer, as the case may be. In either case, a contribution is considered to be made at the time of the other transfer.

There are a number of rules that have the effect of applying the definition "contribution" more broadly than would otherwise be the case. See the commentary on new paragraphs 94(2)(a) to (m) (which extend the circumstances in which a transfer is considered to occur for the purposes of section 94), new paragraphs 94(2)(n) to (q) and subsections 94(11) to (13) (which generally extend the circumstances in which a contribution is considered to be made for the purposes of section 94) and paragraphs 94(2)(r) to (u) (which generally narrow the circumstances in which a contribution is considered to be made for the purposes of section 94).

The definition "contribution" applies to all loans and transfers, irrespective of when made.

Related Provisions: 94(2)(s)–(u) [proposed] — Certain transfers deemed not to be contribution; 94(9) [proposed] — Determination of contribution amount.

"contributor", to a trust at any time, means an entity (including an entity that has ceased to exist) that, at or before that time, has made a contribution to the trust.

Technical Notes: A "contributor" to a trust at any time means an "entity" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)), including an entity that has ceased to exist, that at or before that time has made a "contribution" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) to the trust. The definition "contributor" is significant primarily for the purposes of the definitions "resident contributor" and "connected contributor" in new subsection 94(1). For more information, see the commentary on those definitions.

Reference should be made in this context to new paragraphs 94(2)(a) to (m) (which extend the circumstances in which a transfer is considered to occur for the purposes of section 94), new paragraphs 94(2)(n) to (q) and subsections 94(11) to (13) (which generally extend the circumstances in which a contribution is considered to be made for the purposes of section 94) and paragraphs 94(2)(r) to (u) (which generally narrow the circumstances in which a contribution is considered to be made for the purposes of section 94).

Related Provisions: 75(3)(c.2) — Reversionary trust rules do not apply to non-resident trust even with Canadian resident contributor; 94(13) — Deemed contributor to transferee trust; 233.2(4) — Annual information return by contributor to non-resident trust.

"eligible trust", at any particular time, means a trust, other than a trust

(a) created or maintained for charitable purposes;

(b) governed by an employee benefit plan;

(c) described in paragraph (a.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1);

(d) governed by a salary deferral arrangement;

(e) operated for the purpose of administering or providing superannuation, pension, retirement or employee benefits;

(f) where the amount of income or capital that any entity may receive directly from the trust at any time as a beneficiary under the trust depends on the exercise by any entity of, or the failure by any entity to exercise, a discretionary power; or

(g) that has elected in writing filed with the Minister, on or before the trust's filing-due date for the particular taxation year of the trust that includes the particular time (or for an earlier taxation year that ended before the particular time), that the definition "exempt foreign trust" in this subsection not apply to it for the particular taxation year (or for the earlier taxation year) and for all of its subsequent taxation years.

Technical Notes: An "eligible trust" can qualify as an exempt foreign trust under paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" where it meets the conditions imposed by that paragraph. An eligible trust may also qualify as an "exempt taxpayer" under subsections 94(1) and 94.1(1). For more detail, see the commentary on those subsections.

An eligible trust at any time means a trust other than a trust

- created or maintained for charitable purposes,
- governed by an employee benefit plan,
- described in paragraph (a.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1),
- governed by a salary deferral arrangement,
- operated for the purpose of administering or providing superannuation, pension, retirement or employee benefits,
- the amount of income or capital that any entity may receive directly from the trust at any time as a beneficiary under which depends on the exercise by any entity of, or the failure by any entity to exercise, a discretionary power; however, note that, if a trust so elects, for its taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005, this description of the trust is replaced in respect of the trust with "a trust that has at or before that time been a personal trust", or
- has elected in writing filed with the Minister in a timely fashion that the definition "exempt foreign trust" not apply to it.

Related Provisions: 94(1)"exempt foreign trust"(h) — Eligible trust can be EFT.

"entity" includes an association, a corporation, a fund, a natural person, a joint venture, an organization, a partnership, a syndicate and a trust.

Technical Notes: The expression "entity" is defined to include an association, a corporation, a fund, a natural person, a joint venture, an organization, a partnership, a syndicate and a trust.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamation — continuing corporation.

"excluded property", at any time, means a particular property held, loaned or transferred, as the case may be, at that time by a particular entity if at that time:

(a) the particular property is at that time

(i) a share of the capital stock of the corporation,

(ii) a specified fixed interest in the trust, or

(iii) an interest, as a member of the partnership, under which, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited;

(b) there are at least 150 persons each of whom holds at that time property that at that time

(i) is identical to the particular property, and

(ii) has a total fair market value of at least $500;

(c) the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at that time, of the particular property (or of identical property that is held, at that time, by the particular entity or an entity with whom the particular entity does not deal at arm's length) does not exceed 10% of the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at that time, of the particular property or of identical property held by any entity;

(d) property that is identical to the particular property can normally be acquired by and sold by members of the public in the open market; and

(e) the particular property, or identical property, is listed on a designated[14] stock exchange.

Technical Notes: The expression "excluded property" is relevant to determining whether a property is restricted property. In particular, paragraph 94(14)(c) suspends a property's status as restricted property where that property is an excluded property. For more detail on the definition "restricted property" and subsection (14), see the commentary on those provisions.

Excluded property, at any time, means a particular property held, loaned or transferred, as the case may be, at that time by a particular entity if at that time:

- the particular property is at that time a share of the capital stock of the corporation, a specified fixed interest in the trust, or an interest as a limited partner in the partnership;
- it is reasonable to conclude that there are at least 150 persons each of whom holds at that time property that at that time is identical to the particular property, and has a total fair market value of at least $500;
- the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at that time, of the particular property (or of identical property that is held, at that time, by the particular entity or an entity with whom the particular entity does not deal at arm's length) does not exceed 10% of the fair market value, at that time, of the particular property or of identical property held by any entity; and
- the particular property or property that is identical to it is listed on a prescribed stock exchange and can normally be acquired by and sold by members of the public in the open market.

Related Provisions: 94(16)(c) — Anti-avoidance rule re 150 persons; 248(12) — Identical properties.

"exempt amount", in respect of a particular taxation year of a trust, means an amount that is

(a) paid or credited (in this definition within the meaning assigned by Part XIII) by the trust before 2004;

(b) paid or credited by the trust and referred to in paragraph 104(7.01)(b) in respect of the trust for the particular taxation year; or

(c) paid in the particular taxation year (or within 60 days after the end of the particular taxation year) by the trust directly to a beneficiary (determined without reference to subsection 248(25)) under the trust, if

(i) the beneficiary is a natural person none of whose interests as a beneficiary under the trust was ever acquired for consideration,

(ii) the amount is described in subparagraph 212(1)(c)(i) and is not included in computing an exempt amount in respect of any other taxation year of the trust,

(iii) the trust was created before October 30, 2003, and

(iv) no contribution has been made to the trust on or after July 18, 2005.

Technical Notes: The expression "exempt amount" is relevant in determining whether Part XIII tax applies to a non-resident person in respect of an amount paid or credited after 2003 by a trust to which subsection 94(3) applies. In general terms, Part XIII tax will not apply to such amounts if they are exempt amounts.

Three kinds of amounts may qualify as an exempt amount in respect of a particular taxation year of a trust. The first is any amount paid or credited (within the meaning assigned by Part XIII) by the trust before 2004.

The second is an amount that is paid or credited by the trust and referred to in paragraph 104(7.01)(b) in respect of the trust for the particular taxation year. For more detail on paragraph 104(7.01)(b), see the commentary on that provision.

The third type of exempt amount arises only in respect of trusts created before October 30, 2003 and to which no contributions have been made on or after July 18, 2005. In respect of such trusts, an exempt amount also means an amount (other than an amount included in computing an exempt amount in respect of any other taxation year of the trust) that is described in subparagraph 212(1)(c)(i) and paid in the particular taxation year (or within 60 days after the end of the particular taxation year) by the trust directly to a qualifying beneficiary under the trust. In this regard, a qualifying beneficiary means a beneficiary (determined without reference to subsection 248(25)) who is a natural person none of whose interests as a beneficiary under the trust was ever acquired for consideration (determined by reference to subsection 108(7)).

For more detail on subsection 108(7), see the commentary on that provision.

Related Provisions: 108(7) — Meaning of "acquired for consideration".

"exempt foreign trust", at a particular time, means

(a) a non-resident trust, if

(i) each beneficiary under the trust at the particular time is

(A) an individual who, at the time that the trust was created, was, because of mental or physical infirmity, dependent on an individual who is a contributor to the trust or on an individual related to such a contributor (which beneficiary is referred to in this paragraph as an "infirm beneficiary"), or

(B) a person who is entitled, only after the particular time, to receive or otherwise obtain the use of any of the trust's income or capital,

(ii) at the particular time there is at least one infirm beneficiary who suffers from a mental or physical infirmity that causes the beneficiary to be dependent on a person,

(iii) each infirm beneficiary is, at all times that the infirm beneficiary is a beneficiary under the trust during the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time, non-resident, and

(iv) each contribution to the trust made at or before the particular time can reasonably be considered to have been, at the time that the contribution was made, made to provide for the maintenance of an infirm beneficiary during the expected period of the beneficiary's infirmity;

(b) a non-resident trust, if

(i) the trust was created as a consequence of the breakdown of a marriage or common-law partnership of two particular individuals to provide for the maintenance of a beneficiary under the trust who was, during that marriage or common-law partnership, a child of both of those particular individuals (which beneficiary is referred to in this paragraph as a "child beneficiary"),

(ii) each beneficiary under the trust at the particular time is

(A) a child beneficiary under 21 years of age,

(B) a child beneficiary under 31 years of age who is enrolled at any time in the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time at an educational institution that is described in clause (v)(A) or (B), or

(C) a person who is entitled, only after the particular time, to receive or otherwise obtain the use of any of the trust's income or capital,

(iii) each child beneficiary is, at all times that the child beneficiary is a beneficiary under the trust during the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time, non-resident,

(iv) each contributor to the trust at the particular time was one of those particular individuals or a person related to one of those particular individuals, and

(v) each contribution to the trust, at the time that the contribution was made, was made to provide for the maintenance of a child beneficiary, while the child was either under 21 years of age, or was under 31 years of age and enrolled at an educational institution located outside Canada that is

(A) a university, college or other educational institution that provides courses at a post-secondary school level, or

(B) an educational institution that provides courses designed to furnish a person with skills for, or improve a person's skills in, an occupation;

(c) a non-resident trust, if

(i) at the particular time, the trust is an agency of the United Nations,

(ii) at the particular time, the trust owns and administers a university described in paragraph (f) of the definition "total charitable gifts" in subsection 118.1(1), or

(iii) at any time in the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time or at any time in the preceding calendar year, Her Majesty in right of Canada has made a gift to the trust;

(d) a non-resident trust

(i) that, throughout the particular period that began at the time it was created and ends at the particular time, would be non-resident if this Act were read without reference to subsection (1) as that subsection read in its application to taxation years that include December 31, 2000,

(ii) that was created exclusively for charitable purposes and has been operated, throughout the particular period, exclusively for charitable purposes,

(iii) if the particular time is more than 24 months after the day on which the trust was created, in respect of which, there is at the particular time a group of at least 20 persons (other than trusts) each of whom at the particular time

(A) is a contributor to the trust,

(B) exists, and

(C) deals with each of the others in the group at arm's length,

(iv) the income of which (determined in accordance with the laws described in subparagraph (v)) for each of its taxation years that ends at or before the particular time would, if the income were not distributed and the laws described in subparagraph (v) did not apply, be subject to an income or profits tax in the country in which it was resident in each of those taxation years, and

(v) that was, for each of its taxation years that ends at or before the particular time, exempt under the laws of the country in which it was resident from the payment of income or profits tax to the government of that country in recognition of the charitable purposes for which the trust is operated;

(e) a non-resident trust that, throughout the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time, is a trust governed by an employees profit sharing plan, a retirement compensation arrangement or a foreign retirement arrangement;

(f) a non-resident trust, if

(i) throughout the particular period that began when it was created and ends at the particular time it has been operated exclusively for the purpose of administering or providing employee benefits,

(ii) throughout the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time

(A) the trust is a trust governed by an employee benefit plan or is a trust described in paragraph (a.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1),

(B) the trust is maintained for the benefit of natural persons the majority of whom are non-resident, and

(C) where the particular time is after 2006, the trust holds no restricted property,

(iii) where the particular time is on or after November 9, 2006 and before 2007, throughout the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time the trust holds no restricted property other than property that was held by the trust as restricted property on November 8, 2006, and

(iv) throughout the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time, no benefits are provided under the trust, other than benefits in respect of qualifying services;

(g) a non-resident trust (other than a prescribed trust or a trust described in paragraph (a.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1)) that, throughout the particular period that began when it was created and ends at the particular time,

(i) has been resident in a particular country (other than Canada) the laws of which have, throughout the particular period,

(A) imposed an income or profits tax, and

(B) exempted the trust from the payment of income tax and profits tax to the government of that particular country in recognition of the purposes for which the trust is operated, and

(ii) has been operated exclusively for the purpose of administering or providing superannuation or pension benefits that are primarily in respect of services rendered, in the particular country, by natural persons who were at the time those services were rendered non-resident;

(h) a non-resident trust that is, at the particular time, an eligible trust under which

(i) the only beneficiaries that may for any reason receive, at or after the particular time and directly from the trust, any of the income or capital of the trust are entities that are, at the particular time, qualifying investors in respect of the trust, and

(ii) either

(A) the following conditions are met, namely

(I) there are at least 150 qualifying investors in respect of the trust each of whose specified fixed interests in the trust have at the particular time a fair market value of at least $500, and

(II) if the total fair market value at the particular time of the interests, of any class of specified fixed interests in the trust, held by a resident contributor to the trust or by any other entity with whom the resident contributor does not deal at arm's length is more than 10% of the total fair market value of interests of that class, it is reasonable to conclude (determined by reference to all the circumstances including the terms of the trust, an intention, the laws of a country or the existence of an agreement, a memorandum, a letter of wishes or any other arrangement) that

1. where the resident contributor is at the particular time an indirect contributor to the trust, each other entity — that does not deal at arm's length with the resident contributor and that is at the particular time a qualifying investor in respect of the trust and referred to as such in applying paragraph (c) of the definition "indirect contributor" in this subsection in determining that the resident contributor is an indirect contributor to the trust — is at the particular time a specified contributor to the trust, or

2. in any other case, the resident contributor is at the particular time a specified contributor to the trust, or

(B) the following conditions are met, namely,

(I) a prescribed form and a copy of the terms of the trust that apply at the particular time have been filed with the Minister by or on behalf of the trust on or before its filing due date for its taxation year that includes the particular time (or a later date that is acceptable to the Minister),

(II) it is reasonable to conclude (determined by reference to all the circumstances including the terms of the trust, an intention, the laws of a country or the existence of an agreement, a memorandum, a letter of wishes or any other arrangement) that each resident contributor (other than an indirect contributor) to the trust at the particular time is a specified contributor to the trust at the particular time,

(III) where the particular time is on or after November 9, 2006, and before 2007, throughout the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time the trust holds no restricted property other than property that was held by the trust as restricted property on November 8, 2006, and

(IV) where the particular time is after 2006, throughout the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time the trust holds no restricted property; or

(i) a trust that is, at the particular time, a prescribed trust or included in a prescribed class of trusts.

Technical Notes: An "exempt foreign trust" includes a number of different types of non-resident trusts that are exempt from the application of new subsection 94(3). The expression refers to the following types of non-resident trusts:

(a) a non-resident trust the current income (determined with reference to amended subsection 108(3)) or capital from which can be provided only to one or more physically or mentally infirm dependent individuals, provided that each such individual is at all times that they are a beneficiary under the trust during the trust's current taxation year, non-resident and that any property settled on the trust could reasonably be considered, at the time it was settled, to be necessary for the maintenance of those individuals;

(b) a non-resident trust created as a consequence of the breakdown of a marriage or common-law partnership of two individuals, the current income (determined with reference to amended subsection 108(3)) or capital from which can be provided only for the maintenance of non-resident beneficiaries of the trust who were, during that marriage or common-law partnership, children of both of the individuals, if the beneficiaries are under 21 years of age (or under 31 years of age and enrolled in a specified educational institution) and each contribution (as defined in section 94) to the trust was to provide for the maintenance of those children — note the different description of the conditions in subparagraph (b)(i) of that definition that apply for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005;

(c) certain non-resident trusts that own or administer a university described in paragraph (f) of the definition "total charitable gifts" in subsection 118.1(1) and that could qualify under that definition as a recipient permitted for the purposes of the tax credit for charitable gifts;

(d) certain non-resident trusts established exclusively for charitable purposes (as those purposes are defined in the laws of Canada);

(e) a non-resident trust that is governed by an employee profit sharing plan (as defined in subsection 248(1)), by a retirement compensation arrangement (as defined in subsection 248(1), or by a foreign retirement arrangement (as defined in subsection 248(1));

(f) certain foreign trusteed employee benefit plans if

- at all times that the trust exists it is operated exclusively for the purposes of providing employee benefits,
- throughout the trust's current taxation year it is maintained for the benefit of natural persons, the majority of whom are non-resident,
- the only benefits provided by the trust are in respect of
  - qualifying services (as defined in subsection 94(1)),
  - (only in respect of taxation years ending before 2009) particular services rendered before November 9, 2006 to an employer by an employee if the employee had a right before November 9, 2006 to receive the benefits in respect of the particular services pursuant to a written agreement entered into before November 9, 2006, and (where the employee was resident in Canada on November 9, 2006), a copy of which was filed with the Minister, or
  - a combination of the two, and
- if the year is after 2006, the trust holds no restricted property throughout that year or, where the year is before 2007, the trust does not hold any restricted property in the year other than property that was restricted property of the trust before November 9, 2006.

(g) a non-resident trust (other than a trust described in paragraph (a.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1) or a prescribed trust) that at all times since it was created has been operated exclusively for the specific purposes described below, is resident in a particular country other than Canada and has been exempt — because it is operated for these specific purposes — from paying income tax to the government of that country. The specific purposes are administering or providing superannuation or pension benefits, where those benefits are primarily in respect of services rendered in that particular country by natural persons who were non-resident at the time the services were rendered — as a result, certain trusteed foreign pension plans or similar arrangements are intended to qualify as an exempt foreign trust under this provision;

(h) a non-resident trust that is an eligible trust (as defined in subsection 94(1)) and whose only beneficiaries with rights to receive income or capital directly from the trust are qualifying investors (as defined in subsection 94(1)) in respect of the trust if either

- there are at least 150 qualifying investors in respect of the trust each of whom holds specified fixed interests (as defined in subsection 94(1)) in the trust worth at least $500, and the only resident contributors (as defined in subsection 94(1)) to the trust that hold more than 10% of the interests of any class of specified fixed interests in the trust are specified contributors (as defined in subsection 94(1)) to the trust, or
- in any other case, each resident contributor (other than an "indirect contributor" as defined in subsection 94(1)) to the trust is a specified contributor to the trust, a copy of the current terms of the trust (and any other required information in prescribed form) has been filed with the Minister of National Revenue by or on behalf of the trust, and at no time in the current taxation year of the trust, where the time of determination is after 2006, does the trust hold restricted property (or if the time of determination is before 2007, the trust holds no restricted property that was not restricted property held by it before November 9, 2006); and

(i) a prescribed trust or prescribed class of trusts. (At the present time, it is not anticipated that any trust or class of trusts will be prescribed for this purpose).

A trust that qualifies as an exempt foreign trust under paragraph (f) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" will be a non-resident entity for purposes of the foreign investment entity rules in subsections 94.1 to 94.4. If the trust has not held restricted property at any time on or after July 18, 2005, it will qualify, under paragraph (a) of the definition "foreign investment entity" in subsection 94.1(1) for relief from treatment as a foreign investment entity ("FIE"). However, if the trust has held restricted property on or after July 18, 2005, then in order to avoid status as a FIE, it would have to rely upon paragraphs (b) or (c) of the "foreign investment entity" definition, as paragraph (a) of that definition would not apply to it. Where the trust is a FIE, a Canadian resident beneficiary (other than an "exempt taxpayer" within the meaning assigned by subsection 94.1(1)) under the trust would be expected to be a taxpayer to whom subsection 94.1(3) or 94.2(9) applies for a taxation year of the beneficiary in respect of their interest (i.e., "participating interest", as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) in the trust.

Paragraphs (f) and (g), as described in general terms above, of the definition "exempt foreign trust" apply in respect of a trust for its taxation years that begin after July 18, 2005, unless the trust elects under paragraph (j) of the coming-into-force provision of new section 94. Where this election is made, those paragraphs apply, as described in general terms above, to the trust for taxation years that begin after 2006 (or such earlier year as has been elected, under the coming into force provisions for new section 94, that section 94 apply to the trust). Where the election is not made, for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005, paragraphs (f) and (g) apply to the trust at a particular time as set out in paragraph (j) of that coming-into-force provision, which in general terms is as follows:

- in the case of paragraph (f), throughout the taxation year that includes the particular time, the trust must be
- a non-resident trust that is governed by an employee benefit plan (as defined in subsection 248(1)) or a trust described in paragraph (a.1) of the definition trust in subsection 108(1),
- maintained primarily for the benefit of non-resident individuals,
- hold no restricted property, and
- provides no benefits, other than benefits in respect of services described in clauses (iv)(A) to (D) of the definition;
- in the case of a paragraph (g), at all times from the time it was created until the particular time, the trust must be a non-resident trust

- operated exclusively for the purpose of administering or providing superannuation, pension, retirement or employee benefits, and
- that meets the conditions stipulated under paragraph (g) of the definition regarding its beneficiaries (and their rights), its property, its jurisdiction of residence, and its liability for tax under the laws of that jurisdiction;

Paragraph (h), as described in general terms above, of the definition "exempt foreign trust" applies in respect of a trust for its taxation years that begin after 2006 (or such earlier year as has been elected, under the coming into force provisions for new section 94, that section 94 apply to the trust). However, if the trust elects under paragraph (w) of the coming-into-force provision of new section 94, paragraph (h) of the definition applies to the trust, for its taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005, as described in paragraph (w) of that coming-into-force provision, which in general terms is as follows:

- under subparagraph (h)(i) of the definition, the trust must be a non-resident trust that is an "eligible trust" (as defined in subsection 94(1)) under which each beneficiary's (determined without regard to subsection 248(25)) interest is a specified fixed interest, under which there are at least 150 such beneficiaries each of whom holds a specified fixed interest in the trust worth at least $500, and to which the only "resident contributors" (as defined in subsection 94(1)) to the trust that hold more than 10% of the interests of any class of beneficial interests in the trust are "specified contributors" (as defined in subsection 94(1)) to the trust, and
- under subparagraph (h)(ii) of the definition, the trust must be a non-resident trust that is an eligible trust under which each beneficiary's interest is a specified fixed interest, each resident contributor (other than an indirect contributor) to which is a specified contributor and by or on behalf of which a copy of the current terms of the trust (and any other required information in prescribed form) has been filed with the Minister of National Revenue;

Paragraph (h) is intended to apply to non-resident investment trusts that are legitimately commercial. Such a trust is intended to be treated as a foreign investment entity under sections 94.1 to 94.4. A Canadian resident investor (other than an "exempt taxpayer" within the meaning assigned by subsection 94.1(1)) in the trust would be expected to be a taxpayer to whom subsection 94.1(3) or 94.2(9) applies for a taxation year of the investor in respect of their investment in the trust.

For more detail on the expressions "specified fixed interest" and "qualifying investor" defined in subsection 94(1), and the definitions "foreign investment entity" and "participating interest," see the commentary on those provisions.

Regulations: 3503 (prescribed universities outside Canada, for para. (c)(ii)). The Department of Finance technical notes state that it is not currently anticipated that any trusts or class of trusts will be prescribed under para. (i).

"exempt service" means a service rendered at any time by an entity (referred to in this definition as the "service provider") to, for or on behalf of, another entity (referred to in this definition as a "recipient") if

(a) the recipient is at that time a trust and the service relates to the administration of the trust; or

(b) the following conditions apply in respect of the service, namely,

(i) the service is rendered in the service provider's capacity at that time as an employee or agent of the recipient,

(ii) in exchange for the service, the recipient transfers or loans property or becomes obligated to transfer or loan property, and

(iii) it is reasonable to conclude

(A) having regard only to the service and the exchange, that the service provider would be willing to carry out the service if the service provider were dealing at arm's length with the recipient, and

(B) that the terms, conditions, and circumstances, under which the service is provided would be acceptable to the service provider if the service provider were dealing at arm's length with the recipient.

Technical Notes: The definition "exempt service" is relevant to new paragraph 94(2)(f), which deems the provision of certain services (other than exempt services) to be a transfer of property.

An exempt service means a service rendered at any time by an entity (the "service provider") to, for or on behalf of, another entity (a "recipient") if either

- the recipient is at that time a trust and the service relates to the administration of the trust, or
- the following conditions apply in respect of the service, namely

(i) the service is rendered in the service provider's capacity at that time as an employee or agent of the recipient,

(ii) in exchange for the service the recipient transfers or loans property, or becomes obligated to transfer or loan property, and

(iii) it is reasonable to conclude

(A) having regard only to the service and the exchange that the service provider would have been willing to carry out the service if the service provider had dealt at arm's length with the recipient, and

(B) that the terms and conditions, and circumstances, under which the service is provided would have been acceptable to the service provider if the service provider had dealt at arm's length with the recipient.

Related Provisions: 94(2)(f) — Exempt service excluded from service being a deemed transfer of property.

"exempt taxpayer", for a taxation year of the taxpayer, means

(a) a person whose taxable income for the taxation year is exempt from tax under this Part because of subsection 149(1) (otherwise than because of paragraph 149(1)(q.1), (t) or (z)); and

(b) an eligible trust that is resident in Canada at the end of the taxation year and under which

(i) the only beneficiaries that may for any reason receive, at any time and directly from the trust, any of the income or capital of the trust are persons that are qualifying investors in respect of the trust, and

(ii) each of those beneficiaries at each time in the taxation year is a person whose taxable income, for the period that includes all of those times in the taxation year, is exempt from tax under this Part because of subsection 149(1) (otherwise than because of paragraph 149(1)(q.1), (t) or (z)).

Technical Notes: The definition "exempt taxpayer" is relevant in determining whether a taxpayer is a "specified contributor" to a trust.

Except as indicated below, tax-exempt persons to which subsection 149(1) applies are generally qualifying exempt taxpayers. However, retirement compensation arrangements and qualifying environmental trusts for which alternative income tax rules are provided under Parts XI.3 and XII.4, and insurers to which paragraph 149(1)(t) applies, are not qualifying exempt taxpayers.

An exempt taxpayer also includes a Canadian resident trust (determined without reference to subsection 94(3)) that is an eligible trust (as defined in subsection 94(1)) under which the only beneficiaries that may for any reason receive, at or after the particular time and directly from the trust, any of the income or capital of the trust are persons that are both qualifying investors (as defined in subsection 94(1)) and qualifying exempt taxpayers described above.

For more detail on the definition "qualifying investor" in subsection 94(1), see the commentary on that provision.

Related Provisions: 94(1)"specified contributor"(d)(ii) — Exclusion from definition of specified contributor; 94(4)(a) [proposed] — Deeming non-resident trust to be resident in Canada does not apply.

"indirect contributor", to a trust at a particular time, means a particular entity that

(a) is at the particular time a contributor to the trust, but would not at the particular time be a contributor to the trust if this section were read without reference to paragraphs (b) and (c) of the definition "contribution" in this subsection and paragraphs (2)(l), (n) and (o);

(b) has at the particular time no rights (whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretion by any entity) to receive directly from the trust any of the income or capital of the trust; and

(c) has at or before the particular time made a contribution to the trust

(i) because of a transfer of property to the trust by another entity that is at the particular time a qualifying investor in respect of the trust, in the case where the particular entity would not, at the particular time, be a contributor to the trust because of the transfer if this section were read without reference to paragraphs (b) and (c) of the definition "contribution" and to paragraph (2)(l), or

(ii) because of a transfer of property by another entity to the trust in exchange for property acquired from the trust if the acquisition was a transfer described in subparagraph (2)(g)(ii) or because of a contribution to the trust that is deemed by paragraph (2)(q) to have been made by another entity because of the acquisition by that other entity of a specified fixed interest in the trust in the case where

(A) the particular entity would not, at the particular time, be a contributor to the trust if this section were read without reference to paragraphs (b) and (c) of the definition "contribution" in this subsection and paragraphs (2)(n) and (o),

(B) as a result of the transfer or contribution by the other entity, the other entity acquired a specific fixed interest in the trust, and

(C) the other entity is, at the particular time, a qualifying investor in the trust.

Technical Notes: The definition "indirect contributor" in subsection 94(1) applies in determining whether certain foreign pooled fund investment trusts qualify as exempt foreign trusts under paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1). Clause (h)(ii)(B) of the "exempt foreign trust" definition imposes upon a trust that seeks to so qualify the requirement that all of its resident contributors be specified contributors (as defined in subsection 94(1)); however, this requirement does not apply to indirect contributors to the trust.

An indirect contributor to a particular trust, at any time, means a particular entity that

- is, at that time, a contributor to the trust, but would not be a contributor to the trust if this section were read without reference to paragraphs (b) and (c) of the definition "contribution" (as defined in subsection 94(1)) and paragraphs (2)(l), (n) and (o) and has no rights to receive directly from the trust any of the income or capital of the trust; and
- has at or before that time made a contribution to the trust
  - because of a transfer of property to the trust by a another entity that is a qualifying investor in respect of the trust in the case where the particular entity would not, at that time, be a contributor to the trust because of that transfer if new section 94 were read without reference to paragraph 94(2)(l) at that time, or
  - because of a transfer of property by an entity to the trust in exchange for property acquired from the trust which acquisition was a transfer described in subparagraph 94(2)(g)(ii) or because of a transfer of property to the trust that is deemed by paragraph 94(2)(q) to have been made by an entity because of the acquisition by that entity of a specified fixed interest in the trust from another entity in the case where
    - the particular entity would not, at that time, be a contributor to the trust if section 94 were read without reference to paragraphs 94(2)(n) and (o) at that time, and
    - each interest as a beneficiary under the trust that is relevant in determining whether the particular entity is, at that time, a contributor to the trust is, at that time, a specified fixed interest in the trust that is held, at that time, by a qualifying investor in the trust.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 23, 2005:

Dear [xxx]:

I am responding to your correspondence to Wallace Conway dated November 15, 2005 concerning the Legislative Proposals and Explanatory Notes on Taxation of Non-Resident Trusts and Foreign Investment Entities (the "Legislative Proposals") released by the Department of Finance on July 18, 2005.

In your letter, you set out a concern regarding the application of the Legislative Proposals to certain transactions contemplated by [xxx], an indirect subsidiary of [xxx]. The purpose of these transactions is to effect a fund rationalisation by transferring the general fund assets ("GFAs") and the unit-linked fund assets ("ULFAs") of [xxx] to an open-ended investment company ("OIEC"), a controlled foreign affiliate of [xxx]. In order to minimize or eliminate the stamp taxes that would otherwise be imposed by the U.K. HM Revenue and Customs in respect of those asset transfers, it is proposed to first transfer the portion of the ULFA's and the GFA's that are U.K. equities (respectively, the "UK ULFAs" and the "UK GFAs") to an authorized unit trust ("AUT"), before the ultimate transfer to the OIEC. This will be accomplished, in the case of the UK ULFAs, by a transfer from each particular related segregated fund trust holding the UK ULFAs to the AUT. In the case of the UK GFAs, the transfer will be directly from [xxx] to the AUT. You have informed us that the U.K. HM Revenue and Customs does not challenge such contemplated tax planning transactions even though the result is the minimization or elimination of the UK stamp tax otherwise payable.

In respect of the transfer of the UK ULFAs and the UK GFAs, you are concerned that [xxx] will be considered to be a "resident contributor" under that proposed definition in subsection 94(1) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") and that, as a result, proposed subsection 94(3) of the Act will apply to deem the AUT to be resident in Canada. Specifically, your concern relates to proposed paragraphs 94(2)(n) and (l) of the Act. With respect to the UK ULFAs, it is your view that, under proposed paragraph 94(2)(n), [xxx] will be deemed to have made the transfer of the UK ULFAs to the AUT jointly with the related segregated fund trust actually doing the transfer. In your view paragraph 94(2)(l) will apply to deem [xxx] to have transferred the UK ULFAs to the AUT jointly with [xxx]. With respect to the UK GFAs, your concern is that proposed paragraph 94(2)(l) will deem [xxx] to have transferred the UK GFAs to the AUT jointly with [xxx] the actual transferor. You hold these views because the corporate office in Toronto has been consulted and kept informed regarding these proposed transactions. You are also of the view that the "resident contributor" treatment of [xxx] in these circumstances would be inappropriate and, consequently, you have asked us to consider a relieving amendment.

During our discussions of the matter, we have referred you to paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" as a possible source of the relief that you are seeking. After exploring this possibility, the view was expressed that, if [xxx] was an "indirect contributor" as defined in subsection 94(1), the AUT would qualify as an exempt foreign trust under paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust". However, it was noted that, under the proposed wording of the definition "indirect contributor" contained in the latest draft of the proposals issued for comment in July of 2005, [xxx] would not qualify as an indirect contributor. This is because that definition provides no relief in respect of [xxx] in the circumstances where paragraph 94(2)(l) applies to treat [xxx] as having made a transfer to AUT (even though the relief would be provided in cases where paragraph 94(2)(n) applied to treat [xxx] as having made a transfer to AUT). You have asked us to consider an expansion of the scope of the definition "indirect contributor" to provide relief in cases where paragraph 94(2)(l) applies to treat [xxx] as having made a transfer to AUT. In your view, the Canadian tax base is adequately protected by the other requirements of paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" that must be met by [xxx] and [xxx].You also asked that we confirm our intentions as to this requested recommendation of the modification.

As a result of your representations and representations made by other taxpayers, we have reviewed the definition "indirect contributor" and have concluded that it would be appropriate to recommend certain modifications applicable to trust taxation years that begin after 2002. The modified definition would provide that a particular entity would, at a particular time, be considered to be an indirect contributor to the trust if the following conditions are met. First, the particular entity must be able to establish that it would not be a contributor to the trust at the particular time if the definition "contribution" were read without reference to its paragraphs (b) and (c) and section 94 were read without reference to paragraphs 94(2)(l), (n) and (o). Next, the particular entity must be able to establish that it has no absolute or contingent, immediate or future, rights to receive directly from the trust any income or capital of the trust. Finally, the particular entity must be able to establish that it is considered to have made the contribution to the trust because of the transfer, referred to in paragraph 94(2)(l), to the trust by another entity referred to in paragraph 94(2)(l) that is, at the particular time, a "qualifying investor" (as defined in subsection 94(1)) in respect of the trust or because of a transfer by the particular entity to another entity that is, at the particular time, a qualifying investor in respect of the trust in exchange for property acquired from that other entity (which acquisition of property is a transfer that is described in any of subparagraphs 94(2)(g)(i) to (iv)).

While we cannot offer any assurance that our recommendation in this matter will be accepted, we hope our statement of intent in this matter will be helpful in responding to your concern.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

"non-resident time", of an entity in respect of a contribution to a trust and a particular time, means a time (referred to in this definition as the "contribution time") at which the entity made a contribution to a trust that is before the particular time and at which the entity was non-resident, where the entity was non-resident or not in existence throughout the period that began 60 months before the contribution time (or, if the entity is an individual and the trust arose on and as a consequence of the death of the individual, 18 months before the contribution time) and ends at the earliest of

(a) the time that is 60 months after the contribution time,

(b) if the entity is an individual, the date of death of the individual, and

(c) the particular time.

Technical Notes: The definition "non-resident time" is relevant in determining whether a contributor to a trust is a "connected contributor" and whether the "look-through" rule in paragraph 94(2)(l) applies in determining whether an entity has made a contribution (i.e., is a contributor).

The "non-resident time" of an entity in respect of a contribution to a trust and a particular time means a time (referred to in this commentary as the "contribution time") at which the entity made a contribution to a trust, that is before the particular time and at which the entity was non-resident. However, such a time will qualify as a non-resident time only if the entity was non-resident (or not in existence) throughout a specified period.

As indicated in the coming-into-force provision for new section 94, where the contribution time occurs before June 23, 2000, the specified period is the period that begins 18 months before the end of the trust's taxation year that includes the contribution time and ends at the earliest of

- 60 months after the contribution time;
- where the entity is an individual, the date of the individual's death; and
- the particular time.

Where the contribution time occurs after June 22, 2000 and the trust arose on and as a consequence of the death of an individual, the specified period is the period that begins 18 months before the contribution time and ends at the earliest of

- 60 months after the contribution time;
- where the entity is an individual, the date of the individual's death; and
- the particular time.

Where the contribution time occurs after June 22, 2000 and the trust did not arise on and as a consequence of the death of an individual, the specified period is the period that begins 60 months before the contribution time and ends at the earliest of

- 60 months after the contribution time;
- where the entity is an individual, the date of the individual's death; and
- the particular time.

The measurement of the specified period by reference to any particular time is to ensure that the contributing entity and the trust may treat the contribution time as a non-resident time for the purposes of applying subsection 94(3) at a specified time (as defined in subsection 94(1)) in respect of the trust for a taxation year of the trust (generally, the end of that taxation year) if at the end of that particular year the contributor still has not become resident in Canada within the 60-month period after the contribution time.

However, new subsection 94(10) ensures that such a contributor will, for the purposes of the definition "connected contributor", be considered to have made the contribution at a time other than a non-resident time if the contributor becomes resident in Canada within the 60-month period after the contribution time. As a result, at each such specified time in respect of the trust for taxation year of the trust (generally, the end of that taxation year) following the contribution, there would be a connected contributor to the trust and, if there were a resident beneficiary under the trust, subsection 94(3) would also apply in respect of those years.

Amended subparagraph 152(4)(b)(vi) ensures that a reassessment of a taxpayer arising out of the application of subsection 94(10) may be undertaken by the Canada Revenue Agency within 3 years after the end of the taxpayer's normal reassessment period for the taxpayer's relevant taxation year.

For more information on new subsection 94(10) and amended subparagraph 152(4)(b)(vi), see the commentary on those provisions.

Related Provisions: 94(2)(j) — Where trust acquires property as a consequence of death of individual; 94(10) — Where contributor becomes resident in Canada within 60 months; 248(8) — Occurrences as a consequence of death.

"promoter", of a trust at any time, means an entity that on or before that time establishes, organizes or substantially reorganizes the undertakings of the trust.

Technical Notes: The definition "promoter" is relevant in applying new paragraph 94(2)(s), which provides that a transfer to a trust will not be considered a contribution where certain conditions, described in that paragraph, are met. For this purpose a promoter means an entity that establishes, organizes or substantially reorganizes the undertakings of the trust. For more information on paragraph 94(2)(s), see the commentary on that paragraph.

Related Provisions: 94(2)(s) — Where promoter required by securities law to acquire interest in commercial investment trust.

"qualifying investor", in respect of a trust at a particular time, means an entity

(a) that is at the particular time a beneficiary (in this definition, determined without reference to subsection 248(25)) under the trust; and

(b) whose only interests as a beneficiary under the trust are, at all times that the interests exist during the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time, specified fixed interests of the entity in the trust.

Technical Notes: The definition "qualifying investor" is relevant in applying paragraphs (g) and (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1), the definition "significant interest" in subsection 94.1(1), and the definitions "exempt taxpayer" in subsections 94(1) and 94.1(1).

A qualifying investor in respect of a trust at a particular time means an entity that is at the particular time a beneficiary (in this definition, determined without reference to subsection 248(25)) under the trust whose only interest as a beneficiary under the trust is, at all times that the interest exists during the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time, a specified fixed interest (as defined in subsection 94(1)) of the entity in the trust.

For more information on the definition "specified fixed interest" in subsection 94(1), see the commentary on that paragraph.

"qualifying services" means services that are

(a) rendered to an employer by an employee of the employer, which employee was non-resident throughout the period during which the services were rendered;

(b) rendered to an employer by an employee of the employer, other than services that were

(i) rendered primarily in Canada,

(ii) rendered primarily in connection with a business carried on by the employer in Canada, or

(iii) a combination of services described in subparagraphs (i) and (ii);

(c) rendered in a particular calendar month to an employer by an employee of the employer, which employee

(i) was resident in Canada throughout no more than 60 months during the 72-month period that ends at the end of the particular month, and

(ii) became a member of, or a beneficiary under, the plan or trust under which benefits in respect of the services may be provided (or a similar plan or trust for which the plan or the trust was substituted) before the end of the calendar month following the month in which the employee became resident in Canada; or

(d) any combination of services that are qualifying services determined without reference to this paragraph.

Technical Notes: The definition "qualifying services" is relevant in applying paragraph (f) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1).

In general terms, "qualifying services" are

- services rendered by an employee of an employer while the employee was non-resident,
- services rendered to an employer other than services that were rendered primarily in Canada, in connection with a business carried on by an employer in Canada or a combination of these services,
- services rendered in a particular calendar month by an employee of the employer which employee
  - was resident in Canada no more than 60 months during the 72 month period that ends at the end of the particular month, and
  - became a member of, or a beneficiary under the plan or trust under which benefits in respect of the services may be provided (or a similar plan or trust for which the plan or the trust was substituted) before the end of the calendar month following the month in which the employee became resident in Canada, or
- any combination of services that are qualifying services described above.

"resident beneficiary", at any time under a particular trust, means an entity (other than an entity that is at that time a specified charity, or a successor beneficiary, in respect of the particular trust) that is, at that time, a beneficiary under the particular trust where, at that time

(a) the entity is resident in Canada; and

(b) there is a connected contributor to the particular trust.

Technical Notes: Under new subsection 94(3), a particular trust is generally treated as resident in Canada for a particular taxation year of the trust if there is a "resident beneficiary" under the particular trust at a "specified time" (generally, the end of the particular year). Under new paragraph 94(3)(d), each resident beneficiary can be jointly and severally or solidarily liable with the particular trust for the particular trust's income tax liabilities under the Act for the particular year. (For further information with respect to the expression "solidarily", please refer to the introductory commentary on new section 94.) See also the commentary on subsection 94(3).

A resident beneficiary at a particular time under a trust is an entity (other than an entity that is at that time a "specified charity" or a "successor beneficiary" in respect of the trust) that, at that time, is a beneficiary under the trust, if, at that time,

- the entity is resident in Canada; and
- there is a "connected contributor" to the trust.

The expressions "connected contributor", "specified charity", "specified time" and "successor beneficiary" are defined in new subsection 94(1). For further information, see the commentary on those definitions.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Apr. 2, 2008:

Ms. Katie A. Walmsley, The Investment Counsel Association of Canada

Dear Ms. Walmsley:

Thank you for your correspondence, on behalf of the Investment Counsel Association of Canada (ICAC), dated January 22, 2008 and concerning Bill C-10. I also acknowledge our discussions on this subject matter.

Bill C-10 contains proposed amendments (the "NRT proposals") to the existing deemed residency rules in the Income Tax Act that apply in respect of non-resident trusts. The amended regime treats certain otherwise non-resident trusts as residents of Canada where the trust has either a "resident contributor" or a "resident beneficiary". Each resident contributor and resident beneficiary is generally liable together with the trust for any unpaid Canadian tax of the trust. The determination of whether an entity is a resident contributor or a resident beneficiary is made without regard to the tax status of the entity for purposes of the Act.

The statutory trust residence rule is suspended, however, where the trust is a non-resident commercial trust (as set out in the "exempt foreign trust" definition in proposed subsection 94(1) of the Act), in which case the foreign investment entity regime applies instead. The relevant provisions in the exempt foreign trust definition were developed after extensive consultations with taxpayers and representatives from the tax community and were understood to have accommodated investments of Canadians in foreign commercial trusts. Nonetheless, I appreciate from your submissions that ICAC is concerned with how the NRT proposals would apply in the context of investments made by registered pension plans, registered retirement savings plans and similar plans in non-resident commercial investment trusts.

I understand that ICAC is prepared to support the enactment of Bill C-10 but is seeking two amendments to these rules as soon as possible after the passage of Bill C-10. In general terms, the first amendment would involve an exemption from resident contributor and resident beneficiary status for most registered pension plans, the Canada Pension Plan Investment Board (and similar provincial pension funds), and certain Canadian intermediaries (trusts and corporations) in which these qualifying pension plans are the only holders of equity interests or participating debt. The exemption would not, however, apply to a plan that is a designated plan (as defined in subsection 8500(1) of the Income Tax Regulations), a plan that has fewer than 10 members (as defined in subsection 147.1(1) of the Act), or a trust or corporation any of the activities of which is to administer, manage or invest the monies of a retirement compensation arrangement.

The second amendment would modify the provisions of paragraph (h) of the exempt foreign trust definition to include a non-resident commercial investment trust, without regard to whether the trust holds restricted property, in which the only Canadian resident investors are Canadian mutual funds (as defined in sections 131 and 132 of the Act, and having at least 150 investors) whose investors are exclusively the pension plan entities that qualify for the exemption described above, registered retirement savings plans, and registered retirement income funds.

I am prepared to recommend to the Minister that these two amendments be made at the earliest opportunity following the passage of Bill C-10. It would also be my recommendation that these proposed changes apply to the 2007 and subsequent taxation years. While I cannot give any assurance that Parliament will agree with this recommendation, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful to you.

Sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, General Director, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Apr. 2, 2008:

Mr. Roger Robineau, Chair, Pension Investment Association of Canada (PIAC)

Dear Mr. Robineau:

Thank you for your correspondence, dated January 28, 2008, concerning Bill C-10.

Bill C-10 contains proposed amendments (the "NRT proposals") to the existing deemed residency rules in the Income Tax Act that apply in respect of non-resident trusts. The amended regime treats certain otherwise non-resident trusts as residents of Canada where the trust has either a "resident contributor" or a "resident beneficiary". Each resident contributor and resident beneficiary is generally liable together with the trust for any unpaid Canadian tax of the trust. The determination of whether an entity is a resident contributor or a resident beneficiary is made without regard to the tax status of the entity for purposes of the Act.

The statutory trust residence rule is suspended, however, where the trust is a non-resident commercial trust (as set out in the "exempt foreign trust" definition in proposed subsection 94(1) of the Act), in which case the foreign investment entity regime applies instead. The relevant provisions in the exempt foreign trust definition were developed after extensive consultations with taxpayers and representatives from the tax community and were understood to have accommodated investments of Canadians in foreign commercial trusts. Nonetheless, I appreciate from your submissions that PIAC is concerned with how the NRT proposals would apply in the context of investments made by registered pension plans, registered retirement savings plans and similar plans in non-resident commercial investment trusts.

I understand that PIAC is prepared to support the enactment of Bill C-10 but is seeking two amendments to these rules as soon as possible after the passage of Bill C-10. In general terms, the first amendment would involve an exemption from resident contributor and resident beneficiary status for most registered pension plans, the Canada Pension Plan Investment Board (and similar provincial pension funds), and certain Canadian intermediaries (trusts and corporations) in which these qualifying pension plans are the only holders of equity interests or participating debt. The exemption would not, however, apply to a plan that is a designated plan (as defined in subsection 8500(1) of the Income Tax Regulations), a plan that has fewer than 10 members (as defined in subsection 147.1(1) of the Act), or a trust or corporation any of the activities of which is to administer, manage or invest the monies of a retirement compensation arrangement.

The second amendment would modify the provisions of paragraph (h) of the exempt foreign trust definition to include a non-resident commercial investment trust, without regard to whether the trust holds restricted property, in which the only Canadian resident investors are Canadian mutual funds (as defined in sections 131 and 132 of the Act, and having at least 150 investors) whose investors are exclusively the pension plan entities that qualify for the exemption described above, registered retirement savings plans, and registered retirement income funds.

I am prepared to recommend to the Minister that these two amendments be made at the earliest opportunity following the passage of Bill C-10. It would also be my recommendation that these proposed changes apply to the 2007 and subsequent taxation years. While I cannot give any assurance that Parliament will agree with this recommendation, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful to you.

Sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, General Director, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Apr. 29, 2008:

Mr. Roger Robineau, Chair, Pension Investment Association of Canada

Dear Mr. Robineau:

This is further to your letter of April 21, in response to my letter of April 2, 2008, concerning Bill C-10 and, in particular, the application of the proposed income tax rules for non-resident trusts (NRTs) to investments made by pension entities in NRTs. I also acknowledge discussions between officials of this Department and representatives of your Association and the Investment Counsel Association of Canada.

In my previous letter, I confirmed that we were prepared to recommend amendments to the Income Tax Act following the passage of Bill C-10 that would exempt certain pension entities, including registered pension plans (RPPs), from resident contributor and resident beneficiary status under the NRT rules. You have expressed concern that the constraint on retirement compensation arrangement (RCA) related activities mentioned in my letter would apply to RPPs.

As noted in our discussions, it is intended that the exemption apply to the following "qualifying pension entities":

- an RPP, other than a "designated plan" (as defined in subsection 8500(1) of the Income Tax Regulations) or a plan that has fewer than 10 members;
- a trust (other than an "RCA trust" (as defined in subsection 207.5(1) of the Act)) or corporation (such as, for example, the Canada Pension Plan Investment Board, the Public Sector Pension Investment Board and the Caisse de dépôt et placement du Québec) established by federal or provincial legislation the principal activities of which are to administer, manage or invest the monies of one or more pension funds or plans established pursuant to such legislation; and
- certain Canadian intermediaries — corporations and trusts (including segregated fund trusts) — in which qualifying pension entities are the only beneficiaries and holders of participating debt.

I trust this addresses your concerns and look forward to receiving your confirmation to this effect.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, General Director — Legislation, Tax Policy Branch

[These amendments are not yet incorporated into the proposed legislation above — ed].

Related Provisions: 94(1)"beneficiary" — Extended meaning of "beneficiary"; 94(3)(a) — Trust with resident beneficiary deemed resident in Canada for certain purposes; 94(3)(d)(i) — Liability for resident beneficiary for trust's tax.

"resident contributor", to a particular trust at any time, means an entity that is, at that time, resident in Canada and a contributor to the particular trust, but does not include

(a) an individual (other than a trust) who has not, at that time, been resident in Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, more than 60 months (other than an individual who, before that time, was never non-resident); or

(b) an individual (other than a trust), if

(i) the particular trust is an inter vivos trust that was created before 1960 by a person who was non-resident when the trust was created, and

(ii) the individual has not, after 1959, made a contribution to the particular trust.

Technical Notes: Under new subsection 94(3), a trust is generally treated as resident in Canada for a particular taxation year of the trust if there is a "resident contributor" to the trust at a "specified time" in respect of the trust for the particular taxation year (generally, the end of the particular year). Under new paragraph 94(3)(d), a "resident contributor" can be jointly and severally or solidarily liable with the trust for the trust's income tax liabilities under the Act for the particular year. (For further information with respect to the expression "solidarily", please refer to the introductory commentary above on new section 94.)

A "resident contributor" at any time means an entity that is, at that time, resident in Canada and a "contributor" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) to the trust. However, an exemption from treatment as a resident contributor is provided for a contributor who is:

- an individual who was resident in Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, not more than 60 months (but not including a trust or an individual who before that time was never non-resident); and
- an individual, if the trust is an inter vivos trust that was created before 1960 by a person who was non-resident when the trust was created and the individual made no contribution after 1959 to the trust.

In the context of this definition, reference should also be made to new paragraphs 94(2)(a) to (m) (which extend the circumstances in which a transfer is considered to occur for the purposes of section 94), new paragraphs 94(2)(n) to (q) and subsections 94(11) to (13) (which generally extend the circumstances in which a contribution is considered to be made for the purposes of section 94) and paragraphs 94(2)(r) to (u) (which generally narrow the circumstances in which a contribution is considered to be made for the purposes of section 94).

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Sept. 22, 2000:

Dear [xxx]:

I am responding to your faxed memo to me dated August 25, 2000 concerning the Legislative Proposals and Explanatory Notes on Taxation of Non-Resident Trusts and Foreign Investment Entities (the "Legislative Proposals") released by the Department of Finance by way of Finance Canada News Release number 2000-050, dated June 22, 2000.

In your memo, you referred to the grandfathering provision in existing clause 94(l)(b)(i)(D) of the Income Tax Act in relation to inter vivos trusts created at any time before 1960 by a person who at that time was a non-resident person. In this connection, you have suggested that a grandfathering rule be introduced in the Legislative Proposals. In particular, you have suggested that the definition "resident contributor" in new proposed subsection 94(1) of the Act be revised to exclude from that definition an individual, in the case of a particular trust, where

(i) the particular trust is an inter vivos trust that was created at any time before 1960 by a person who at that time was a non-resident person, and

(ii) no contribution is made to the particular trust by the individual at any time after 1959.

We are prepared to recommend to the Minister your suggested revision to that definition.

We confirm that the effect of this revision would be to save a non-resident trust from the application of the rule in proposed paragraph 94(3)(a) (which deems the trust to be resident in Canada for tax purposes) in any particular trust taxation year only if all the following conditions are met:

1. the trust is an inter vivos trust that was created at any time before 1960 by a person who at that time was a non-resident person,

2. no contribution is made to the trust at any time after 1959 by any individual who, at the end of the particular year, is both resident in Canada and a contributor to the trust (except an individual (other than a trust) who has not, at the end of the particular year, been resident in Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, more than 60 months), and

3. there are no resident beneficiaries (as defined in the Legislative Proposals) under the trust at the end of the particular year.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber, General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letters from Dept. of Finance, Apr. 2 and 29, 2008: See under 94(1)"resident beneficiary".

Related Provisions: 94(1)"connected contributor"(a) — 60-month limit; 94(3)(a) [proposed] — Trust with resident beneficiary deemed resident in Canada for certain purposes; 94(3)(d)(i) [proposed] — Liability of resident contributor for trust's tax; 94(5) [proposed] — Trust ceases to be resident in Canada once there is no resident contributor.

"restricted property" means

(a) a particular share (or a particular right to acquire a share) of the capital stock of a particular closely-held corporation if the particular share (or the particular right), or a property for which the particular share (or the particular right) was substituted, was at any time acquired as part of a transaction or series of transactions or events under which

(i) a specified share of the capital stock of a closely-held corporation was acquired by any entity in exchange for, as consideration for, or upon conversion of, any property, or

(ii) a share (other than a specified share) of the capital stock of a closely-held corporation becomes a specified share of the capital stock of the corporation;

(b) an indebtedness (or a right to acquire an indebtedness) owing by another entity if

(i) the other entity is a closely-held corporation,

(ii) the indebtedness (or the right), or a property for which the indebtedness (or the right) was substituted, was at any time acquired as part of a transaction or series of transactions or events under which

(A) a specified share of the capital stock of a closely-held corporation was acquired by any entity in exchange for, as consideration for, or upon conversion of, any property, or

(B) a share (other than a specified share) of the capital stock of a closely-held corporation becomes a specified share of the capital stock of the corporation, and

(iii) the amount of any payment under a right (whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretion by any entity) to receive, in any manner whatever and from any entity, amounts in respect of the indebtedness, or the value of such a right, is, directly or indirectly, determined primarily by one or more of the following criteria in respect of one or more properties of the other entity (or an entity with which the other entity does not deal at arm's length):

(A) the fair market value of the property, production from the property or use of the property,

(B) gains or profits from the disposition of the property,

(C) income from the property, profits from the property, revenue from the property, or cash flow from the property, or

(D) any other criterion similar to a criterion referred to in any of clauses (A) to (C); and

(c) any property the fair market value of which is derived in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, from a particular share, an indebtedness or a right described in paragraph (a) or (b).

Technical Notes: The expression "restricted property" is relevant in applying a number of provisions in respect of non-resident trusts, including the definitions in subsection 94(1) of "arm's length transfer" and "exempt foreign trust". The definition "restricted property" is intended to serve as an anti-avoidance provision.

More specifically, restricted property means

- under paragraph (a) of the definition, a particular share (or a right to acquire a share) of the capital stock of a particular closely-held corporation if the particular share (or right), or a property for which the particular share (or right) was substituted, was at any time acquired as part of a transaction or series of transactions under which either a specified share of the capital stock of a closely-held corporation was acquired by any entity in exchange for, as consideration for, or upon conversion of any property or (effective for taxation years beginning after November 9, 2006) a share of a closely-held corporation that was not a specified share becomes a specified share;
- under paragraph (b) of the definition, an indebtedness (or a right to acquire indebtedness) owing by another entity if
  - the other entity is a closely-held corporation,
  - the indebtedness (or right), or a property for which the indebtedness (or right) was substituted, was at any time acquired as part of a transaction or series of transactions under which either a specified share of the capital stock of a closely-held corporation was acquired by any entity in exchange for, as consideration for, or upon conversion of any property or (effective for taxation years beginning after November 9, 2006) a share of a closely-held corporation that was not a specified share becomes a specified share, and
  - the amount of any payment under a right (for taxation years that begin after July 18, 2005, whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretion by any entity or individual) to receive, in any manner whatever and from any entity, amounts in respect of the indebtedness), or the value of such a right, is, directly or indirectly, determined primarily by reference to any one or more of the criteria, in respect of one or more properties of the other entity (or an entity with which the other entity does not deal at arm's length), identified in any of clauses (b)(iii)(A) to (D) of the definition; and
- under paragraph (c) of the definition, any property the fair market value of which is derived in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, from a particular share, indebtedness or right described in paragraph (a) or (b) of the definition.

New subsection 94(14) may apply in some circumstances to suspend a property's characterization as restricted property. For more details, see the commentary on that provision. For more detail on the definition "excluded property" in subsection 94(1), see the commentary on that provision.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamation — continuing corporation; 94(14) — Restricted property — exception.

"specified charity", in respect of a trust at any particular time, means any person (referred to in this definition as the "charity") that at the particular time is a person described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) and (g.1) of the definition "total charitable gifts" in subsection 118.1(1) other than

(a) a charity that does not, at the particular time, deal at arm's length with a specified entity in respect of the trust, and

(b) a charity that did not, at any specified prior time, deal at arm's length with a specified entity in respect of the trust,

where

(c) "specified prior time" in respect of a charity means any time, before the particular time, at which

(i) an amount was payable to the charity as a beneficiary under the trust,

(ii) an amount was received by the charity on the disposition of all or part of its interest as a beneficiary under the trust, or

(iii) a benefit was received or enjoyed by the charity from or under the trust, and

(d) "specified entity" in respect of a trust at any time means

(i) an entity that is at that time

(A) a beneficiary under the trust,

(B) a contributor to the trust,

(C) a person related to a contributor to the trust,

(D) a trustee of the trust,

(E) an entity that could reasonably be considered to have influence over the operation of the trust or the enforcement of its terms, or

(F) an entity that could reasonably be considered to have influence over the selection or appointment of an entity referred to in clause (A), (D) or (E), or

(ii) any group of entities at least one of which is described in subparagraph (i).

Technical Notes: The expression "specified charity" is used in the definitions "arm's length transfer" and "resident beneficiary" in new subsection 94(1). An arm's length transfer includes a refund, from a specified charity in respect of a trust to the trust, of a gift previously made by the trust to the charity. A resident beneficiary under a trust does not include a specified charity. For more information, see the commentary on those definitions.

A specified charity in respect of a trust at any particular time means a person (in this commentary referred to as a "charity") that at that time is described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) and (g.1) of the definition "total charitable gifts" in subsection 118.1(1). However, a specified charity does not include:

- a charity that does not, at a particular time, deal at arm's length with a "specified entity" in respect of the trust; or
- a charity that did not, at any "specified prior time" in respect of the charity, deal at arm's length with a specified entity in respect of the trust.

For this purpose, a "specified prior time" in respect of a charity is defined in paragraph (c) of the definition "specified charity" as meaning any time, before the particular time, at which

- an amount was payable to the charity as a beneficiary under the trust,
- an amount was received by the charity on the disposition of the charity's interest in the trust, or
- a benefit was received or enjoyed by the charity from or under the trust.

Paragraph (d) of the definition "specified charity" defines a "specified entity" in respect of a trust at any time to mean

- an entity that is at that time beneficially interested in the trust, a contributor to the trust, a person related to a contributor to the trust, a trustee of the trust, an entity that could reasonably be considered to have influence over the operation of the trust or the enforcement of its terms, or an entity that could reasonably be considered to have influence over the selection or appointment of an entity referred to above, or
- any group at least one of the members of which is described immediately above.

Related Provisions: 94(1)"resident beneficiary" — Specified charity is not a resident beneficiary; 104(24) — Whether amount payable to beneficiary.

"specified contributor", to a trust at a particular time in a taxation year of a particular entity, means the particular entity, if

(a) the particular entity is, at the particular time, both a contributor to the trust and a beneficiary (in this definition, other than in clause (d)(ii)(B), determined without reference to subsection 248(25)) under the trust;

(b) at all times, after February 16, 1999 and on or before the particular time, when it is a beneficiary under the trust, the particular entity's interest as a beneficiary under the trust is or would, if the definition "specified fixed interest" applied at those times, have been a specified fixed interest of the particular entity in the trust;

(c) it is reasonable to conclude that, at no time that is after February 16, 1999 and on or before the particular time, has

(i) the particular entity made a contribution of restricted property to the trust, or

(ii) another entity made a contribution of restricted property to the trust when that other entity was not dealing at arm's length with the particular entity; and

(d) where the particular entity is, at any time that is after February 16, 1999 and at or before the particular time, a beneficiary under the trust

(i) either

(A) a prescribed form has been filed with the Minister by or on behalf of the particular entity on or before the particular entity's filing-due date for that taxation year (or a later date that is acceptable to the Minister), or

(B) a prescribed form and a copy of the terms of the trust that apply at the particular time have been filed with the Minister by or on behalf of the trust on or before its filing due date for its taxation year that includes the particular time (or a later date that is acceptable to the Minister), and

(ii) unless the particular entity is an exempt taxpayer for the taxation year, with respect to each particular contribution made after February 16, 1999 and at before the particular time by the particular entity to the trust, it is reasonable to conclude that

(A) no consideration was received (other than property received by the particular entity that is the particular entity's interest as a beneficiary under the trust),

(B) none of the reasons (determined by reference to all the circumstances including the terms of the trust, an intention, the laws of a country or the existence of an agreement, a memorandum, a letter of wishes or any other arrangement) for the contribution is the acquisition at any time by any entity (other than the particular entity) of a right (whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretion by any entity) as a beneficiary under the trust (other than the acquisition by any such entity of the particular entity's interest as a beneficiary under the trust that was acquired as a result of the contribution) to receive, at any time and directly from the trust, income or capital of the trust, and

(C) the fair market value of the particular contribution is equal to the fair market value, at the time of the particular contribution, of the particular entity's interest as a beneficiary under the trust acquired as a result of the particular contribution.

Technical Notes: The expression "specified contributor" is used in paragraph 94(2)(r) and paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in new subsection 94(1).

Paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" is intended to ensure that investors in commercial investment trusts are subject to the regime for foreign investment entities in new sections 94.1 to 94.4. Where a particular investor in such a commercial investment trust sells or has redeemed a beneficial interest in the trust, paragraph 94(2)(r) may apply to ensure that the acquisition of that interest by the particular investor will, after the sale or redemption, not be treated as a contribution to the trust.

For taxation years in respect of which new section 94 applies to a trust, the definition is relevant in applying both paragraph 94(2)(r) and the definition "exempt foreign trust". For earlier taxation years, the definition "specified contributor" will generally only be relevant in determining whether an investor in the trust has ceased to be a contributor to the trust because of paragraph 94(2)(r).

An entity can only qualify as a specified contributor to a trust at any time if, at that time, it is both a beneficiary (generally determined without reference to subsection 248(25)) under, and a contributor to, the trust.

If this condition is met and that time is both before February 17, 1999 and immediately before a sale or redemption of the entity's interest as a beneficiary under the trust, then the entity will be a specified contributor in respect of that interest for the purpose of applying paragraph 94(2)(r) to that sale or redemption. If paragraph 94(2)(r) applies, then in applying section 94 to the entity after the sale or redemption, the entity is treated as not having made any contribution to the trust in respect of its acquisition of that interest.

For a particular entity that is a beneficiary under a trust at a particular time that is after February 16, 1999, the particular entity will be a specified contributor to the trust at the particular time only if

- it is, at the particular time, a contributor to the trust;
- at all times that it is a beneficiary under the trust, its interest as a beneficiary is a "specified fixed interest" (as defined in subsection 94(1)) in the trust;
- the trust is identified, in a timely fashion, by or on behalf of the particular entity, in prescribed form or a copy of the terms of the trust that apply at the particular time has, together with a prescribed form, been filed, in a timely fashion, with the Minister by or on behalf of the trust; and
- where the particular entity is not an "exempt taxpayer" (as defined in subsection 94(1)), it is reasonable to conclude, in respect of any contribution made by it to the trust after February 16, 1999 and on before the particular time, that
  - no consideration was received (other than property received by the particular entity that is the particular entity's interest as a beneficiary under the trust),
  - none of the reasons (determined by reference to all the circumstances including the terms of the trust, an intention, the laws of a country or the existence of an agreement, a memorandum, a letter of wishes or any other arrangement) for the contribution is the acquisition at any time by any entity (other than the particular entity) of a right as a beneficiary (here as defined generally in subsection 94(1)) under the trust (other than the acquisition by any such entity of an interest as a beneficiary under the trust from the particular entity for consideration equal to the fair market value of that interest) to receive, at any time and directly from the trust, income or capital of the trust, and
  - the fair market value of the particular contribution is equal to the fair market value, at the time of the particular contribution, of the particular entity's interest as a beneficiary under the trust acquired as a result of the particular contribution.

Where the particular entity qualifies at any time as a specified contributor, the sale or redemption, immediately after that time, of its interest as a beneficiary under the trust may result, as described above, in the application of paragraph 94(2)(r). In addition, if the particular entity is a resident contributor to a non-resident commercial investment trust, that was seeking to meet, at that time, the requirements of paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust", the particular entity's contributions to the trust would not alone cause the trust to fail to meet those requirements (ignoring subsection 94(16)).

Note, however, that an entity will not qualify as a specified contributor to a trust if at any time after February 16, 1999, the entity (or another entity with which it does not deal at arm's length) contributes restricted property to the trust. As a result, even if the contribution of restricted property were in consideration for the acquisition of an interest as a beneficiary under the trust, paragraph 94(2)(r) would not apply, to expunge the contribution, upon the sale or redemption of the interest in the trust. Moreover, the entity's status as a resident contributor to the trust may jeopardize the trust's ability to qualify as an exempt foreign trust.

"specified controlled foreign affiliate", of a particular entity at any time, means an entity that would, at that time, be a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular entity if the particular entity were resident in Canada at that time.

Technical Notes: A "specified controlled foreign affiliate" of a particular entity at any time means an entity that would, at that time, be a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular entity if the particular entity were resident in Canada at that time. The definition is used for the purpose of the definition "specified party".

"specified fixed interest", at any time of an entity in a trust, means an interest of the entity as a beneficiary under the trust if

(a) the interest includes, at that time, rights of the entity as a beneficiary under the trust to receive, at or after that time and directly from the trust, income and capital of the trust;

(b) the interest was issued by the trust, at or before that time, to an entity, in circumstances that are described by subparagraph (2)(g)(ii);

(c) the only manner in which any part of the interest may cease to be the entity's is by way of a transfer (determined as if subsection (2) were read only with reference to clauses (2)(m)(ii)(B) and (D)) of that part by the entity, which transfer is a disposition (determined without reference to paragraph (i) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1) and paragraph 248(8)(c)) by the entity of that part; and

(d) no amount of income or capital of the trust that any entity may receive directly from the trust at any time as a beneficiary under the trust depends on the exercise by any entity of, or the failure by any entity to exercise, a discretionary power.

Technical Notes: The expression "specified fixed interest" is relevant in applying paragraphs 94(2)(q) and (r), the definition "specified contributor" in subsection 94(1), the definition "significant interest" in subsection 94.1(1), and the definition "qualifying investor" in subsection 94(1), which in turn is relevant in applying paragraph (b) of the definitions "exempt taxpayer" in subsections 94(1) and 94.1(1), and paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1). These provisions are intended to apply only to commercial investment trusts.

A specified fixed interest at any time of an entity in a trust means an interest of the entity as a beneficiary under the trust, if

- the interest was issued by the trust,

- the interest includes, at that that time, rights of the entity as a beneficiary under the trust to receive, at or after that time and directly from the trust, income and capital of the trust;
- no amount of income or capital of the trust that any entity may receive directly from the trust at any time as a beneficiary under the trust depends on the exercise by any entity of, or the failure by any entity to exercise, a discretionary power — in very general terms, no entity may hold a power to appoint beneficiaries under the trust, and
- the only manner in which any part of the interest may cease to be the entity's is by way of a disposition (determined without regard to paragraphs (i) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1) and 248(8)(c)) of the interest resulting from a transfer (generally determined without reference to the extended transfer rules in section 94), including (under paragraph 94(2)(m)) a deemed transfer upon the redemption of the interest.

For taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005, a trust may elect to have an alternative definition of "specified fixed interest" apply in respect of the trust. Where that election is made, a specified fixed interest at any time of an entity in a trust means a capital interest (as defined in subsection 108(1)) of the entity in the trust, if

- the interest was issued by the trust;
- the interest includes, at that time, a right of the entity as a beneficiary under the trust to receive, at or after that time and directly from the trust, income or capital of the trust;
- no right of the entity as a beneficiary under the trust to income or capital of the trust may cease, other than because of a specified transaction or event, to be a right of the entity; and
- the trust has never been a personal trust.

Related Provisions: 94(2)(q), (r) [proposed] — Effect of acquiring specified fixed interest.

"specified party", in respect of a particular entity at any time, means an entity that is at that time

(a) an individual who is a spouse or common-law partner of the particular entity;

(b) a specified controlled foreign affiliate of

(i) the particular entity, or

(ii) if the particular entity is an individual, a spouse or common-law partner of the individual;

(c) an entity for which it is reasonable to conclude that the benefit referred to in subparagraph (8)(a)(iii) was conferred

(i) in contemplation of the entity becoming after that time a specified controlled foreign affiliate of an entity referred to in subparagraph (b)(i) or (ii), or

(ii) to avoid or minimize a liability under this Part that arose, or that would otherwise have arisen, because of the application of subsection (3) with respect to the particular entity; or

(d) a corporation in which the particular entity is a shareholder, if

(i) the corporation is on or before that time beneficially interested in a trust, and

(ii) the particular entity is a beneficiary under the trust solely because of the application of paragraph (b) of the definition "beneficiary" in this subsection to the particular entity in respect of the corporation.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(8) provides a rule for calculating an entity's recovery limit for the purpose of determining under subsection 94(7) the extent of an entity's limitation on liability arising under a provision referred to in new paragraph 94(3)(d). A "specified party" in respect of a particular entity at any time means an entity that is at that time:

- under paragraph (a) of the definition, an individual who is a spouse or common-law partner of the particular entity;
- under paragraph (b) of the definition, a "specified controlled foreign affiliate" (as described in the commentary immediately above) of the particular entity, or of a spouse or common-law partner of the particular entity;
- under paragraph (c) of the definition, an entity for which it is reasonable to conclude that the benefit referred to in subparagraph 94(8)(a)(iii) (i.e., a benefit received or enjoyed under a trust) was conferred either
  - in contemplation of the entity becoming after that time a "specified controlled foreign affiliate" of an entity referred to in subparagraph (b)(i) or (ii) of the definition, or
  - to avoid or minimize a liability under this Part that arose, or that would otherwise have arisen, because of the application of subsection (3) with respect to the particular entity; or
- under paragraph (d) of the definition, a corporation in which the particular entity is a shareholder, if the corporation is or was beneficially interested in a trust, and the particular entity is a beneficiary under the trust solely because of the application of paragraph (b) of the definition "beneficiary" in subsection 94(1) to the particular entity in respect of the corporation.

"specified property" means

(a) a share of the capital stock of a corporation;

(b) an interest as a beneficiary under a trust;

(c) an interest in a partnership;

(d) an interest in any other entity;

(e) a right (whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretion by any entity) to acquire property described in any of paragraphs (a) to (d); and

(f) any other property deriving its value primarily from property described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e).

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(9) can affect the calculation of the amount of a "contribution" (as defined in new section 94) to a trust of "specified property". For this purpose, "specified property" means:

- a share of the capital stock of a corporation, an interest as a beneficiary under a trust, an interest in a partnership, or an interest in any other entity;
- a right to acquire any of the above (effective for taxation years beginning after November 9, 2006, this definition has been amended to clarify that such right includes a right that is immediate or future, absolute or contingent, conditional or subject to the exercise of any discretion by any entity); or
- any other property deriving its value primarily from property described above.

"specified share" means a share of the capital stock of a corporation other than a share that is prescribed for the purpose of paragraph 110(1)(d).

Technical Notes: A specified share means a share of the capital stock of a corporation other than a share that is prescribed for the purpose of paragraph 110(1)(d). This expression is relevant to the definition "restricted property" in subsection 94(1). For more information, see the commentary on the definition "restricted property".

"specified time", in respect of a trust for a taxation year of the trust, means

(a) if the trust exists at the end of the taxation year, the time that is the end of that taxation year; and

(b) in any other case, the time in that taxation year that is immediately before the time at which the trust ceases to exist.

Technical Notes: A specified time, in respect of a trust for a taxation year of the trust, means

- if the trust exists at the end of the taxation year, the time that is the end of that taxation year; and
- if the trust ceases to exist after October 30, 2003, the time, in that taxation year that is immediately before the time at which the trust ceases to exist.

This expression is relevant in determining whether paragraph 94(3)(a) applies to deem the trust to be resident in Canada, for the taxation year, for a number of purposes. It also applies in respect of subsections 94(7) and (10). For more detail, see the commentary on those provisions.

"successor beneficiary", at any time in respect of a trust, means an entity that is a beneficiary under the trust solely because of a right of the beneficiary to receive any of the trust's income or capital, if under that right the entity may so receive that income or capital only on or after the death after that time of an individual who, at that time, is alive and

(a) is a contributor to the trust;

(b) is related to a contributor to the trust; or

(c) would have been related to a contributor to the trust if every individual who was alive before that time were alive at that time.

Technical Notes: The expression "successor beneficiary" is used in the definition "resident beneficiary" in new subsection 94(1). A resident beneficiary under a trust does not include a successor beneficiary. The interest of a successor beneficiary in a trust that is a foreign investment entity may, in certain circumstances, also be exempt from the application of those rules to the interest — for more detail, see the commentary on the definition "specified interest" in subsection 94.1(1).

A successor beneficiary in respect of a trust at a particular time means an entity that is a beneficiary under the trust solely because of a right of the beneficiary to receive any of the trust's income or capital, if under that right the entity may so receive that income or capital only on or after the death after that time of a specified individual. For this purpose a specified individual is an individual who is, at that time, alive and a contributor to the trust, an individual related to a contributor to the trust, or an individual who would have been related to a contributor to the trust if every individual who was alive before that time were alive at that time.

"trust" includes, for greater certainty, an estate.

Technical Notes: A definition "trust" is provided for the purpose of applying section 94. The definition clarifies that a reference to a trust in that section includes an estate.

Related Provisions: 108(1) — Definition of "testamentary trust".

(2) Rules of application — In this section,

(a) an entity is deemed to have transferred, at any time, a property to a trust if

(i) at that time it transfers or loans property (other than by way of an arm's length transfer or a transfer or loan to which paragraph (c) applies) to another entity, and

(ii) because of that transfer or loan

(A) the fair market value of one or more properties held by the trust increases at that time, or

(B) a liability or potential liability of the trust decreases at that time;

(b) the fair market value at any time of a property deemed by paragraph (a) to be transferred at that time is deemed to be the amount of the absolute value of the increase or decrease, as the case may be, referred to in subparagraph (a)(ii) in respect of the property;

(c) an entity is deemed to have transferred, at any time, a property to a trust if

(i) at that time it transfers or loans property (other than by way of an arm's length transfer) to another entity, and

(ii) at or after that time, the trust holds property the fair market value of which is derived in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, from property held by the other entity;

(d) the fair market value at any time of a property deemed by paragraph (c) to be transferred at that time is deemed to be the fair market value of the property referred to in subparagraph (c)(i);

(e) if, at any time, a particular entity has given a guarantee on behalf of, or has provided any other financial assistance to, another entity,

(i) the particular entity is deemed to have transferred, at that time, property to that other entity, and

(ii) the property, if any, transferred to the particular entity from the other entity in exchange for the guarantee or other financial assistance is deemed to have been transferred to the particular entity in exchange for the property deemed by subparagraph (i) to have been transferred;

(f) if, at any time after June 22, 2000, a particular entity renders any service (other than an exempt service) to, for or on behalf of, another entity,

(i) the particular entity is deemed to have transferred, at that time, property to that other entity, and

(ii) the property, if any, transferred to the particular entity from the other entity in exchange for the service is deemed to have been transferred to the particular entity in exchange for the property deemed by subparagraph (i) to have been transferred;

(g) each of the following acquisitions of property by a particular entity is deemed to be a transfer of the property, at the time of the acquisition of the property, to the particular entity from the entity from which the property was acquired, namely the acquisition by the particular entity of

(i) a share of the capital stock of a corporation from the corporation,

(ii) an interest as a beneficiary under a trust (otherwise than from a beneficiary under the trust),

(iii) an interest in a partnership (otherwise than from a member of the partnership),

(iv) an interest in an entity that is not a corporation, partnership or trust (otherwise than from an entity having an interest in the entity),

(v) a debt owing by an entity from the entity, and

(vi) a right (granted after June 22, 2000 by the entity from which the right was acquired) to acquire or to be loaned property;

(h) the fair market value at any time of a property deemed by subparagraph (e)(i) or (f)(i) to have been transferred at that time is deemed to be the fair market value, at that time, of the assistance or service, as the case may be, to which the property relates;

(i) a particular entity that at any time becomes obligated to do an act that would, if done, constitute the transfer or loan of a property to another entity is deemed to have become obligated at that time to transfer or loan, as the case may be, property to that other entity;

(j) in applying at any time the definition "non-resident time", if a trust acquires property of an individual as a consequence of the death of the individual, the individual is deemed to have transferred the property to the trust immediately before the individual's death;

(k) a transfer or loan of property at any time is deemed to be made at that time jointly by a particular entity and a second entity (referred to in this paragraph as the "specified entity") if

(i) the particular entity transfers or loans property at that time to another entity,

(ii) the transfer or loan is made at the direction, or with the acquiescence, of the specified entity, and

(iii) it is reasonable to conclude that one of the reasons the transfer or loan is made is to avoid or minimize the liability, of any entity, under this Part that arose, or that would otherwise have arisen, because of the application of subsection (3);

(k.1) a transfer or loan of property made at any time on or after November 9, 2006 is deemed to be made at that time jointly by a particular entity and a second entity (referred to in this paragraph as the "specified entity") if

(i) the particular entity transfers or loans property at that time to another entity, and

(ii) a purpose or effect of the transfer or loan may reasonably be considered to be to provide benefits in respect of services rendered by a person as an employee of the specified entity (whether the provision of the benefits is pursuant to a right that is immediate or future, absolute or contingent, or conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretion by any entity);

(l) a transfer or loan of property at any time is deemed to be made at that time jointly by a particular entity and a second entity (referred to in this paragraph as the "specified entity") if

(i) the particular entity transfers or loans property at that time to another entity,

(ii) the transfer or loan is made at the direction, or with the acquiescence, of the specified entity,

(iii) that time is not, or would not be, if the transfer or loan were a contribution of the specified entity, a non-resident time of the specified entity, and

(iv) either

(A) the particular entity is, at that time, an entity that is a controlled foreign affiliate of the specified entity, or would at that time be a controlled foreign affiliate of the specified entity if the specified entity were at that time resident in Canada, or

(B) it is reasonable to conclude that the transfer or loan was made in contemplation of the particular entity becoming after that time a particular entity described in clause (A);

(m) a particular entity is deemed to have transferred, at a particular time, a particular property or particular part of it, as the case may be, to a corporation described in subparagraph (i) or a second entity described in subparagraph (ii) if

(i) the particular property is a share of the capital stock of a corporation held at the particular time by the particular entity, and as consideration for the disposition at or before the particular time of the share, the particular entity received at the particular time (or became entitled at the particular time to receive) from the corporation a share of the capital stock of the corporation, or

(ii) the particular property (or property for which the particular property is substituted property) was acquired, before the particular time, from the second entity by any entity, in circumstances that are described by any of subparagraphs (g)(i) to (vi) (or would be so described if it applied at the time of that acquisition) and at the particular time,

(A) the terms or conditions of the particular property change,

(B) the second entity redeems, acquires or cancels the particular property or the particular part of it,

(C) where the particular property is a debt owing by the second entity, the debt or the particular part of it is settled or cancelled, or

(D) where the particular property is a right to acquire or to be loaned property, the particular entity exercises the right;

(n) a contribution made at any time by a particular trust to another trust is deemed to have been made at that time jointly by the particular trust and by each entity that is at that time a contributor to the particular trust;

(o) a contribution made at any time by a particular partnership to a trust is deemed to have been made at that time jointly by the particular partnership and by each entity that is at that time a member of the particular partnership (other than a member of the particular partnership where the liability of the member as a member of the particular partnership is limited by operation of any law governing the partnership arrangement);

(p) subject to paragraph (q) and subsection (9), the amount of a contribution to a trust at the time it was made is deemed to be the fair market value, at that time, of the property that was the subject of the contribution;

(q) an entity that at any time acquires a specified fixed interest in a trust (or a right, issued by the trust, to acquire a specified fixed interest in the trust) from another entity (other than the trust that issued the specified fixed interest or the right) is deemed to have made at that time a contribution to the trust and the amount of the contribution is deemed to be equal to the fair market value at that time of the specified fixed interest or right, as the case may be;

(r) a particular entity that has acquired a specified fixed interest in a trust as a consequence of making a contribution to the trust — or that has made a contribution to the trust as a consequence of having acquired a specified fixed interest in the trust or a right described in paragraph (q) — is, for the purpose of applying this section at any time after the time that the particular entity transfers the specified fixed interest or the right, as the case may be, to another entity (which transfer is referred to in this paragraph as the "sale"), deemed not to have made the contribution in respect of the specified fixed interest, or right, that is the subject of the sale where

(i) immediately before the sale, the particular entity would be a specified contributor to the trust if

(A) the definition "specified contributor" were read without reference to subparagraph (d)(i) of that definition,

(B) in applying paragraph (b) of that definition, a specified fixed interest included the right, and

(C) that definition applied immediately before the sale,

(ii) in exchange for the sale, the other entity transfers or loans, or becomes obligated to transfer or loan, property (which property is referred to in subparagraph (iii) as the "consideration") to the particular entity, and

(iii) it is reasonable to conclude

(A) having regard only to the sale and the consideration that the particular entity would be willing to make the sale if the particular entity were dealing at arm's length with the other entity, and

(B) that the terms and conditions made or imposed in respect of the exchange would be acceptable to the particular entity if the particular entity were dealing at arm's length with the other entity;

(s) a transfer to a trust by a particular entity is deemed not to be, at a particular time, a contribution to the trust if

(i) the particular entity has transferred, at or before the particular time and in the ordinary course of business of the particular entity, property to the trust,

(ii) the transfer is not an arm's length transfer, but would be an arm's length transfer if the definition "arm's length transfer" were read without reference to paragraph (a), and subparagraphs (b)(i) to (iii) and (v) to (viii), of that definition,

(iii) it is reasonable to conclude that the particular entity was the only entity that acquired, in respect of the transfer, an interest as a beneficiary under the trust,

(iv) the particular entity was required, under the securities law of a country or of a political subdivision of the country in respect of the issuance by the trust of interests as a beneficiary under the trust, to acquire an interest because of the particular entity's status at the time of the transfer as a manager or promoter of the trust,

(v) at the particular time the trust is not an exempt foreign trust, but would be at that time an exempt foreign trust if it had not made an election under paragraph (g) of the definition "eligible trust", and

(vi) the particular time is before the earliest of

(A) the first time at which the trust becomes an exempt foreign trust,

(B) the first time at which the particular entity ceases to be a manager or promoter of the trust, and

(C) the time that is 24 months after the first time at which the total fair market value of consideration received by the trust in exchange for interests as a beneficiary (other than the particular entity's interest referred to in subparagraph (iii)) under the trust is greater than $500,000;

(t) a transfer, by a Canadian corporation of particular property, that is at a particular time a contribution by the Canadian corporation to a trust, is deemed not to be, after the particular time, a contribution by the Canadian corporation to the trust if

(i) either

(A) the trust acquired the particular property before the particular time from the Canadian corporation in circumstances described in subparagraph (g)(i) or (v), or

(B) another entity acquired property before the particular time from the Canadian corporation in circumstances described in subparagraph (g)(i) or (v) and because of that acquisition the Canadian corporation was deemed by paragraph (c) to have transferred the particular property to the trust,

(ii) as a result of a transfer (which transfer is referred to in this paragraph as the "sale") at the particular time by any entity (referred to in this paragraph as the "seller") to another entity (referred to in this paragraph as the "buyer") the trust

(A) no longer holds any property that is shares of the capital stock of, or debt issued by, the Canadian corporation, and

(B) no longer holds any property that is property the fair market value of which is derived in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, from shares of the capital stock of, or debt issued by, the Canadian corporation,

(iii) the buyer deals at arm's length immediately before the particular time with the Canadian corporation, the trust and the seller,

(iv) in exchange for the sale, the buyer transfers or becomes obligated to transfer property (which property is referred to in this paragraph as the "consideration"), to the seller, and

(v) it is reasonable to conclude

(A) having regard only to the sale and the consideration that the seller would be willing to make the sale if the seller were dealing at arm's length with the buyer,

(B) that the terms and conditions made or imposed in respect of the exchange would be acceptable to the seller if the seller were dealing at arm's length with the buyer, and

(C) that the value of the consideration is not, at or after the particular time, determined in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, by reference to shares of the capital stock of, or debt issued by, the Canadian corporation; and

(u) a transfer, before October 11, 2002, to a personal trust by an individual (other than a trust) of particular property is deemed not to be a contribution of the particular property by the individual to the trust if

(i) the individual identifies the trust in prescribed form filed with the Minister on or before the individual's filing-due date for the individual's 2003 taxation year (or a later date that is acceptable to the Minister), and

(ii) the Minister is satisfied that

(A) the individual (and any entity not dealing at any time at arm's length with the individual) has never loaned or transferred, directly or indirectly, restricted property to the trust,

(B) in respect of each contribution (determined without reference to this paragraph) made before October 11, 2002 by the individual to the trust, none of the reasons (determined by reference to all the circumstances including the terms of the trust, an intention, the laws of a country or the existence of an agreement, a memorandum, a letter of wishes or any other arrangement) for the contribution was to permit or facilitate, directly or indirectly, the conferral at any time of a benefit (for greater certainty, including an interest as a beneficiary under the trust) on

(I) the individual,

(II) a descendant of the individual, or

(III) any entity with whom the individual or descendant does not, at any time, deal at arm's length, and

(C) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a contribution (determined without reference to this paragraph) made before October 11, 2002 by the individual to the trust does not exceed the greater of

(I) 1% of the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a contribution (determined without reference to this paragraph) made to the trust before October 11, 2002, and

(II) $500.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(2) sets out a number of rules for use in applying section 94. These rules are primarily relevant for the purposes of determining whether a transaction constitutes a "contribution" of property to a trust. These rules are also relevant for the purposes of subsections 94(7) to (9) and the amended reporting rules in subsections 162(10.1) and 163(2.4) and section 233.2.

Paragraphs 94(2)(a) to (m) include rules that deem certain loans or transfers, the granting of options and the provision of services to be transfers of property to an entity. A deemed transfer will be considered to be a contribution to a trust if the transfer falls within the criteria of the definition "contribution" in subsection 94(1) or the deemed contribution rules. In this regard, it should be noted that a transfer or loan, unless it is deemed to be a contribution under a provision of section 94, will not be considered a contribution if it is an "arm's length transfer" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)). In addition, paragraphs 94(2)(r) to (u), may apply to deem certain transfers not to be contributions.

The rules in subsection 94(2) generally apply to taxation years of trusts that begin after 2006, but in some cases relief is provided with regard to transactions or events that occur before June 23, 2000 or October 11, 2002. In addition, trusts created in 2001, created in 2002, created in 2003, created in 2004, created in 2005 or created in 2006 may elect in writing (by filing the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the trust's filing-due date for the trust's taxation year in which the amending legislation is assented to) to have new section 94 apply to its taxation years that begin in 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006, as the case may be.

Deemed Transfers

Paragraph 94(2)(a) generally applies to indirect loans or transfers of property to a trust through transfers to other entities. Paragraph (a) deems a transfer of property (other than an "arm's length transfer", as defined in new subsection 94(1) or a transfer to which paragraph 94(2)(c) applies) to be a direct transfer to a trust if the property is transferred from one entity to another and, as a result of the transfer, the fair market value of the property of the trust increases or the liabilities of the trust decrease. Where paragraph (a) applies, paragraph 94(2)(b) deems the fair market value of property deemed transferred under paragraph 94(2)(a) to be the total of all amounts each of which is the absolute value of an increase in the fair market value of the trust property or a decrease in the liabilities of the trust because of the transfer.

Paragraph 94(2)(c) also applies to indirect loans or transfers of property to a trust. Paragraph (c) deems a transfer or loan of property (other than an "arm's length transfer") from an entity to another entity to be a direct transfer to a trust where the trust holds property the fair market value of which is derived from property held by the other entity. Paragraph 94(2)(d) deems the fair market value of property deemed transferred under paragraph 94(2)(c) to be the fair market value of the property referred to in subparagraph (2)(c)(i).

Paragraph 94(2)(e) deems a particular entity that provides a guarantee or other financial assistance to another entity to have transferred property to that other entity. Any property given to the particular entity by the other entity in exchange for the guarantee or other financial assistance is deemed to have been transferred to the particular entity in exchange for the property deemed by subparagraph (e)(i) to have been transferred. Under subparagraph 94(2)(h), the fair market value of the property deemed by subparagraph (e)(i) to have been transferred is deemed to be the fair market value of the assistance.

Paragraph 94(2)(f) applies where any service (other than an exempt service, as defined in subsection 94(1)) is rendered after June 22, 2000 by an entity to, for or on behalf of another entity. In these circumstances, the entity rendering the service is deemed to have transferred property to the other entity. Any property given to the particular entity by the other entity in exchange for the service is deemed to have been transferred to the particular entity in exchange for the property deemed by subparagraph (f)(i) to have been transferred. For more information on the definition "exempt service", see the commentary on that definition.

Under paragraph 94(2)(h), the fair market value of the property deemed under subparagraph 94(2)(f)(i) to have been transferred is deemed to be equal to the fair market value of the services rendered.

For greater certainty, paragraph 94(2)(g) provides that a corporation is considered to transfer shares that it issues. Similar rules, also contained in paragraph 94(2)(g), apply to interests in a trust acquired otherwise than from a beneficiary under the trust, interests in a partnership acquired otherwise than from a member of the partnership, or interests in an other entity acquired otherwise than from an entity having an interest in the other entity, as well as to debt issued to an entity by another entity and a right (granted after June 22, 2000 by the entity from which the right was acquired) to acquire or to be loaned property.

As noted above, paragraph 94(2)(h) is relevant to determining the fair market value of property deemed under subparagraphs 94(2)(e)(i) and (f)(i) to have been transferred.

Paragraph 94(2)(i) deems an entity to have become obligated at a particular time to transfer property to another entity where the entity becomes obligated to do an act (e.g., the rendering of a service) that would constitute the transfer of a property to another entity if the act were to occur. This rule is generally relevant for the purposes of paragraph (c) of the definition "contribution" in subsection 94(1).

Paragraph 94(2)(j) applies, for the purpose of applying at any time the definition "non-resident time" in subsection (1), if a trust acquires property of an individual as a consequence of the death of the individual. In these circumstances, paragraph 94(2)(j) deems the individual to have transferred the property to the trust immediately before the individual's death.

Paragraph 94(2)(k) applies where a particular entity loans or transfers property to another entity at the direction of or with the acquiescence of a second entity (the "specified entity"). In these circumstances, if it is reasonable to conclude that one of the reasons for the transfer is to avoid or minimize a liability of any entity under Part I of the Act that arose, or that would otherwise have arisen, because of the application of subsection (3), the transfer is deemed to be a transfer made jointly by the particular entity and the specified entity.

Paragraph 94(2)(k.1) applies where a particular entity loans or transfers property, at any time after November 9, 2006, to another entity at the direction of or with the acquiescence of a second entity (the "specified entity"). In these circumstances, if it is reasonable to conclude that one of the reasons for the loan or transfer is to provide benefits in respect of services rendered by a person as an employee of the specified entity, the transfer is deemed to be a transfer made jointly by the particular entity and the specified entity.

Paragraph 94(2)(l) also applies where a particular entity loans or transfers property to another entity at the direction of or with the acquiescence of a specified entity. In these circumstances, the transfer is deemed to be a transfer made jointly by the particular entity and the specified entity if

- the transfer is made at a time that is not, or would not be, if the transfer or loan were a contribution of the specified entity, a "non-resident time" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) of the specified entity, and
- either
  - the particular entity is at the time of the transfer a controlled foreign affiliate of the specified entity (or would be a controlled foreign affiliate of the specified entity if the specified entity were resident in Canada), or
  - it is reasonable to conclude that the transfer was made in contemplation of the particular entity becoming after the time of the transfer a controlled foreign affiliate of the specified entity (or a controlled foreign affiliate of the specified entity if the specified entity were resident in Canada).

The expression "controlled foreign affiliate" is defined in subsection 248(1) as having the meaning given in subsection 95(1).

Paragraph 94(2)(m) deems a particular entity to have transferred, at a particular time, a particular property or particular part of it, as the case may be, to a corporation or a second entity (described below) if

- the particular property is a share of the capital stock of a corporation held at the particular time by the particular entity, and as consideration for the disposition at or before the particular time of the share, the particular entity received at the particular time (or became entitled at the particular time to receive) from the corporation a share of the capital stock of the corporation, or
- the particular property (or property for which the particular property is substituted property) was acquired, before the particular time, from the second entity by any entity, in circumstances that are described by any of subparagraphs 94(g)(i) to (vi) (generally, the issuance by the second entity of a financial instrument) and at the particular time,
  - the terms or conditions of the particular property change,
  - the second entity redeems, acquires or cancels the particular property or the particular part of it,
  - where the particular property is a debt owing by the second entity, the debt or the particular part of it is settled or cancelled, or
  - where the particular property is a right to acquire or to be loaned property, the particular entity exercises the right.

Deemed Contributions

Paragraph 94(2)(n) applies where a particular trust makes a contribution to another trust. If this is the case, the contribution is deemed to have been made jointly by the particular trust and each other entity that is a contributor to the particular trust.

Paragraph 94(2)(o) applies where a partnership makes a contribution to a trust. Where this is the case, the contribution is deemed to have been made jointly by the partnership and by each entity that is a partnership member (other than a limited partner) at the time of the contribution. However, if a partnership has contributed to a trust, a limited partner of the partnership may also be considered to have made a contribution to the trust in respect of a transfer or loan made by the limited partner or another entity if any of the rules in subsection 94(2) so provide.

Paragraph 94(2)(p) provides, subject to paragraph 94(2)(q) and subsection 94(9), that the amount of a contribution to a trust at the time it was made is deemed to be the fair market value at that time of the property that was the subject of the contribution. The rule is useful for the purposes of new paragraph 94(2)(u), subsections 94(7) and (8), as well as the reporting penalty provisions in amended subsections 162(10.1) and 163(2.4). The rule is relevant because a contribution is defined by reference to a loan or transfer, rather than by reference to the property that was the subject of the transfer or loan.

Paragraphs 94(2)(q) and (r) apply to dealings in a "specified fixed interest" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) in a trust and in a right, issued by the trust, to acquire such an interest. The rules for specified fixed interests apply in respect of commercial investment trusts. For more detail, see the commentary on the definitions "specified fixed interest" and "specified contributor" in subsection 94(1) and on paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1).

Paragraph 94(2)(q) deems an entity, that at any time acquires a specified fixed interest in a trust (or a right, issued by the trust, to acquire such an interest) from another entity (other than the trust), to have made a contribution to the trust at that time. The amount of the contribution is deemed to be the fair market value at that time of the specified fixed interest.

Transfers deemed not to be contributions

Paragraph 94(2)(r) generally applies where a particular entity has made a contribution (e.g., because of paragraph 94(2)(q)) to a trust because of acquiring a specified fixed interest in the trust or a right to acquire such an interest, or has acquired a specified fixed interest in a trust as a consequence of making a contribution to the trust, and at a later time the interest or right, as the case may be, is transferred, for arm's length consideration, to another entity (i.e., upon a sale of the interest or right, of if the other entity is the trust that issued the interest or right, upon a redemption of the interest or right). In these circumstances, the particular entity is deemed, for the purpose of applying section 94 at any time after the later time, not to have made the contribution in respect of the specified fixed interest, or right, that is the subject of the sale if immediately before the later time (i.e., the time of the sale or redemption) the particular entity is specified contributor to the trust.

Paragraph 94(2)(s), in very general terms, provides that a transfer of property to a trust by a particular entity that is a manager or promoter of the trust, in exchange for an interest as a beneficiary under the trust, will not be considered a contribution of the particular entity to the trust while the beneficial interest is acquired and held by the particular entity because of a requirement imposed under securities laws. Paragraph 94(2)(s) will be relevant in the relatively rare circumstance that a commercial investment trust cannot rely on the exemption for exempt foreign trusts in order to avoid the application of subsection 94(3). Paragraph 94(2)(s) will apply in determining under that subsection whether the trust has a resident contributor or connected contributor (i.e., and hence, a resident beneficiary).

More specifically, under paragraph 94(2)(s), a transfer to a trust by a particular entity is deemed not to be, at a particular time, a contribution to the trust if

- the particular entity has transferred, at or before the particular time and in the ordinary course of business of the particular entity, property to the trust,
- the transfer is not an arm's length transfer, but would be an arm's length transfer if the definition "arm's length transfer" in subsection 94(1) were read without reference to paragraph (a), and subparagraphs (b)(i) to (iii) and (v) to (viii), of that definition,
- it is reasonable to conclude that the particular entity was the only entity that acquired, in respect of the transfer, an interest as a beneficiary under the trust,
- the particular entity was required, under the securities law of a country or of a political subdivision of the country in respect of the issuance of beneficial interests by the trust, to acquire the interest because of the particular entity's status at the time of the transfer as a manager or promoter (as defined in subsection 94(1)) of the trust,
- at the particular time the trust is not an exempt foreign trust, but would be at that time an exempt foreign trust if it had not made an election under paragraph (g) of the definition "eligible trust", and
- the particular time is before the earliest of
  - the first time at which the trust becomes an exempt foreign trust,
  - the first time at which the particular entity ceases to be a manager or promoter of the trust, and

- the time that is 24 months after the first time at which the total fair market value of consideration received by the trust in exchange for beneficial interests (other than the particular entity's interest referred to in subparagraph 94(2)(s)(iii)) in the trust is greater than $500,000.

Paragraph 94(2)(t) generally expunges a contribution of shares or indebtedness of a Canadian corporation from the corporation to a trust if the corporation issued (in circumstances described in subparagraph 94(2)(g)(i) or (v)) the shares or the debt to the trust (or to another entity in circumstances that resulted in the Canadian corporation being deemed by paragraph 94(2)(c) to have transferred particular property to the trust) and the trust or the other entity later sells the shares or indebtedness in circumstances in which the parties to the sale deal with each other on an arm's length basis.

However, the application of 94(2)(t) will not effect the application of 94(2)(c) or (g) in respect of the original transfer by the corporation to the trust or the other entity: such transfers will continue to be treated as transfers under section 94. In addition, the application of 94(2)(t) will not expunge the status as a contribution to the trust of a transfer made by an entity and involving the corporation (e.g., an entity that transferred property to the corporation, and hence the trust, because of the application of paragraph 94(2)(c) and (m)).

More specifically, under paragraph 94(2)(t) a transfer, by a Canadian corporation of particular property (i.e., a share or debt), that is at a particular time a contribution by the Canadian corporation to a trust, is deemed not to be, after the particular time, a contribution by the Canadian corporation to the trust if

- either the trust acquired the particular property before the particular time from the Canadian corporation in circumstances described in subparagraph 94(2)(g)(i) or (v), or another entity acquired property before the particular time from the Canadian corporation in circumstances described in subparagraph 94(2)(g)(i) or (v) and because of that acquisition the Canadian corporation was deemed by paragraph 94(2)(c) to have transferred the particular property to the trust;
- as a result of a transfer (i.e., a sale of, or a redemption by the Canadian corporation of, the issued shares or debt) at the particular time by any entity (referred to in the paragraph as the "seller") to another entity (referred to in the paragraph as the "buyer") the trust ceases to hold all of its property that is shares of the capital stock of, or debt issued by, the Canadian corporation or the trust ceases to hold property that is property the fair market value of which is derived in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, from shares of the capital stock of, or debt issued by, the Canadian corporation;
- the purchaser deals at arm's length immediately before the particular time with the Canadian corporation, the trust and the seller;
- in exchange for the sale, the purchaser transfers or becomes obligated to transfer property (which property is referred to in the paragraph as the "consideration"), to the seller; and
- it is reasonable to conclude
  - having regard only to the sale and the consideration that the seller would have been willing to make the sale if the seller dealt at arm's length with the buyer,
  - that the terms and conditions made or imposed in respect of the exchange are terms and conditions that would have been acceptable to the seller if the seller dealt at arm's length with the buyer, and
  - that the value of the consideration is not, at or after the particular time, determined in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, by reference to shares of the capital stock of, or debt issued by, the Canadian corporation.

Paragraph 94(2)(u) applies to a transfer, before October 11, 2002, to a personal trust by an individual (other than a trust) of particular property. Where the conditions in subparagraphs 94(2)(u)(i) and (ii) are met, the transfer of the particular property is deemed not to be a contribution of the particular property by the individual to the trust. Paragraph 94(2)(u) is intended to provide relief to individuals that have transferred a relatively small amount of property to a trust (e.g., the initial settlement of a coin on the trust) where the individual can reasonably be considered not to have been involved with the use of the trust as part of what is commonly referred to as an estate freeze (i.e., see the condition in clause 94(2)(u)(ii)(A) that the trust never have acquired from the individual restricted property).

The conditions in subparagraphs 94(2)(u)(i) and (ii) are that

- the individual identifies the trust in prescribed form filed with the Minister on or before the individual's filing-due date for the individual's 2003 taxation year (or a later date that is acceptable to the Minister), and
- the Minister is satisfied that
  - the individual (and any entity not dealing at any time at arm's length with the individual) has never loaned or transferred, directly or indirectly, restricted property to the trust,
  - in respect of each contribution (determined without reference to paragraph 94(2)(u)) made before October 11, 2002 by the individual to the trust, none of the reasons (determined by reference to all the circumstances including the terms of the trust, an intention, the laws of a country or the existence of an agreement, a memorandum, a letter of wishes or any other arrangement) for the contribution was to permit or facilitate, directly or indirectly, the conferral at any time of a benefit (for greater certainty, including an interest as a beneficiary under the trust) on
    - (I) the individual,
    - (II) a descendant of the individual, or
    - (III) any entity with whom the individual or descendant does not, at any time, deal at arm's length, and
  - the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a contribution (determined without reference to paragraph 94(2)(u)) made before October 11, 2002 by the individual to the trust does not exceed the greater of
    - (I) 1% of the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a contribution (determined without reference to paragraph 94(2)(u)) made to the trust before October 11, 2002, and
    - (II) $500.

The examples below illustrate the operation of subsection 94(2) and the definition "contribution" in subsection 94(1).

Example 1

Donald is a long-term resident of Canada. In 2007, Donald pays higher than fair market value consideration for a property acquired from a corporation. A non-resident trust holds shares in the corporation. The fair market value of those shares increases because of the transaction.

Results

1. Under paragraph 94(2)(a), Donald is considered to have transferred property to the trust in these circumstances. The exception for arm's length transfers does not apply.

2. As a consequence, Donald is considered to have made a contribution to the trust, which results in Donald being a contributor and a resident contributor to the trust.

Example 2

1. Lucie, a long-term resident of Canada, transfers property to Canco on condition that Canco direct Canco's wholly-owned foreign subsidiary (Foreignco-1) to transfer properties to another corporation (Foreignco-2) for consideration that is less than fair market value.

2. Shares of the capital stock of Foreignco-2 are held by a non-resident trust.

3. The fair market value of the Foreignco-2 shares increases as a result of the increase in the fair market value of the property owned by Foreignco-2.

Results

1. The transfers to Canco and to Foreignco-2 are part of the same series of transactions.

2. Because of paragraph 94(2)(a), the transfer to Foreignco-2 is considered to be a transfer by Foreignco-1 to the trust. Because of paragraph 94(2)(l), the transfer by Foreignco-1 to the trust is considered to be jointly made by Foreignco-1 and Canco. (This would also be the result under paragraph 94(2)(k), if it was intended to avoid or minimize a liability under Part I.) The exception for arm's length transfers does not apply.

3. Canco is considered to have made a contribution to the non-resident trust because of paragraph (a) of the definition "contribution" in new subsection 94(1). Lucie is considered to have made a contribution to the trust under paragraph (b) of that definition. Both Lucie and Canco are therefore contributors and resident contributors to the trust.

4. Foreignco-1 is also a "contributor" to the trust, but is not a "resident contributor" as long as it does not become resident in Canada.

Related Provisions: 51(1)(c) — Exchange of convertible property is disposition for purposes of 94(2)(m); 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamation — continuing corporation; 94(1)"arm's length transfer"(b) — Certain transfers under 94(2)(g) excluded; 94(9) — Determination of contribution amount for 94(2)(u)(ii)(C).

(3) Liabilities of non-resident trusts and others — Where at a specified time in a particular taxation year of a trust (other than a trust that is, at that time, an exempt foreign trust) the trust is non-resident (determined without reference to this subsection) and, at that time, there is a resident contributor to the trust or a resident beneficiary under the trust,

(a) the trust is deemed to be resident in Canada throughout the particular taxation year for the purposes of

(i) section 2,

(ii) computing the trust's income for the particular taxation year,

(iii) applying subsections 104(13.1) to (29) and 107(2.1), in respect of the trust and a beneficiary under the trust,

(iv) applying clause 53(2)(h)(i.1)(B), the definition "non-resident entity" in subsection 94.1(1), subsection

107(2.002) and section 115, in respect of a beneficiary under the trust,

(v) subsection 111(9),

(vi) determining an obligation of the trust to file a return under section 233.3 or 233.4,

(vii) determining the rights and obligations of the trust under Divisions I and J,

(viii) determining the liability of the trust for tax under Part I, and under Part XIII on amounts paid or credited (in this paragraph having the meaning assigned by Part XIII) to the trust,

(ix) applying Part XIII in respect of an amount (other than an exempt amount) paid or credited by the trust to any person, and

(x) determining whether a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer (other than the trust) is a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer;

(b) in applying subsections 20(11) and (12) and section 126,

(i) in determining the non-business income tax (as defined by subsection 126(7)) paid by the trust for the particular taxation year to the government of a country other than Canada no amount shall be included to the extent that it can reasonably be regarded as attributable to income from a source in Canada, and

(ii) if the trust elects, by notifying the Minister in writing in its return of income for the particular taxation year, to have this paragraph apply,

(A) the trust's income for the particular taxation year (other than the portion of the income that is from sources inside Canada or that is from a source, outside Canada, that is a business carried on by the trust outside Canada) is deemed

(I) to be from sources (other than a business carried on by the trust) in the particular country (other than Canada) in which the trust is resident (determined without reference to this subsection), and

(II) not to be from any other source, and

(B) in determining the income or profits tax paid by the trust for the particular taxation year to the government of the particular country there shall be included only the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of an income or profits tax that was paid by the trust for the particular taxation year to the government of a country (other than Canada) and that can reasonably be regarded as a tax paid on the trust's income for the particular taxation year (other than the portion of the income that is from sources inside Canada or that is from a source, outside Canada, that is a business carried on by the trust outside Canada);

(c) if the trust was non-resident throughout its taxation year (referred to in this paragraph as the "preceding year") immediately preceding the particular taxation year, the trust is deemed to have

(i) immediately before the end of the preceding year, disposed of each property (other than property described in any of subparagraphs 128.1(1)(b)(i) to (iv)) held by the trust at that time for proceeds of disposition equal to its fair market value at that time, and

(ii) at the beginning of the particular taxation year, acquired each of those properties so disposed of at a cost equal to its proceeds of disposition;

(d) each entity that at any time in the particular taxation year is a resident contributor to the trust or a resident beneficiary under the trust

(i) has jointly and severally, or solidarily, with the trust and with each other such entity, the rights and obligations of the trust in respect of the particular taxation year under Divisions I and J, and

(ii) is subject to Part XV in respect of those rights and obligations; and

(e) each entity that at any time in the particular taxation year is a beneficiary under the trust and was a person from whom an amount would be recoverable at the end of 2006 (or, where this subsection applies to a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, at the end of the last taxation year of the trust that begins before the first such taxation year of the trust) under subsection (2) (as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007 or, where this subsection applies to a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, as it read in its application to taxation years of the trust that began before the first such taxation year) in respect of the trust if the entity had received before 2007 amounts described under paragraph (2)(a) or (b) in respect of the trust (as those paragraphs read in their application to taxation years that began before 2007 or, where this subsection applies to a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, as those paragraphs read in their application to taxation years of the trust that began before the first such taxation year)

(i) has, to the extent of the entity's recovery limit for the year, jointly and severally, or solidarily, with the trust and with each other such entity, the rights and obligations of the trust in respect of the taxation years, of the trust, that began before 2007 (or, where this subsection applies to a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, in respect of the taxation years, of the trust, that began before the first such taxation year) under Divisions I and J, and

(ii) is, to the extent of the entity's recovery limit for the year, subject to Part XV in respect of those rights and obligations.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(3) applies to a non-resident trust (other than an "exempt foreign trust", as defined in subsection 94(1)) for a taxation year where, at a "specified time" in respect of the trust for the taxation year (generally, the end of the taxation year), there is a "resident contributor" to the trust or a "resident beneficiary" under the trust. All of these defined expressions are explained in detail in the commentary on new subsection 94(1).

Where subsection 94(3) applies to a non-resident trust for a taxation year, the trust is deemed to be resident in Canada throughout the year for the purposes specified in paragraph 94(3)(a). Except to the extent otherwise provided by subsection 94(4), a trust is deemed to be resident in Canada for a taxation year under subsection 94(3):

- for the purposes of applying section 2, in computing the trust's income for the year and computing the trust's liability for tax under Part I — with the result that the trust is subject to tax under that Part on its world-wide income for the year (including, for example, its income determined as a result of deemed dispositions under subsections 104(4) to (5.2) or 128.1(4) and, for example, in determining whether a foreign affiliate of the trust is its controlled foreign affiliate and whether it has FAPI);

- for the purpose of subsection 111(9), with the result that in determining the trust's losses for the taxation year, subsection 111(9) will not apply in computing its taxable income for the year;

- for the purpose of applying clause 53(2)(h)(i.1)(B) — with the result that the adjusted cost base to a beneficiary of the beneficiary's interest in a trust to which this clause applies is computed in the same way as for interests in trusts resident in Canada;

- for the purpose of applying the definition "non-resident entity" in subsection 94.1(1) — with the result that a beneficiary's interest in the trust is not treated as an interest of a beneficiary in a foreign investment entity for the purposes of new sections 94.1 to 94.4;

- for the purposes of applying subsections 104(13.1) to (29), and 107(2.1) and (2.002) and section 115 — with the result that the tax treatment of beneficiaries under the trust generally accords with the tax treatment available to beneficiaries under trusts that are resident in Canada;

- for the purposes of determining the obligation of the trust to file a return under sections 233.3 and 233.4 — with the result that the trust is required to file information returns under sections 233.3 (information return on foreign property holdings the total cost of which exceeds $100,000) and 233.4 (information return on foreign affiliates);

- for the purpose of determining the liability of the trust for tax under Part XIII — with the result that the trust is exempt from Part XIII tax on amounts paid or credited to it (for more detail, see the commentary to subsection 94(4));
- for the purpose of applying Part XIII in respect of an amount (other than an exempt amount) paid or credited by the trust to any person;
- for the purpose of determining after July 18, 2005 whether a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer (other than the trust) is a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer; and
- for the purpose of determining the rights and obligations of the trust under sections 150 to 180 — with the result that various administrative provisions in the Act apply in the same way as to other trusts resident in Canada. (These provisions include those with regard to the filing of returns, assessments, tax payments, arrears interest, refund interest, instalment interest, penalties, refunds and appeals.)

A trust to which subsection 94(3) applies is deemed to be resident in Canada throughout the year for the above purposes, including the computation of its income and its taxable income and section 2. Section 2 imposes on every person resident in Canada at any time in a taxation year an obligation to pay an income tax on that person's taxable income for the year.

Under paragraph 1 of the resident article in Canada's income tax treaties, a reference in such a treaty to a "resident of a Contracting State" means any person who, under the law of that State, is liable to taxation in that State by reason of the person's domicile, residence, place of management or any other criterion of a similar nature. A person, in this context, would generally include a trust because of the definition "person" in Canada's income tax treaties. Because a trust to which subsection 94(3) applies is deemed to be resident of Canada and is liable to tax in Canada on its taxable income, it will be considered a resident of Canada under paragraph 1 of the resident article in Canada's income tax treaties, whether it is also considered to be resident, under the applicable treaty, in another country or not.

A trust that is also resident of the other contracting state under a particular treaty would be a dual resident under the treaty. In the event of dual residency under an income tax treaty, the tie-breaker rules in the resident article applicable to individuals would not apply. The Canada Revenue Agency has expressed the view that in this context, the term "individual" is to be interpreted to mean natural person and not a trust. The Agency has indicated that this interpretation would generally prevail across most if not all of Canada's income tax treaties if the definition "person" in the particular treaty under consideration makes reference to both an "individual" and a "trust". Even if a trust were considered an individual for the purpose of an income tax treaty, it is clear from the context of the tie-breaker rule applicable to individuals that it is intended to apply only to natural persons. This is because expressions such as "personal home", "centre of vital interest" and "habitual abode" used in the tie-breaker rules have meaning only in reference to natural persons and would not be of use in clarifying the residence of a trust for the purpose of a treaty.

In this regard, paragraph 94(3)(b) applies for the purposes of applying subsections 20(11) and (12) and section 126 in respect of the trust. Paragraph 94(3)(b) allows a trust to elect for the special rules in that paragraph to apply in determining the trust's eligibility for a foreign tax credit. If the trust elects for a taxation year,

- the trust's income for the taxation year (other than the portion of the income that is from sources inside Canada or that is from a source, outside Canada, that is a business carried on by the trust outside Canada) is deemed, for the purposes of subsections 20(11) and (12) and section 126,
  - to be income of the trust from sources (other than a business carried on by the trust) in a particular country (other than Canada) in which the trust is resident (determined without reference to this subsection), and
  - not to be from any other source; and
- in determining the income or profits tax paid by the trust for the taxation year to the government of the particular country the trust can pool the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of an income or profits tax that was paid by the trust for the particular taxation year to the government of a country (other than Canada) and that can reasonably be regarded as a tax paid on the trust's income for the taxation year (other than the portion of the income that is from sources inside Canada or that is from a source, outside Canada, that is a business carried on by the trust outside Canada).

Paragraph 94(3)(b) also provides that in determining the non-business income tax (as defined by subsection 126(7)) paid by the trust for a taxation year to the government of a country other than Canada no amount shall be included to the extent that it can reasonably be regarded as attributable to income from a source in Canada.

Paragraph 94(3)(c) provides that a non-resident trust that becomes subject to subsection 94(3) for a particular taxation year, after not being subject to either new subsection 94(3) or existing paragraph 94(1)(c) for the preceding year is deemed, immediately before the end of the preceding taxation year, to have disposed of each property (other than property described in any of subparagraphs 128.1(1)(b)(i) to (iv)) held by the trust at that time for proceeds of disposition equal to its fair market value at that time. The trust is also deemed to have, at the beginning of the particular taxation year, acquired each of those properties so disposed of at a cost equal to its proceeds of disposition

Note, in this regard, that, because of paragraph 94(4)(d), subsection 128.1(1) will not apply in the preceding taxation year only because of the application of paragraph 94(3)(a).

Paragraph 94(3)(c) is intended to ensure — in a manner similar to that for taxpayers that migrate to Canada — that certain gains or losses that accrued on certain property of the trust while the trust was non-resident are not subject to taxation in Canada.

Paragraph 94(3)(c) also complements the rule in subsection 94(6), which applies where a non-resident trust ceases to be an "exempt foreign trust" (as defined in subsection 94(1)). In this case, subsection 94(6) establishes the beginning of a new "stub" taxation year. If subsection 94(3) applies for that "stub" year, paragraph 94(3)(c) would be applicable with regard to the properties held by the trust at the beginning of that "stub" year.

Example 1

A trust is created in 2007. The trust is not at any time an exempt foreign trust. At the end of its 2007 taxation year, the trust is non-resident and there are no resident contributors to the trust and no resident beneficiaries under the trust.

On February 1, 2008, John makes a contribution to the trust. At the end of the trust's 2008 taxation year, John is a resident contributor to the trust, and the trust is non-resident.

On July 1, 2009 the sole trustee of the trust moves to Canada, becomes resident in Canada at that time and remains resident in Canada throughout the remainder of the year. Immediately before the trustee became resident in Canada, the trustee was non-resident and John remained a resident contributor to the trust.

Results

Trust's 2007 Taxation Year

1. Subsection 94(3) does not apply to deem the trust to be resident in Canada in computing its income for its 2007 taxation year.

Trust's 2008 Taxation Year

2. Paragraph 94(3)(a) applies to deem the trust to be resident in Canada, throughout its 2008 taxation year, for a number of purposes, including the computation of its income. Because the trust was non-resident throughout its 2007 taxation year, paragraph 94(3)(c) also applies to deem the trust to have disposed of its property (other than certain properties described in subparagraphs 128.1(1)(b)(i) to (iv)) for fair market value proceeds immediately before the end of its last 2007 taxation year and to have reacquired those properties at a cost equal to that fair market value at the beginning of the 2008 taxation year. Because of paragraph 94(4)(d), the application of the deemed residency rule in paragraph 94(3)(a) will not cause the trust to become resident in Canada for purposes of subsection 128.1(1).

Trust's 2009 Taxation Year

3. Because the trustee of the trust becomes resident in Canada on July 1, 2009, paragraph 128.1(1)(a) will apply to deem the trust to have a taxation year-end immediately before the change of residency. At the end of this first 2009 taxation year of the trust, paragraph 94(3)(a) applies to deem the trust to be resident in Canada, throughout that first 2009 taxation year, for a number of purposes, including the computing of its income. However, paragraph 94(3)(c) will not apply because the trust was resident in Canada (i.e. because of the application of paragraph 94(3)(a) to the trust's 2008 taxation year) throughout the year preceding the 2009 taxation year.

4. Paragraph 128.1(1)(a) also applies to deem the trust to have a new taxation year at the time the trustee becomes resident in Canada on July 1, 2009. Because the trust is resident in Canada at the end of this second 2009 taxation year, paragraph 94(3)(a) does not apply to deem the trust to be resident in Canada in computing its income for that year.

5. As the trust is resident in Canada for the first 2009 taxation year (i.e., the 2009 taxation year discussed in #3 above), subsection 128.1(1.1) suspends the application of the deemed disposition and reacquisition rules in paragraphs 128.1(1)(b) and (c) that would otherwise apply in respect of the end of that first 2009 taxation year because of the trust becoming resident in Canada on July 1, 2009. This ensures that the trust does not realize at the end of that first 2009 taxation year any accrued gains or losses of the trust solely because the basis of the trust's residency in Canada changes.

6. Note that where subsection 128.1(1.1) applies to a trust, it suspends only the application of paragraph 128.1(1)(b) (as a result paragraph 128.1(1)(c) also has no application) to the trust. If the trust becomes resident in Canada, it would continue to be subject to paragraph 128.1(1)(a). Also note that paragraph 94(4)(d) ensures that the application of paragraph 94(3)(a) to the trust will not affect the determination of whether the trust becomes resident in Canada for the purposes of subsection 128.1(1).

Paragraph 94(3)(d) imposes liabilities for a taxation year on entities who are "resident contributors" or "resident beneficiaries". Where subsection 94(3) applies to a trust for a taxation year, each of these entities is jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable with the trust in respect of the trust's obligations under sections 150 to 180. Typically, the most significant obligation in this context is the obligation to pay tax instalments pursuant to section 156. However, the extent of the liability imposed by paragraph 94(3)(d) is limited by new subsection 94(7). For more information, see the commentary on subsections 94(7) to (9).

The expression "solidarily liable" is added to ensure that the Act appropriately reflects both the civil law of the province of Quebec and the law of other provinces.

Paragraph 94(3)(e) imposes liabilities for a taxation year on each entity that is a beneficiary under the trust and was a person from whom an amount would be recoverable at the end of 2006 under subsection 94(2) (as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007) in respect of the trust if the entity had received before 2007 amounts described under paragraphs 94(2)(a) or (b) in respect of the trust (as those paragraphs read in their application to taxation years that began before 2007). Where subsection 94(3) applies to the trust for a taxation year, each of these entities is, to the extent of the entity's recovery limit for the year, jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable with the trust in respect of the trust's obligations under sections 150 to 180. Note that where a trust created in 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 or 2006 has elected under the coming-into force of new section 94 to have new section 94 apply to it for its taxation years that begin in 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 or 2006, as the case may be, paragraph 94(3)(e) does not apply to it (i.e., because "old" section 94 would never have applied to it).

Note that subsection 94(3) generally does not result in the creation of any obligations for a trust that is subject to subsection 94(3) to withhold tax under Part XIII or to pay any tax under Part XIII.2 in respect of distributions of income earned by the trust from Canadian sources to non-resident beneficiaries.

Instead, the rules in new subsection 104(7.01) are designed so that there will be a reasonable level of Part I tax in respect of Canadian-source income received by the trust in the event the trust also distributes that income to non-resident beneficiaries in their capacity as beneficiaries. For more information, see the commentary on subsection 104(7.01).

In addition, in the event that the trust pays or credits an amount to a non-resident and that amount is not referred to in paragraph 104(7.01)(b) in respect of the trust for the taxation year, the non-resident will continue to be liable for any Part XIII tax on the amount, except to the extent that the amount is described in paragraph (b) of the definition "exempt amount" in subsection 94(1), or paid or credited before 2004.

Related Provisions: 75(3)(c.2) — Reversionary trust rules do not apply to non-resident trust; 94(4) — Excluded provisions for 94(3)(a); 94(5), (5.1) — Trust deemed to cease being resident in Canada; 94(7) — Limit to amount recoverable under 94(3)(d); 94(8) — "Recovery limit" for 94(3)(e); 104(4)(a.5) — Trusts — deemed disposition of property when no resident contributor exists; 104(7.01) — Limit to trust's deduction under 104(6); 128.1(1.1) — No deemed disposition/acquisition on immigration of trust; 160(2.1) — Assessment of amount under 94(3)(d) or (e); 160(3) — Discharge of liability under 94(3)(d) or (e); 216(4.1) — Where trust receives rental income from property in Canada; 233.2(4) — Annual information return by contributor; 233.3(3) — Annual information return by holder of interest.

I.T. Technical News: 38 (Canada-US treaty's competent authority provision).

(4) Excluded provisions — Paragraph (3)(a) does not apply to deem a trust to be resident in Canada for the purposes of

(a) the definitions "arm's length transfer", "exempt foreign trust" and "exempt taxpayer" in subsection (1);

(b) paragraph (14)(b), subsections 70(6) and 73(1), the definition "Canadian partnership" in subsection 102(1), paragraph 107.4(1)(c) and paragraph (a) of the definition "mutual fund trust" in subsection 132(6);

(c) determining the liability of a person (other than the trust) that would arise under section 215;

(d) determining whether, in applying subsection 128.1(1), the trust becomes resident in Canada at a particular time;

(e) determining whether, in applying subsection 128.1(4), the trust ceases to be resident in Canada at a particular time;

(f) subparagraph (f)(i) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1);

(g) determining whether subsection 107(5) applies to a distribution on or after July 18, 2005 of property to the trust; and

(h) determining whether subsection 75(2) applies to deem an amount to be an income, loss, taxable capital gain or allowable capital loss of the trust.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(4) provides that the rules in paragraph 94(3)(a) treating non-resident trusts as resident in Canada do not apply for the purposes of:

- the definitions "arm's length transfer", "exempt taxpayer" and "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1) — thus ensuring that there is no circularity in applying those definitions due to fact that those definitions impose a requirement that a trust be non-resident;
- subsections 70(6) and 73(1) and paragraph 107.4(1)(c) (other than, for transfers to trusts that occurred before February 28, 2004, subparagraph 107.4(1)(c)(i)), and paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1) — thus ensuring that rules allowing in some cases for a rollover of property on transfers to a Canadian resident trust generally do not apply to transfers to a trust otherwise deemed to be resident in Canada by subsection 94(3));
- determining whether subsection 107(5) applies to a distribution on or after July 18, 2005 of property to the trust;
- in determining whether an amount can be attributed, under subsection 75(2), to the trust. (This rule had earlier been proposed through a modification to subsection 75(2));
- determining whether the exception, under paragraph 94(14)(b), to property that is restricted property is available in respect of property held by a non-resident trust;
- paragraph (a) of the definition "mutual fund trust" in subsection 132(6) — making it clear that a trust deemed to be resident in Canada by subsection 94(3) will not be treated as a mutual fund trust for any purpose;
- determining, for taxation years that begin after July 18, 2005, whether a partnership is a "Canadian partnership" (as defined in subsection 102(1)); and
- determining whether, in applying subsection 128.1(1), the trust becomes resident in Canada at a particular time and determining whether, in applying subsection 128.1(4), the trust ceases to be resident in Canada at a particular time — thus ensuring that the deeming of a trust to be resident under paragraph 94(3)(a) does not apply to affect a determination of whether a trust has changed residence at any time (e.g., upon a change of trustees or upon a change of residence of trustees).

Note that paragraphs 94(4)(d) and (e) are generally suspended, for a brief transitional period, in their application to a trust that is subject without interruption to "old" and "new" sections 94. That transitional period starts immediately before the end of the trust's last taxation year that began before 2007 and for which it was deemed resident by "old" section 94 and ends immediately after the beginning of the trust's first taxation year that begins after 2006 (i.e., its first taxation year in respect of which "new" section 94 applies). This is intended to ensure that section 128.1 does not apply to a trust solely because of the transition between the old and new NRT regimes. The suspension of paragraphs 94(4)(d) and (e) does not apply, however, where in the transitional period a change in the trustees of the trust occurred (e.g., the number of trustees changed, the residency of any of the trustees changed, or any of the trustees was replaced).

Furthermore, except as otherwise permitted under subsection 216(4.1), paragraphs 94(3)(a) and 94(4)(c) do not relieve a payer of Canadian-source income from the obligation to withhold amounts under section 215 in connection with amounts paid to a trust deemed to be resident in Canada by subsection 94(3). This is so even though such a trust is not itself liable for Part XIII tax on amounts paid or credited to it, because of the application of subparagraph 94(3)(a)(viii). The trust would be expected to apply for a refund of such tax, which would be given, except to the extent that there are any outstanding liabilities of the trust with regard to Part I tax.

(5) Deemed cessation of residence — A trust is deemed to cease to be resident in Canada at the earliest time at which there is neither a resident contributor to the trust nor a resident beneficiary under the trust in a period that would, if this Act were read without reference to subsection 128.1(4), be a taxation year of the trust

(a) that immediately follows a taxation year of the trust throughout which it was resident in Canada;

(b) at the beginning of which there was a resident contributor to the trust or a resident beneficiary under the trust; and

(c) at the end of which the trust is non-resident.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(5) deems a trust to have ceased to be resident in Canada at the earliest time in a specified period at which there is neither a "resident contributor" to the trust nor a "resident beneficiary" under the trust. For this purpose, the specified period is the period that would (if the Act were read without reference to subsection 128.1(4)) be a taxation year of the trust

- that immediately follows a taxation year of the trust throughout which it was resident in Canada,
- at the beginning of which there was either a resident contributor to the trust or a resident beneficiary under the trust, and
- at the end of which the trust is non-resident.

For more information on the expressions "resident contributor" and "resident beneficiary", as defined in new subsection 94(1), see the commentary on those provisions.

Where subsection 94(5) applies, the cessation of residence in Canada of a trust results in the application of subsection 128.1(4). Under that subsection, a taxation year of the trust is deemed to have ended immediately before the earliest time in the specified period described above. At that deemed taxation year-end, the criteria in subsection 94(3) are satisfied. Accordingly, the trust will be subject to tax under Part I on its worldwide income for that year because it is considered under subsection 94(3) to be resident in Canada throughout that year. Under new paragraph 94(3)(d), each "resident beneficiary" or "resident contributor" at the time of that deemed taxation year end can be jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable with the trust for the trust's income tax liabilities under the Act for that year. (For more detail on the expression "solidarily", please refer to the introductory commentary above on new section 94.)

Related Provisions: 94(3)(a) [proposed] — Trust deemed resident in Canada; 104(4)(a.5) — Trusts — effect of 94(5) on deemed disposition of property.

(6) Becoming or ceasing to be an exempt foreign trust — If at any time a trust becomes or ceases to be an exempt foreign trust (otherwise than because of becoming resident in Canada),

(a) its taxation year that would otherwise include that time is deemed to have ended immediately before that time and a new taxation year of the trust is deemed to begin at that time; and

(b) for the purpose of determining the trust's fiscal period after that time, the trust is deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(6) generally provides that, if a trust becomes or ceases to be an "exempt foreign trust" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) at any time, the trust's taxation year is deemed to have ended immediately before that time, a new "stub" taxation year is deemed to have begun at that time and the trust is deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time. However, subsection 94(6) does not apply where a trust ceases to be an exempt foreign trust because it becomes resident in Canada.

Subsection 94(3) may apply in respect of the later "stub" taxation year of the trust if the criteria set out in that subsection are satisfied at a "specified time" in respect of the trust for the taxation year (generally, the end of the taxation year). Where this is the case, the trust would be subject to tax under Part I on its world-wide income for that later "stub" year because it would be considered under subsection 94(3) to be resident in Canada for that year.

(7) Limit to amount recoverable — The maximum amount recoverable under the provisions referred to in paragraph (3)(d) at any particular time from an entity in respect of a trust (other than an entity that is deemed, under subsection (12) or (13), to be a contributor or a resident contributor to the trust) and a particular taxation year of the trust is the entity's recovery limit at the particular time in respect of the trust and the particular year if

(a) either

(i) the entity is liable under a provision referred to in paragraph (3)(d) in respect of the trust and the particular year solely because the entity was a resident beneficiary under the trust at a specified time in respect of the trust in the particular year, or

(ii) at a specified time in respect of the trust in the particular year, the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, at the time it was made, of a contribution to the trust made before the specified time by the entity, or by another entity not dealing at arm's length with the entity, is not more than the greater of

(A) $10,000 and

(B) 10% of the total of all amounts each of which was the amount, at the time it was made, of a contribution made to the trust before the specified time;

(b) except where the total determined in subparagraph (a)(ii) in respect of the entity and all entities not dealing at arm's length with it is $10,000 or less, the entity has filed on a timely basis under section 233.2 all information returns required to be filed by it before the particular time in respect of the trust (or on any later day that is acceptable to the Minister); and

(c) it is reasonable to conclude that for each transaction or event that occurred before the end of the particular year at the direction of, or with the acquiescence of, the entity

(i) none of the purposes of the transaction or event was to enable the entity to avoid or minimize any liability under a provision referred to in paragraph (3)(d) in respect of the trust, and

(ii) the transaction or event was not part of a series of transactions or events any of the purposes of which was to enable the entity to avoid or minimize any liability under a provision referred to in paragraph (3)(d) in respect of the trust.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(7) allows for a limitation of the amount that may be recovered from an entity that would otherwise be jointly, severally, or solidarily, liable for the entire amount of a trust's tax obligations under the Act. Subsection 94(7) applies to an entity (other than an entity that is deemed, by subsection 94(12) or (13), to be a contributor or a resident contributor to the trust) in respect of a particular taxation year of the trust where three conditions are satisfied.

The first condition is satisfied in respect of a particular taxation year of the trust:

- where, under subparagraph 94(7)(a)(i), the entity is jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable with the trust only because the entity was a "resident beneficiary" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) under the trust at a specified time in respect of the trust for the particular year, or
- where, under subparagraph 94(7)(a)(ii), at a specified time in respect of the trust for, the total amount (determined with reference to paragraph 94(2)(b), (d), (h), (p) and (q) and subsection 94(9)) of contributions made to the trust by the entity (or by another entity not dealing at arm's length with the entity) is not more than the greater of $10,000 and 10% of the total amount of all contributions to the trust.

The second condition, under paragraph 94(7)(b), requires that the entity have filed on a timely basis all information returns required to be filed by the entity in respect of the trust under section 233.2 (or on any later day that is acceptable to the Minister of National Revenue). However, the second condition need not be satisfied if the first condition is satisfied because the total determined under subparagraph 94(7)(a)(ii) (in respect of the entity and all entities not dealing at arm's length with it) is $10,000 or less.

The third condition, under paragraph 94(7)(c), is satisfied in respect of an entity and a particular taxation year of the trust where it is reasonable to conclude that each transaction or event that occurred before the end of the particular year at the direction of, or with the acquiescence of, the entity satisfied the following conditions:

- none of the purposes of the transaction or event was to enable the entity to avoid or minimize any liability under a provision referred to in paragraph 94(3)(d) in respect of the trust, and
- the transaction or event was not part of a series of transactions or events any of the purposes of which was to enable the entity to avoid or minimize any liability under a provision referred to in paragraph 94(3)(d) in respect of the trust.

There are a number of transactions or events, or series of transactions or events, that may result in a failure to satisfy the third condition (e.g., an artificial dilution of an entity's relative contribution to the trust (i.e., below the 10% level); or corporate distributions that have the effect of avoiding or minimizing the impact of the three-year rule described in subsection 94(9)).

Reference should be made in this context to the definition "contribution" in subsection 94(1), as well as to related rules in subsection 94(2).

Where subsection 94(7) applies to an entity in respect of a taxation year of a trust, the amount recoverable at any time from the entity in respect of the year is limited to the person's "recovery limit", determined under subsection 94(8), in respect of the trust and the year.

Related Provisions: 94(8) — Recovery limit; 94(9) — Determination of contribution amount.

(8) Recovery limit — The recovery limit referred to in paragraph (3)(e) and subsection (7) at a particular time of a particular entity in respect of a trust and a particular taxation year of the trust is the amount, if any, by which the greater of

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) an amount received or receivable after 2000 and before the particular time

(A) by the particular entity on the disposition of all or part of the particular entity's interest as a beneficiary under the trust, or

(B) by another entity (that was, when the amount became receivable, a specified party in respect of the particular entity) on the disposition of all or part of the specified party's interest as a beneficiary under the trust,

(ii) an amount (other than an amount described in subparagraph (i)) made payable by the trust after 2000 and before the particular time to

(A) the particular entity because of the interest of the particular entity as a beneficiary under the trust, or

(B) another entity (that was, when the amount became payable, a specified party in respect of the particular entity) because of the interest of the specified party as a beneficiary under the trust,

(iii) an amount (other than an amount described in subparagraph (i) or (ii)) that is the fair market value of a benefit received or enjoyed, after 2000 and before the particular time, from or under the trust by

(A) the particular entity, or

(B) another entity that was, when the benefit was received or enjoyed, a specified party in respect of the particular entity, or

(iv) the maximum amount that would be recoverable from the particular entity at the end of 2006 (or, where this subsection applies to a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, at the end of the last taxation year of the trust beginning before the first such taxation year) under subsection (2) (as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007, or, where this subsection applies to a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, in its application to taxation years of the trust that began before the first such taxation year) if the trust had tax payable under this Part at the end of 2006 and that tax payable exceeded the total of the amounts described in respect of the entity under paragraphs (2)(a) and (b) (as they read in their application to taxation years that began before 2007, or, where this subsection applies to a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, as they read in their application to taxation years of the trust that began before the first such taxation year), except to the extent that the amount so recoverable is in respect of an amount that is included in the particular entity's recovery limit because of subparagraph (i) or (ii), and

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, when made, of a contribution to the trust before the particular time by the particular entity, exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is

(c) an amount recovered before the particular time from the particular entity in connection with a liability of the particular entity (in respect of the trust and the particular year or a preceding taxation year of the trust) that arose because of the application of subsection (3) (or the application of this section as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007, or, where this subsection applies to a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, as it read in its application to taxation years of the trust that began before the first such taxation year),

(d) an amount (other than an amount in respect of which this paragraph has applied in respect of any other entity) recovered before the particular time from a specified party in respect of the particular entity in connection with a liability of the particular entity (in respect of the trust and the particular year or a preceding taxation year of the trust) that arose because of the application of subsection (3) (or the application of this section as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007, or, where this subsection applies to a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, as it read in its application to taxation years of the trust that began before the first such taxation year), or

(e) the amount, if any, by which the particular entity's tax payable under this Part for any taxation year in which an amount described in any of subparagraphs (a)(i) to (iii) was paid, became payable, was received, became receivable or was enjoyed by the particular entity exceeds the amount that would have been the particular entity's tax payable under this Part for that taxation year if no such amount were paid, became payable, were received, became receivable or were enjoyed by the particular entity in that taxation year.

Technical Notes: Under subsection 94(8), the amount of the recovery limit that applies to a particular entity at any particular time is calculated as follows:

- ADD amounts received or receivable after 2000 and before the particular time by the particular entity on the disposition of all or part of the particular entity's interest as a beneficiary under the trust, or by another entity that was, at the time the amount became receivable, a specified party (as defined in subsection 94(1)) in respect of the particular entity on the disposition of all or part of the specified party's interest as a beneficiary under the trust;
- ADD an amount (other than an amount described in the paragraph above) made payable by the trust after 2000 and before the particular time to the particular entity because of the interest of the particular entity as a beneficiary under the trust, or another entity (that was, at the time the amount became payable, a specified party in respect of the particular entity) because of the interest of the specified party as a beneficiary under the trust;
- ADD the fair market value of benefits received or enjoyed, after 2000 and before the particular time, under the trust by the particular entity (or an entity that was, at the time the benefit was received or enjoyed, a specified party in respect of the particular entity), not otherwise taken into account above;
- ADD the maximum amount that would be recoverable from the particular entity at the end of 2006 under subsection 94(2) (as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007) if the trust had had tax payable under Part I of the Act at the end of 2006 in excess of the total of the amounts described in respect of the entity under paragraphs 94(2)(a) and (b) (as they read in their application to taxation years that began before 2005),
  - except to the extent that the amount so recoverable is in respect of an amount that is included in the particular entity's recovery limit because of subparagraph 94(8)(a)(i) or (ii), and
  - except where the trust was created in 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 or 2006 and new section 94 applies to the trust for its 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006 taxation years, as the case may be, because of an election by the trust in the coming-into-force provision;
- ADD the total amount (determined with reference to paragraphs 94(2)(b), (d), (h), (p) and (q) and subsection 94(9)) of contributions made to the trust by the particular entity, to the extent that this amount exceeds the total of the first four amounts;
- SUBTRACT previous recoveries by the Canada Revenue Agency ("CRA") under subsection 94(3) (or under subsection 94(1) as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007, except where the trust was created in 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 or 2006 and new section 94 applies to the trust for its 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006 taxation years, as the case may be, because of an election by the trust in the coming-into-force provision) from the particular entity in respect of the trust and the year or a preceding taxation year of the trust;
- SUBTRACT previous recoveries by the CRA under subsection 94(3) (or under subsection 94(1) as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007, except where the trust was created in 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 or 2006 and new section 94 applies to the trust for its 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006 taxation years, as the case may be, because of an election by the trust in the coming-into-force provision) from a specified party in respect of the particular entity in respect of the trust and the year or a preceding taxation year of the trust; and
- SUBTRACT the amount, if any, by which the particular entity's tax payable under this Part for any taxation year in which an amount described in any of subparagraphs 94(8)(a)(i) to (iii) was paid, became payable, was received, became receivable or was enjoyed by the particular entity exceeds the amount that would have been the particular entity's tax payable under this Part for that taxation year if no such amount were paid, became payable, were received, became receivable or were enjoyed by the particular entity in that taxation year.

For more information on subsections 94(11) to (13), or the expression "specified party" as defined in subsection 94(1), see the commentary on those provisions.

Related Provisions: 94(9) — Determination of contribution amount; 104(24) — Whether amount payable to beneficiary.

(9) Determination of contribution amount — special case — If a contribution is made at any time by an entity to a trust as a consequence of a transaction that is, or as a consequence of a series of transactions or events that includes, the transfer at that time to the trust of a specified property, the amount of the contribution at that time is deemed, for the purposes of clause (2)(u)(ii)(C), subparagraph (7)(a)(ii) and subsection (8), to be the greater of

(a) the amount, determined without reference to this subsection, of the contribution at that time, and

(b) the amount that is the greatest fair market value of the specified property, or property substituted for it, in the period that

(i) begins immediately after that time, and

(ii) ends at the end of the third calendar year that ends after that time.

Technical Notes: Subsection 94(9) affects the calculation of the amount of a "contribution" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) to a trust of "specified property" (as defined in new subsection 94(11)) for the purpose of determining whether the "recovery limit" limitation applies to a contributor to the trust and of determining the amount of that recovery limit.

The amount of a contribution to a trust because of a transfer to the trust of specified property is deemed by subsection 94(9) to be the greater of:

- the amount, otherwise determined, at that time of the contribution; and
- the amount that is the greatest fair market value of the specified property (or of substituted property) in the period that begins immediately after that time and ends at the end of the third calendar year after that time.

For more information on the expression "specified property" as defined in new subsection 94(1), see the commentary on that provision.

Subsection 94(9) allows for a reasonable opportunity for recovery of tax by the CRA in the context of a transaction or series of transactions involving the transfer of specified property. Consider, for example, an estate freeze under which common shares in the capital stock of a corporation are transferred directly or indirectly to a non-resident trust. Because of the difficulties associated with valuing the common shares at the time of the transfer, it is appropriate to provide for a valuation as described above.

In conjunction with new subsection 94(9), subparagraph 152(4)(b)(vi) is amended to ensure that a reassessment of a taxpayer arising out of the application of subsection 94(9) can be undertaken by the CRA within 3 years after the normal reassessment period of the taxpayer in respect of the taxpayer's relevant taxation year.

Related Provisions: 152(4)(b)(vi) — Three-year extension to reassessment period.

(10) Where contributor becomes resident in Canada within 60 months after contributing — In applying this section at each specified time, in respect of a taxation year of a trust, that is before the particular time at which a contributor to the trust becomes resident in Canada within 60 months after making a contribution to the trust, the contribution is deemed to have been made at a time other than a non-resident time of the contributor if

(a) in applying the definition "non-resident time" in subsection (1) at each of those specified times, the contribution was made at a non-resident time of the contributor; and

(b) in applying the definition "non-resident time" in subsection (1) immediately after the particular time, the contribution is made at a time other than a non-resident time of the contributor.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(10) applies to determine whether there is a "connected contributor" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) to a trust for the purposes of section 94, including in applying the definition "resident beneficiary" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)). Under new paragraph 94(3)(d), a resident beneficiary can, to an extent, be liable for the trust's income tax under Part I . For more information, see the commentary on those definitions and subsections 94(3) and (7) to (9).

A "contribution" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) to a trust by a contributor is considered to have been made at a time other than a "non-resident time" (as defined in subsection 94(1)) if the contributor becomes resident in Canada at any time within the period (referred to in this commentary as the "60-month post period") 60 months after the time of the contribution. However, to facilitate the administration of the definition "non-resident time", paragraph (b) of the definition "connected contributor" and subsection 94(3), the definition "non-resident time" is drafted so that such a contributor and the trust may, subject to subsection 94(10), treat the time of the contribution as a non-resident time for the purposes of applying the definition "connected contributor" and subsection 94(3) at a "specified time" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) in respect of the trust for any particular trust taxation year if at the specified time the contributor still has not become resident in Canada within the 60-month post period.

Subsection 94(10) deems (for the purpose of applying section 94 at each specified time, in respect of a trust for a taxation year of the trust, that is before the particular time at which the contributor becomes resident in Canada within the 60-month post period) the contribution to have been made at a time other than a non-resident time of the contributor if:

- in applying the definition "non-resident time" as of each of those specified times, the particular contribution was made at a non-resident time of the contributor; and
- in applying the definition "non-resident time" at the particular time, the contribution is made at a time other than a non-resident time of the contributor.

Where subsection 94(10) applies, the contributor will be considered a "connected contributor" to the trust and, if, as a result, there was a "resident beneficiary" at a specified time in the relevant prior taxation year of the trust, the trust and the resident beneficiary would, because of subsection 94(3), generally be jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable for Part I tax on the trust's income for the year. (For more details on the expression "solidarily", please refer to the introductory commentary above on new section 94.)

Subparagraph 152(4)(b)(vi) is amended to ensure that a reassessment of a taxpayer arising out of the application of subsection 94(10) can be undertaken by the Canada Revenue Agency within 3 years after the normal reassessment period of the taxpayer in respect of the taxpayer's relevant taxation year.

Related Provisions: 152(4)(b)(vi) — Three-year extension to reassessment period.

(11) Application of subsecs. (12) and (13) — Subsections (12) and (13) apply to a trust or an entity in respect of a trust if

(a) at any time property of a trust (referred to in this subsection and subsections (12) and (13) as the "original trust") is transferred or loaned, directly or indirectly, in any manner, to another trust (referred to in this subsection and subsections (12) and (13) as the "transferee trust");

(b) the original trust

(i) is deemed to be resident in Canada immediately before that time because of paragraph (3)(a),

(ii) would be deemed to be resident in Canada immediately before that time because of paragraph (3)(a) if this section were read without reference to paragraph (a) of the definition "connected contributor" in subsection (1) and paragraph (a) of the definition "resident contributor" in that subsection,

(iii) was deemed to be resident in Canada immediately before that time because of subsection (1) as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007 (or, where this subsection applies to a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, as it read in its application to taxation years of the trust that began before the first such taxation year), or

(iv) would have been deemed to be resident in Canada immediately before that time because of subsection (1) as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007 (or, where this subsection applies to a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, as it read in its application to taxation years of the trust that began before the first such taxation year) if that subsection were read in that application without reference to subclause (b)(i)(A)(III) of that subsection; and

(c) it is reasonable to conclude that one of the reasons the transfer or loan is made is to avoid or minimize a liability under this Part that arose, or that would otherwise have arisen, because of the application of subsection (3) (or the application of this section as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007 or, where this subsection applies in respect of a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, as it read in its application to taxation years of the trust that began before the first such taxation year).

Technical Notes: Subsections 94(11) to (13) provide a set of related anti-avoidance rules that apply where it is reasonable to conclude that one of the reasons for a loan or transfer of property from a trust (the "original trust"), that is deemed under paragraph 94(3)(a) to be resident in Canada (or, except where the trust was created in 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 or 2006 and elects under the coming-into-force provision of new section 94 to have that section apply for its 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006 taxation years, was deemed resident because of subsection (1) as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007 or would have been so deemed under either of those provisions if they had applied without regard to the period of time in which a contributor to the trust was resident in Canada), to another trust (the "transferee trust") is to avoid or minimize the liability, of any entity under Part I of the Act, that arose, or that would otherwise have arisen, because of the application of subsection (3) (or, except where the trust was created in 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 or 2006 and elects under the coming-into-force provision of new section 94 to have that section apply for its 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006 taxation years, as the case may be, because of subsection (1) as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007).

Where such a loan or transfer is made at a particular time, the original trust is deemed, under subsection 94(12), to be a resident contributor to the transferee trust for the purpose of applying this section in respect of the transferee trust.

Where such a loan or transfer is made at a particular time, an entity that is at that time a contributor to the original trust is deemed, under subsection 94(13), to be a contributor to the transferee trust and a connected contributor to the transferee trust (if at that time the entity is also a connected contributor to the original trust). For more information on the definitions "contributor" and "connected contributor" in subsection 94(1), see the commentary on those definitions.

Subsection 94(7), generally provides that the liability of a "resident contributor" is limited by that contributor's recovery limit, as determined by reference to subsections 94(7) to (9). However, subsection 94(7) does not apply to an entity that is deemed, by subsection 94(12) or (13), to be a contributor or a resident contributor to the trust. For more information on the definition "resident contributor" or subsections 94(3) and (7) to (9), see the commentary on those provisions.

(12) Deemed resident contributor — The original trust described in subsection (11) (including a trust that has ceased to exist) is deemed to be, at and after the time of the transfer or loan referred to in that subsection, a resident contributor to the transferee trust for the purpose of applying this section in respect of the transferee trust.

Technical Notes: See under 94(11).

Related Provisions: 94(11) — Application of 94(12).

(13) Deemed contributor — An entity (including any entity that has ceased to exist) that is, at the time of the transfer or loan referred to in subsection (11), a contributor to the original trust, is deemed to be at and after that time

(a) a contributor to the transferee trust; and

(b) a connected contributor to the transferee trust, if at that time the entity is a connected contributor to the original trust.

Technical Notes: See under 94(11).

Related Provisions: 94(11) — Application of 94(13).

(14) Restricted property — exception — A particular property that is, or will be, at any time held, loaned or transferred, as the case may be, by an entity is not restricted property held, loaned or transferred, as the case may be, at that time by the entity if

(a) the particular property is a share of a specified class (as defined by subsection 256(1.1)) of the shares of the capital stock of a corporation and

(i) the particular property was acquired, as part of a transaction or series of transactions or events, from the corporation in exchange for, or as consideration for, property that is money only, and

(ii) no other property (other than property that is identical to the particular property) was acquired by any entity as part of that transaction or series of transactions or events;

(b) the particular property is identified in prescribed form, containing prescribed information, filed, by or on behalf of the entity, with the Minister on or before the entity's filing-due date (or another date that is acceptable to the Minister) for the entity's taxation year that includes that time, and

(i) the particular property (and property, if any, for which the particular property is, or is to be, substituted property) was not, and will not be, at any time acquired, held, loaned or transferred by the entity (or any entity with whom the entity does not at any time deal at arm's length) in whole or in part for the purpose of permitting any change in the value of the property of a corporation (that is, at any time, a closely-held corporation) to accrue directly or indirectly in any manner whatever to the value of property held by a non-resident trust, and

(ii) the Minister is satisfied that the particular property (and property, if any, for which it is, or is to be, substituted) is described by subparagraph (i); or

(c) the property is at that time excluded property.

Technical Notes: Subsection 94(14) operates to suspend, in limited circumstances, a particular property's status as restricted property.

Paragraph 94(14)(a) is, in general terms, intended to apply only to preferred shares of the capital stock of a corporation that are issued by the corporation only for money. More specifically, paragraph 94(14)(a) provides that a particular property, that is or will be at any time held, loaned or transferred, as the case may be, by an entity, is not restricted property held, loaned or transferred, as the case may be, at that time by the entity if

- the particular property is a share of a specified class (as defined in subsection 256(1.1)) of shares of the capital stock of a corporation,
- the particular property was issued by the corporation in exchange for, or as consideration for, money and no other property, and
- no other property (other than identical shares issued by that corporation) was acquired by any entity as part of that issuance.

Paragraph 94(14)(b) provides that a particular property (identified in prescribed form filed with the Minister of National Revenue) that is at any time held, loaned or transferred by the entity will not be treated as restricted property held, loaned or transferred at that time by the entity if

- the particular property (or property for which the particular property is, or is to be, substituted property) was not, and will not be, at any time acquired, held, loaned or transferred by the entity (or any entity with whom the entity does not at any time deal at arm's length) in whole or in Part for the purpose of permitting any change in the value of the property of a corporation (that is, at any time, a closely-held corporation) to accrue directly or indirectly in any manner whatever to the value of property held by a non-resident trust; and
- the Minister is satisfied that this is the case with respect to the property (and property, if any, for which it is to be substituted).

The prescribed form in which the particular property is identified must be filed by the entity's filing-due date (or another date acceptable to the Minister) for the entity's taxation year that includes that time. The other date will generally be a date later than the entity's relevant filing due-date, but in circumstances in which the entity has no filing-due date, the other date is intended to provide the Minister with the ability to choose a filing deadline for the prescribed form.

Paragraph 94(14)(c) provides that property is not restricted property of an entity where it is, at that time, an excluded property.

For more details on the definitions "restricted property", "closely-held corporation" and "excluded property", see the commentary on those provisions.

Related Provisions: 94(4)(b) — Deeming non-resident trust to be resident in Canada does not apply to para. (b); 248(12) — Identical properties.

(15) Determining arm's length dealing and related entities — In determining whether an entity and another entity are related to each other or deal at arm's length with each other, a person referred to in section 251 includes an entity.

Technical Notes: Subsection 94(15) ensures that the rules in section 251 are applicable in determining whether entities deal at arm's length with each other or are related to each other. The subsection provides in effect, that for the purposes of section 94, when determining whether a particular entity and another entity are related to each other or deal, at any time, with each other at arm's length, each reference in section 251 to the word "person" is to be read as a reference to the expression "entity" (as defined in subsection 94(1)).

(16) Anti-avoidance — 150 entities — In applying this section,

(a) if it can reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons that an entity is at any time a shareholder of a corporation is to cause the condition in paragraph (b) of the definition "closely-held corporation" in subsection (1) to be satisfied in respect of the corporation, the condition is deemed not to have been satisfied at that time in respect of the corporation;

(b) if it can reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons that an entity holds at any time an interest in a trust is to cause the condition in subclause (h)(ii)(A)(I) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection (1) to be satisfied in respect of the trust, the condition is deemed not to have been satisfied at that time in respect of the trust; and

(c) if it can reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons that a person holds at any time a property is to cause the condition in paragraph (b) of the definition "excluded property" in subsection (1) to be satisfied in respect of the property or an identical property held by any person, the condition is deemed not to have been satisfied at that time in respect of the property or the identical property.

Technical Notes: Subsection 94(16) is an anti-avoidance provision that is relevant to the application of the definition "closely-held corporation" in subsection 94(1), paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1), and the definition "excluded property" in subsection 94(1). These definitions, respectively, provide for different results based, in part, on the condition that there be at a particular time at least 150 shareholders of the capital stock of a corporation, at least 150 beneficiaries under a trust, or at least 150 persons that hold property (identical to a particular property) issued by a trust, corporation or limited partnership.

Subsection 94(16) provides that, if it can reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons that an entity is at any time a shareholder of a corporation, holds a capital interest in a trust, or holds a property is to cause the applicable above condition to be met in respect of the corporation, the trust or — in the case of the condition in the definition "excluded property" — the particular property (or an identical property), the condition is deemed not to have been met with respect to the corporation, the trust or the particular or identical property.

Where subsection 94(16) applies in respect of a particular time and in respect of the corporation or trust, in the case of the corporation, it would be treated at that time as a closely-held corporation and in the case of the trust, it would not be treated at that time as an exempt foreign trust. In the case of the definition "excluded property", the particular property and the identical property would not be excluded property.

For more detail on the definitions "closely-held corporation", "excluded property" and "exempt foreign trust", see the commentary on those definitions.

Related Provisions: 248(12) — Identical properties.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), s. 17, will amend s. 94 to read as above, applicable to trust taxation years that begin after 2006, except that

(a) it also applies to taxation years that begin in each of 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006 of a trust if the trust was created in 2001 and elects, in writing, to have s. 94 apply to those taxation years by filing the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the trust's filing-due date for the trust's taxation year in which Bill C-10 is assented to;

(b) it also applies to taxation years that begin in each of 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006 of a trust if the trust was created in 2002 and elects, in writing, to have s. 94 apply to those taxation years by filing the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the trust's filing-due date for the trust's taxation year in which Bill C-10 is assented to;

(c) it also applies to taxation years that begin in each of 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006 of a trust if the trust elects, in writing, to have s. 94 apply to those taxation years by filing the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the trust's filing-due date for the trust's taxation year in which Bill C-10 is assented to;

(d) it also applies to taxation years that begin in each of 2004, 2005 and 2006 of a trust if the trust elects, in writing, to have s. 94 apply to those taxation years by filing the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the trust's filing-due date for the trust's taxation year in which Bill C-10 is assented to;

(e) it also applies to taxation years that begin in 2005 and 2006 of a trust if the trust elects, in writing, to have s. 94 apply to those taxation years by filing the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the trust's filing-due date for the trust's taxation year in which Bill C-10 is assented to;

(f) it also applies to taxation years that begin in 2006 of a trust if the trust elects, in writing, to have s. 94 apply to those taxation years by filing the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the trust's filing-due date for the trust's taxation year in which Bill C-10 is assented to;

(g) any election or form referred to in s. 94 that would otherwise be required to be filed before 120 days after Bill C-10 is assented to is deemed to have been filed with the Minister of National Revenue on a timely basis if it is filed with the Minister of National Revenue within 365 days after the amending legislation is assented to;

(h) if a trust elects, by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing on or before its filing-due date for its taxation year that includes the day on which Bill C-10 is assented to, in applying s. 94 in respect of the trust the definition "arm's length transfer" in subsec. 94(1) does not include a loan or other transfer of property that is identified in the election and that is made in a taxation year that begins before 2003;

(i) unless a trust elects, by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing on or before its filing-due date for its taxation year that includes the day on which Bill C-10 is assented to, that this paragraph not apply, paras. (a) and (b) of the definition "closely-held corporation" in subsec. 94(1) are, in respect of the trust for its taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005, to be read as follows:

(a) there are one or more classes of shares of its capital stock that are not a specified class within the meaning assigned by subsection 256(1.1); and

(b) it is reasonable conclude that at that time

(i) the shares of those classes (other than such a specified class) are held by at least 150 entities each of whom holds shares that have a total fair market value of at least $500, and

(ii) the total number of issued and outstanding shares of a class (other than such a specified class) held by a particular entity or by any other entity with whom the particular entity does not deal at arm's length is not more than 10% of the total number of the issued and outstanding shares of that class.

(j) if a trust elects, by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing on or before its filing-due date for its taxation year that includes the day on which Bill C-10 is assented to, that this paragraph apply, para. (f) of the definition "eligible trust" in subsec. 94(1) is, in respect of the trust for its taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005, to be read as follows:

(f) that at or before that time was a personal trust; or

(k) subpara. (b)(i) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsec. 94(1) is, for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005, to be read as follows:

(i) the trust was created after the breakdown of a marriage or common-law partnership of two particular individuals to provide for the maintenance of a beneficiary under the trust who is a child of one of those particular individuals (which beneficiary is referred to in this paragraph as a "child beneficiary"),

(l) unless a trust elects, by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing on or before its filing-due date for its taxation year that includes the day on which Bill C-10 is assented to, that this paragraph not apply, paras. (f) and (g) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsec. 94(1) are, in respect of the trust for its taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005, to be read as follows:

(f) a non-resident trust, if throughout the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time

(i) the trust is a trust governed by an employee benefit plan or is a trust described in paragraph (a.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1),

(ii) the plan or the specified trust is maintained primarily for the benefit of non-resident individuals,

(iii) the trust holds no restricted property, and

(iv) the plan or the specified trust provides no benefits, other than benefits in respect of

(A) services rendered to an employer by an employee of the employer, which employee was non-resident throughout the period during which the services were rendered,

(B) services rendered to an employer by an employee of the employer, other than services that were primarily

(I) rendered in Canada,

(II) rendered in connection with a business carried on by the employer in Canada, or

(III) a combination of services described in subclauses (I) and (II),

(C) services rendered to an employer by an employee, of the employer, in a particular calendar month where

(I) the employee was resident in Canada throughout no more than 60 of the 72 calendar months ending with the particular month, and

(II) the employee became a member of, or a beneficiary under, the plan or the specified trust (or a similar plan or specified trust for which the plan or the specified trust was substituted) before the end of the calendar month following the month in which the employee became resident in Canada, or

(D) any combination of services described by clauses (A) to (C);

(g) a non-resident trust that, throughout the particular period that began at the time it was created and ends at the particular time,

(i) has been operated exclusively for the purpose of administering or providing superannuation, pension, retirement or employee benefits,

(ii) has

(A) been maintained for the benefit of persons all or substantially all of whom are non-resident individuals, or

(B) been maintained for the benefit of persons

(I) the majority of whom are non-resident individuals, and

(II) all or substantially all of whom are employed by one corporation or by two or more corporations each of which is related to each other, and

(iii) has

(A) been resident in a country (other than Canada) the laws of which impose an income or profits tax, and been exempt, under the laws of that country, from the payment of income tax and profits tax to the government of that country in recognition of the purposes for which the trust is operated, or

(B) held cash or shares of the capital stock of one or more corporations referred to in subclause (ii)(B)(II) the value of which at any time in the particular period represents all or substantially all of the value of its property at that time, held no restricted property, and been governed by terms that provide, in respect of each individual who is a beneficiary under the trust and was resident in Canada at any time while employed by one of those corporations, for a transfer of property to be made by the trust to the individual in satisfaction of a right (other than a right under an arrangement to which subsection 7(2) or (6) applies) of the individual as a beneficiary under the trust only on or after the satisfaction of the conditions, if any, attached to that right;

(m) subpara. (f)(iv) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" is, in respect of a trust for its taxation years that end before 2009, to be read as follows:

(iv) throughout the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time, no benefits are provided under the trust, other than benefits in respect of

(A) qualifying services,

(B) particular services rendered before November 9, 2006 to an employer by an employee of the employer if the employee had on the day before November 9, 2006 a right (whether immediate or future or whether absolute or contingent) to receive the benefits in respect of the particular services pursuant to an agreement in writing

(I) that was entered into before November 9, 2006, and

(II) where the employee was resident in Canada on November 9, 2006, a copy of which was filed with a prescribed form with the Minister by or on behalf of the employer no later than April 30 of the first calendar year that begins after November 9, 2006, or

(C) any combination of services that are described in clause (A) or (B);

(n) if a trust elects, by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing on or before its filing-due date for its taxation year that includes the day on which Bill C-10 is assented to, that this para. apply, para. (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsec. 94(1) is, in respect of the trust for its taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005, to be read as follows:

(h) a non-resident trust that is, at the particular time, an eligible trust

(i) under which the interest of each beneficiary (in this subparagraph, determined without reference to subsection 248(25)) is, at all times that the interest exists during the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time, a specified fixed interest of the beneficiary in the trust, if at the particular time

(A) there are at least 150 beneficiaries each of whom holds a specified fixed interest in the trust with a fair market value of at least $500, and

(B) where in respect of a class of interests as a beneficiary under the trust, the total fair market value of interests of that class held by a resident contributor or by any other entity with whom the resident contributor does not deal at arm's length is more than 10% of the total fair market value of interests of that class, it is reasonable to conclude (determined by reference to all the circumstances including the terms of the trust, an intention, the laws of a country or the existence of an agreement, a memorandum, a letter of wishes or any other arrangement) that that resident contributor is a specified contributor to the trust, or

(ii) under which the interest of each beneficiary under the trust is, at all times that the interest exists during the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time, a specified fixed interest of the beneficiary in the trust, if in respect of the trust

(A) a prescribed form and a copy of the terms of the trust that apply at the particular time have been filed with the Minister by or on behalf of the trust on or before its filing due date for its taxation year that includes the particular time (or a later date that is acceptable to the Minister), and

(B) it is reasonable to conclude (determined by reference to all the circumstances including the terms of the trust, an intention, the laws of a country or the existence of an agreement, a memorandum, a letter of wishes or any other arrangement) that each resident contributor (other than an indirect contributor) to the trust at the particular time is a specified contributor to the trust at the particular time; or

(o) the expression "if the entity is an individual and the trust arose on and as a consequence of the death of the individual, 18 months before the contribution time" in the definition "non-resident time" in subsec. 94(1) is, in respect of contributions made before June 23, 2000, to be read as the expression "if the contribution time is before June 23, 2000, 18 months before the end of the trust's taxation year that includes the contribution time";

(p) the opening words of subpara. (b)(iii) of the definition "restricted property" in subsec. 94(1) are, for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005, to be read as follows:

(iii) the amount of any payment (under a right to receive, in any manner whatever and from any entity, amounts in respect of the indebtedness), or the value of such a right, is, directly or indirectly, determined primarily by one or more of the following criteria in respect of one or more properties of the other entity (or an entity with which the other entity does not deal at arm's length):

(q) the definition "restricted property" in subsec. 94(1) is, in respect of taxation years that begin on or before November 9, 2006, to be read without reference to its subpara. (a)(ii) and its cl. (b)(ii)(B);

(r) if a trust elects, by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing on or before its filing-due date for its taxation year that includes the day on which Bill C-10 is assented to, that this paragraph apply, in applying s. 94, in respect of the trust the definition "specified fixed interest" in subsec. 94(1) is, for its taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005, to be read as follows:

"specified fixed interest", at any time of an entity in a trust, means a capital interest of the entity in the trust if

(a) the interest includes, at that time, a right of the entity as a beneficiary under the trust to receive, at or after that time and directly from the trust, income or capital of the trust;

(b) the interest was acquired, at or before that time, from the trust by any entity, in circumstances that are described by subparagraph (2)(g)(ii);

(c) no right of the entity as a beneficiary under the trust to income or capital of the trust may cease to be a right of the entity (or the entity's legal representatives) otherwise than because of

(i) a gift of that interest made by the entity, or

(ii) a transaction or event under which the entity (or the entity's legal representatives) is entitled to receive an amount equal to the fair market value, immediately before that cessation, of the right; and

(d) the trust was not at any time at or before that time a personal trust.

(s) para. (e) of "specified property" in subsec. 94(1) is, in respect of taxation years that begin on or before November 9, 2006, to be read as follows:

(e) a right to acquire property described in any of paragraphs (a) to (d); and

(t) if a trust ceased to exist before October 31, 2003, the definition "specified time" in subsec. 94(1) is to be read in respect of the trust without reference to paragraph (b) of that definition;

(u) if s. 94 as amended applies to a trust for its taxation years that begin in 2001 and before 2007,

(i) para. 94(3)(e), subpara. 94(8)(a)(iv) and subparas. 94(11)(b)(iii) and (iv) do not apply to the trust, and

(ii) paras. 94(8)(c) and (d) and para. 94(11)(c) in their application to the trust are to be read without reference to the expression "(or the application of this section as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007)";

(v) subpara. 94(3)(a)(x) does not apply in determining on or before July 18, 2005 whether a foreign affiliate is a controlled foreign affiliate of a taxpayer;

(w) para. 94(4)(b) is

(i) subject to subpara. (ii), for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005, to be read without reference to "the definition "Canadian partnership" in subsection 102(1),", and

(ii) to be read as follows in its application to a transfer, by a trust, that occurred before February 28, 2004:

(b) subsections 70(6) and 73(1), paragraph 107.4(1)(c) other than subparagraph (i) of it and paragraph (a) of the definition "mutual fund trust" in subsection 132(6);

(x) if a trust was, for its last taxation year that began before 2007 (or, where s. 94 applies to a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, for its last taxation year that began before the first such taxation year), deemed by para. 94(1)(c) (as it read in its application to that taxation year) to be resident in Canada, paras. 94(4)(d) and (e) do not apply to the trust for the period that starts immediately before the end of that last taxation year and that ends immediately after the beginning of its first taxation year that begins after 2006 (or, where s. 94 applies to a taxation year of the trust that begins before 2007, for the period that starts immediately before the end of the last taxation year beginning before the first such taxation year and that ends immediately after the beginning of that first such taxation year), unless during that period a change in the trustees of the trust occurred;

(y) para. 94(4)(f) is in its application to a transfer by a trust that occurred before February 28, 2004 to be read as follows:

(f) determining the residency of the transferee in applying subparagraph (f)(ii) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1);

(From 2000 until Nov. 9, 2006, these rules were expected to come into force Jan. 1, 2003. Brian Ernewein of the Dept. of Finance indicated at the Cdn Tax Foundation annual conference on Nov. 28, 2006 that taxpayers who filed in past years based on the new rules should be allowed to refile under the old rules, and that Finance would support an amendment permitting this.)

The definitions "arm's length transfer" and "excluded property" in subsec. 94(1) amended to substitute "designated stock exchange" for "prescribed stock exchange"

by S.C. 2007, c. 35 (Bill C-28, Royal Assent December 14, 2007), para. 100(2)(b), applicable after December 13, 2007.

Notice of Ways and Means Motion, federal budget, Feb. 16, 1999: Non-resident trusts and foreign-based investment funds

(8) That the provisions of the Act governing the taxation of

(a) trust beneficiaries and non-resident trusts, and

(b) taxpayers resident in Canada who hold interests in foreign-based investment funds

be modified in accordance with proposals described in the budget documents tabled by the Minister of Finance in the House of Commons on February 16, 1999.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, Feb. 16, 1999: Taxation of trusts — Background

Trusts that are resident in Canada are subject to tax in Canada annually on their undistributed income.

Beneficiaries of resident trusts are taxable on distributions received from such trusts, to the extent that the distributions are made out of the income of the trust. Distributions made out of the capital of the trust are tax-free. As a result, the Canadian tax base is protected.

Generally, non-resident trusts are not taxable in Canada and income can be accumulated in such trusts on a tax-deferred basis. When such trusts pay little or no foreign tax on their accumulated income and capital gains, taxpayers making use of such trusts may benefit either from a deferral of tax or complete avoidance of tax. Avoidance occurs where the accumulated income is transformed into the capital of the trust, which is distributed to the Canadian beneficiaries tax-free.

Issue

The anti-avoidance rules in the Act attempt to tax income earned by non-resident trusts in certain circumstances in order to ensure that they are not used to defer Canadian tax on the income accumulating in the trusts. Current rules apply only to non-resident trusts with a Canadian beneficiary. However, these rules are not fully effective and relatively little of such income is taxed in Canada.

Canadian residents are able to transfer funds to non-resident trusts under circumstances designed to circumvent the application of existing anti-avoidance rules. The trust regimes in several tax-haven jurisdictions have been specifically modified in an attempt to permit Canadians to avoid the application of the anti-avoidance rules. A feature of such schemes is to disguise the fact that the non-resident trust has a Canadian resident beneficiary. A number of tax-haven jurisdictions have modified their trust laws so that no beneficiaries need to be designated, thus facilitating tax planning by Canadians in order to defer the taxation of the income accumulating in the non-resident trust. Arrangements between the Canadian transferors and the trustee ensure that the Canadian transferors retain effective control of the trust, or are able to designate who may ultimately receive capital of the trust, including its accumulated income.

Non-resident trusts can therefore offer higher-income Canadians the opportunity to defer or avoid Canadian tax on investment income that would otherwise be taxable in Canada.

[See also the portions reproduced under 94.1(1) — ed.]

Consultations will also be initiated on the following proposed modifications to the tax rules governing non-resident trusts:

- That where a Canadian resident transfers or loans property to a non-resident trust, the trust be treated as being resident in Canada and be taxed on all of its undistributed income, subject to a number of exceptions noted below. The Canadian resident transferor would be jointly (with the trust) liable for tax. Where a foreign income tax is imposed in respect of the undistributed income of the trust, a foreign tax credit would be provided. The proposed rules would apply whether or not the trust has a Canadian-resident beneficiary, since in practice it may not be possible to determine whether the property in the trust will be distributed to Canadian beneficiaries.
- That the proposed changes also deal with the distributions from trusts. Distributions out of current income of the trust would be taxed in the hands of the beneficiaries. As well, distributions out of any previously untaxed accumulated income of the trust would be subject to tax.
- That the following trusts be excluded from the application of the proposed rules:
  - trusts resident in the United States and subject to United States tax provisions;
  - non-resident trusts set up prior to immigrants' arrival in Canada, for a five-year period after immigration; and
  - non-resident trusts set up for the benefit of individuals with disabilities or children of divorced parents where the trust and beneficiaries are resident within the same country.
- Additional exceptions could be contemplated to remove from the rules non-resident trusts that are clearly not used to avoid or defer Canadian tax, such as bona fide foreign charitable trusts.
- The proposed rules would apply to any taxation year commencing after 1999, with respect to non-resident trusts to which a Canadian resident transfers or loans property on or after February 16, 1999, subject to the exceptions noted above. Other non-resident trusts to which a transfer or a loan of property was made by a Canadian resident before February 16, 1999, would be subject to the proposed rules for taxation years commencing after 2000.

The proposed changes are consistent with Revenue Canada devoting more resources to the audit of taxpayers whose investment activities extend beyond Canada.

94.1 (1) Offshore investment fund property — Where in a taxation year a taxpayer, other than a non-resident-owned investment corporation, holds or has an interest in property (in this section referred to as an "offshore investment fund property")

(a) that is a share of the capital stock of, an interest in, or a debt of, a non-resident entity (other than a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer or a prescribed non-resident entity) or an interest in or a right or option to acquire such a share, interest or debt, and

(b) that may reasonably be considered to derive its value, directly or indirectly, primarily from portfolio investments of that or any other non-resident entity in

(i) shares of the capital stock of one or more corporations,

(ii) indebtedness or annuities,

(iii) interests in one or more corporations, trusts, partnerships, organizations, funds or entities,

(iv) commodities,

(v) real estate,

(vi) Canadian or foreign resource properties,

(vii) currency of a country other than Canada,

(viii) rights or options to acquire or dispose of any of the foregoing, or

(ix) any combination of the foregoing, and it may reasonably be concluded, having regard to all the circumstances, including

(c) the nature, organization and operation of any non-resident entity and the form of, and the terms and conditions governing, the taxpayer's interest in, or connection with, any non-resident entity,

(d) the extent to which any income, profits and gains that may reasonably be considered to be earned or accrued, whether directly or indirectly, for the benefit of any non-resident entity are subject to an income or profits tax that is significantly less than the income tax that would be applicable to such income, profits and gains if they were earned directly by the taxpayer, and

(e) the extent to which the income, profits and gains of any non-resident entity for any fiscal period are distributed in that or the immediately following fiscal period, that one of the main reasons for the taxpayer acquiring, holding or having the interest in such property was to derive a benefit from portfolio investments in assets described in any of subparagraphs (b)(i) to (ix) in such a manner that the taxes, if any, on the income, profits and gains from such assets for any particular year are significantly less than the tax that would have been applicable under this Part if the income, profits and gains had been earned directly by the taxpayer, there shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year the amount, if any, by which

(f) the total of all amounts each of which is the product obtained when

(i) the designated cost to the taxpayer of the offshore investment fund property at the end of a month in the year is multiplied by

(ii) the quotient obtained when the prescribed rate of interest for the period including that month is divided by 12

exceeds

(g) the taxpayer's income for the year (other than a capital gain) from the offshore investment fund property determined without reference to this subsection.

Proposed Amendment — 94.1(1)

See at end of 94.1.

Related Provisions: 53(1)(m) — Addition to ACB; 94(1)(c)(i)(D) — Income under 94.1 included in income of offshore trust; 95(1)"foreign accrual property income"C — Application to determination of FAPI; 261(5)(f)(ii) — Functional currency reporting — meaning of "currency of a country other than Canada".

Regulations: 4301(c) (prescribed rate of interest for 94.1(1)(f)(ii)); to date, no prescribed non-resident entities prescribed for 94.1(1)(a).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-451R: Deemed disposition and acquisition on ceasing to be or becoming resident in Canada.

(2) Definitions — In this section,

"designated cost" to a taxpayer at any time in a taxation year of an offshore investment fund property that the taxpayer holds or has an interest in means the amount determined by the formula

$$A + B + C + D$$

where

A is the cost amount to the taxpayer of the property at that time (determined without reference to paragraphs 53(1)(m) and (q), subparagraph 53(2)(c)(i.3), paragraphs 53(2)(g) and (g.1) and section 143.2),

B is, where an additional amount has been made available by a person to another person after 1984 and before that time, whether by way of gift, loan, payment for a share, transfer of property at less than its fair market value or otherwise, in circumstances such that it may reasonably be concluded that one of the main reasons for so making the additional amount available to the other person was to increase the value of the property, the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which such an additional amount exceeds any increase in the cost amount to the taxpayer of the property by virtue of that additional amount,

C is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount included in respect of the offshore investment fund property by virtue of this section in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year, and

D is

(a) where the taxpayer has held or has had the interest in the property at all times since the end of 1984, the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at the end of 1984 exceeds the cost amount to the taxpayer of the property at the end of 1984, or

(b) in any other case, the total of

(i) the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at the particular time the taxpayer acquired the property exceeds the cost amount to the taxpayer of the property at the particular time, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that would have been included in respect of the property because of this section in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that began before June 20, 1996 if the cost to the taxpayer of the property were equal to the fair market value of the property at the particular time

exceeds

(B) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that was included in respect of the property because of this section in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that began before June 20, 1996, except that the designated cost of an offshore investment fund property that is a prescribed offshore investment fund property is nil;

Related Provisions: 94.1(3) — Pre-Feb. 15/84 property.

Regulations: 6900 (prescribed offshore investment fund property).

"non-resident entity" means a corporation that is not resident in Canada, a partnership, organization, fund or entity that is not resident or is not situated in Canada or a trust with respect to which the rules in paragraph 94(1)(c) or (d) apply.

(3) Interpretation — Where subsection (1) is applied with respect to an offshore investment fund property that was

(a) held by the taxpayer on February 15, 1984,

(b) received as a stock dividend in respect of a share of the capital stock of a non-resident entity held by the taxpayer on February 15, 1984,

(c) received as a stock dividend in respect of a share of the capital stock of a non-resident entity that the taxpayer had previously received as described in paragraph (b), or

(d) substituted for a property held by the taxpayer on February 15, 1984 pursuant to an arrangement that existed on that date, the reference to "1984" in the descriptions of B and D in the definition "designated cost" in subsection (2) shall be read as a reference to "1985".

Definitions [s. 94.1]: "amount", "annuity" — 248(1); "capital gain" — 39(1)(a), 248(1); "controlled foreign affiliate" — 95(1), 248(1); "corporation" — 248(1), Interpretation Act 35(1); "cost amount" — 248(1); "currency of a country other than Canada" — 261(5)(f)(ii); "designated cost" — 94.1(2); "fiscal period" — 249(2), 249.1; "foreign affiliate" — 95(1), 248(1); "foreign resource property" — 66(15), 248(1); "immovable" — Quebec Civil Code art. 900–907; "investment corporation" — 130(3), 248(1); "non-resident" — 248(1); "non-resident entity" — 94.1(2); "offshore investment fund property" — 94.1(1); "prescribed" — 248(1); "prescribed rate" — Reg. 4301; "property", "share" — 248(1); "qualifying interest" — 95(2)(m); "taxation year" — 249; "taxpayer" — 248(1); "trust" — 104(1), 248(1), (3).

Proposed Amendment — 94.1–94.4

Technical Notes: OVERVIEW

Existing Rules

Existing section 94.1 applies where a taxpayer has invested in an offshore investment fund and one of the main reasons for the investment is to reduce or defer the tax liability that would have applied to the income generated from the underlying assets of the fund if such income had been earned directly by the taxpayer. In these circumstances, existing section 94.1 generally requires an amount to be included in computing the taxpayer's income from the investment. This amount is determined, in general terms, by multiplying the cost amount of the taxpayer's investment by a factor based on interest rates prescribed under Part XLIII of the Income Tax Regulations.

New Rules

Section 94.1 is replaced by provisions in new sections 94.1 to 94.4, which contain rules governing the tax treatment of interests in foreign investment entities (FIEs), tracking entities and foreign insurance policies.

In computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year, new subsection 94.1(4) will generally require an amount to be included in computing the taxpayer's income from the investment. This amount will be determined, in general terms, by multiplying the designated cost of the taxpayer's investment by a factor based on interest rates prescribed under paragraph 4301(b) of the Income Tax Regulations.

If a taxpayer elects and has sufficient information to comply, either new subsection 94.2(4) or 94.3(4) will apply in place of the rules in subsection 94.1(4) for computing income from the investment. However, in the case of interest in a tracking entity, subsection 94.3(4) will not be available, and in the case of an interest in a foreign insurance policy, only subsection 94.2(4) will apply.

Under subsection 94.2(4), a taxpayer must take into account the annual increase or decrease in the fair market value of the taxpayer's interest in computing the taxpayer's income from the interest.

Under subsection 94.3(4), a taxpayer is required to include the taxpayer's share of the FIE's income for each FIE taxation year that ends in the taxpayer's taxation year.

Section 94.4 is designed to prevent double taxation with respect to amounts included in income under any of sections 94.1 to 94.3.

New sections 94.1 to 94.4 apply to taxation years that begin after 2006.

Note that under the coming-into-force provision for new sections 94.1 to 94.4, an election or form (but for greater certainty not including a return of income) referred to in any of new sections 94.1 to 94.3 made by a taxpayer is deemed to have been filed with the Minister of National Revenue

(i) on a timely basis if it is filed with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the day of Royal Assent, and

(ii) in the taxpayer's return of income for the taxpayer's taxation year identified by the taxpayer in the election, if it is filed with the Minister of National Revenue in writing in the taxpayer's return of income for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the day of Royal Assent.

For more detail on filing obligations in respect of returns of income, contact the Canada Revenue Agency.

The table below provides an overview of new sections 94.1 to 94.3 and related provisions.

Issue	Summary	References
1. Who is subject to the new FIE rules?	A. All taxpayers, except exempt taxpayers. Except as indicated in (C), below, FIE rules do not apply to non-resident taxpayers.	S. 94.1(3), 94.2(3), (9) and (11). "Exempt taxpayer" (s. 94.1(1)). Non-resident taxpayers: see also s. 94.1(3) and 94.2(5).
	B. Partnerships with members resident in Canada must allocate FIE income to those members.	Section 96, including exception in s. 96(1.9). See also s. 94.2(6) for application to cases where partnership members become resident in Canada.
	C. Controlled foreign affiliates.	New s. 95(2)(g.3).
2. What property is subject to the new FIE rules?	A. If subsection 94.1(3) applies, participating interests (other than exempt interests) in foreign investment entities. However, if no taxation year of a FIE has ended in the taxpayer's taxation year, the FIE rules do not apply to the taxpayer for the taxpayer's year in respect of the FIE.	S. 94.1(3) and the following definitions in s. 94.1(1): "entity", "non-resident entity", "foreign investment entity", "exempt interest" and "participating interest".
	B. If 94.1(3) does not apply, interests in tracking entities for which subsection 94.2(9) applies. Section 94.3 not available for such interests.	S. 94.1(4) and 94.2(3) and (9). The definition "tracking entity" in 94.2(1). See also amended s. 91(1).
	C. Interests in certain foreign insurance policies. This property is subject only to s. 94.2, not s. 94.1, 94.3 and 94.4.	S. 94.2(3), (10) and (11).
3. What is the difference in the tax treatment of FIE interests between ss. 94.1, 94.2 and 94.3?	A. Section 94.1. Investor's income inclusion based on a prescribed rate of return.	S. 94.1(4).
	B. Section 94.2. Full appreciation/decline in fair market value of the investment is recognized on an annual basis.	S. 94.2(4). S. 94.2(20).
	C. Section 94.3. Investor includes its "share" of a FIE's income (e.g., does not include FIE's share of unrealized gains).	S. 94.3(4).
4. How will foreign affiliates of taxpayers resident in Canada be treated under new FIE rules?	Subject to s. 94.2(9) (interests in tracking entities), a taxpayer's share of the capital stock of a controlled foreign affiliate is exempt from the new FIE rules. In certain cases, a taxpayer can elect to have a foreign affiliate treated as a controlled foreign affiliate. Otherwise, the FIE rules will apply to the interest in the affiliate.	Paragraph (a) of the definition "exempt interest". Paragraphs 94.1(2)(h) and (i).
5. If a non-resident corporation that is a FIE pays out dividends, how are these dividends taxed?	A. General principle: existing rules apply.	Existing s. 90 and 113.
	B. Relief provided to prevent double taxation. This relief applies to taxable distribution from other FIEs (e.g., trusts).	S. 94.4.
6. In what circumstances is a taxpayer subject to any of sections 94.1 to 94.3, respectively?	A. Requirement to use s. 94.1 where insufficient information to use s. 94.2 or s. 94.3.	S. 94.1(4), 94.2(3), 94.3(3).
	B. Election to use s. 94.2 available — interest must have readily ascertainable fair market value.	S. 94.2(2) and (3).
	C. Requirement to use s. 94.2 in the case of interests in foreign insurance policies.	S. 94.2(3), (10) and (11).
	D. Election to use s. 94.3 available (but not if 94.2(9) applies to the interest) — must have sufficient information.	S. 94.3(2) and (3).

94.1 Foreign investment entities — imputed income — (1) Definitions — The definitions in this subsection apply in this section and sections 94.2 to 94.4.

"arm's length interest", at any time in respect of a taxpayer, means a particular participating interest, of the taxpayer, in a non-resident entity, if the following conditions are met:

(a) it is reasonable to conclude that

(i) there are at least 150 persons each of which holds at that time participating interests in the non-resident entity that, at that time,

(A) are identical to the particular participating interest, and

(B) have a total fair market value of at least $500, or

(ii) participating interests, in the non-resident entity, that are identical to the participating interest are listed on a designated[14] stock exchange, and those identical participating interests were traded on at least 10 consecutive trading days on that stock exchange in the period that begins 30 days before that time;

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at that time, of the particular participating interest (or of a participating interest in the non-resident entity that is identical to the particular participating interest and that is held, at that time, by the taxpayer or an entity or individual with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length) does not exceed 10% of the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at that time, of a participating interest in the non-resident entity that is held, at that time, by any entity or individual and that is identical to the particular participating interest; and

(c) it is reasonable to conclude that participating interests in the non-resident entity that are identical to the particular participating interest

(i) can normally be acquired by and sold by members of the public in the open market, or

(ii) can be acquired from and sold to the non-resident entity by members of the public.

Technical Notes: The definition "arm's length interest" is relevant in determining whether a taxpayer's particular participating interest is, under paragraph (e) of the definition "exempt interest" in subsection 94.1(1), an exempt interest and whether an interest has at any time a "readily obtainable fair market value" as defined in subsection 94.2(1). For more information, see the commentary on those definitions.

A particular participating interest in a particular non-resident entity is an arm's length interest at any time only if

- either
  - it is reasonable to conclude that there are at least 150 persons each of which holds participating interests in the particular non-resident entity that, at that time, are identical to the particular participating interest, and have a total fair market value of at least $500, or
  - participating interests, in the non-resident entity, that are identical to the participating interest are listed on a prescribed stock exchange, and those interests have, at that time, a "readily obtainable fair market value" (as that term is defined in subsection 94.2(1)),
- the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at that time, of the particular participating interest or of a participating interest in the non-resident entity that is identical to the particular participating interest and that is held, at that time, by the taxpayer or an entity or individual with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length does not exceed 10% of the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at that time, of a participating interest in the non-resident entity that is held, at that time, by any entity or individual and that is identical to the particular participating interest, and
- it is reasonable to conclude that the participating interests in the non-resident entity that are identical to the particular participating interest can
  - normally be acquired and sold by members of the public in the open market, or
  - can be acquired from and sold to the non-resident entity by members of the public.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Aug. 14, 2003:

Dear [xxx]:

Thank you for your letter of May 12, 2003, concerning the application of the provisions contained in the legislative proposals on foreign investment entities ("FIE proposals") that were tabled as a Notice of Ways and Means Motion on October 11, 2002.

Under the FIE Proposals, a taxpayer would generally be required to include in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year certain amounts — determined under proposed section 94.1 or 94.2 of the Income Tax Act — in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer in a FIE. However, these rules generally would not apply to a participating interest that is an exempt interest, as defined in proposed subsection 94.1(1) of the Act, of the taxpayer in a FIE. Proposed paragraph (e) of that definition would treat as an exempt interest a participating interest where a number of conditions are met, including that interests that are identical to it are "widely held and actively traded".

For the purposes of applying sections 94.1 to 94.3 in respect of a taxpayer's participating interest, in a non-resident entity, proposed paragraph 94.1(2)(f) of the Act is intended to provide an exhaustive definition of when participating interests are "widely held and actively traded". More particularly, in addition to the requirements of subparagraphs 94.1(2)(f)(i) and (ii), proposed subparagraph 94.1(2)(f)(iii) would require that the participating interests meet certain liquidity requirements and, in general terms, be qualified for distribution to the general public under the securities law of the country under the laws of which the nonresident entity that issued the participating interests is governed and was formed or organized.

In your letter, you describe an arrangement involving a non-resident entity the participating interests in which would be qualified for public distribution in Canada and could be purchased and sold by Canadian taxpayers in the open market. However, the participating interests would not be qualified for public distribution in the jurisdiction under which the laws of which the particular non-resident entity would be governed and formed or organized. As a result, a taxpayer's participating interest in the entity would not qualify as an exempt interest of the taxpayer under the FIE proposals.

We are prepared to recommend a modification to the requirements contained in proposed subparagraph 94.1(2)(f)(iii). In particular, the rule contained in that subparagraph under the FIE proposals would be replaced by a rule requiring that — in applying the definition in respect of a taxpayer's participating interest in a non-resident entity — participating interests in the non-resident entity, that are identical to the taxpayer's participating interest, can normally be acquired and sold by members of the public in the open market. [This is now in 94.1(1)"arm's length interest" — ed.]

Of course, we cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, we trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Thank you for writing.

Len Farber, General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 1, 2003:

Dear [xxx]:

I am responding to your letter dated November 18, 2003, concerning the application of paragraph (c) of the definition "arm's length interest" in subsection 94.1(1) of the Income Tax Act, found in the legislative proposals released on October 30, 2003 dealing with foreign investment entities. The definition "arm's length interest" is relevant in determining whether a taxpayer's interest in a non-resident entity is an "exempt interest" for purposes of the foreign investment entity provisions.

You have asked that proposed paragraph (c) of the definition be modified so that it applies in circumstances similar to those described in clause 94.1(2)(f)(iii)(B) of the previous iteration of the proposals, released on October 11, 2002. The differences between paragraph (c) of the definition "arm's length interest" of the 2003 legislative proposals and clause 94.1(2)(f)(iii)(B) of the 2002 legislative proposals reflect an attempt to simplify the language of the provisions. There was no intention to change the scope of that clause.

As a result of the uncertainty that this wording change has created, particularly in its relationship to similar wording in other sections of the Act and how those sections are administered, we will recommend that the wording of paragraph (c) of the definition "arm's length interest" of the October 2003 legislative proposals be modified to reflect the wording of clause 94.1(2)(f)(iii)(B) of the 2002 legislative proposals. As a result, a taxpayer would be able to comply with paragraph (c) of the definition "arm's length interest" in respect of its interest in a non-resident entity if it were reasonable to conclude that participating interests in the non-resident entity that are identical to the taxpayer's participating interest can normally be purchased from and sold to the non-resident entity by members of the public.

We thank you for bring[ing] this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber, General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Related Provisions: 94.1(2)(v) — Anti-avoidance rule re 150 persons; 248(12) — Identical properties.

[14]Changed from "prescribed" by S.C. 2007, c. 35, subsec. 100(2).

"beneficiary" has, except for the purpose of paragraph 94.2(11)(e), the meaning assigned by subsection 94(1).

Technical Notes: A reference in sections 94.1 to 94.4 to a "beneficiary" carries, except for the purpose of paragraph 94.2(11)(e) (i.e., a beneficiary in respect of an interest in an insurance policy), the meaning assigned by subsection 94(1). For more information, see the commentary on the definition "beneficiary" in subsection 94(1).

"carrying value", at any time of property of a particular entity in respect of a taxpayer, means

(a) the fair market value at that time of the property, if

(i) the particular entity is an entity (referred to in this subparagraph as the "first entity") in which the taxpayer holds at that time a participating interest or is another entity in which the first entity holds at that time a direct or indirect interest,

(ii) the taxpayer elects, by notifying the Minister in writing in the taxpayer's return of income for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes that time to have this paragraph apply to all of the particular entity's property, and

(iii) the property is valued for the purpose of the particular entity's financial statements as of that time; and

(b) in any other case, the amount at which the property is valued for the purpose of the particular entity's financial statements as of that time.

Technical Notes: In applying sections 94.1 to 94.4 in respect of a taxpayer, the "carrying value" of a property held by a particular entity at any time means:

- the fair market value of the property at that time, if
  - the particular entity is an entity (referred to in this note as the "first entity") in which the taxpayer holds at that time a participating interest or is another entity in which the first entity holds at that time a direct or indirect interest,
  - the taxpayer elects, by notifying the Minister in writing in the taxpayer's return of income for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes that time to have this paragraph apply to all of the particular entity's property, and
  - the property is property that is valued for the purpose of the entity's "financial statements" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) as of that time; and
- in any other case, the amount at which the property is valued for the purpose of the entity's financial statements as of that time.

The carrying value of property is relevant primarily for the purpose of determining whether a non-resident entity is a FIE. For more information, see the commentary on the definitions "foreign investment entity" and "financial statements".

It should also be noted that paragraph 94.1(2)(j) provides a "look-through" rule that can affect the properties considered to be owned by an entity and the carrying values of the entity's properties. In particular, the rule in paragraph 94.1(2)(j) can impute to an entity both ownership of property otherwise owned by certain other entities in which the entity has a significant interest, and the "net accounting income" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) and certain business activities of such other entities derived from such property. For the purposes of the look-through rule, the time at which the determination of carrying value is made is the end of the last "taxation year" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) of the first tier non-resident entity (whether lower tier entities share the same taxation year or not) that ends in a relevant taxation years of an electing taxpayer. For more information, see the commentary to new paragraph 94.1(2)(j) and the definition "taxation year".

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation; 94.1(1)"financial statements" — Meaning of "financial statements"; 94.1(2)(j)(ii)A(A) — Where election made; 96(1)(d)(iii)(I), (J) — Notification by partnership; 96(3) — Election under subpara. (a)(ii) by members of partnership.

"designated cost", to a taxpayer at any time of a participating interest held, at that time, by the taxpayer in a non-resident entity, is the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the cost amount to the taxpayer of the participating interest at that time (determined without reference to subsection 47(1), paragraphs 53(1)(m) and (q) and 53(2)(g) and (g.1) and section 143.2);

B is an amount included in respect of the participating interest because of this section in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that ends after 2006 (or, where this definition applies to the taxpayer in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer that ends before 2007, for a taxation year of the taxpayer that ends on or after the first day of the first such taxation year in respect of which this definition applies) and before that time;

C is, if the participating interest was an offshore investment fund property (within the meaning assigned by this subsection as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007 or, where this definition applies in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins before 2007, as it read in its application to taxation years of the taxpayer that began before the first such taxation year) of the taxpayer at the end of the taxpayer's last taxation year that began before 2007 (or, where this definition applies in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer that began before 2007, at the end of the taxpayer's last taxation year that began before the first such taxation year in respect of which this definition applies), the total of all amounts each of which is the amount determined, in respect of the offshore investment fund property for that last taxation year, for B, C or D in the definition "designated cost" in subsection (2) as it read in its application to that last taxation year;

D is the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the participating interest exceeds the cost amount to the taxpayer of the participating interest at the beginning of the first taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which subsection (4) applied to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest;

E is, if one or more particular amounts has been made available by a person to another person after the last 2006 taxation year of the non-resident entity (or, where this definition applies in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins before 2007, after the last taxation year of the non-resident entity that begins before the first taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which this definition applies) and before that time (whether by way of gift, loan, payment for a share, transfer of property at less than its fair market value or otherwise) in circumstances in which it can reasonably be concluded that one of the main reasons for making the particular amount available to the other person was to increase the value of the participating interest, the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which each particular amount exceeds any increase in the cost amount to the taxpayer of the participating interest because of that particular amount;

F is, if the participating interest is acquired by the taxpayer after 2006 (or, where this definition applies in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins before 2007, acquired on or after the first day of the first taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which this definition applies), the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the participating interest at the time it was so acquired exceeds the cost amount to the taxpayer of the participating interest at the time it was so acquired; and

G is the amount, if any, by which the cost amount to the taxpayer of the participating interest exceeds the fair market value of the participating interest at the beginning of the first taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which subsection (4) applied to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest.

Technical Notes: In computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from a participating interest of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity, where subsection 94.1(4) applies, the taxpayer will be required to include the amount, determined under that subsection, in computing the taxpayer's income from the investment. That amount is determined by multiplying the "designated cost" of the taxpayer's investment by a factor based on the interest rate prescribed under paragraph 4301(b) of the Income Tax Regulations.

The designated cost to a taxpayer at any time of a participating interest held at that time by the taxpayer in a non-resident entity, is determined, in general terms, as follows:

- ADD the cost amount to the taxpayer of the participating interest at that time (determined without reference to certain provisions of the Act),
- ADD the amount of any previous income inclusions, of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest, arising because of the application of subsection 94.1(4) for a previous taxation year that ends after 2006,

- ADD, if the participating interest was an offshore investment fund property (as defined in subsection 94.1(1) as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007) of the taxpayer at the end of the taxpayer's last taxation year that began before 2007, certain amounts required to be included in computing the designated cost under "old" subsection 94.1(2),

- ADD, if the participating interest was acquired by the taxpayer before 2007, and was not an offshore investment fund property of the taxpayer at the end of the taxpayer's last taxation year that began before 2007, the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the participating interest at the end of that last taxation year exceeds the cost amount to the taxpayer of the participating interest at the end of that last taxation year,

- ADD, if one or more particular amounts has been made available by a person to another person after the last 2006 taxation year of the non-resident entity and before that time for the main purpose of increasing the value of the taxpayer's participating interest, the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which each particular amount exceeds any increase in the cost amount to the taxpayer of the participating interest because of that particular amount,

- ADD, if the participating interest is acquired by the taxpayer after 2006, the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the participating interest at the time it was so acquired exceeds the cost amount to the taxpayer of the participating interest at the time it was so acquired, and

- SUBTRACT, if the participating interest was last acquired by the taxpayer before 2007, and was not an offshore investment fund property (as defined in subsection 94.1(1) as it read in its application to taxation years that began before 2007) of the taxpayer at the end of the taxpayer's last taxation year that began before 2007, the amount, if any, by which the cost amount to the taxpayer of the participating interest at the end of that last taxation year exceeds the fair market value of the participating interest at the end of that last taxation year.

Related Provisions: 94.1(2)(c) — Rules for determining designated cost; 94.1(4)A — Application of designated cost in calculation of income.

"entity" includes an association, a corporation, a fund, a joint venture, an organization, a partnership, a syndicate and a trust, but does not include a natural person.

Technical Notes: An entity includes an association, a corporation, a fund, a joint venture, an organization, a partnership, a syndicate and a trust. It does not include a natural person.

"exempt business", of an entity at any time, means a business — other than a business carried on by the entity principally with entities or individuals with whom the entity does not deal at arm's length, a business carried on by a trust that is an exempt foreign trust because of paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1) and a business carried on by the entity as a member of a partnership, which entity is not a qualifying member of the partnership or would not be such a qualifying member if the entity were a person — that is carried on by the entity at that time and that, throughout the period (in its taxation year that includes that time) during which the business was carried on by the entity, is

(a) carried on by the entity as a foreign bank, a trust company, a credit union or an insurance corporation, the activities of which business are regulated under

(i) the laws of

(A) in the case of each country in which the business is carried on through a permanent establishment, as defined by regulation, that country, or a political subdivision of that country, and

(B) the country, or the political subdivision of a country, under whose laws the entity is governed, and any of exists, was (unless the entity was continued in any jurisdiction) formed or organized, or was last continued,

(ii) the laws of the country, or of a political subdivision of the country, in which country the business is principally carried on, or

(iii) the laws (referred to in clause (B) as the "regulating laws") of a country that is a member of the European Union, or a political subdivision of that country, under whose laws another corporation is governed, and any of exists, was (unless the other corporation was continued in any jurisdiction) formed or organized, or was last continued, if

(A) the entity is a corporation that is related to the other corporation, and

(B) the business is principally carried on in a country, that is a member of the European Union, the laws of which, or the laws of a political subdivision of which, recognize the regulating laws; or

(b) a business the principal purpose of which is to derive income from

(i) the development and exploitation of Canadian resource property, of foreign resource property, of timber resource property or of any combination of them,

(ii) the leasing or licensing of property that the entity or another entity related to the entity manufactured, produced, developed or purchased and developed,

(iii) the leasing of machinery or equipment that is owned by the entity and that is used by the lessee principally for the purpose of manufacturing or processing goods,

(iv) the sale of real or immovable property developed by the entity, an entity related to the entity or a partnership of which the entity or the related entity is a qualifying member (or would be a qualifying member if the entity were a person),

(v) the rental of real or immovable property held by the entity or a partnership of which the entity is a qualifying member (or would be a qualifying member if the entity were a person), if the management, maintenance and other services in respect of the property are provided primarily by the employees of

(A) the entity,

(B) a corporation related to the entity,

(C) the partnership,

(D) a qualifying member (or an entity that would be a qualifying member if the entity were a person) of the partnership, or

(E) any combination of employers described in clauses (A) to (D), or

(vi) a combination of businesses described in subparagraphs (iv) and (v).

Technical Notes: The definition "exempt business" is relevant in determining whether a "non-resident entity" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) is carrying on an "investment business" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) and whether the non-resident is not a FIE. An investment business does not include an exempt business.

An exempt business of an entity at any time, in general terms, is a business — other than a business carried on by the entity principally with entities or individuals with whom the entity does not deal at arm's length, a business carried on by a trust that is an exempt foreign trust because of paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1), and a business carried on by the entity as a member, of a partnership, that is not a qualifying member of the partnership, or that would not be such a qualifying member if the entity were a person — that is carried on by the entity at that time and that, throughout the period (in its taxation year that includes that time) is

- carried on by the entity as a foreign bank, a trust company, a credit union or an insurance corporation, or

- a business the principal purpose of which is to derive income from certain real estate businesses, certain leasing or licensing businesses, or businesses involved in the development of foreign and Canadian resource properties and timber resources.

The reference in this definition to a "permanent establishment" is intended to carry the meaning of that expression assigned by proposed section 8202 of the Income Tax Regulations. Proposed section 8202 of the Regulations was released in draft form as part of the February 27, 2004 release of draft technical amendments.

The reference in this definition to a "qualifying member" of a partnership is intended to carry the substantive meaning of that expression assigned by proposed subsection 248(1), contained in the December 20, 2002 legislative proposals relating to income tax. For more detail on the proposed definition "qualifying member" in subsection 248(1), see that provision and its commentary in the legislative proposals and explanatory notes published on February 27, 2004.

For more information generally, see the commentaries on the definitions "foreign investment entity" and "investment business" in subsection 94.1(1).

Regulations: 8202 (permanent establishment; to be prescribed).

"exempt interest", of a taxpayer in a non-resident entity at any time, means a participating interest of the taxpayer, in the non-resident entity, if

(a) the non-resident entity is throughout the period, in the non-resident entity's taxation year that includes that time, during which the taxpayer held the participating interest,

(i) a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer,

(ii) a qualifying entity that is a foreign affiliate (other than a controlled foreign affiliate) of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 95(2)(m)), or

(iii) a partnership;

(b) the taxpayer is, throughout its taxation year that includes that time, a financial institution (within the meaning assigned by subsection 142.2(1)) and the participating interest is, at that time,

(i) a mark-to-market property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 142.2(1)), or

(ii) a property described in an inventory of a business of the taxpayer, which inventory is valued, in computing the taxpayer's income for that taxation year from the business, in accordance with section 1801 of the Income Tax Regulations;

(c) the participating interest is throughout the period, in the non-resident entity's taxation year that includes that time, during which the taxpayer held the participating interest, a right

(i) under an agreement referred to in subsection 7(1), to acquire a share of the capital stock of the non-resident entity,

(ii) granted by the non-resident entity, or another entity with which the non-resident entity does not deal at arm's length, and

(iii) acquired by the taxpayer, at a time when the taxpayer dealt at arm's length with the entity that granted the right, solely because the taxpayer was an employee of an entity referred to in subparagraph (ii);

(d) both

(i) the non-resident entity is throughout the period, in the non-resident entity's taxation year that includes that time, during which the taxpayer held the participating interest, an entity (other than a trust that is an exempt foreign trust because of paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1)) all or substantially all of the carrying value of the property of which is attributable to the carrying value of properties that are shares of the capital stock of a corporation (that is not a foreign investment entity) that employs the taxpayer or that is related to another corporation that employs the taxpayer, and

(ii) an amount that is all or substantially all of the non-resident entity's payable net accounting income for its taxation year that includes that time becomes payable by it to its interest holders in that taxation year, or within 120 days after the end of that taxation year, and the taxpayer's share of that amount is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the time at which it became payable;

(e) it is reasonable to conclude that the taxpayer has, at that time, no tax avoidance motive in respect of the participating interest, and

(i) throughout the period, in the non-resident entity's taxation year that includes that time, during which the taxpayer held the participating interest,

(A) the participating interest is an arm's length interest of the taxpayer,

(B) the non-resident entity is resident in a country in which there is a designated[14] stock exchange, and

(C) participating interests, in the non-resident entity, that are identical to the participating interest are listed on a designated[14] stock exchange, or

(ii) both

(A) throughout that period the non-resident entity

(I) is governed by the laws of

1. a country (other than a prescribed country) with which Canada has entered into a tax treaty, or

2. a political subdivision of a country described by sub-subclause 1,

(II) exists, was (unless the entity was continued in any jurisdiction) formed or organized, or was last continued, under those laws, and

(III) while it is governed by the laws of a country, or of a political subdivision of a country, is under the tax treaty with that country resident in that country, and

(B) either

(I) throughout that period the participating interest is an arm's length interest of the taxpayer, or

(II) throughout that period the non-resident entity is, under the tax treaty with the United States of America, resident in the United States of America, and throughout the period, in the taxpayer's taxation year that includes that time, during which the taxpayer is resident in Canada, the taxpayer is a citizen of the United States of America and is liable for and subject to income tax in the United States of America for that taxation year because of that citizenship;

(f) throughout the period, in the non-resident entity's taxation year that includes that time, during which the taxpayer held the participating interest,

(i) the participating interest is a share of the capital stock of a corporation resident in Canada,

(ii) the participating interest would not be a participating interest, in the non-resident entity, if the definition "participating interest" were read without reference to paragraph (d) of that definition, and

(iii) the participating interest is convertible into, exchangeable for, or a right to acquire only property that, if the conversion, exchange or right were exercised by the taxpayer at that time, would be a share, of the capital stock of a non-resident corporation, that is at that time an exempt interest (determined without reference to this paragraph) of the taxpayer; or

(g) both

(i) the non-resident entity is throughout the period, in the non-resident entity's taxation year that includes that time, during which the taxpayer held the participating interest, a testamentary trust that is an estate that arose on and as a consequence of the death of an individual, and

[14]Changed from "prescribed" by S.C. 2007, c. 35, subsec. 100(2).

(ii) that time is no more than 12 months after the death (or, where written application has been made to the Minister by the taxpayer within 12 months after that death, within any longer period that the Minister considers reasonable in the circumstances).

Technical Notes: The FIE income inclusion rules under any of subsections 94.1(4), 94.2(4) or 94.3(4) apply to a taxpayer for a year generally only where subsection 94.1(3) applies to the taxpayer. Subsection 94.1(3) will not apply to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity if at the end of a taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the particular taxation year the taxpayer's participating interest is an "exempt interest". An exempt interest of a taxpayer in a non-resident entity is defined to mean at any time a particular participating interest of the taxpayer in the non-resident entity if any of the following applies:

- the non-resident entity is a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (including an affiliate that is a controlled foreign affiliate because of an election under new paragraph 94.1(2)(h)), a "qualifying entity" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) that is a foreign affiliate (other than a controlled foreign affiliate) of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 95(2)(m)), or a partnership;
- the taxpayer is a financial institution (as defined in subsection 142.2(1)) and the participating interest is a mark-to-market property (as defined in that same subsection) or a property described in an inventory of a business of the taxpayer, which inventory is valued, in computing the taxpayer's income from the business, in accordance with section 1801 of the Income Tax Regulations;
- the participating interest is a right
  - under an agreement referred to in subsection 7(1), to acquire a share of the capital stock of the non-resident entity,
  - granted by the non-resident entity, or another entity with which the non-resident entity does not deal at arm's length,
  - acquired by the taxpayer, at a time when the taxpayer dealt at arm's length with the entity that granted the right, and
  - acquired by the taxpayer solely because the taxpayer was an employee of the non-resident entity, or another entity with which the non-resident entity does not deal at arm's length;
- the non-resident entity is an entity — other than a trust that is an exempt foreign trust because of paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1) — all or substantially all of the carrying value of the property of which is attributable to the carrying value of properties that are shares of the capital stock of a corporation (that is not a foreign investment entity) that employs the taxpayer or that is related to another corporation that employs the taxpayer, and an amount that is all or substantially all of the non-resident entity's "payable net accounting income" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) becomes payable (as determined under paragraph 94.1(2)(o)) by it to its interest holders within specified times, and the taxpayer's share of that amount is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the time at which it became payable;
- it is reasonable to conclude that the taxpayer had no tax avoidance motive (determined by reference to paragraphs 94.1(2)(k) to (n)) in respect of the particular participating interest, and
  - the particular participating interest is an "arm's length interest" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) of the taxpayer, the non-resident entity is resident (determined by reference to paragraph 94.1(2)(g)) in a country in which there is a prescribed stock exchange, and participating interests in the non-resident entity that are identical to the particular participating interest are listed on a prescribed stock exchange, or
  - the non-resident entity is governed by the laws of one or more countries (other than a prescribed country) with which Canada has entered into a tax treaty (or governed by the laws of a political subdivision of such a country), the non-resident entity exists, was (unless the entity was continued in any jurisdiction) formed or organized, or was last continued, under those laws, while it is governed by the laws of a country (or of is political subdivision), the non-resident entity is under the tax treaty with that country resident in that country, and either

    (I) the participating interest is an arm's length interest of the taxpayer, or

    (II) the non-resident entity is, under the tax treaty with the United States of America, resident in the United States of America, and throughout the period, in the taxpayer's taxation year that includes that time, during which the taxpayer is resident in Canada, the taxpayer is a citizen of the United States of America and is liable for and subject to income tax in the United States of America for that taxation year because of that citizenship;
  - the taxpayer's participating interest is a share, of the capital stock of a corporation resident in Canada, the rights under which include a right to acquire a share in a non-resident corporation, such that the participating interest would not be a participating interest in a non-resident entity if paragraph (d) of the definition "participating interest" were read without reference to rights to acquire shares of the capital stock of a non-resident corporation. However, the taxpayer's participating interest will qualify as an exempt interest under this provision only if the participating interest is convertible into, exchangeable for, or a right to acquire only property that, if the conversion, exchange or right were exercised by the taxpayer at that time, would be a participating interest, in the non-resident corporation, that is at that time an exempt interest (determined without reference to paragraph (f) of the definition "exempt interest") of the taxpayer, or
  - the non-resident entity, is during the period in its taxation year that the taxpayer held the participating interest, a testamentary trust that is an estate that arose on and as a consequence of the death of an individual, and the time is no more than 12 months after the death (or, such time as the Minister considers reasonable in the circumstances, if the taxpayer applies to the Minister within the 12 months after the death of the individual).

The definition "exempt interest" is also relevant in applying subsection 94.2(9) in determining whether subsection 94.1(4) or 94.2(4) will apply to a taxpayer's interest in a "tracking entity" (as defined in subsection 94.2(1)). However, note that a taxpayer's interest in a controlled foreign affiliate, or a qualifying entity (other than a partnership), will not avoid being subject to subsection 94.2(9) solely because it is an exempt interest. For more information, see the commentary on those provisions.

"exempt property", of a particular entity at any time, means, in determining whether a particular taxpayer's interest in the particular entity is a participating interest in a foreign investment entity,

(a) a property, of the particular entity, that is at that time used or held principally in a business (other than a business that is at that time an investment business carried on by the particular entity or by another entity related, otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b), to the particular entity) carried on by the particular entity or another entity related (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular entity;

(b) indebtedness owing by another entity (referred to in this paragraph as the "indebted entity"), if

(i) each of the particular entity and the indebted entity is, at that time,

(A) a foreign affiliate

(I) of the particular taxpayer, and

(II) in respect of which the particular taxpayer has a qualifying interest (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 95(2)(m)), or

(B) a foreign affiliate

(I) of another entity that is resident in Canada and of which the particular taxpayer is a controlled foreign affiliate, and

(II) in respect of which the other entity referred to in subclause (I) has a qualifying interest (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 95(2)(m)), and

(ii) the indebtedness would be excluded property (within the meaning of the definition "excluded property" in subsection 95(1)) of the particular entity, if

(A) the taxpayer referred to in that definition were the particular taxpayer and the foreign affiliate of the taxpayer referred to in that definition were the particular entity, or

(B) the taxpayer referred to in that definition were the other entity described in subclause (i)(B)(I) and the foreign affiliate of the taxpayer referred to in that definition were the particular entity; and

(c) a particular property, if

(i) the particular property (or other property for which the particular property is substituted) was acquired by the particular entity at any time within the 36-month period that ends at the particular time (or within any longer period that ends at the particular time that the Minister considers reasonable if the particular entity applies, in writing, to the Minister within 36 months after the property was acquired by the particular entity) because the particular entity

(A) issued a debt or a participating interest in the particular entity,

(B) disposed of property used principally in a business, other than an investment business, carried on by the particular entity or an entity related (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular entity,

(C) disposed of a participating interest in another entity all or substantially all of the fair market value of the property of which is attributable to property used principally in a business, other than an investment business, carried on by the other entity or an entity related (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the other entity, or

(D) accumulated income of the particular entity derived from a business, other than an investment business, carried on by the particular entity or an entity related (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular entity, and

(ii) the issuance, disposition or accumulation referred to in subparagraph (i) was made or amassed for the purpose of

(A) acquiring property to be used principally in, or making expenditures for the purpose of earning income from, a business, other than an investment business, carried on by the particular entity or an entity related (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular entity, or

(B) acquiring a participating interest that is a significant interest in another entity all or substantially all of the fair market value of the property of which is attributable to property used principally in a business, other than an investment business, carried on by the other entity.

Technical Notes: The definition "exempt property" is relevant in determining whether a property is an "investment property"(as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) and whether a "non-resident entity" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) is not a FIE. Except for the purposes of applying the definitions "investment business" in subsection 94.1(1) and "tracking entity" in subsection 94.2(1), investment property does not include exempt property.

In general terms, exempt property of a particular entity means at any time, in determining whether a particular taxpayer's interest in the particular entity is a participating interest in a FIE,

- under paragraph (a) of the definition, a property of the particular entity, that is at that time used or held principally in a business (other than an investment business) carried on by the particular entity or a related entity,
- under paragraph (b) of the definition, indebtedness (that would be "excluded property", as defined in subsection 95(1), of the particular entity if certain assumptions applied) owing by a debtor to the particular entity, where the particular entity and the debtor are foreign affiliates of the taxpayer or of another entity of which the taxpayer is a controlled foreign affiliate and in respect of which the taxpayer or the other entity, as the case may be, has a qualifying interest (as defined in subsection 95(2)(m)).

In addition, under paragraph (c) of the definition, exempt property means a property acquired by the particular entity within the 36 months preceding that time (or where written application has been made to the Minister of National Revenue by the taxpayer within 36 months of having acquired the property, within such longer period as the Minister considers reasonable in the circumstances) as a result of qualified activities. Those activities are

- the issuance of a debt or a participating interest in the particular entity;
- the disposition of property used in a business (other than an investment business) carried on by the particular entity or an entity related (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular entity;
- the disposition of a participating interest in another entity all or substantially all of the fair market value of the property of which is attributable to property used principally in a business (other than an investment business) carried on by the other entity or an entity related (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the other entity; and
- the accumulation of income of the particular entity derived from a business (other than an investment business) carried on by the particular entity or an entity related (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular entity.

The qualified activities also must have been undertaken for the purpose of

- acquiring property to be used principally in or making expenditures for the purpose of earning income from a business (other than an investment business) carried on by the entity or an entity related to the entity, or
- acquiring a participating interest that is a significant interest in another entity all or substantially all of the fair market value of the property of which is attributable to property used or held principally in the course of earning income from a business, other than an investment business, carried on by the other entity.

"exempt taxpayer", for a taxation year of the taxpayer, means

(a) a person whose taxable income for a period that ends at the end of the taxation year is exempt from tax under this Part because of subsection 149(1) (otherwise than because of paragraph 149(1)(q.1), (t) or (z));

(b) an eligible trust (in this paragraph, as defined in subsection 94(1)) that is resident in Canada at the end of the taxation year and under which

(i) the only beneficiaries that may for any reason receive, at any time and directly from the trust, any of the income or capital of the trust are persons that are qualifying investors (as defined in subsection 94(1)) in respect of the trust, and

(ii) each such beneficiary at each time in the taxation year is a person whose taxable income, for the period that includes all of those times in the taxation year, is exempt from tax under this Part because of subsection 149(1) (otherwise than because of paragraph 149(1)(q.1), (t) or (z)); and

(c) an individual (other than a trust) who, before the end of the taxation year, was resident in Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, not more than 60 months, but not including an individual who, before the end of the taxation year, was never non-resident;

Technical Notes: The rules in new sections 94.1 to 94.4 do not apply in respect of periods during which a taxpayer is an exempt taxpayer. For more information, see the commentary on paragraph 94.1(3)(a) and subsections 94.2(9) and (10).

An individual is an "exempt taxpayer" for a taxation year where the individual, before the end of the year, was a resident of Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, 60 months or less. (Individuals who have never been non-resident cannot fall within the 60-month exception.) This 60-month exemption for new immigrants to Canada is similar to an exemption in the rules for non-resident trusts in existing section 94.

Except as indicated below, tax-exempt entities to which subsection 149(1) applies are also exempt taxpayers. Retirement compensation arrangements and qualifying environmental trusts for which alternative income tax rules are provided under Parts XI.3 and XII.4 and insurers to which paragraph 149(1)(t) applies are not exempt taxpayers.

An exempt taxpayer also includes a Canadian resident pooled fund trust (including a trust deemed resident by subsection 94(3)) under which the only beneficiaries that may for any reason receive, at or after the particular time and directly from the trust, any of the income or capital of the trust are persons that are both qualifying investors (as defined in subsection 94(1)) and the qualifying exempt taxpayers. Qualifying exempt taxpayers are for this purpose, tax-exempt entities to which subsection 149(1) applies, other than retirement compensation arrangements and qualifying environmental trusts for which alternative income tax rules are provided under Parts XI.3 and XII.4 and insurers to which paragraph 149(1)(t) applies. For more detail on the definition "qualifying investor" in subsection 94(1), see the commentary on that provision.

The express reference to tax-exempt entities is generally of significance for the purposes of calculating Part I tax only in the context of the narrow circumstances to which new subsection 94.2(17) applies. That subsection contemplates a case where a taxpayer ceases to be an "exempt taxpayer" and subsequently becomes an "exempt taxpayer". However, the reference to tax-exempt entities may also be of significance in the context of Part XI (foreign property limits), given that the application of sections 94.1 to 94.4 has an impact on the cost amount of participating interests in FIEs.

"financial statements", of a particular entity for a particular taxation year of the entity and in respect of a taxpayer, means

(a) the balance sheet and the statement of income of the particular entity, if

(i) the particular entity is an entity (referred to in this subparagraph as the "first entity") in which the taxpayer holds, in the particular taxation year, a participating interest or is another entity in which the first entity has, in the particular taxation year, a direct or indirect interest,

(ii) the taxpayer elects (in the taxpayer's return of income for the taxpayer's taxation year in which the particular taxation year ends) to have this paragraph apply in respect of the particular entity and the participating interest, and

(iii) that balance sheet and statement of income would, but for any principles that require consolidation, be prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles developed and established, or adopted, by the Accounting Standards Board of Canada for use in Canada for the particular year or in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles substantially similar to those principles; and

(b) in any other case, the balance sheet and statement of income of the particular entity, if that balance sheet and statement of income are prepared for the particular taxation year in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles developed and established, or adopted, by the Accounting Standards Board of Canada for use in Canada for the particular year or in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles substantially similar to those principles.

Technical Notes: The definition "financial statements" is relevant primarily for the purpose of determining whether a non-resident entity is a FIE. For more information, see the commentary on the definitions "foreign investment entity" and "carrying value".

In general, the financial statements, for a taxation, of an entity will be the balance sheet and statement of income provided by the entity to its investors if they are prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles used for the taxation year in Canada or in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles that are substantially similar (including by reference to paragraph 94.1(2)(b)) to those used for the taxation year in Canada. Taxpayers, will however, be allowed to elect to treat an unconsolidated balance sheet and statement of income of an entity as its financial statements if they are prepared in accordance with those principles (or would be so prepared if those principles did not require consolidation).

More precisely, in applying sections 94.1 to 94.4 to a taxpayer, the financial statements, of a particular entity for a particular taxation year of the entity, are

- the balance sheet and the statement of income of the particular entity, if
  - the particular entity is an entity (referred to in this note as the "first entity") in which the taxpayer holds, in the particular taxation year, a participating interest or is another entity in which the first entity has, in the particular taxation year, a direct or indirect interest,
  - the taxpayer elects (in the taxpayer's return of income for the taxpayer's taxation year in which the particular taxation year ends) to have this paragraph apply in respect of the particular entity and the participating interest, and
  - that balance sheet and statement of income would be prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles used in Canada for the particular year or in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles that are substantially similar to those used in Canada if those principles did not require consolidation; and
- in any other case, the balance sheet and statement of income of the particular entity, if that balance sheet and statement of income are prepared for the particular taxation year in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles used for the taxation year in Canada or in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles that are substantially similar to those used for the taxation year in Canada.

"foreign bank" has the meaning assigned by subsection 95(1).

Technical Notes: The definition "foreign bank" has the same meaning as in subsection 95(1). The expression is used in the definition "exempt business".

Related Provisions: 94.1(1)"exempt business"(a) — Exclusion of foreign bank from FIE rules.

"foreign investment entity", at any time, means an entity that is, at that time, a non-resident entity unless,

(a) at the end of its taxation year that includes that time, it is an exempt foreign trust (as defined in subsection 94(1)) because of any of paragraphs (a) to (g) of that definition;

(b) at the end of that taxation year, the carrying value of all of its investment property is not greater than one-half of the carrying value of all of its property; or

(c) throughout that taxation year, its principal undertaking was the carrying on of a business that is not an investment business.

Technical Notes: Under subsection 94.1(3), the new tax regime for FIEs in sections 94.1 to 94.4 generally applies only to participating interests in a "foreign investment entity" as defined in subsection 94.1(1).

A non-resident entity (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) at any time will be a FIE at that time, unless any one of the following exceptions applies to the non-resident entity:

- at the end of its taxation year that includes that time, it is an "exempt foreign trust" (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) other than a trust that is an exempt foreign trust because of any of paragraphs (a) to (g) of that definition,
- at the end of its taxation year that includes that time, the carrying value of all of its investment property is not greater than one-half of the carrying value of all of its property, or
- throughout its taxation year that includes that time, its principal undertaking was the carrying on of a business that is not an investment business.

The new rules are designed so that, in the case of partnerships, members' shares of incomes and losses are allocated in accordance with section 96 (including new subsection 96(1.9), described in the commentary below).

For more information generally, see the commentary on the definitions "entity", "exempt interest", "non-resident entity", "investment property" and "carrying value" in subsection 94.1(1) and "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1). "investment business", of an entity at any time, means a business (other than a business that is at that time an exempt business) carried on by the entity (including, for greater certainty, a business carried on by the entity as a member of a partnership) at that time, the principal purpose of which is to derive income or profits described in any of the following paragraphs:

(a) income (including interest, dividends, rents, royalties or any similar return on investment or any substitute for such a return) from property;

(b) income from the insurance or reinsurance of risks;

(c) income from the factoring of trade accounts receivable; or

(d) profits from the disposition of investment property.

Technical Notes: The expression "investment business" is relevant in determining whether a non-resident entity is a FIE or a "qualifying entity", as defined in subsection 94.1(1). An "investment business" of an entity at any time, means a business (other than a business that is at that time an exempt business) carried on by the entity (including, for greater certainty, a business carried on by the entity as a member of a partnership) at that time, if the principal purpose of the business is to derive any of the following income or profits:

- income (including interest, dividends, rents, royalties or any similar return on investment or any substitute for such a return) from property,
- income from the insurance or reinsurance of risks,
- income from the factoring of trade accounts receivable, or
- profits from the disposition of investment property.

(k) intellectual property within the meaning of article 2 of the Convention Establishing the World Intellectual Property Organization done at Stockholm on July 14, 1967, as amended from time to time,

(l) a derivative financial product, or

(m) an interest, an option or a right in respect of property that is investment property because of any of paragraphs (a) to (l),

but does not include

(n) except for the purpose of applying the definition "investment business" in this subsection or the definition "tracking entity" in subsection 94.2(1), property that is at that time exempt property of the particular entity,

(o) except for the purpose of applying the definition "qualifying entity", property that is at that time

(i) a share of the capital stock of the particular entity,

(ii) a share of the capital stock of a corporation that is, throughout the period, in the particular entity's taxation year that includes that time, during which the particular entity holds the share, a qualifying entity if the particular entity has at that time a significant interest in that qualifying entity or that qualifying entity has at that time a significant interest in the particular entity,

(iii) an interest in a partnership that is, throughout the period, in the particular entity's taxation year that includes that time, during which the particular entity is a member of the partnership, a qualifying entity if the particular entity has at that time a significant interest in that qualifying entity or that qualifying entity has at that time a significant interest in the particular entity, or

(iv) indebtedness owing by an entity that is, throughout the period, in the particular entity's taxation year that includes that time, during which the particular entity holds the indebtedness, a qualifying entity if the particular entity has at that time a significant interest in that qualifying entity or that qualifying entity has at that time a significant interest in the particular entity,

(p) a commodity (referred to in this paragraph and paragraph (q) as an "exempt commodity") that is manufactured, produced, grown, extracted or processed by the particular entity or a person related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular entity,

(q) a commodity future in respect of an exempt commodity, and

(r) property that is, at that time, owned by a corporation resident in Canada.

Technical Notes: The expression "investment property" includes a list of specified properties. Most of the specified properties (e.g., shares, partnership interests, real estate and resource properties) are also specified in the definition of the same expression in subsection 95(1). In addition to the properties also specified in the definition in subsection 95(1), "investment property" held by a particular entity includes:

- an interest in an organization, fund or other entity;
- intellectual property;
- most derivative financial products; and
- interests, options and rights in respect of the above properties.

It should be noted, however, that investment property of an entity does not include

- except for the purpose of applying the definition "investment business" in subsection 94.1(1) or the definition "tracking entity" in subsection 94.2(1), an "exempt property" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)),
- except for the purpose of applying the definition "qualifying entity", a "significant interest" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) in a "qualifying entity" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)), an interest in a qualifying entity that has a significant interest in the entity, and debt owing by qualifying entities in which the entity has a significant interest or by a qualifying entity that has a significant interest in the entity,
- certain exempt commodities and futures in respect of those exempt commodities, and
- property that is owned by a corporation resident in Canada.

The definition is relevant for the purpose of the determining whether a non-resident entity is a FIE. For more information, see the commentary on the definitions "investment business", "qualifying entity", "significant interest", and "exempt property" in subsection 94.1(1).

"net accounting income", of an entity for a taxation year of the entity, means its net income, before income taxes and extraordinary items, for the year reported in its financial statements for the year.

Technical Notes: The net accounting income of an entity for a taxation year means the amount that is its net income, before income taxes and extraordinary items, for the year reported in its financial statements for the year. For more information, see the commentary on the definition "financial statements" in subsection 94.1(1).

Related Provisions: 94.1(1)"financial statements" — Meaning of "financial statements"; 94.1(2)(b) — GAAP of U.S. and European Union deemed to be similar to Canada.

"non-resident entity", at any time, means

(a) a corporation or trust that is non-resident at that time; and

(b) any entity (other than a corporation or trust) that at that time

(i) exists, was (unless the entity was continued in any jurisdiction) formed or organized, or was last continued under the laws of a country or a political subdivision of a country other than Canada, or

(ii) is governed under the laws of a country or a political subdivision of a country other than Canada.

Technical Notes: One of the requirements for an entity to be a FIE to which sections 94.1 to 94.4 apply is that the entity be a "non-resident entity". In this regard, it should be noted that, under proposed subparagraph 94(3)(a)(iv), certain trusts that would otherwise be non-resident are deemed (for certain limited purposes including the definition "non-resident entity") to be resident in Canada for taxation years in which the trust has a resident contributor or a resident beneficiary. For more information, see the commentary to new subsection 94(3).

In addition to non-resident corporations and trusts, a "non-resident entity" includes at any time any other type of entity that at that time

- exists, was (unless the entity was continued in any jurisdiction) formed or organized, or was last continued under the laws of a country or a political subdivision of a country other than Canada, or
- is governed under the laws of a country or a political subdivision of a country other than Canada.

Related Provisions: 94(3)(a)(iv) [proposed] — Application to trust deemed resident in Canada.

"participating interest", of a particular entity or individual in a non-resident entity, means a property that is

(a) if the non-resident entity is a corporation with share capital, a share of the capital stock of the corporation;

(b) if the non-resident entity is a trust, a specified interest in the trust;

(c) if the non-resident entity is not a corporation with share capital or a trust, an interest in the non-resident entity; and

(d) under a contract, in equity or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, convertible into, exchangeable for, or a right to acquire, directly or indirectly,

(i) a property described in any of paragraphs (a) to (c), or

(ii) a property (other than money) the fair market value of which is determined primarily by reference to the fair market value of a property described in any of paragraphs (a) to (c).

Technical Notes: A "participating interest" in an entity means a share of the capital stock of corporation, a specified interest (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) in a trust and an interest in any other type of entity.

It also includes a property that is (under a contract, in equity or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently) convertible into, exchangeable for, or confers a right to acquire

- such a share, specified interest or other interest, or
- a property (other than money) the fair market value of which is determined primarily by reference to the fair market value of such a share, interest as a beneficiary or other interest in an entity.

For a related rule that applies in determining whether an interest is a participating interest, see the commentary on paragraph 94.1(2)(s).

Related Provisions: 53(1)(m) — Addition to ACB of participating interest; 94.1(2) — Rules of application for participating interest; 94.1(2)(s) — Indirect participating interest deemed not to be participating interest; 94.2(13) — Cost of participating interest under mark-to-market rules; 96(1)(d)(iii) — Where partnership owns participating interest; 98(7) — Where partnership holding participating interest ceases to exist; 248(1)"specified participating interest" — Participating interest other than exempt interest; 248(9.2) — Meaning of "indefeasibly vested".

"payable net accounting income", of an entity for a taxation year of the entity, means its net income, after income taxes and extraordinary items, for the year reported in its financial statements for the year.

Technical Notes: The payable net accounting income, of an entity for a taxation year of the entity, means its net income, after income taxes and extraordinary items, for the year reported in its "financial statements" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) for the year.

This definition is relevant in determining whether an interest in a non-resident entity is an "exempt interest" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) in the entity. In particular, it is relevant in applying paragraph (d) of the definition "exempt interest" in subsection 94.1(1) and paragraphs 94.1(2)(m) and (n).

Related Provisions: 94.1(1)"financial statements" — Meaning of "financial statements".

"qualifying entity", in a period, means a particular entity that is a corporation or partnership all or substantially all of the carrying value of the property of which is, throughout the period, attributable to the carrying value of particular property that is, throughout the portion of the period that the particular property is property of the particular entity,

(a) property other than investment property;

(b) investment property that is a participating interest in or debt issued by another entity if, throughout the portion of the period that the participating interest or debt is property of the particular entity,

(i) the principal undertaking of the other entity is the carrying on of a business that is not an investment business, and

(ii) either

(A) the particular entity has a significant interest in the other entity, or

(B) the particular entity

(I) actively participates in or exercises significant influence over the governance or the management of that other entity, directly or indirectly, by reason of its status as a holder of a significant number of participating interests in that other entity (when compared to the number of participating interests held by each other holder of interests in the corporation) or by reason of an agreement in writing between the particular entity and one or more other holders of a significant number of participating interests in that other entity, or

(II) carries out a plan of action that it has established for the purpose of obtaining its objective of actively participating in or exercising significant influence over the governance or the management of that other entity, directly or indirectly, by reason of its status as a holder of a significant number of participating interests in that other entity (when compared to the number of participating interests held by each other holder of interests in the particular entity) or by reason of an agreement in writing between the particular entity and one or more other holders of a significant number of participating interests in that other entity;

(c) investment property in respect of which the particular entity establishes that the property or proceeds from the disposition of the property is to be used by the particular entity for the purpose of acquiring property described in paragraph (a) or (b); or

(d) investment property that is a particular property held by the particular entity if

(i) the particular property (or other property for which the particular property is substituted property) was last acquired by the particular entity within 36 months before the end of the period (or within any greater number of months that the Minister considers reasonable if the particular entity applies, in writing, to the Minister within 36 months after the property was acquired by the particular entity),

(ii) the particular property was so acquired by the particular entity because it

(A) issued a debt, or a participating interest in it,

(B) disposed of property described in any of paragraphs (a) to (c), or

(C) accumulated its income, and

(iii) the issuance, disposition or accumulation referred to in subparagraph (ii) was made or amassed for the purpose of acquiring property that, if owned by the particular entity, would be property described in any of paragraphs (a) to (c).

Technical Notes: A "qualifying entity" in a period means a particular entity that is a partnership or a corporation all or substantially all of the "carrying value" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) of the property of which is, throughout the period, attributable to the carrying value of property that is:

- property other than "investment property" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)),
- investment property that is a participating interest in or debt of another entity if the other entity is an entity whose principal undertaking is the carrying on of a business that is not an investment business and the particular entity has either a significant interest in the other entity or a strategic interest in the other entity,
- investment property in respect of which the particular entity establishes that the property or proceeds from the disposition of the property is to be used by the particular entity for the purpose of acquiring property described in the two paragraphs above, or
- investment property that is held by the particular entity if the particular property (or other property for which the particular property is substituted property) was last acquired by the particular entity within 36 months before the end of the period (or, where applicable conditions are met, within such longer period as the Minister considers reasonable in the circumstances), as a result of qualifying activities.

For this purpose, qualifying activities are

- the issuance of a debt or a participating interest in the entity,
- the disposition of property described in any of paragraphs (a) to (c) of the definition "qualifying entity", and
- the accumulation of income of the entity.

The qualifying activities must also have been made for the purpose of acquiring property that, if owned by the entity, would be property described in paragraph (a) to (c) of the definition of "qualifying entity".

For the purpose of applying this definition, an entity will be considered to have a strategic interest in another entity where the entity participates in or has established a plan of action for participating in the management and control of the other entity by reason of its status as a holder of a significant number (not to be confused with the "significant interest" definition) of participating interests in the other entity (in comparison with the number of participating interests held by each holder of interests in the entity) or an agreement with other such significant interest holders.

In establishing if an entity actively participates in or exercises a significant influence over the governance or the management of an other entity the following facts (among others) will be considered:

- whether the entity, alone or in alliance with others, appoints members of the board of directors and management;
- whether the entity, alone or in alliance with others, significantly influences the appointment of members of the board of directors and management; and
- whether the entity, alone or in alliance with others, is actively involved in the strategic planning for the entity.

In determining if an entity is carrying out a plan of action for the purpose of obtaining its objective of actively participating in or exercising significant influence over the governance or the management of another entity, all factors will be considered. For example, an entity's board-approved plan of action, board minutes, investment studies and other material relating to the strategic investment will be considered. As well, evidence that increasing numbers of shares of the other entity are being bought or that property is being sold in order to raise money to acquire such shares will be considered important factors. The entity's investment history and patterns will also be considered.

Finally, it should be noted that under paragraph 94.1(2)(r), the definition "qualifying entity" in subsection (1) does not apply in determining whether a taxpayer has a participating interest in a FIE, if the Minister sends a written demand to a taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to determine whether an entity is a qualifying entity, and information sufficient to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within such longer period as is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand.

For more information, see the commentary on paragraph 94.1(2)(r) and on the definitions "carrying value", "significant interest" and "investment property" in subsection 94.1(1).

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation; 94.1(1)"exempt interest"(a)(ii) — Share of QE can be exempt interest; 94.1(2)(r) — Deemed not QE if information not provided to CRA on request.

"significant interest", of a particular entity in another entity at any particular time, means

(a) if the other entity is a corporation, a share of the capital stock of the corporation, if at the particular time the particular entity or the particular entity together with entities related (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular entity holds shares of the capital stock of the corporation

(i) that would give the particular entity, or the particular entity together with those related entities, 25% or more of the votes that could be cast under all circumstances at an annual meeting of shareholders of the corporation if the meeting were held at the particular time, and

(ii) that have a fair market value of 25% or more of the fair market value of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the corporation;

(b) if the other entity is a partnership, an interest of the particular entity as a member of the partnership, if at the particular time the particular entity, or the particular entity together with entities related (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular entity, holds interests as a member of the partnership that have a fair market value of 25% or more of the fair market value of all membership interests in the partnership; and

(c) if the other entity is a trust, an interest as a beneficiary under the trust, where at the particular time

(i) the only beneficiaries that may for any reason receive, at any time and directly from the trust, any of the income or capital of the trust are persons that are qualifying investors (as defined in subsection 94(1)) in respect of the trust, and

(ii) the particular entity, or the particular entity together with entities related (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular entity, holds such interests under the trust that have a fair market value of 25% or more of the fair market value of all the interests as beneficiaries under the trust.

Technical Notes: An entity is considered to have a significant interest in a corporation, partnership, or trust if the entity or a group of entities comprised of the entity and entities related to the entity holds shares or interests in the corporation, partnership or trust that have a fair market value equal to 25% or more of the fair market value of all the shares or interests in the corporation, partnership or trust and,

- in the case of a corporation, the entity or the group of entities comprised of the entity and the entities related to the entity has shares entitling the entity to cast at least 25% of votes at an annual shareholders' meeting of the corporation, or
- in the case of a trust, for taxation years that begin after November 9, 2006, the only beneficiaries that may for any reason receive, at any time and directly from the trust, any of the income or capital of the trust are persons that are qualifying investors (as defined by subsection 94(1)) in respect of the trust.

In these circumstances, the entity's significant interest will be its share of the capital stock of the corporation, its interest as a member of the partnership or its interest as a beneficiary under the trust, as the case may be. For more detail on the definition "qualifying investor" in subsection 94(1), see the commentary on that provision.

"specified interest", at any time of an entity or individual in a trust, means an interest of the entity or individual as a beneficiary under the trust if

(a) the trust is at that time an exempt foreign trust because of paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1); or

(b) the entity or individual may for any reason receive as a beneficiary under the trust, at or after that time, any of the income or capital of the trust directly from the trust, unless

(i) the entity or individual would at that time be a successor beneficiary (as defined in subsection 94(1)) under the trust if the reference in the definition "successor beneficiary" in that subsection to a contributor did not include each contributor whose total amount of contributions to the trust is 10% or less of the total of all amounts each of which was the amount, at the time it was received by the trust, of a contribution made to the trust, or

(ii) every amount of income and capital of the trust that the entity or individual may receive at or after that time depends at and after that time on the exercise — after that time, in favour of the entity or individual, and by any other entity or individual — of a discretionary power.

Technical Notes: The definition "specified interest" applies in determining whether an entity or individual has a "participating interest" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) in a non-resident entity that is a trust. A specified interest at any time of an entity or individual in a trust, means, an interest of the entity or individual as a beneficiary under the trust if

- The trust is at that time an exempt foreign trust because of paragraph (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1). As a result, an interest in a foreign commercial investment trust or in certain employee remuneration arrangements will generally be subject to the income computation requirements in sections 94.1 to 94.4 if the trusts are FIEs or tracking entities; or
- The entity or individual may for any reason receive, as a beneficiary under the trust, at or after that time any of the income or capital of the trust directly from the trust. However, such an interest will, under paragraph (b) of the definition "specified interest", not be treated as a participating interest if
  - the entity or individual would at that time be a successor beneficiary (as defined by subsection 94(1)) under the trust, if in applying the definition "successor beneficiary" to the entity or individual, as the case may be, contributors whose contributions were 10% or less of all contributions to the trust at that time were ignored, or
  - every amount of income and capital of the trust that the entity or individual may receive at or after that time depends at and after that time on the exercise — after that time, in favour of the entity or individual, and by any other entity or individual — of a discretionary power.

"specified party" in respect of a particular individual or particular entity, as the case may be, means another individual or other entity that does not deal at arm's length with the particular individual or the particular entity, as the case may be.

Technical Notes: The definition "specified party" is relevant in determining whether a taxpayer has an avoidance motive in respect of a participating interest in a FIE. This determination is relevant to applying the definition "exempt interest" in subsection 94.1(1). For more information, see the commentary on the definition "exempt interest".

A specified party in respect of a particular individual or particular entity, as the case may be, means another individual or other entity that does not deal at arm's length with the particular individual or the particular entity, as the case may be.

"taxation year", of a non-resident entity that is not a corporation or an individual, means

(a) in respect of a business or property of the non-resident entity for which the accounts of the non-resident entity are ordinarily made up, the period that would be determined under section 249.1 in respect of the non-resident entity if the non-resident entity were a corporation; and

(b) in any other case, a calendar year.

Technical Notes: The "taxation year" of a non-resident entity that is a corporation or an individual is generally determined in accordance with subsection 249(1) and paragraph 250.1(a). Where the non-resident entity is not an individual or a corporation, this definition provides that the entity's taxation year means:

- in respect of a business or property of the non-resident entity for which the accounts of the non-resident entity are ordinarily made up, the period that would be determined under section 249.1 in respect of the non-resident entity if the non-resident entity were a corporation, and
- in any other case, a calendar year.

"trust" includes, for greater certainty, an estate.

Technical Notes: A definition of "trust" is provided for the purpose of applying section 94.1. The definition clarifies that a reference to a trust in that section includes an estate.

(2) Rules of application — For the purposes of applying this section and sections 94.2 to 94.4 in respect of a particular participating interest, in a particular non-resident entity, held by a taxpayer in a particular taxation year of the taxpayer (and in respect of any other participating interests, in the particular non-resident entity, that are identical to the particular participating interest and that are held by the taxpayer in the particular taxation year),

(a) [consolidated financial statements] — in determining whether the particular non-resident entity is a foreign investment entity, if the financial statements of an entity (referred to in this paragraph as the "first entity") for a taxation year (referred to in this paragraph as the "specified year") of the first entity reflect property, indebtedness, income or losses of another entity,

(i) the business and non-business activities for the specified year carried on by the other entity, the net accounting income for the specified year determined for the other entity from those activities and the property and indebtedness for the specified year owned by or owed by, as the case may be, the other entity are deemed for the specified year to be carried on by, determined for, owned by or owed by, as the case may be, the first entity, and

(ii) an exempt business of the other entity at any time in the specified year is, if it is a business the activities of which are deemed by subparagraph (i) to be carried on by the first entity, deemed to be an exempt business of the first entity at that time in the specified year;

(b) [foreign GAAP] — for greater certainty, generally accepted accounting principles as developed and established by either the Financial Accounting Standards Board of the United States of America or the International Accounting Standards Board, for use for a particular year, are substantially similar to those developed and established, or adopted, by the Accounting Standards Board of Canada for use in Canada for the particular year;

(c) ["designated cost"] — in determining the designated cost to the taxpayer of the participating interest at any time in the particular taxation year, where the particular participating interest is an interest in a trust that is not an exempt foreign trust (as defined in subsection 94(1)), the designated cost to the taxpayer of the particular participating interest is deemed to be the greater of

(i) the designated cost, determined without reference to this paragraph, at that time to the taxpayer of the particular participating interest, and

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is

(A) the fair market value, at that time, of a restricted property (within the meaning assigned by section 94) held by the trust to the extent that it is reasonable to consider that the restricted property is held, at that time, by the trust for the purpose of satisfying the rights (whether immediate or in the future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the discretion by any entity) of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest, or

(B) the amount that would be the cost amount (as determined under paragraph (b) of the definition "cost amount" in subsection 108(1)) at that time to the taxpayer of the participating interest if

(I) a reference to property in the description of A in the formula in that definition were read without reference to property that is restricted property to which clause (A) applies,

(II) the value of B in the formula in that definition were nil,

(III) the value of C in the formula in that definition were 1, and

(IV) the value of D in the formula in that definition were the number of persons resident in Canada that hold a participating interest in the trust and that are identified in prescribed form filed by the taxpayer with the taxpayer's return of income for the particular taxation year;

(d) [94.1(4) and 94.3(4)] — the reference in subsections (4) and 94.3(4) to "as income from property from a property that is the participating interest" is to be read as a reference to "as income from property from a property that is a source outside Canada that is the participating interest", if the taxpayer is a trust and the portion of the net accounting income of the particular non-resident entity, from sources outside Canada, for its last taxation year that ends in the particular taxation year exceeds 90% of the total net accounting income of the particular non-resident entity for that last taxation year;

(e) [business that is not investment business] — in determining whether the principal undertaking of an entity is, in a taxation year of the entity, the carrying on of a business that is not an investment business,

(i) subject to subparagraphs (ii) and (iii), that determination is to be by reference to all the facts and circumstances that relate to the undertakings of the entity and that are within the knowledge of the taxpayer or knowledge of which would, upon diligent inquiry by the taxpayer, be obtainable by the taxpayer,

(ii) subject to subparagraph (iii), where the taxpayer has, by notifying the Minister in writing in the taxpayer's return of income for the particular taxation year, elected to have either clause (A) or (B) apply in respect of the entity,

(A) the principal undertaking of the entity for the taxation year of the entity is deemed to be the carrying on of a business that is

(I) an investment business if the total net accounting income of the entity, for the entity's taxation year, derived from investment property (other than investment property used or held in the course of carrying on an investment business) and from investment businesses is equal to or greater than the total net accounting income of the entity for the entity's taxation year derived from businesses (other than investment businesses), and

(II) not an investment business if the total net accounting income of the entity for the entity's taxation year derived from investment property (other than investment property used or held in the course of carrying on an investment business) and from investment businesses is less than the total net accounting income of the entity for the entity's taxation year derived from businesses (other than investment businesses) carried on by the entity in the entity's taxation year, or

(B) the principal undertaking of the entity for the taxation year of the entity is deemed to be the carrying on of a business that is

(I) an investment business if the total gross revenue of the entity, for the entity's taxation year, derived from investment property (other than investment property used or held in the course of carrying on an investment business) and from investment businesses is equal to or greater than the total gross revenue of the entity for the entity's taxation year derived from businesses (other than investment businesses), and

(II) not an investment business if the total gross revenue of the entity for the entity's taxation year derived from investment property (other than investment property used or held in the course of carrying on an investment business) and from investment businesses is less than the total gross revenue of the entity for the entity's taxation year derived from businesses (other than investment businesses) carried on by the entity in the entity's taxation year, and

(iii) if the Minister sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to determine whether the principal undertaking of the entity is in the entity's taxation year the carrying on of an investment business, and information that may reasonably be considered to be sufficient to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within any longer period that is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand, the principal undertaking of the entity is deemed to be the carrying on of an investment business;

(f) ["related" and "arm's length"] — in determining whether an entity or natural person and another entity or natural person are related to each other or deal at arm's length with each other, a person referred to in section 251 includes an entity;

(g) ["exempt interest"(e)(i)] — in applying subparagraph (e)(i) of the definition "exempt interest" in subsection (1), if the particular non-resident entity is not a corporation, a partnership or a trust, it is deemed not to be resident in a particular country, unless

(i) the particular country is a country other than a prescribed country,

(ii) the particular non-resident entity is governed, and any of exists, was (unless the entity was continued in any jurisdiction) formed or organized, or was last continued, under the laws of the particular country or of a political subdivision of the particular country, and

(iii) the particular non-resident entity is liable, under the laws of the particular country, to pay an income or profits tax imposed by the government of the particular country on all of the particular non-resident entity's income, profits or gains;

(h) ["controlled foreign affiliate"] — subject to paragraph (i), a non-resident entity is deemed to be a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer throughout the period that begins at the earliest time at which the non-resident entity is a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, in the taxpayer's taxation year in the return of income for which the taxpayer elects in prescribed form to treat the non-resident entity as a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (referred to in this paragraph as the "taxpayer's election year"), and that ends at the earliest subsequent time at which it is not a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, if

(i) at any time in the taxpayer's election year,

(A) the taxpayer holds a participating interest in the non-resident entity and a taxation year of the non-resident entity ends (or the first taxation year of the non-resident entity begins), or

(B) a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer holds a participating interest in the non-resident entity, a taxation year of the controlled foreign affiliate ends and a taxation year of the non-resident entity ends (or the first taxation year of the non-resident entity begins) in that taxation year of the controlled foreign affiliate,

(ii) the non-resident entity is, at the end of its taxation years referred to in clause (i)(A) or (B), a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 95(2)(m)), and

(iii) the taxpayer has not made any other election under this paragraph in respect of the non-resident entity;

(i) ["controlled foreign affiliate"] — an election made by the taxpayer (or where the taxpayer is a partnership, by an entity that was at any time a member of the taxpayer) under paragraph (h) is, other than for the purposes of applying this paragraph and subparagraph (h)(iii), deemed never to have been made, if

(i) the Minister sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to determine an amount that would, if this Act were read without reference to this paragraph, be required to be added or deducted (otherwise than under subsection 104(13)) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year because of the application of section 91 and an election under paragraph (h) in respect of a foreign affiliate, and

(ii) information that may reasonably be considered to be satisfactory to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within any longer period that is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand;

(j) [election — foreign investment entity and qualifying entity] — if the taxpayer has, by notifying the Minister in writing in the taxpayer's return of income for the particular taxation year, elected to have this paragraph apply in respect of the particular participating interest, the taxpayer files with that return of income prescribed information in prescribed form, an entity (referred to in this paragraph as the "specified entity") has a significant interest in another entity that is a corporation, partnership or trust, the particular non-resident entity is the specified entity or has, directly or indirectly, an interest in the specified entity, and the financial statements of the specified entity do not reflect property or indebtedness of the other entity, in determining only whether the particular non-resident entity is a foreign investment entity, and where the taxpayer so stipulates in that election, whether the particular non-resident entity is a qualifying entity

(i) each of the following is deemed to be nil:

(A) the carrying value of each

(I) participating interest held, at the time (referred to in this paragraph as the "specified time") that is the end of the particular non-resident entity's last taxation year that ends in the particular taxation year, by the specified entity in the other entity, and

(II) debt owing at the specified time to the specified entity by the other entity (other than a debt acquired in the ordinary course of a business that is not at the specified time an investment business carried on by the specified entity), and

(B) the net accounting income of the specified entity at the specified time derived from property of the specified entity the carrying value of which is deemed to be nil under clause (A),

(ii) each property that is (or that is deemed by this subparagraph in respect of the particular participating interest to be) at the specified time property of the other entity (other than a debt owing to the other entity by the specified entity where the other entity and the specified entity are related to each other at the specified time) and that is valued for the purpose of the other entity's financial statements for its taxation year that includes the specified time (or deemed by this subparagraph to have a carrying value to the other entity) is deemed to be at the specified time property of the specified entity and is deemed to have at the specified time a carrying value to the specified entity equal to the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times B/C$$

where

A is the carrying value at the specified time to the other entity of the property,

B is the total of all amounts each of which is

(A) the fair market value at the specified time of a participating interest in the other entity held at the specified time by the specified entity, and

(B) the fair market value at the specified time of a debt (other than a debt acquired in the ordinary course of a business that is not an investment business carried on by the specified entity) that the other entity owes at the specified time to the specified entity, and

C is the total of all amounts each of which is

(A) the fair market value at the specified time of a participating interest in the other entity held at the specified time by an individual or an entity, and

(B) the fair market value at the specified time of a debt owing at the specified time by the other entity to a holder of a participating interest in the other entity (other than a debt acquired in the ordinary course of a business that is not an investment business carried on by a holder of a participating interest in the other entity),

(iii) the specified entity is deemed

(A) to have carried on the proportion obtained for the formula B/C in subparagraph (ii) (in respect of the specified entity and the other entity) of the activities carried on at the specified time by the other entity in which it used the property referred to in subparagraph (ii), and

(B) to have that proportion of the net accounting income of the other entity for the period in the taxation year of the other entity ending at the specified time that was derived from the activities referred to in clause (A), and

(iv) an exempt business of the other entity at any time in the particular non-resident entity's last taxation year that ends in the particular taxation year is, to the extent that its activities are deemed by subparagraph (iii) to be carried on by the specified entity, deemed to be an exempt business of the specified entity at that time in that last year;

(k) ["tax avoidance motive"] — subject to paragraphs (m) and (n), the taxpayer has a tax avoidance motive in respect of the particular participating interest (and any participating interests of the taxpayer in the particular non-resident entity that are identical to the particular participating interest), only if it is reasonable to conclude that the main reasons for the taxpayer acquiring, holding or having the particular participating interest include

(i) the derivation of a benefit the value of which can reasonably be attributed principally, directly or indirectly, to income derived from investment property, to profits or gains from the disposition of investment property or to an increase in value of investment property, and

(ii) the deferral or reduction of the amount of tax payable on that income or those profits or gains;

(l) ["tax avoidance motive"] — in applying paragraph (k) in respect of the particular participating interest, the factors to be considered in determining the existence of a tax avoidance motive include

(i) the nature, organization and operation of

(A) the particular non-resident entity,

(B) any foreign investment entity in which the particular non-resident entity or a specified party in respect of the particular non-resident entity has a direct or indirect interest, and

(C) any foreign investment entity in which the taxpayer or a specified party in respect of the taxpayer has a direct or indirect interest,

(ii) the form of, and the terms and the conditions governing, the direct or indirect interests referred to in subparagraph (i),

(iii) the extent to which and the time at which the particular non-resident entity, or an entity in which a direct or indirect interest referred to in subparagraph (i) is held, is subject to an income or profits tax on its income, profits and gains,

(iv) the extent to which and the time at which the taxpayer, or an entity or individual that holds a direct or indirect interest referred to in subparagraph (i), is subject to an income or profits tax on the taxpayer's or entity's, as the case may be, share of the income, profits and gains of the entity in which the direct or indirect interest is held, and

(v) the amount of tax that would have been payable by the taxpayer under this Part had the taxpayer earned the income or realized the profits or gains in respect of the investment property referred to in subparagraph (k)(i) at the time that the income was earned, or the profits or gains were realized, by the entities that owned or held the investment property;

(m) ["tax avoidance motive"] — the taxpayer does not have a tax avoidance motive in respect of the particular participating interest held by the taxpayer at any time in the particular taxation year if an amount that is all or substantially all of the payable net accounting income

(i) of the particular non-resident entity for each of its taxation years that ends in the particular taxation year becomes payable by it to its interest holders in, or within 120 days after, that taxation year of the particular non-resident entity, and the taxpayer's share of that amount is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the time at which the amount became payable, and

(ii) of each other foreign investment entity, in which the particular non-resident entity has a direct or indirect interest, for each of the other entity's taxation years that ends in the particular taxation year becomes payable by the other entity to its interest holders in, or within 120 days after, that taxation year of the other entity, and the particular non-resident entity's share of that amount is included in computing its payable net accounting income for its taxation year that includes the time at which the amount became payable;

(n) ["tax avoidance motive"] — the taxpayer does not have a tax avoidance motive in respect of the particular participating interest, if throughout the period, in the particular taxation year, during which the taxpayer held the participating interest the particular non-resident entity was a "Regulated Investment Company" for the purposes of sections 851(b) and 852(a) of the United States Internal Revenue Code of 1986 or a "Real Estate Investment Trust" for the purposes of sections 856(c) and 857(b) of that Code and the taxpayer includes, in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year, the amount of payable net accounting income that became payable by the particular non-resident entity to the taxpayer in the particular taxation year;

(o) ["payable"] — in applying paragraph (d) of the definition "exempt interest" in subsection (1), paragraphs (m) and (n), the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection 94.2(1), and subsection 94.4(2), an amount is deemed not to have become payable at any time to an entity or individual, as the case may be, unless it was paid on or before that time to the entity or individual, as the case may be, or the entity or individual, as the case may be, was entitled on or before that time to enforce payment of it;

(p) ["exempt property"] — the definition "exempt property" in subsection (1) does not apply in respect of a property of the particular non-resident entity if the Minister sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to determine whether property is an exempt property, and information that may reasonably be considered to be sufficient to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within any longer period that is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand;

(q) ["foreign investment entity"] — paragraphs (a) to (c) of the definition "foreign investment entity" in subsection (1) do not apply in respect of the particular non-resident entity if the Minister sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to determine whether the particular non-resident entity is a foreign investment entity, and information that may reasonably be considered to be sufficient to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within any longer period that is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand;

(r) ["qualifying entity"] — the definition "qualifying entity" in subsection (1) does not apply if the Minister sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to determine whether an entity is a qualifying entity, and information that may reasonably be considered to be sufficient to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within any longer period that is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand;

(s) [indirect participating interest] — if at any time a taxpayer has a participating interest in a particular foreign investment entity and the taxpayer has at that time a participating interest (referred to in this paragraph as the "indirect participating interest") in another non-resident entity solely because the particular foreign investment entity has at that time a participating interest in that other non-resident entity, then the indirect participating interest is deemed (other than in applying this paragraph) not to be a participating interest of the taxpayer at that time;

(t) [authorized foreign bank] — if the taxpayer is an authorized foreign bank, the taxpayer is deemed for the purposes of subsection (4) and of subsections 94.2(5) to (8) and (12), 94.3(4) and 94.4(2) to be resident in Canada throughout the particular taxation year;

(u) [order of dispositions] — the dispositions, if any, in the particular taxation year of the particular participating interest and any participating interests of the taxpayer in the particular non-resident entity that are identical to the particular participating interest are deemed to occur in the order in which those participating interests were acquired (determined without reference to any other provision of this Act) by the taxpayer;

(v) ["arm's length interest"] — if it can reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons that an entity or individual holds at any time a participating interest in a non-resident entity is to cause the condition in paragraph (a) of the definition "arm's length interest" in subsection (1) to be met at that time in respect of the participating interest or an identical participating interest held by any entity or individual, the condition is deemed not to have been satisfied at that time in respect of the participating interest or identical participating interest; and

(w) ["exempt interest"] — where the particular non-resident entity is a partnership, subparagraph (a)(iii) of the definition "exempt interest" in subsection (1) does not apply in respect of the taxpayer and the particular participating interest if

(i) the Minister sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to determine the application of this section and sections 94.2 to 94.4 to the partnership in respect of a participating interest of the partnership, and information that may reasonably be considered to be sufficient to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within any longer period that is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand, or

(ii) the taxpayer has elected — by notifying the Minister in writing in the taxpayer's return of income for the particular taxation year or for a preceding taxation year of the taxpayer — that subparagraph (a)(iii) of the definition "exempt interest" in subsection (1) not apply in respect of the particular participating interest or an identical participating interest held by the taxpayer at any time when the taxpayer held an identical participating interest to which the election applies.

Technical Notes: Subsection 94.1(2) sets out a number of rules for the purposes of applying sections 94.1 to 94.4 in respect of a particular participating interest, in a particular non-resident entity, held by a taxpayer in a particular taxation year of the taxpayer (and in respect of any other participating interests in the particular non-resident entity that are identical to the participating interest and that are held by the taxpayer in the particular taxation year). These rules are relevant, for example, in determining whether the particular non-resident entity is a FIE and whether the particular participating interest is an "exempt interest".

Determining Whether Entity is a FIE

New paragraph 94.1(2)(a) contains rules for applying the financial statements (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) of an entity in determining whether a particular non-resident entity, in which a taxpayer holds a particular participating interest, is a FIE.

If the financial statements of an entity (referred to in this note as the "first entity") for a taxation year (referred to in the commentary on paragraph 94.1(2)(a) as the "specified year") of the first entity reflect property, indebtedness, income or losses of another entity, then in determining whether a particular non-resident entity is a FIE:

- the business and non-business activities for the specified year carried on by the other entity, the net accounting income for the specified year determined for the other entity from those activities, and the property and indebtedness for the specified year owned by or owed by, as the case may be, the other entity are deemed for the specified year to be carried on by, determined for, owned by or owed by, as the case may be, the first entity, and

- an exempt business of the other entity at any time in the specified year is, if it is a business the activities of which are deemed by subparagraph 94.2(a)(i) to be carried on by the first entity, deemed to be an exempt business of the first entity at that time in the specified year.

Paragraph 94.1(2)(a) is relevant in applying, for example, the definition "carrying value" in subsection 94.1(1), when determining whether the non-resident entity is a FIE because of the carrying value of its investment property.

For more information, see the commentary on the definitions "carrying value", "foreign investment entity" and "investment property" in subsection 94.1(1). See also, the commentary on paragraph 94.1(2)(b), for more information on determining whether accounting principles are substantially similar to Canadian GAAP, and the commentary on paragraph 94.1(2)(j), for more information on the look-through rule for significant interests.

GAAP Substantially Similar to Canadian GAAP

Paragraph 94.1(2)(b) provides that generally accepted accounting principles used for a taxation year in the United States of America or in countries that are members of the European Union are, for greater certainty, considered to be substantially similar to those used in Canada for that taxation year.

Designated Cost

Paragraph 94.1(2)(c) applies in determining, at any time in a particular taxation year, the designated cost to a taxpayer of a participating interest of the taxpayer that is a specified interest (as defined by subsection 94.1(1)) in a trust. However, the rule only applies where the trust is not an exempt foreign trust (as defined by subsection 94(1)).

Under paragraph 94.1(2)(c), the designated cost to the taxpayer of a participating interest in a trust that is not an exempt foreign trust is deemed to be the greater of two amounts. The first amount is the designated cost, determined without reference to paragraph 94.1(2)(c), at that time to the taxpayer of the participating interest.

The second amount is the total of all amounts each of which is

- in the case of property that is restricted property (within the meaning of section 94), held by the trust in respect of the particular participating interest, the fair market value of the restricted property, to the extent that it is reasonable to consider that the restricted property is held for the purpose of satisfying the rights of the taxpayer, or
- the amount that would be the cost amount (as determined under paragraph (b) of the definition "cost amount" in subsection 108(1)) at that time to the taxpayer of the participating interest if
  - a reference to property in the description of A in the formula in the definition of "cost amount" were read without reference to property that is restricted property held by the trust for the purpose of satisfying the rights of the taxpayer in respect of the particular participating interest,
  - the value of B in the formula in that definition were nil,
  - the value of C in the formula in that definition were 1, and
  - the value of D in the formula in that definition were the number of persons resident in Canada that hold a participating interest in the trust and that are identified by the taxpayer in the taxpayer's return of income for the particular taxation year.

Characterization of Income from FIE Interest

Paragraph 94.1(2)(d) provides a special rules for determining whether a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from the application of subsection 94.1(4) or 94.3(4) will be treated as income from a source outside Canada. Paragraph 94.1(2)(d) provides that in applying subsections 94.1(4) and 94.3(4) to a taxpayer (that is a trust) for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer and in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity, the reference in those subsections to "as income from property from a property that is the participating interest" is to be read as a reference to the expression "as income from property from a property that is a source outside Canada that is the participating interest". However, this special rule applies only if the portion of the net accounting income of the non-resident entity, from sources outside Canada, for its last taxation year that ends in the particular taxation exceeds 90% of the total net accounting income of the non-resident entity for that last taxation year.

Paragraphs 94.2(2)(e) and (f) provide similar rules that apply with respect to subsection 94.2(4). For more detail, see the commentary on those paragraphs.

The application of paragraph 94.1(2)(d) and paragraphs 94.2(2)(e) and (f) in respect of a participating interest of a taxpayer will not be relevant in determining a taxpayer's eligibility for a foreign tax credit under section 126. In this regard, see the commentary below on subsections 94.3(2) and 126(1.2). Rather, these paragraphs provide relief to trusts resident in Canada that hold participating interests in a FIE and that make payable to their non-resident beneficiaries all or part of the trusts' incomes arising under any of subsections 94.1(4), 94.2(4) or 94.3(4). Where paragraph 94.1(2)(d) or 94.2(2)(e) or (f) applies and the terms of the trust permit amounts of deemed income of the trust to be made payable to beneficiaries, the amounts of such trust income arising under any of subsections 94.1(4), 94.2(4) or 94.3(4) and made payable to non-resident beneficiaries of the trust may qualify for reduced withholding if the non-resident beneficiary is resident in a country with which Canada has entered into a tax treaty and the tax treaty contains a provision permitting such a reduction in withholding.

Investment Business

Under paragraph 94.1(2)(e), a determination of whether the principal undertaking of an entity for a taxation year of the entity is the carrying on of a business that is not an investment business is made by reference to:

- subject to the rules below, all the relevant facts and circumstances that relate to the undertakings of the entity and that are within the knowledge of the taxpayer or knowledge of which would, upon diligent inquiry made by the taxpayer, be obtainable by the taxpayer,
- if the taxpayer elects, by reference to the entity's "net accounting income" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) from investment property and investment businesses, or
- if the taxpayer elects, by reference to the entity's gross revenue from investment property and investment businesses.

Under subparagraph 94.1(2)(e)(iii), if the Minister of National Revenue sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to determine whether the principal undertaking of the entity is in that taxation year the carrying on of a business that is an investment business, and information sufficient to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within such longer period as is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand, the principal undertaking of the entity for that taxation year is deemed to be the carrying on of a business that is an investment business.

Arm's Length and Related

Under paragraph 94.1(2)(f), in determining whether an entity or natural person and another entity or natural person are related to each other or deal at arm's length with each other, a person referred to in section 251 includes an entity.

Residence of an Entity — Special Case

New paragraph 94.1(2)(g) applies in determining whether a taxpayer's participating interest (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) in a FIE is an "exempt interest"(as defined in subsection 94.1(1)). Paragraph 94.1(2)(g) provides that in applying subparagraph (e)(i) of the definition "exempt interest", if the FIE is not a corporation, a partnership or a trust, it is deemed not to be resident in a particular country, unless

- the particular country is a country other than a prescribed country,
- the FIE is governed, and exists, was (unless the FIE was continued in any jurisdiction) formed or organized, or was last continued under the laws of, the particular country or of a political subdivision of the particular country, and
- the FIE is liable, under the laws of the particular country, to pay an income or profits tax imposed by the government of the particular country on all of its income, profits or gains.

If the paragraph 94.1(2)(g) applies so that the FIE is not considered resident in a particular country for the purpose of subparagraph (e)(i) of the definition "exempt interest", then the taxpayer would not be able to rely upon that paragraph in order to qualify the participating interest as an exempt interest.

Entity Treated as Controlled Foreign Affiliate

New paragraph 94.1(2)(h) permits a taxpayer to make an irrevocable election to treat a foreign affiliate, of the taxpayer, that is a foreign investment entity (including an affiliate the shares of which are held by the taxpayer's controlled foreign affiliate) as a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer for a particular taxation year and subsequent taxation years. This one-time election is available only if:

- the taxpayer elects in prescribed form in the taxpayer's tax return for the taxation year ("the election year") for which the election is to first take effect,
- either
  - the taxpayer holds a participating interest in the foreign affiliate and a taxation year of the foreign affiliate ends (or the first taxation year of the foreign affiliate begins) in the taxpayer's election year, or
  - a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer holds a participating interest in the foreign affiliate and a taxation year of the foreign affiliate ends (or the first taxation year of the foreign affiliate begins) in a taxation year of the controlled foreign affiliate that ends in the taxpayer's election year,
- the taxpayer has a "qualifying interest" (as defined in paragraph 95(2)(m)) in the affiliate, and
- the taxpayer has not made any other election under paragraph (h) in respect of the foreign affiliate.

However, under paragraph 94.1(2)(i), described in the commentary below, the election may be rendered invalid in the event that the taxpayer cannot provide sufficient information to the Minister of National Revenue for the Minister to be able to determine amounts required to be included in the taxpayer's income under section 91. In addition, the election ceases to have effect if the corporation ceases to be a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer.

In the period during which an election under paragraph 94.1(2)(h) is effective, a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer is deemed to be a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer. As a result, a share issued by the affiliate to the taxpayer would be an "exempt interest" under the definition in subsection 94.1(1). Sections 94.1 to 94.4 generally would not apply to the taxpayer's participating interest in the affiliate where that affiliate is a FIE. However, the foreign accrual property income (FAPI) rules would apply and the taxpayer would be required to include in income under section 91 a percentage of any FAPI derived by the affiliate in the year. In addition, notwithstanding an election under paragraph 94.1(2)(h), the FIE rules may still apply in the event that a taxpayer's interest in a controlled foreign affiliate is a participating interest to which subsection 94.2(9) applies.

Demand for Information — CFA election

Under paragraph 94.1(2)(i), an election made by a taxpayer (or in the case of a taxpayer that is a partnership, a member of it) under paragraph 94.1(2)(h) is, other than for the purposes of applying paragraph 94.1(2)(i) and subparagraph 94.1(2)(h)(iii), deemed never to have been made, if the Minister sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to make a determination referred to in one of those paragraphs, and information sufficient to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within such longer period as is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand.

The determination referred to in paragraph 94.1(2)(i) concerns an amount that would, if the Act were read without reference to that paragraph, be required to be added or deducted (otherwise than under subsection 104(13)) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year because of the application of section 91 and an election under paragraph 94.1(2)(h) in respect of a foreign affiliate.

Look-through Rule — Significant Interests

New paragraph 94.1(2)(j) applies in determining whether a particular non-resident entity is a foreign investment entity (FIE) and, in some circumstances, in determining whether the particular non-resident entity is a qualifying entity. A particular non-resident entity is a FIE at any time if none of the exceptions found in paragraphs (a) to (e) of the definition "foreign investment entity" applies to it. In this regard, paragraph 94.1(2)(j) will be, where it applies, relevant in determining whether paragraphs (b) and (e) of that definition apply to a non-resident entity.

Paragraph 94.1(2)(j) will apply in respect of a taxpayer's participating interest in a particular non-resident entity if the taxpayer has made a valid election under 94.1(2)(j) in respect of the participating interest and a specified entity (i.e., the particular non-resident entity or another entity in which the particular non-resident entity has, directly or indirectly, an interest)) has a "significant interest" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) in another entity ("the other entity") that is a corporation, partnership or trust. In this case, and provided that the financial statements of the specified entity do not reflect property or indebtedness of the other entity, then in determining whether the particular non-resident entity is a FIE (and, where the taxpayer so stipulates in the election, a qualifying entity):

- In determining the carrying value of the specified entity's property, the carrying values of its participating interests in the other entity are deemed to be nil. Debt owing to the specified entity by the other entity (other than debt acquired in the ordinary course of a business other than an investment business of the specified entity) is also deemed to have a carrying value to the specified entity of nil, and the net accounting income of the specified entity is also deemed to be nil to the extent that it is derived from debt or participating interests of the specified entity that are deemed to be nil.
- The specified entity is deemed to own the property of the other entity. Each such deemed owned property is deemed to have a carrying value to the specified entity based on the product obtained by multiplying the property's carrying value to the other entity by the specified entity's proportional ownership of the other entity's property. In general terms, this proportional ownership is the quotient obtained by dividing:
  - the amount that is the fair market value of the specified entity's shares and certain debt issued by the other entity, by
  - the amount that is the total fair market value of shares and certain debt issued by the other entity.
- In general terms, the activities carried on by the other entity (including an exempt business of the other entity) using the property deemed to be owned by the specified entity, and the other entity's net accounting income derived from those activities, are deemed to be those of the specified entity to the extent of that proportional ownership.

If the taxpayer notifies the Minister of National Revenue in writing of its intention to value the specified entity's property at its fair market value in accordance with paragraph (a) of the definition "carrying value" in subsection 94.1(1), the property of the other entity must also be valued on that basis to the extent that paragraph 94.1(2)(j) applies to deem the property to be property of the specified entity. If there are tiers of entities each of which has a significant interest in the other, paragraph 94.1(2)(j) operates to deem each higher tier entity to own properties of the immediately lower tier entities on an iterative basis. For example, assume a non-resident entity (Foreignco-1) owns 100% of the shares in Foreignco-2, which in turn owns 100% of shares in Foreignco-3 and that Foreignco-1, Foreignco-2 and Foreignco-3 have identical taxation year-ends. The carrying values from properties in Foreignco-3 would, under paragraph 94.1(2)(j), become the carrying values of properties in Foreignco-2. Because paragraph 94.1(2)(j) operates on an iterative basis, the carrying value of those properties would be considered to be the carrying values of properties held by Foreignco-1.

The example below illustrates the operation of paragraph 94.1(2)(j).

Example

1. Jean, who resides in Canada, holds shares in Foreignco, a non-resident corporation that is not a controlled foreign affiliate of Jean. Foreignco's principal activity is the carrying on of investment activities on behalf of its shareholders. Foreignco prepares its financial statements in accordance with accounting principles substantially similar to generally accepted accounting principles used in Canada.

2. The carrying values of Foreignco's assets at the end of its taxation year ending in Jean's year are as follows:

Guaranteed investment certificate	$10,000
Shares of XYZ Inc. in which Foreignco has a significant interest	$20,000
Shares of ABC Inc. in which Foreignco does not have a significant interest	$ 5,000
Cash	$ 4,000
Total assets	$39,000

3. XYZ Inc. owns assets at that time that are used in the course of carrying on an active business, with a carrying value of $80,000. It also has investment property with a carrying value of $15,000.

4. The fair market value of the shares of XYZ Inc. held by Foreignco is $40,000 while the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of XYZ Inc. is $100,000 at that time.

Results

1. The guaranteed investment certificate, cash, and the shares of XYZ Inc. and ABC Inc. are all investment property by virtue of the definition "investment property" in subsection 94.1(1).

2. However, since Foreignco owns a significant interest in XYZ Inc., the special look-through rule in new paragraph 94.1(2)(j) applies. Under this look-through rule the carrying value of Foreignco's shares in XYZ Inc. is deemed to be nil. Instead, Foreignco is deemed to own a portion of the property that XYZ Inc. owns.

3. The carrying value of the XYZ property deemed to be owned by Foreignco is 40% of its carrying value to XYZ, since Foreignco's percentage ownership of shares is 40%.

4. Consequently, the carrying values of the investment property of Foreignco are:

Gguaranteed investment certificate	$10,000
Shares of XYZ Inc.	nil
Shares of ABC Inc.	$ 5,000
Cash	$ 4,000
Investment property of XYZ Inc. (40% of $15,000)	$ 6,000
Total	$25,000

5. The total carrying value of the assets of Foreignco is:

Investment property (see above)	$ 25,000
Assets of XYZ Inc. (other than investment property) (40% of $80,000)	$ 32,000
Total	$ 57,000

6. As a result, Foreignco is not a FIE because less than 50% of the carrying value of its property is investment property.

Tax Avoidance Motive

New paragraph 94.1(2)(k) sets out the conditions under which a taxpayer will be considered to have a tax avoidance motive in respect of a participating interest in a FIE. Subject to new paragraphs 94.1(2)(m) and (n) (described in the commentary below), a tax avoidance motive will be considered to exist only if it is reasonable to conclude that the main reasons for the taxpayer acquiring, holding or having the particular participating interest were to permit the taxpayer to achieve the following two objectives:

- to derive a benefit the value of which can be attributed principally, directly or indirectly, to income derived from investment property, to profits or gains from the disposition of investment property, or to an increase in value of investment property, and
- the deferral or reduction of the amount of tax payable on that income or those profits or gains.

Factors Considered in Tax Avoidance Motive

New paragraph 94.1(2)(l) sets out factors to be considered in determining whether there is a tax avoidance motive for a taxpayer acquiring an interest in a non-resident entity. Those factors are similar to the ones in existing subsection 94.1(1). However, the form and the terms and conditions governing the taxpayer's interest in a non-resident entity are to be taken into account as well. Note that a tax avoidance motive may exist whether the non-resident entity is resident in a "tax haven" or not. The factors are as follows:

- the nature, organization and operation of the non-resident entity and any FIE in which it or a specified party (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) in respect of it has a direct or indirect interest,
- the nature, organization and operation of any FIE in which the taxpayer or a specified party in respect of the taxpayer has a direct or indirect interest,
- the form of and the terms and the conditions governing the direct or indirect interests described above,
- the extent to which and the time at which the particular non-resident entity, or an entity in which a direct or indirect interest described above is held, is subject to an income or profits tax on its income, profits and gains,
- the extent to which and the time at which an entity that holds a direct or indirect interest described above is subject to an income tax or profits tax on the entity's share of the income, profits and gains of the entity in which the direct or indirect interest is held, and

- the amount of tax that would have been payable by the taxpayer under this Part had the taxpayer earned the income or realized the profits or gains in respect of the investment property referred to in subparagraph 94.1(2)(k)(i) at the time that the income was earned, or the profits or gains were realized, by the entities that owned or held the investment property.

No Tax Avoidance Motive

New paragraphs 94.1(2)(m) and (n) provide two situations where a taxpayer will not be considered to have a tax avoidance motive in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity held by the taxpayer in a taxation year:

- if the non-resident entity (and each other foreign investment entity, in which the non-resident entity has a direct or indirect interest) makes payable (determined by reference to paragraph 94.1(2)(o)) all or substantially all of its "payable net accounting income" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) for its taxation year that ends in the particular taxation to its interest holders within 120 days after the end of its taxation year, and the taxpayer's share of that amount is included in computing the taxpayer's income, profit or gains for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the time at which the amount became payable, and

- if the non-resident entity is a "Regulated Investment Company" for the purposes of sections 851(b) and 852(a) of the United States Internal Revenue Code or a "Real Estate Investment Trust" for the purposes of sections 856(c) and 857(b) of that Code, and the taxpayer includes, in computing the taxpayer's income for that taxation year of the taxpayer, the amount of income that became payable (determined by reference to paragraph 94.1(2)(o)) by the particular non-resident entity to the taxpayer in that taxation year of the taxpayer.

For more detail on the definition "payable net accounting income" in subsection 94.1(1), see the commentary on that definition.

Amounts Payable

Under paragraph 94.1(2)(o), an amount is deemed not to have become payable at any time to an entity or individual unless it was paid on or before that time to the entity or individual, as the case may be, or the entity or individual, as the case may be, was entitled on or before that time to enforce payment of it. This rule is relevant in applying paragraph (d) of the definition "exempt interest" in subsection 94.1(1), paragraphs 94.1(2)(m) and (n), the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection 94.2(1), and subsection 94.4(2).

Demands for Information

Under paragraphs 94.1(2)(p) to (r) a number of provisions in section 94.1 will not apply in respect of a taxpayer's participating interest in a non-resident entity, if the Minister sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to make a determination referred to in one of those paragraphs, and information sufficient to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within such longer period as is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand.

The determinations referred to in paragraph 94.1(2)(p) to (r) are in respect of the definitions "exempt property", "foreign investment entity" and "qualifying entity" in subsection 94.1(1), respectively.

Participating Interests — Special Case

Paragraph 94.1(2)(s) applies in determining whether an interest is a participating interest. Under that paragraph, if at any time a taxpayer has a participating interest in a particular foreign investment entity and the taxpayer has at that time a participating interest (referred to in that paragraph and this commentary as the "indirect participating interest") in another non-resident entity solely because the particular foreign investment entity has at that time a participating interest in that other non-resident entity, then the indirect participating interest is deemed not to be a participating interest of the taxpayer at that time.

Paragraph 94.1(2)(s) provides relief only where the conditions attached to a taxpayer's participating interest in a FIE are such that the interest may also be a participating interest in another non-resident entity in which the FIE holds an interest and in which the taxpayer does not directly hold an interest. Paragraph 94.1(2)(s) would not apply to a participating interest where the taxpayer holds the participating interest directly in the other non-resident entity — in these circumstances, the taxpayer would be required to determine whether the participating interest in the other non-resident entity is a participating interest in a FIE.

Application of the FIE Rules to Taxpayers That Are Authorized Foreign Banks

Paragraph 94.1(2)(t) applies to ensure that authorized foreign banks are subject to the FIE rules in computing their income. In particular, an authorized foreign bank that holds a participating interest in a non-resident entity at any time in a taxation year is deemed, for the purposes of subsections 94.1(4), 94.2(5) to (8) and (12), 94.3(4) and 94.4(2), to be resident in Canada throughout the taxation year. For more detail on a related amendment to section 115, see the commentary below on that provision.

Identical Properties

Paragraph 94.1(2)(u) provides that identical properties that were held and are disposed of by a taxpayer will be treated as having been disposed of in the order in which they were actually acquired by the taxpayer. As a result, various acquisitions that are deemed to occur under the Act (e.g., section 47) are not to be taken into account. This measure is relevant primarily for the purpose of determining the amount to be added or deducted from a taxpayer's income for a taxation year under subsection 94.2(4), especially with reference to the "deferral amount" referred to in the description of D in the "mark-to-market formula" for the year (as those expressions are defined in subsection 94.2(1)).

Anti-avoidance: 150 persons

Paragraph 94.1(2)(v) is an anti-avoidance provision that is relevant to the application of the definition "arm's length interest" in subsection 94.1(1). Paragraph (a) of that definition imposes the condition that at least 150 persons hold participating interests that are identical to a particular participating interest in order for the particular participating interest to be considered an arm's length interest in respect of a taxpayer.

Paragraph 94.1(2)(v) provides that, if it can reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons that an entity or individual holds, at any time, a participating interest is to cause the condition in paragraph (a) of the definition "arm's length interest" to be met at that time in respect of the participating interest or an identical participating interest, the condition is deemed not to have been met at that time in respect of the participating interest or identical participating interest.

For more detail on the definition "arm's length interest", see the commentary on that definition.

Qualification of Partnership Interest as Exempt Interest

New paragraph 94.1(2)(w) will deem a taxpayer's interest in a partnership (that would otherwise be an exempt interest because of subparagraph (1)(a)(iii) of that term's definition in subsection 94.1(1)) not to be an exempt interest where either:

- the Minister sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to determine the application of sections 94.1 to 94.4 to the partnership in respect of a participating interest of the partnership, and information sufficient to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within any longer period that is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand, or

- the taxpayer has elected that subparagraph (a)(iii) of the definition "exempt interest" not apply.

(e)(ii) or para. (h) or (j) by members of partnership; 98(7) — Where partnership holding specified participating interest ceases to exist; 248(12) — Identical properties.

(3) Conditions for application of tax regime for foreign investment entities — This subsection applies to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity if

(a) the taxpayer is not an exempt taxpayer for the particular taxation year;

(b) the participating interest is held by the taxpayer at the end of a taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the particular taxation year;

(c) at the end of that taxation year of the non-resident entity it is a foreign investment entity; and

(d) at the end of that taxation year of the non-resident entity the taxpayer's participating interest is not an exempt interest of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.1(3) sets out the common conditions for the application of the FIE income inclusion rules in subsections 94.1(4) (prescribed rate of return regime), 94.2(4) (mark-to-market regime) and 94.3(4) (accrual regime). For the prescribed rate of return, accrual or mark-to-market regimes to apply to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a participating interest held in the particular year by the taxpayer in a non-resident entity (other than a tracking interest or a foreign insurance product — for more information see the commentary on subsection 94.2(3)), all of the following conditions set out in subsection 94.1(3) must be satisfied:

- the taxpayer is not an "exempt taxpayer" for the taxpayer's particular taxation year;

- the taxpayer held the participating interest at the end of a taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the taxpayer's particular taxation year; and

- at the end of that taxation year of the non-resident entity, the interest was a participating interest in a FIE and was not an exempt interest.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamation — continuing corporation; 94.1(4) — Income inclusion when 94.1(3) applies; 94.2(3)(b)(i) — Application of mark-to-market method; 95(2)(g.3) — Application to FAPI rules; 107(1.1) — Cost of capital interest in a trust; 108(1)"income interest"(b) — Exclusion from definition of income interest.

(4) Income inclusion — imputed income regime — If subsection (3) or 94.2(9) applies to a taxpayer resident in Canada for a taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a participating interest and subsections 94.2(3) and 94.3(3) do not apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest, then this subsection applies to the taxpayer for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest and there shall be included (as income from property from a property that is the participating interest) in computing the taxpayer's income for that taxation year the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, in respect of each month in that taxation year, at the end of which month the taxpayer holds the participating interest, determined by the formula

where

A is the designated cost, to the taxpayer of the participating interest, at the end of the month; and

B is the quotient obtained when the rate of interest prescribed, in respect of amounts required by this Act to be paid by the Minister, for the quarterly period that includes that month is divided by 12.

Technical Notes: Subsection 94.1(4) applies to a taxpayer resident in Canada for a taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity if subsection 94.1(3) or 94.2(9) applies (and subsections 94.2(3) and 94.3(3) do not apply) to the taxpayer for the taxation year in respect of a participating interest.

Where subsection 94.1(4) applies, the taxpayer is required to include (as income from property from a property that is the participating interest) in computing the taxpayer's income for that taxation year the total of all amounts each of which, is in respect of each month in that taxation year, at the end of which month the taxpayer holds the participating interest, the product obtained by multiplying

- the designated cost (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)), to the taxpayer of the participating interest, at the end of the month, by

- the quotient obtained when the rate of interest prescribed, in respect of amounts required by this Act to be paid by the Minister, for the quarterly period that includes that month is divided by 12.

For this purpose, the rate of interest will be that determined under paragraph 4301(b) of the Regulations. That rate, in very general terms, is the 3-month average Treasury bill rate + 2 percentage points.

For more information on the definition "designated cost" in subsection 94.1(1), see the commentary on that definition. For more information on subsection 94.2(3), see the commentary on that subsection.

Regulations: 4301(b) (prescribed interest rate for B).

(5) Loss on disposition of interest — reconciliation — Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, if, at a particular time in a particular taxation year, a taxpayer disposes of a participating interest of the taxpayer and subsection (4) applied to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest to include an amount in computing the taxpayer's income for any taxation year of the taxpayer that began on or before the particular time

(a) there may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year the lesser of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount included in respect of the participating interest because of subsection (4) in computing the taxpayer's income for

(I) the particular taxation year, or

(II) any taxation year, of the taxpayer, that ends before the particular taxation year and after the taxpayer last acquired the participating interest

exceeds

(B) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of the participating interest that is deductible under paragraph 94.4(2)(a) in computing the taxpayer's income for any of those taxation years, and

(ii) the greater of

(A) the amount that would, if this Act were read without reference to this paragraph and subparagraph 40(2)(g)(i), be determined to be the capital loss of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year from the disposition of the participating interest, and

(B) where the participating interest is an interest in a trust that is not an exempt foreign trust (as defined in subsection 94(1)), the amount that would be determined, at the time of the disposition, to be the capital loss of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year from the disposition of the participating interest if, at the time of the disposition,

(I) the cost to the taxpayer of the participating interest were equal to the amount determined by the formula

$$A/B \times C$$

where

A is the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount, immediately before the disposition by the taxpayer of the participating interest in the trust, to the trust of a property (referred to in this subclause as a "distributed property") that was distributed by the trust to the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition by the taxpayer of the participating interest in the trust,

exceeds

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount of a debt or obligation of the trust that was assumed by the taxpayer because a distributed property was distributed to the taxpayer by the trust as consideration for the disposition by the taxpayer of the participating interest in the trust,

B is the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount to the trust of a property held by the trust immediately before the time of the disposition of the taxpayer's participating interest in the trust,

exceeds

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount of a debt or obligation of the trust immediately before the time of the disposition of the taxpayer's participating interest in the trust, and

C is the total of all amounts each of which was the cost amount, immediately after the time the property was acquired by the trust because of the contribution, to the trust of a property that was contributed to the trust at any time before the time of the disposition of the taxpayer's participating interest in the trust; and

(II) this Act were read without reference to this paragraph and subparagraph 40(2)(g)(i); and

(b) the taxpayer's capital loss for the taxation year from the disposition of the participating interest is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would, if this Act were read without reference to this paragraph and subparagraph 40(2)(g)(i), be the taxpayer's capital loss for the particular taxation year from the disposition of the participating interest

(ii) the amount in respect of the participating interest deducted by the taxpayer under paragraph (a) in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.1(5) applies where a taxpayer disposes of an interest in a non-resident entity at a particular time in a particular taxation year. If subsection 94.1(4) applied, for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income, for any taxation year of the taxpayer that began on or before the particular time, in respect of the participating interest, the taxpayer may be permitted to deduct an amount equal to the lesser of

- the amount, if any, by which the total of the taxpayer's income inclusions under subsection 94.1(4) in respect of the interest (since its last acquisition by the taxpayer) exceeds the total deductions available to the taxpayer in respect of the interest under paragraph 94.4(2)(a), and

- the greater of

  - the taxpayer's capital loss for the particular taxation year from the disposition of the participating interest (determined without reference to paragraph 94.1(5)(a) and subparagraph 40(2)(g)(i)), and

  - where the participating interest is not an interest in an exempt foreign trust, the capital loss of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year from the disposition of the participating interest if the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the participating interest were equal to the designated cost to the taxpayer of the participating interest determined under paragraph 94.1(2)(c) (determined without reference to paragraph 94.1(5)(a) and subparagraph 40(2)(g)(i)).

Where a deduction is claimed by the taxpayer under paragraph 94.1(5)(a) in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year, the taxpayer's capital loss for the taxation year from the disposition of the participating interest (determined without reference to paragraph 94.1(5)(b) and subparagraph 40(2)(g)(i)) is reduced by the amount of that deduction.

94.2 Foreign investment entities — mark-to-market — (1) Definitions — The definitions in subsection 94.1(1), and the definitions in this subsection, apply in this section.

Technical Notes: New section 94.2 sets out new rules for the taxation of interests in FIEs where subsections 94.1(4) and 94.3(3) do not apply.

Except as otherwise indicated, section 94.2 applies to taxation years that begin after 2006.

New subsection 94.2(1) sets out a number of definitions and provides that those definitions and the definitions in subsection 94.1(1) apply for the purposes of section 94.2.

"deferral amount", of a taxpayer in respect of a participating interest in an entity, means, subject to subsections (6) and (14) to (18), the positive or negative amount determined by the formula

$$A \times (B - C)$$

where

A is

(a) if, immediately before the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxation year that began after 2006 (or, where this definition applies in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins before 2007, immediately before the beginning of the first taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which this definition applies), the interest was capital property held by the taxpayer, ½, and

(b) in any other case, 1;

B is

(a) the fair market value of the interest at the first time in a particular taxation year of the taxpayer at which the taxpayer was resident in Canada where

(i) the taxpayer held the interest at the end of the preceding taxation year,

(ii) at the end of that preceding year, the taxpayer was resident in Canada or the interest was taxable Canadian property,

(iii) subsection (4) did not apply to the taxpayer for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the interest for any preceding taxation year, and

(iv) subsection (4) applies to the taxpayer for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the interest for the particular year, and

(b) in any other case, nil; and

C is

(a) if paragraph (a) of the description of B applies in respect of the interest, the cost amount of the property immediately before the first time in the particular year at which the taxpayer was resident in Canada, and

(b) in any other case, nil.

Technical Notes: The deferral amount of a taxpayer generally represents the gain or loss (in the event that the interest was capital property, one half of the gain or loss) in respect of the interest accrued to the time when the interest first became subject to the rules in section 94.2. The expression "deferral amount" in respect of a participating interest of a taxpayer in an entity applies principally for the purpose of determining the value of D in the "mark-to-market formula" (as defined in subsection 94.2(1)) for a taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest. That formula applies in determining, under subsection 94.2(4), a taxpayer's income or loss (or capital gain or capital loss) from the participating interest for a taxation year. Subsection 94.2(4) generally provides for the recognition of a deferral amount in respect of a participating interest on the disposition of the interest. Because of paragraph 94.1(2)(u), identical participating interests are considered to be disposed of in the order in which they were acquired.

For a participating interest, in a non-resident entity, acquired after the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxation year that began after 2006, the deferral amount will be nil in the typical cases where the rules in section 94.2 apply to the interest for the year in which the interests were acquired.

The deferral amount is calculated, in conjunction with subsections 94.2(5) and subsection 128.1(4), so that gains and losses accruing while a taxpayer is not resident in Canada are ignored for the purposes of section 94.2, except in the unusual case where an interest in a FIE is taxable Canadian property.

Additional rules affecting the calculation of the deferral amount are contained in subsections 94.2(6) and (14) to (18), as described in the commentary below.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamation — continuing corporation; 94.1(2)(u) — Order of disposition of identical properties; 94.2(6)(b), (c) — Application where member of foreign partnership becomes resident in Canada; 94.2(15)–(18) — Determination of deferral amount on emigration, change of status or superficial disposition; 95(2)(g.3) — Application to FAPI rules.

"gross-up factor", for a particular deferral amount, means

(a) if the amount determined for A in the definition "deferral amount" in respect of the particular deferral amount is ½, 2; and

(b) in any other case, 1.

Technical Notes: The definition "gross-up factor" for a particular deferral amount is 1, except where the ½ factor is relevant in computing the deferral amount because the property is capital property. In the latter case, the "gross-up factor" is 2 (i.e., the reciprocal of the ½ factor). For more information on the relevance of this definition, see the commentary on subsection 94.2(12).

"mark-to-market formula", for a taxation year of a taxpayer in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity, means the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition from a disposition of the participating interest in the taxation year (other than from a disposition deemed to arise because of subsection 128.1(4) or 149(10));

B is

(a) if the taxpayer held the participating interest at the end of the taxation year, the fair market value (determined before taking into account any amount payable at the end of the taxation year by the non-resident entity in respect of the participating interest) at that time of the participating interest, and

(b) in any other case, nil;

C is the total of all amounts (other than an amount to which the description of A applies) each of which is an amount received by the taxpayer in the taxation year from the non-resident entity in respect of the participating interest;

D is

(a) the taxpayer's deferral amount in respect of the participating interest, if

(i) the deferral amount is a positive amount,

(ii) the participating interest was not disposed of by the taxpayer in the taxation year, and

(iii) the taxpayer so elects in respect of the participating interest in prescribed form filed with the Minister not later than the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxation year,

(b) the taxpayer's deferral amount in respect of the participating interest if

(i) the taxpayer disposed of the participating interest in the taxation year, and

(ii) no election was made under paragraph (a) in respect of the participating interest by the taxpayer for a preceding taxation year, and

(c) in any other case, nil;

E is the total of all amounts each of which is

(a) the cost (other than an amount described in paragraph (b)) at which the taxpayer acquired the participating interest in the taxation year (otherwise than because of an acquisition deemed to arise under subsection 128.1(4) or 149(10)), or

(b) if the participating interest is an interest in a life insurance policy, the cost at which the taxpayer is deemed under paragraph (11)(f) to acquire in the taxation year a part of the interest in the policy;

F is

(a) if the taxpayer did not acquire the participating interest in the year and the taxpayer held the participating interest at a time that is the beginning of the taxation year, the fair market value at that time of the participating interest (determined before taking into account any amount payable at that time by the non-resident entity in respect of the participating interest), and

(b) in any other case, nil; and

G is

(a) if the participating interest was deemed by paragraph (11)(b) to be a participating interest in an entity for the preceding taxation year of the taxpayer, the amount that would be deductible under subparagraph (4)(a)(ii) in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's preceding taxation year in respect of the participating interest if that subparagraph were read without reference to clause (4)(a)(ii)(A), and

(b) in any other case, nil.

Technical Notes: The definition "mark-to-market formula" provides a formula that applies, for a taxation year of a taxpayer in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer, in determining, under subsection 94.2(4), a taxpayer's income or loss (or, where subsection 94.2(20) applies in respect of the participating interest, the capital gain or capital loss) from the participating interest for a taxation year.

The amount determined under the formula for a taxpayer's taxation year in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity is computed as follows:

- [A] ADD the proceeds of disposition in the year from any disposition by the taxpayer in the year of the interest (other than a disposition arising from the application of subsection 128.1(4) or 149(10), given that the value of B would take into account the fair market value of the interest at the time of such deemed dispositions);
- [B] ADD, where the taxpayer held the interest at the end of the year, the fair market value of the interest at that time (determined before taking into account the FIE's liability in respect of any amount payable from the FIE in respect of the interest);
- [C] ADD the total payments received by the taxpayer in the year from the FIE, other than payments included in the value of A;
- [D] ADD, where the taxpayer so elects for a year during which the taxpayer did not dispose of the interest, any positive deferral amount in respect of the interest;
- [D] ADD, where the taxpayer disposed of the interest in the year and the election referred to above has not been previously made, the deferral amount in respect of the interest — the value of D will reduce the amount determined under the formula in the event that the deferral amount is a negative amount;
- [E] SUBTRACT either
  - the cost of the interest on any acquisition in the year of the interest (disregarding acquisitions arising because of the application of subsection 128.1(4) or 149(10), given that these acquisitions are taken into account in the value of F), or
  - if the participating interest is an interest in a life insurance policy, the cost at which the taxpayer is deemed by paragraph (11)(f) to acquire the interest;
- [F] SUBTRACT, where the taxpayer acquired the interest before the beginning of the year, the fair market value of the interest at the beginning of the year.

Ignoring the descriptions of D and G, the mark-to-market formula in effect determines the net increase or decrease in the fair market value of a taxpayer's participating interest in a non-resident entity for a taxation year.

The value of D represents a taxpayer's accrued gain or loss when a participating interest first becomes subject to section 94.2. The amount of this accrued gain or loss (or one half of it, in the event so provided in paragraph (b) of the definition "deferral amount" in subsection 94.2(1)) is included in computing income under the description of D, but only for the taxation year in which the interest is disposed of unless the taxpayer elects for earlier recognition of a positive deferral amount. (An earlier recognition of a positive deferral amount may be beneficial for a taxpayer, particularly where section 94.4 applies.) Where the taxpayer is a trust, a disposition may occur as a consequence of the application of the 21-year deemed disposition rule. See, in this regard, new subsection 104(4.1).

For more detail, see the commentary on subsections 94.2(3) and (4) and the definitions "deferral amount" and "gross-up factor" in subsection 94.2(1).

Related Provisions: 94.1(2)(o) — Amount deemed not to have become "payable"; 94.2(5)–(8) — Exclusion of periods taxpayer is non-resident; 94.2(11) — Application to foreign insurance policies; 96(1)(d)(iii)(I), (J) — Election by partnership; 96(3) — Election under D(a)(iii) by member of a partnership; 257 — Formula amount cannot be less than zero.

"proceeds of disposition", from a disposition of a participating interest, includes

(a) where the participating interest is an interest in a life insurance policy, subject to paragraph (11)(e), proceeds of the disposition within the meaning assigned by subsection 148(9); and

(b) in any other case, proceeds of disposition within the meaning assigned by section 54.

Technical Notes: The definition "proceeds of disposition" has been added to clarify that, in the case of a disposition of an interest in a life insurance policy, proceeds of disposition are defined by subsection 148(9). In any other case, the proceeds of disposition are defined by section 54.

"readily obtainable fair market value", if any, at any time of a particular participating interest in a non-resident entity held at that time by a taxpayer, means the fair market value at that time of the participating interest if

(a) in respect of the particular participating interest

(i) the particular participating interest would, at that time, be an arm's length interest of the taxpayer if the definition "arm's length interest" in subsection 94.1(1) were read without reference to paragraph (b) of that definition,

(ii) participating interests that are identical to the particular participating interest are listed on a designated[14] stock exchange throughout the period, in the taxpayer's taxation year that includes that time, during which the taxpayer held the particular participating interest,

(iii) the identical participating interests were traded on at least 10 consecutive trading days on that stock exchange in the period that begins 30 days before that time, and

(iv) the amount (or the average of the amounts) at which the identical participating interests were last traded on each trading day that is included in the latest of the 10 consecutive trading days in the period that begins 30 days before that time is published for public use; or

(b) in respect of the particular participating interest

(i) the participating interests in the non-resident entity that are identical to the particular participating interest have, throughout the period, in the taxpayer's taxation year that includes that time, during which the taxpayer held the particular participating interest, conditions attached that require the non-resident entity to accept at the demand of the holders of the participating interests (or that require the holders of the participating interests to accept, at the demand of the non-resident entity), at a price determined and payable in accordance with the conditions, the surrender in whole or in part of the participating interests, and

(ii) that price

(A) is determined by reference to the fair market value, at the time the participating interest is surrendered (or such other time that is set out in the terms of the participating interest at the time it was issued and that is within 60 days of the time that the participating interest is surrendered), of the property of the non-resident entity, and

(B) would have been acceptable to entities dealing at arm's length with one another.

Technical Notes: The definition "readily obtainable fair market value" is relevant in determining whether a taxpayer may elect to have subsection 94.2(3) (and, as a result, subsection 94.2(4)) apply for a taxation year in respect of a particular participating interest (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)).

In general terms, the readily obtainable fair market value of a particular participating interest is, if one of two sets of conditions is met, its fair market value.

The first set of conditions requires, in respect of the particular participating interest that:

- participating interests that are identical to the particular participating interest be listed on a prescribed stock exchange throughout the period, in the taxpayer's taxation year that includes that time, during which the taxpayer held the particular participating interest,
- the particular participating interest would, at that time, be an arm's length interest of the taxpayer (determined without regard to the 10% limitation that normally applies under paragraph (b) of the definition "arm's length interest" in subsection 94.1(1)),
- there be a regularly published price of the amount (or of the average of the amounts each of which is the amount) at which participating interests that are identical to the particular participating interest last traded on that stock exchange on each of the latest 10 consecutive "trading days" (as defined in subsection 94.2(1)) of the participating interests on that stock exchange, and
- within the 30-day period that begins before the particular time there are at least 10 trading days of the identical participating interests on that stock exchange.

Note that, under paragraph 94.2(2)(b), where the identical participating interests are listed on more than one prescribed stock exchange, the taxpayer may generally elect which of the exchanges will be used in applying the definition "readily obtainable fair market value". For more information, see the commentary on paragraph 94.2(2)(b).

Where the first set of conditions are not met, the second set of conditions requires that the identical participating interests have, throughout the period, in the taxpayer's taxation year that includes that time, during which the taxpayer held the particular participating interest, conditions attached that require the non-resident entity to accept at the demand of the holders of the participating interests (or that require the holders of the participating interests to accept, at the demand of the non-resident entity), at a price ("the redemption price") determined and payable in accordance with the conditions, the surrender in whole or in part of the participating interests. In addition, the second set of conditions requires that the redemption price be determined by reference to the fair market value, at the time the participating interest is surrendered (or such other time that is set out in the terms of the participating interest at the time it was issued and that is within 60 days of the time that the participating interest is surrendered), of the property of the non-resident entity, and be a price that would have been acceptable to entities dealing at arm's length with one another.

Related Provisions: 94.2(2)(b) — Taxpayer may elect where interest is listed on more than one designated stock exchange; 94.2(2)(d) — Effect of failing to provide information on demand by CRA; 94.2(3)(b)(ii) — Value required for mark-to-market method to be used; 248(12) — Identical properties.

"reconciliation amount", at a particular time in a taxation year of a taxpayer in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer, means the amount (including a negative amount) determined at the particular time by the formula

where

A is the amount determined by the formula

$$C - D$$

where

C is the amount that would be the cost at the particular time of the participating interest to the taxpayer if this Act were read without reference to this section, and

D is the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition from the taxpayer's last disposition of the participating interest in the taxation year; and

B is the amount determined by the formula

$$E + F - G$$

where

E is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount, in respect of the participating interest, that is deducted, or that would — if this Act were read without reference to subsection (20) — have been deducted, under subsection (4) in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year or a preceding taxation year,

[14] Changed from "prescribed" by S.C. 2007, c. 35, subsec. 100(2).

F is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount, in respect of the participating interest, deducted under paragraph 94.4(2)(a) in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year or a preceding taxation year, and

G is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount, in respect of the participating interest, that is included, or that would — if this Act were read without reference to subsection (20) — have been included, under subsection (4) in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year or a preceding taxation year.

Technical Notes: The reconciliation amount in respect of a participating interest of a taxpayer is relevant in determining what adjustments, if any, to the cost of the interest may be required under subsection 94.2(12) and what amounts, generally, may be included or deductible, under subsection 94.2(21), by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year in which the interest is disposed of. For more detail, see the commentary on subsections 94.2(12) and (21).

The reconciliation amount at a particular time in a taxation year of a taxpayer in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer, means, in very general terms the amount (including a negative amount) that is the difference between the taxpayer's economic loss in respect of the interest (while the taxpayer held the interest and subsection 94.2(4) applied to it) and the taxpayer's deductions, in computing income, under sections 94.2 or 94.4 (net of income inclusions under section 94.2)) in respect of the interest.

More specifically, the reconciliation amount at a particular time in a taxation year in respect of a participating interest is the amount (including a negative amount) determined by the formula "A - B".

Under the formula, "A" is the positive amount (for more detail, see section 257) determined by subtracting from the cost of the participating interest to the taxpayer (determined without reference to section 94.2) the proceeds of disposition from the last disposition in the taxation year by the taxpayer of the participating interest.

Variable "B" is the positive amount determined by

- ADDING all amounts, in respect of the participating interest, that are, in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year or a preceding year, deducted under paragraph 94.4(2)(a) or deducted (or that would, if this Act were read without reference to subsection 94.2(20), have been deducted) under subsection 94.2(4), and
- SUBTRACTING all amounts in respect of the participating interest, that are, in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year or a preceding year, included, or that would if this Act were read without reference to subsection 94.2(20) have been included, under subsection 94.2(4).

For this purpose, a specified year means, if paragraph 94.2(12)(a) deems the taxpayer to have acquired the participating interest at a time in the taxation year, a preceding taxation year, and in any other case, the taxation year that includes the particular time or a preceding taxation year.

For more detail, see the commentary on subsections 94.2(4), (12) and (21) and 94.4(2).

Related Provisions: 257 — Formula amounts cannot be less than zero.

"tracking entity", in respect of a particular participating interest of a taxpayer in a particular non-resident entity at a particular time, means the particular non-resident entity if

(a) the tracked properties described in paragraph (9)(d) in respect of the participating interest are at that time owned by the particular non-resident entity, and

(i) the total fair market value at that time of those tracked properties is less than 90% of the total fair market value at that time of all property owned at that time by the particular non-resident entity, and

(ii) the total fair market value at that time of those tracked properties that are at that time investment property exceeds 50% of the total fair market value at that time of those tracked properties; or

(b) any tracked property described in paragraph (9)(d) in respect of the participating interest is not at that time owned by the particular non-resident entity, the particular non-resident entity (or an entity with which the particular non-resident entity does not deal at arm's length) owns property that is at that time investment property, and it is reasonable to conclude that that investment property (or property that may be substituted for that investment property) may be used, or give rise to property used, to satisfy, directly or indirectly, the right referred to in paragraph (9)(d) in respect of the particular participating interest.

Technical Notes: The definition "tracking entity" is relevant in determining whether subsections 94.1(4) and 94.2(4) will apply for a taxation year of a taxpayer in respect of a participating interest, held by the taxpayer at the end of the year, in a non-resident entity. If the non-resident entity is, at the end of a taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the taxpayer's year, a tracking entity, and the other conditions described in subsection 94.2(9) are met, such that subsection 94.2(9) applies, then either of subsections 94.1(4) or 94.2(4) would generally apply for the year. Subsection 94.3(4) will not apply for the year in respect of the interest.

A particular non-resident entity is a tracking entity in respect of a particular participating interest of a taxpayer in the non-resident entity if either of paragraph (a) or (b) of the definition applies.

Under paragraph (a) of the definition, the particular non-resident entity is a tracking entity if

- the tracked properties described in paragraph 94.2(9)(d) in respect of the particular participating interest are at that time owned by the particular non-resident entity,
- the total fair market value at that time of those tracked properties is less than 90% of the total fair market value at that time of all property owned at that time by the particular non-resident entity, and
- the total fair market value at that time of those tracked properties that are at that time investment property exceeds 50% of the total fair market value at that time of those tracked properties.

Under paragraph (b) of the definition, the particular non-resident entity will be a tracking entity if

- any of the tracked property described in paragraph 94.2(9)(d) in respect of the participating interest is not at that time owned by the particular non-resident entity,
- the particular non-resident entity (or an entity with which the particular non-resident entity does not deal at arm's length) owns property that is at that time investment property, and
- it is reasonable to conclude that that investment property (or property that may be substituted for that investment property) may be used, or give rise to property used, to satisfy, directly or indirectly, the right referred to in paragraph 94.2(9)(d) in respect of the particular participating interest.

Note that an election under paragraph 94.1(2)(j) is relevant only in determining whether an entity is a "foreign investment entity" (and where stipulated, a "qualifying entity"), as those expressions are defined in subsection 94.1(1). Thus the determination of whether property is owned or not by an entity is made, for the purposes of the definition "tracking entity", without regard to that election.

Note also that the exclusion of "exempt property" from being treated as "investment property" (as those expressions are defined in subsection 94.1(1)) does not apply for the purposes of the definition "tracking entity".

For more information on the application of this definition, see the commentary on subsections 94.1(4) and 94.2(3) and (9). For more information on paragraph 94.2(1)(j) and the definitions "exempt property" and "investment property in subsection 94.1(1), see the commentary on those provisions.

Related Provisions: 94.2(11) — Application to foreign insurance policies.

"trading day", of a participating interest on a designated[14] stock exchange, means a day on which the participating interest trades on that stock exchange.

Technical Notes: The definition "trading day" is relevant in applying paragraph (a) of the definition "readily obtainable fair market value" in subsection 94.2(1). A trading day of a participating interest on a prescribed stock exchange, means a day on which the participating interest trades on that stock exchange.

(2) Rules of application — In this section,

(a) subsection 94.1(2) applies;

(b) in applying paragraph (a) of the definition "readily obtainable fair market value" in subsection (1) in respect of a particular participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held by a taxpayer in a taxation year, where participating interests, in the non-resident entity, that are identical to the particular participating interest are listed on more than one designated[14] stock exchange, the references in that paragraph to a designated[14] stock exchange shall be read as references to

(i) if the taxpayer so elects, by notifying the Minister in writing in the taxpayer's return of income for that taxation

year or a preceding taxation year, the designated[14] stock exchange identified by the taxpayer in that election, and

(ii) if the taxpayer has not filed an election in accordance with subparagraph (i) or if participating interests that are identical to the particular participating interest are no longer listed on the stock exchange identified in the election referred to in that subparagraph, the designated[14] stock exchange chosen by the Minister;

(c) paragraph (3)(b) does not apply to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year in respect of a participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held in the particular taxation year by the taxpayer if

(i) subsection (3) applied, because of an election under paragraph (3)(b), for a taxation year (referred to in this paragraph as the "preceding taxation year") that ended before the particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest (or in respect of any other participating interests, in the non-resident entity, that are identical to the participating interest), and

(ii) subsection (3) did not apply for a taxation year of the taxpayer that was after the preceding taxation year and before the particular taxation year in respect of the participating interest (or in respect of any of the other participating interests);

(d) paragraph (3)(b) does not apply to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year in respect of a participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held in the particular taxation year by the taxpayer if the Minister sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to determine whether the participating interest has a readily obtainable fair market value and information that may reasonably be considered to be satisfactory to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within any longer period that is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand;

(e) in applying subparagraph (4)(a)(i) to a taxpayer, that is a trust, for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer and in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity, the reference in that subparagraph to "as income from property from a property that is the participating interest" is to be read as a reference to "as income from property that is a source outside Canada that is the participating interest", if the portion of the net accounting income of the non-resident entity, from sources outside Canada, for its last taxation year that ends in the particular taxation year exceeds 90% of the total net accounting income of the non-resident entity for that last taxation year; and

(f) in applying subparagraph (4)(b)(i) to a taxpayer, that is a trust, for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer and in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity, the reference in that subparagraph to "a capital gain for the year" is to be read as a reference to "a capital gain for the year from a source outside Canada", if the portion of the net accounting income of the non-resident entity, from sources outside Canada, for its last taxation year that ends in the particular taxation year exceeds 90% of the total net accounting income of the non-resident entity for that last taxation year.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(2) provides rules of application for the purpose of section 94.2.

Application

Paragraph 94.2(2)(a) provides that the rules in subsection 94.1(2) also apply for the purposes of section 94.2.

Readily Obtainable Fair Market Value

Paragraph 94.2(2)(b) applies for the purpose of paragraph (a) of the definition "readily obtainable fair market value" in subsection 94.2(1), referred to in the commentary above, in respect of a particular participating interest in a non-resident entity held by a taxpayer in a taxation year. Where participating interests in the non-resident entity that are identical to the particular participating interest are listed on more than one prescribed stock exchange, the references in that definition to a prescribed stock exchange shall be read as a reference to the prescribed stock exchange in respect of which the taxpayer files an election with the Minister of National Revenue.

If the taxpayer does not so elect or participating interests that are identical to the particular participating interest are no longer listed on the stock exchange identified in the taxpayer's election referred, the references in that definition to a prescribed stock exchange shall be read as a reference to the prescribed stock exchange chosen by the Minister of National Revenue.

Restrictions on Application of Mark-to-market Rules

Paragraph 94.2(2)(c) provides that the mark-to-market regime in subsection 94.2(4) will not apply to a taxpayer in respect of certain participating interests of the taxpayer. The rule applies if the taxpayer has been subject to subsection 94.2(4) in respect of a participating interest because of an election in respect of the interest where the interest has a readily obtainable fair market value and subsection 94.2(3) ceases to apply. For example, paragraph 94.2(2)(c) would apply where the interest (other than a foreign insurance policy) ceases to have a readily obtainable fair market value or the Minister fails to receive, in response to a demand under paragraph 94.2(2)(d), information satisfactory to make a determination of whether the interest has a readily obtainable fair market value.

Where paragraph 94.2(2)(c) applies the taxpayer will become subject to 94.1(4) in respect of the participating interest if 94.1(3) continues to apply to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest.

Note that if, subsection 94.2(4) applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year in respect of a participating interest in a tracking entity and in the immediately following year the interest ceases to be an interest in a tracking entity and becomes subject to subsection 94.1(3), then the taxpayer may elect to have subsection 94.2(4) apply for that immediately following year. In this regard, see the commentary on clause 94.2(3)(b)(ii)(B).

Paragraph 94.2(2)(d) provides that paragraph 94.2(3)(b) does not apply to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year in respect of a participating interest held in the particular taxation year by the taxpayer in a non-resident entity if the Minister sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to determine whether the participating interest has a readily obtainable fair market value and information sufficient to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within such longer period as is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand.

Characterization of Income from FIE Interest

Paragraphs 94.2(2)(e) and (f) provide special rules for determining whether a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from the application of subsection 94.2(4) will be treated as income from a source outside Canada. Paragraph 94.2(2)(e) provides that in applying subparagraph 94.2(4)(a)(i) to a taxpayer (that is a trust) for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer and in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity, the reference in that paragraph to "as income from property that is the participating interest" shall be read as a reference to "as income from property that is a source outside Canada that is the participating interest". However, this special rule applies only if the portion of the net accounting income of the non-resident entity, from sources outside Canada, for its last taxation year that ends in the particular taxation year exceeds 90% of the total net accounting income of the non-resident entity for that last taxation year.

Paragraph 94.2(2)(f) provides that in applying subparagraph 94.2(4)(b)(i) to a taxpayer (that is a trust) for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer and in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity, the reference in that paragraph to "a capital gain for the year" shall be read as a reference to "a capital gain for the year from a source outside Canada and". However, this special rule applies only if the portion of the net accounting income of the non-resident entity, from sources outside Canada, for its last taxation year that ends in the particular taxation year exceeds 90% of the total net accounting income of the non-resident entity for that last taxation year.

The application of paragraphs 94.2(2)(e) and (f) (and a related rule in paragraph 94.1(2)(d)) in respect of a participating interest of a taxpayer will not be relevant in determining a taxpayer's eligibility for a foreign tax credit under section 126. In this regard, see the commentary below on subsections 94.3(2) and 126(1.2). Rather, paragraph 94.2(2)(e) and (f) provide relief to trusts resident in Canada that hold participating interests in a FIE and that make payable to their non-resident beneficiaries all or part of the trusts' incomes arising under subsection 94.2(4). Where paragraph 94.2(2)(e) or (f) applies and the terms of the trust permit amounts of deemed income of the trust to be made payable to beneficiaries, the amounts of such trust income arising under subsection 94.2(4) that become payable to non-resident beneficiaries of the trust may qualify for reduced withholding if the non-resident beneficiary is resident in a country with which Canada has entered a tax treaty and the tax treaty contains a provision permitting such a reduction in withholding.

Where paragraphs 94.2(2)(e) and (f) do not apply, income and capital gains arising under subsection 94.2(4) are from a source inside Canada.

(3) Application of mark-to-market method — Subject to paragraphs (2)(c) and (d) and (5)(b), this subsection applies to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a participating interest held in the particular taxation year by the taxpayer

(a) if paragraph (11)(a) applies to the taxpayer for the particular taxation year in respect of the participating interest; or

(b) if

(i) subsection (9) or 94.1(3) applies to the taxpayer for the particular taxation year in respect of the participating interest,

(ii) the participating interest has, at all times in the particular taxation year at which the taxpayer held the participating interest, a readily obtainable fair market value,

(iii) either

(A) this subsection applied in respect of an identical participating interest that was held by the taxpayer at any time when the taxpayer held the participating interest, or

(B) the taxpayer has elected that this subsection apply in respect of the participating interest by notifying the Minister in writing in the taxpayer's return of income filed on or before the taxpayer's filing due-date [sic] for the first taxation year of the taxpayer for which

(I) subsection (9) or 94.1(3), as the case may be, applies to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest, or

(II) subsection 94.1(3) applies to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest and that immediately follows a taxation year of the taxpayer for which subsection (9) applied to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest, and

(iv) subsection 94.3(3) has never applied to the taxpayer for a taxation year in respect of the participating interest or in respect of an identical participating interest that was held by the taxpayer at any time when the taxpayer held the participating interest.

Technical Notes: Subsection 94.2(3) sets out those circumstances where, subject to paragraphs 94.2(2)(c) and (d) and 94.2(5)(b), subsection 94.2(4) applies to a taxpayer in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity. For the mark-to-market regime in subsection 94.2(4) to apply for a taxation year, subsection 94.2(3) must apply for the year.

Except as described above, subsection 94.2(3) will apply to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year in respect of a participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held by the taxpayer in the year if either:

- paragraph 94.2(11)(a) (foreign insurance policies) applies to the taxpayer for the year in respect of the interest; or
- subsection 94.1(3) or 94.2(9) (interests in tracking entities) applies to the taxpayer in respect of the interest, the interest has at all times in the year at which the taxpayer held it a readily obtainable fair market value (as defined in subsection 94.2(1)), subsection 94.3(3) has never applied to the taxpayer for a taxation year in respect of the participating interest or in respect of an identical participating interest that was held by the taxpayer at any time when the taxpayer held the participating interest and either
  - the taxpayer elects, generally in the first taxation year of the taxpayer in which the taxpayer is subject to subsection 94.1(3) or 94.2(9) in respect of the participating interest (or an identical interest), to have subsection 94.2(3) apply to the participating interest or identical interest, or
  - subsection 94.2(3) applied in respect of an identical participating interest that was held by the taxpayer at any time when the taxpayer held the participating interest.

In effect, where a taxpayer has validly elected for the mark-to-market regime to apply to a participating interest for a taxation year, that regime will continue to apply to the interest and to any identical interests that are held by the taxpayer in that taxation year or a future taxation year until either all of the interests are no longer held by the taxpayer or any one of the conditions for applying subsection 94.2(3) to the interests is not met (e.g., subsection 94.1(3) and 94.2(9) no longer apply in respect of the interests or the interests no longer have a readily obtainable fair market value).

Example

1. Libby acquires 101 shares of the capital stock of ABC Inc. in 2008. At all times ABC is a FIE (and not a tracking entity) and shares of its capital stock are participating interests that do not qualify as exempt interests. ABC's taxation years end on December 30. ABC has issued only one class of shares, the shares of which are identical to each other. Libby is not an exempt taxpayer.

2. Subsection 94.1(3) applies to Libby in respect of her ABC shares for each of her taxation years at the end of which she holds the shares. Assume that the shares have a readily obtainable FMV. In her return of income for her 2008 taxation year, Libby elects under clause 94.2(3)(b)(iii)(B) to have the rules in section 94.2 apply to the shares. Assume that subsection 94.2(20) does not apply in respect of the ABC shares at any time.

3. In February 2009, Libby sells 100 of her ABC shares and continues to hold the remaining 1 share on December 30, 2009.

4. In January 2010, Libby acquires another 200 shares of the capital stock of ABC.

5. In November 2011, Libby disposes of all (i.e., 201) of her ABC shares and holds no ABC shares on December 30, 2011.

6. In July 2012, Libby buys 1000 shares of the capital stock of ABC. Libby continues to hold the shares on December 30, 2012.

Results

1. For her 2008 taxation year, Libby reports as income from property the amount determined under subsection 94.2(4) for the year in respect of her 100 ABC shares.

2. For her 2009 taxation year, clause 94.2(3)(b)(iii)(A) applies in respect of her remaining ABC share and Libby must report as income from property the amount determined under subsection 94.2(4) for the year in respect of that share.

3. For her 2010 taxation year, clause 94.2(3)(b)(iii)(A) applies in respect of Libby's 201 ABC shares and she reports as income from property the amount determined under subsection 94.2(4) for the year in respect of those shares.

4. For her 2011 taxation year, subsection 94.2(3) does not apply to Libby (because Libby holds no shares in ABC at ABC's taxation year-end that ends in Libby's 2011 taxation year) in respect of the shares that she sold in November 2011.

5. For her 2012 taxation year, clause 94.2(3)(b)(iii)(A) will not apply in respect of any of the 1000 ABC shares she acquired in 2012. Libby must elect under clause 94.2(3)(b)(iii)(B) if she wishes to have the mark-to-market regime apply in respect of the shares.

Note that under subclause 94.2(3)(b)(iii)(B)(II) a taxpayer may elect, to have subsection 94.2(3) apply, in a year other than the first taxation year in which subsection 94.1(3) or 94.2(9) applies to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest or an identical interest, if the election is made in the taxpayer's return of income for a taxation year in which subsection 94.1(3) applies and that taxation year immediately follows a taxation year for which the interest is subject to subsection 94.2(9) (i.e., an interest of the taxpayer in a tracking entity).

(4) Income inclusion — mark-to-market regime — If subsection (3) applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity, this subsection applies and in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest

(a) where subsection (20) does not apply for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest,

(i) there shall be added, as income from property from a property that is the participating interest, the positive amount, if any, determined by the mark-to-market formula for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest, and

(ii) there may be deducted, as a loss from property from a property that is the participating interest,

(A) if the participating interest was deemed by paragraph (11)(b) to be a participating interest in an entity for the year, nil, and

(B) in any other case, the absolute value of the negative amount, if any, determined by the mark-to-market formula for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest; and

(b) where subsection (20) applies for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest,

(i) the taxpayer is deemed to have a capital gain for the year from the disposition of capital property, that is the participating interest, in the taxation year equal to the amount, if any, by which the total of

(A) the positive amount, if any, determined by the mark-to-market formula for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest, and

(B) the positive amount, if any, that is the amount determined for D in applying the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection (1) for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest (where the gross-up factor for the deferral amount in respect of the participating interest is 2)

exceeds

(C) the absolute value of the negative amount, if any, that is the amount determined for D in applying the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection (1) for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest (where the gross-up factor for the deferral amount in respect of the participating interest is 2), and

(ii) the taxpayer is deemed to have a capital loss for the taxation year from the disposition of capital property, that is the participating interest, in the taxation year equal to the amount, if any, by which the total of

(A) the absolute value of the negative amount, if any, determined by the mark-to-market formula for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest, and

(B) the absolute value of the negative amount, if any, that is the amount determined for D in applying the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection (1) for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest (where the gross-up factor for the deferral amount in respect of the participating interest is 2)

exceeds

(C) the positive amount, if any, that is the amount determined for D in applying the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection (1) for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest (where the gross-up factor for the deferral amount in respect of the participating interest is 2).

Technical Notes: Where subsection 94.2(3) applies (and subsection 94.2(20) does not apply) to a taxpayer's participating interest in a non-resident entity, subparagraph 94.2(4)(a)(i) requires the taxpayer to include in computing income as income from property (in this regard, see the commentary on paragraph 94.2(2)(e)) from a property that is the participating interest the positive amount resulting from the operation of the mark-to-market formula for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest. Under subparagraph 94.2(4)(a)(ii), the absolute value of any negative amount resulting from the operation of the same formula may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income as a loss from property from a property that is the participating interest. (Note, however, that losses in respect of foreign insurance polices are denied because of clause 94.2(4)(a)(ii)(A). Instead, as described in the commentary to the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection 94.2(1), the denied losses are carried forward to offset later income inclusions.)

Where both subsections 94.2(3) and 94.2(20) apply to a taxpayer's participating interest in a non-resident entity, subparagraph 94.2(4)(b)(i) deems the taxpayer to have a capital gain for the year from the disposition of capital property (in this regard, see the commentary on paragraph 94.2(2)(f)), that is the participating interest, in the taxation year equal to the positive amount determined under the mark-to-market formula for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest plus or minus the positive or negative deferral amount included in "D" in that same formula in respect of the participating interest for the year. Subparagraph 94.2(4)(b)(ii) deems the taxpayer to have capital losses in the year equal to the negative amount determined under the mark-to-market formula for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest plus or minus the negative or positive deferral amount included in "D" in that same formula in respect of the participating interest for the year.

The example below illustrates the operation of subsection 94.2(4) and the mark-to-market formula for a taxation year in respect of a participating interest.

Example

1. Leonard acquires a 1% interest in ABC Inc. in 2001 for $500. On December 31, 2002, it is capital property to Leonard. ABC is not a FIE in respect of the taxpayer at any time before 2008. Subsection 94.2(20) does not apply at any time in respect of the interest. ABC's taxation year-end is June 30.

2. ABC becomes a FIE in April 2008 and remains a FIE at all subsequent times. Leonard elects under subparagraph 94.2(3)(b)(iii) to have the rules in section 94.2 apply. Leonard's interest in ABC does not qualify as an "exempt interest".

3. The fair market values of Leonard's participating interest at the beginning and at the end of 2008 are $800 and $1,000 respectively.

4. Leonard disposes of his shares on December 15, 2009 for $1,200. ABC does not make any distributions to Leonard during his period of ownership.

Results

1. No amount is included in Leonard's income for 2007 under any of sections 94.1 to 94.3. For 2008, Leonard is required to include $200 in income under subparagraph 94.2(4)(a)(i).

2. The $200 inclusion is determined under the mark-to-market formula and subparagraph 94.2(4)(a)(i) as follows:

- "A" is nil, since no participating interest in ABC is disposed of in 2008,
- "B" is $1,000, the fair market value of the participating interest at the end of 2008,
- "C" is nil since no payments are received in 2008,
- "D" is nil since no participating interest is disposed of in 2008 and no election was otherwise made,
- "E" is nil since no participating interest in ABC is acquired in 2008, and
- "F" is $800, the fair market value of the participating interest at the beginning of 2008.

3. Although Leonard's participating interest has appreciated by $500 since the time of its acquisition, only $200 is required to be included in income under section 94.2 for 2008.

4. For 2009, the amount included in income under the mark-to-market formula and subparagraph 94.2(4)(a)(i) is $350, computed as follows:

- "A" is $1,200, the proceeds of disposition of the participating interest,
- "B" is nil since Leonard does not own any participating interest in ABC at the end of 2009,
- "C" is nil since no payments or distributions were received in 2009,
- "D" is $150, the deferral amount in respect of the interest — the "deferral amount" is one half (the one-half factor applies because Leonard's interest in ABC is capital property held by Leonard on December 31, 2006) of the amount by which $800 (the fair market value of the interest at the beginning of 2006 which is the first year in respect of which section 94.2 applies to the interest) exceeds $500 (the cost amount of the interest),
- "E" is nil since no participating interest in ABC is acquired in 2009, and
- "F" is $1,000, the fair market value of the participating interest at the beginning of 2009.

(5) Non-resident periods excluded — If a taxpayer is non-resident at any time in a taxation year of the taxpayer

(a) in applying subsection (4) and the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection (1) (other than the description of D in that definition) in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer, the taxation year is deemed to be the period, if any,

that begins at the first time in the taxation year at which the taxpayer is resident in Canada and ends at the last time in the taxation year at which the taxpayer is resident in Canada;

(b) except for the purposes of paragraph (c) and subsection (4), subsection (3) does not apply to the taxpayer at that time; and

(c) where the taxpayer is an individual (other than a trust) who was non-resident throughout a particular period that is within a taxation year (determined under paragraph (a)) of the taxpayer, at any time in the particular period the individual holds a participating interest in a non-resident entity, and subsection (3) applies to the individual throughout the particular period in respect of the participating interest,

(i) for the purpose of section 114, the income or loss of the individual in respect of the participating interest for the particular period shall be determined without reference to this section, and

(ii) in computing the amount determined under paragraph 114(a) in respect of the individual for the taxation year

(A) there shall be deducted any amount that would be included under subparagraph (4)(a)(i) in computing the individual's income in respect of the participating interest for the particular period if

(I) the amount determined for D in applying the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection (1) for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest were nil, and

(II) the particular period were a taxation year, and

(B) there shall be added any amount that would be deductible under subparagraph (4)(a)(ii) in computing the individual's income in respect of the participating interest for the particular period if

(I) the amount determined for D in applying the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection (1) for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest were nil, and

(II) the particular period were a taxation year.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(5) provides special rules dealing with the application of section 94.2 for a taxation year to persons who are not resident in Canada throughout the year.

Under paragraph 94.2(5)(a), the amounts determined under section 94.2 are generally determined as if the taxation year of the taxpayer excludes the period in the year during which the taxpayer is not resident in Canada. This rule, in conjunction with section 128.1, generally ensures that the increases and decreases in fair market values that are relevant in determining income inclusions and deductions under section 94.2 are the increases and decreases occurring while the taxpayer is resident in Canada. However, this rule does not affect the calculation of the taxpayer's deferral amount: paragraph (b) of the definition "deferral amount" in subsection 94.2(1) (in conjunction with subsection 128.1(1)) already ensures that gains or losses accruing prior to becoming resident in Canada are not taken into account for the purposes of computing a taxpayer's deferral amount in respect of a participating interest in a FIE, except in the unusual case where the FIE interest is taxable Canadian property.

Paragraph 94.2(5)(a) also ensures that subsection 94.2(4) does not apply to a taxpayer for a taxation year throughout which the taxpayer is not resident in Canada.

Under paragraph 94.2(5)(b), subsection 94.2(3) generally does not apply to a taxpayer at a particular time if the taxpayer is not resident in Canada at the particular time. This has relevance for the purposes of a number of new provisions, including subparagraph 39(1)(a)(ii.3). This subparagraph has the effect of excluding, from a taxpayer's capital property, a property in respect of which subsection 94.2(3) applies (and subsection 94.2(20) does not apply). Paragraph 94.2(5)(b) ensures that a non-resident taxpayer cannot claim that a taxable Canadian property consisting of a FIE interest is not capital property on the basis of subparagraph 39(1)(a)(ii.3). (Note: non-resident taxpayers are generally subject to Canadian income tax on taxable capital gains from their dispositions of taxable Canadian properties.)

Paragraph 94.2(5)(c) applies in the unusual case where an individual changes his or her Canadian residence status more than once in the same calendar year. For example, an individual might cease to be resident in Canada near the beginning of a calendar year but become resident in Canada later in the same year. In the event that such an individual is considered not to reside in Canada during a period in the calendar year, the individual's period of non-residence would be included within the individual's taxation year and the rule in paragraph 94.2(5)(a) would have no effect. In order to not tax gains accrued while an individual was non-resident and to not provide relief for losses accrued during the same period, paragraph 94.2(5)(c) provides that:

- for the purposes of section 114, the individual's income or loss from the individual's period of non-residence is determined without reference to section 94.2, and
- in computing the individual's taxable income under section 114,
  - there is to be deducted the increase in the fair market value of an interest in a FIE to which subsection 94.2(4) applies during the non-resident period (this fair market value appreciation would be reflected in the amount determined under the mark-to-market formula (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) in respect of the interest in computing the taxpayer's income), and
  - there is to be added the decline in the fair market value of an interest in a FIE to which subsection 94.2(4) applies that accrued during the non-resident period (this fair market value decline would be reflected in the amount determined under the mark-to-market formula in respect of the interest in computing the taxpayer's income).

The example below illustrates the operation of paragraph 94.2(5)(c).

Example

Bernard emigrates from Canada on February 1, 2007 in order to start permanent employment elsewhere. Due to unexpected changes in circumstances, he returns to Canada on December 1, 2007. Bernard owns an interest in a FIE to which section 94.2 applies. The fair market value of the interest in 2007 increases from $100 (January 1, 2007), to $105 (February 1, 2007), to $108 (December 1, 2007) and to $107 (December 31, 2007). It is assumed that Bernard establishes that he did not reside in Canada from February 1, 2007 to December 1, 2007.

Results

1. Under section 94.2(4), the amount included in computing Bernard's income for 2007 is equal to $7 (B = 107, F = 100).

2. Paragraph 94.2(5)(c) permits a deduction for the purposes of paragraph 114(a) equal to $3 (i.e., $108 - $105) equal to the appreciation in the fair market value of the interest while Bernard was not resident in Canada. As a consequence, Bernard's taxable income in respect of the FIE interest for 2007 is $4 (i.e., $7 minus $3).

Related Provisions: 94.1(2)(t) — Authorized foreign bank deemed resident in Canada; 95(2)(g.3) — Application to FAPI rules.

(6) Foreign partnership — member becoming resident — If, at a particular time in a fiscal period of a partnership, a person resident in Canada becomes a member of the partnership, or a person who is a member of the partnership becomes resident in Canada, and immediately before the particular time no member of the partnership is resident in Canada,

(a) all amounts determined under this section shall be determined as if that fiscal period began at the first time in that fiscal period (determined without reference to this paragraph) at which a member of the partnership was resident in Canada;

(b) for the purpose of the definition "deferral amount" in subsection (1), as it applies in respect of dispositions that occur after the particular time and before the first subsequent time to which this subsection applies in respect of the partnership, subsection (4) is deemed not to have applied to the partnership for any preceding fiscal period; and

(c) where a negative deferral amount would, if this Act were read without reference to this paragraph, be determined in respect of a participating interest held by the partnership immediately before the particular time, the deferral amount in respect of the interest is deemed to be nil.

Technical Notes: New subsections 94.2(6) to (8) provide special rules for partnerships having non-resident members. These subsections are analogous to rules in existing subsections 96(8) and (9) and are designed, in general terms, to prevent partnership losses that accrue while no partnership member is resident in Canada from being used in Canada. A further rule for partnership members is set out in new subsection 96(1.9).

More specifically, subsection 94.2(6) applies where a partnership begins to have members who reside in Canada. Under subsection 94.2(7), a corresponding rule applies in a similar fashion where a partnership ceases to have members who reside in Canada. In either case, for the purposes of determining amounts under section 94.2 portions of the fiscal period of the partnership in which no member is resident in Canada will generally be disregarded.

Where subsection 94.2(6) applies to a partnership at any time, the deferral amount for a FIE interest held by the partnership immediately before that time is computed with reference to the fair market value and the cost amount of the interest. However, if a negative deferral amount is otherwise determined with respect to the interest, the deferral amount is deemed to be nil.

Related Provisions: 94.1(2)(t) — Authorized foreign bank deemed resident in Canada; 94.2(8) — Application — anti-avoidance and partnership look-through rules.

(7) Foreign partnership — member ceasing to be resident — If, at a particular time in a fiscal period of a partnership, a person resident in Canada ceases to be a member of the partnership, or a person who is a member of the partnership ceases to be resident in Canada and immediately after the particular time no member of the partnership is resident in Canada, all amounts determined under this section shall be determined as if that fiscal period ended at the last time in that fiscal period (determined without reference to this subsection) at which a member of the partnership was resident in Canada.

Technical Notes: As a consequence of subsections 94.2(6) and (7), amounts added or deductible under subsection 94.2(4) for a partnership in respect of a FIE interest will generally reflect increases or decreases in fair market value while the partnership has members resident in Canada. However, once the interest is disposed of, an amount reflecting gains accruing before any member became resident in Canada will be recognized because of the application of subsection 94.2(4).

Related Provisions: 94.1(2)(t) — Authorized foreign bank deemed resident in Canada; 94.2(8) — Application — anti-avoidance and partnership look-through rules.

(8) Application of subsecs. (6) and (7) — In subsections (6) and (7) and this subsection,

(a) if it can reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons that a member of a partnership is resident in Canada is to avoid the application of subsection (6) or (7), the member is deemed not to be resident in Canada; and

(b) if a particular partnership is a member of another partnership at any time,

(i) each person or partnership that is at that time a member of the particular partnership is deemed to be at that time a member of the other partnership,

(ii) each person or partnership that becomes at that time a member of the particular partnership is deemed to become at that time a member of the other partnership, and

(iii) each person or partnership that ceases at that time to be a member of the particular partnership is deemed to cease at that time to be a member of the other partnership.

Technical Notes: Subsection 94.2(8) contains an anti-avoidance rule, which is aimed at preventing the insertion of nominal Canadian resident partners for tax planning purposes. This rule is parallel to the rule in existing subsection 96(9).

Subsection 94.2(8) also contains a "look-through" rule. It allows for the "look-through" of one or more tiers of partnerships for the purposes of determining whether a person is a member of a partnership.

Related Provisions: 94.1(2)(t) — Authorized foreign bank deemed resident in Canada; 96(9) — Parallel rule for foreign partnerships.

(9) Tracking interests — This subsection applies to a taxpayer (other than an exempt taxpayer) for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a particular participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held in the particular taxation year by the taxpayer (and in respect of any other participating interests that are identical to the particular participating interest and that are held by the taxpayer in the particular taxation year) only if

(a) subsection 94.1(3) does not apply to the taxpayer for the particular taxation year in respect of the particular participating interest;

(b) at the end of a taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the particular taxation year, the particular participating interest

(i) is held by the taxpayer, and

(ii) either

(A) is not an exempt interest in the non-resident entity, or

(B) would not be such an exempt interest if the definition "exempt interest" in subsection 94.1(1) were read without reference to subparagraph (a)(i) or (ii) of that definition;

(c) at the end of that taxation year of the non-resident entity, it is a tracking entity in respect of the particular participating interest;

(d) at any time in the particular taxation year, the amount of any payment under a right (whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretion by any entity or individual) to receive, in any manner whatever and from any entity, amounts in respect of the particular participating interest or any identical interests, or the value of such a right, is, directly or indirectly, determined primarily by one or more of the following criteria in respect of one or more properties (such property or properties together referred to, in this subsection and the definition "tracking entity" in subsection (1), as "tracked property" or "tracked properties"):

(i) production from the property, use of the property, gains from the disposition of the property, profits from the disposition of the property or fair market value of the property,

(ii) income from the property, profits from the property or revenue from the property, cash flow from the property, or

(iii) any other criterion similar to a criterion referred to in subparagraph (i) or (ii); and

(e) throughout each taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the particular taxation year, all or substantially all of the fair market value of all the tracked properties in respect of the particular participating interest cannot be attributed, either directly or indirectly, to the fair market value of all tracked properties in respect of the particular participating interest (throughout the period that those properties are tracked properties in respect of the particular participating interest) that

(i) are shares of the capital stock of a particular foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that would, if those shares were held by the taxpayer throughout the period (referred to in this subparagraph as the "tracked property period") that those shares are tracked properties in respect of the particular participating interest, be

(A) throughout the tracked property period, a qualifying interest (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 95(2)(m)) of the taxpayer in the particular foreign affiliate, and

(B) throughout the tracked property period, a participating interest of the taxpayer in a qualifying entity, and

(ii) are not tracked properties in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity of an entity that is not related to the taxpayer.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(9) is an anti-avoidance rule intended to prevent the circumvention of subsection 94.1(3) through the use of a participating interest in a "tracking entity" (as defined in subsection 94.2(1)). Where subsection 94.2(9) applies with regard to an interest in a tracking entity for a taxation year, subsection 94.1(4) will apply to the taxpayer for that year unless subsection 94.2(3) applies for that year in respect of the interest.

Subsection 94.2(9) applies to a taxpayer (other than an exempt taxpayer, as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a particular participating interest of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity (and any participating interests of the taxpayer in the non-resident entity that are identical to the particular participating interest) if

- subsection 94.1(3) does not apply to the taxpayer for the particular taxation year in respect of the particular participating interest;
- the particular participating interest is, at the end of a taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the particular taxation year, held by the taxpayer, and generally not an "exempt interest" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)); however, note that an interest of a taxpayer in a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer or a "qualifying entity" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) will not qualify as an exempt interest for this purpose, with the result that subsection 94.2(9) may apply to such interests;
- the non-resident entity is, at the end of that taxation year of the non-resident entity, a "tracking entity" (as defined in subsection 94.2(1)) in respect of the particular participating interest;

- at any time in the particular taxation year, the amount of any payment under a right (whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretion by any entity or individual) to receive, in any manner whatever and from any entity, amounts in respect of the particular participating interest or any identical interests, or the value of such a right, is, directly or indirectly, determined primarily by one or more of the following criteria in respect of one or more properties (such property or properties together referred to in subsection 94.2(9) and the definition "tracking entity" in subsection 94.2(1) as "tracked property" or "tracked properties"):
  - — production from the property, use of the property, gains from the disposition of the property, profits from the disposition of the property, fair market value of the property,
  - — income from the property, profits from the property, revenue from the property, cash flow from the property, or
  - — any other criterion similar to any of the above criteria; and
- throughout each taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the particular taxation year, all or substantially all of the fair market value of all the tracked properties in respect of the particular participating interest cannot be attributed, either directly or indirectly, to the fair market value of all tracked properties in respect of the particular participating interest (throughout the period that those properties are tracked properties in respect of the particular participating interest) that:
  - — are shares of the capital stock of a particular foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that would, if those shares were held by the taxpayer throughout the period (the "tracked property period") that those shares are tracked properties in respect of the particular participating interest, be, throughout the tracked property period, a qualifying interest (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 95(2)(m)) of the taxpayer in the particular foreign affiliate, and a participating interest of the taxpayer in a qualifying entity, and
  - — are not tracked properties in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity of an entity that is not related to the taxpayer.

It should be noted that tracked properties can include any property, whether owned by the non-resident entity or not. For example, if the fair market value of shares issued by a non-resident entity were tracked to the worldwide price of gold bullion, the tracked properties in question would be the worldwide supply of gold bullion. Whether subsection 94.2(9) applies in this case or not would typically depend on whether the non-resident entity is a tracking entity, as defined in subsection 94.2(1).

Related Provisions: 91(1)(b) — Tracked shares ignored for FAPI income inclusion; 94.1(4) — Income inclusion — imputed income regime; 94.2(3)(b)(i) — Application of mark-to-market method; 94.3(2)(b)(vi), 94.3(3)(b)(ii) — Application where 94.2(9) applies; 107(1.1) — Cost of capital interest in a trust; 108(1)"income interest"(b) — Exclusion from definition of income interest; 248(1)"specified participating interest"(b)(ii) — Where 94.2(9)(e) applies; 248(12) — Identical properties.

(10) Treatment of foreign insurance policies — This subsection applies to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of an interest in an insurance policy if

(a) the taxpayer is not an exempt taxpayer for the particular taxation year;

(b) the taxpayer holds, at any time in the particular taxation year, an interest in the insurance policy; and

(c) the insurance policy is not an insurance policy issued by an insurer in the course of carrying on an insurance business in Canada the income from which business is subject to tax under this Part.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(10) applies if a taxpayer (other than an exempt taxpayer, as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) holds, at any time in a particular taxation year of the taxpayer, an interest in a foreign insurance policy. For this purpose, a foreign insurance policy is one that is not issued by an insurer in the course of carrying on in Canada a business the income from which is subject to tax under Part I.

Related Provisions: 94.2(11) — Effect of subsection applying.

(11) Treatment of foreign insurance policies — If subsection (10) applies to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of an interest in an insurance policy

(a) subject to paragraph (c), this paragraph applies to the taxpayer for the particular taxation year in respect of the interest, and no amount shall be included or deducted, as the case may be, under section 12.2, paragraphs 56(1)(d) and (j) and 60(a) and (s) and sections 138.1 and 148 in respect of the interest for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year;

(b) subject to paragraph (c), in applying subsections (1) to (3), paragraph (4)(a) and paragraph (d.1) of the definition "specified foreign property" in subsection 233.3(1) to the taxpayer in respect of the interest for the particular taxation year,

(i) the interest is deemed at each time in the particular taxation year that it is held by the taxpayer to be a participating interest in a non-resident entity, and

(ii) the amount determined for D in applying the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection (1) for the particular taxation year in respect of the interest is deemed to be nil;

(c) paragraphs (a) and (b) do not apply to the taxpayer for the particular taxation year in respect of the interest if

(i) the taxpayer has no rights (whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretion by any entity) to receive an amount under the policy, other than rights to receive an amount of

(A) benefits payable as a consequence of the occurrence of risks insured under the policy,

(B) an experience-rated refund of premiums for a year, or

(C) a return of premiums previously paid upon the surrender, cancellation or termination of the insurance policy, or

(ii) the taxpayer can establish to the satisfaction of the Minister that

(A) the interest in the policy was, on the anniversary day of the policy that occurs in the particular taxation year,

(I) an exempt policy, or

(II) a prescribed annuity contract, or

(B) the taxpayer has included in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year the amount, if any, required under section 12.2 to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the interest;

(d) for the purpose of subsections (1) and (4), where the interest is held by the taxpayer at a particular time that is the beginning of the particular taxation year, subsection (4) applies for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the interest, and subsection (4) did not apply for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's preceding taxation year in respect of the interest, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the interest at the particular time at a cost equal to

where

A is the fair market value at the particular time of the interest, and

B is, where the taxpayer elects in prescribed form filed with the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the particular taxation year, the amount determined by the formula

$$C - D$$

where

C is the total of all amounts each of which is a premium paid before the particular time in respect of the interest by the taxpayer, to the extent that the premium was paid at a time when the taxpayer was resident in Canada and not an exempt taxpayer, cannot be refunded (otherwise than on termination or cancellation of the policy) and was not paid in respect of a benefit described in any of subparagraphs (c)(i) to (vii) of the definition "premium" in subsection 148(9), and

D is the total of

(i) the fair market value at the particular time of the interest, and

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount received before the particular time in respect of the interest by the taxpayer at a time when the taxpayer was resident in Canada and not an exempt taxpayer;

(e) for the purposes of this subsection and subsections (1) and (4), each of the following amounts in respect of the interest is to be determined without reference to benefits under the policy that are paid, payable or anticipated to be payable as a consequence only of the occurrence of the risks insured under the policy:

(i) the fair market value of the interest,

(ii) the proceeds of disposition of the interest, and

(iii) each amount paid to a beneficiary in respect of the interest;

(f) for the purposes of subsections (1) and (4),

(i) a payment of a premium under the policy by the taxpayer in the particular taxation year — to the extent that the premium cannot be refunded (otherwise than on termination or cancellation of the policy) and is not a premium in respect of a benefit described in any of subparagraphs (c)(i) to (vii) of the definition "premium" in subsection 148(9) — is deemed to be an acquisition in the particular taxation year by the taxpayer of a part of the interest in the policy at a cost equal to the amount so paid,

(ii) a payment made by the taxpayer in the particular taxation year in respect of the principal amount of a loan made under the policy in the particular taxation year (or a preceding taxation year of the taxpayer) — to the extent that the loan was included in the amount in respect of the interest determined for C in applying the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection (1) for the taxation year in which the loan was made — is deemed to be an acquisition in the particular taxation year by the taxpayer of a part of the interest in the policy at a cost equal to the amount so paid, and

(iii) an amount (other than an amount described in subparagraph (i) or (ii)) paid by the taxpayer in the particular taxation year, to an entity or individual other than the insurer that issued the policy, to acquire in the particular taxation year an interest in the policy from the entity or individual, is deemed to be an acquisition in the particular taxation year by the taxpayer of a part of the interest in the policy at a cost equal to the amount so paid;

(g) for the purposes of subsections (1) and (4), if paragraph (d) deems the taxpayer to have acquired the interest at a particular time in the particular taxation year or an earlier taxation year, in computing the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition from the taxpayer's first disposition of the interest after the particular time, the taxpayer is deemed — in addition to any other proceeds of disposition from the disposition of the interest — to be entitled to receive an amount of proceeds from the disposition of the interest equal to the amount determined by the formula

$$A - B$$

where

A is the total of

(i) the fair market value at the particular time of the interest, and

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount received before the particular time in respect of the interest by the taxpayer at a time when the taxpayer was resident in Canada and not an exempt taxpayer, and

B is the total of all amounts each of which is a premium paid before the particular time in respect of the interest by the taxpayer, to the extent that the premium was paid at a time when the taxpayer was resident in Canada and not an exempt taxpayer, cannot be refunded (otherwise than on termination or cancellation of the policy) and was not paid in respect of a benefit described in any of subparagraphs (c)(i) to (vii) of the definition "premium" in subsection 148(9); and

(h) if the interest is held by the taxpayer at a time that is the end of the particular taxation year, subsection (4) applies for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the interest, and subsection (4) does not apply for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's following taxation year (in this paragraph referred to as "the following taxation year") in respect of the interest, the cost to the taxpayer of the interest shall be determined at or after the particular time that is the beginning of the following taxation year as if the taxpayer had acquired the interest at the particular time at a cost equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the fair market value at the end of the particular taxation year of the interest,

B is the amount that would be determined under subparagraph (4)(a)(ii) in respect of the interest for the particular taxation year if that subparagraph were read without reference to clause (A) of that subparagraph, and

C is the amount that would, if paragraph (g) had applied at the end of the particular taxation year in respect of the interest, be determined at the end of the particular taxation year in respect of the interest by the formula under that paragraph.

Technical Notes: Subsection 94.2(11) sets out the treatment under section 94.2 of an interest in the foreign insurance policy. Where subsection 94.2(10) applies, paragraph 94.2(11)(a) provides, subject to paragraph 94.2(11)(c), that

- it applies to the interest, with the result that, in conjunction with paragraph 94.2(3)(a), the mark-to-market rules in subsection 94.2(4) apply to the interest, and
- no amount shall be included or deducted, as the case may be, under section 12.2, paragraphs 56(1)(d) and (j) and 60(a) and (s) and sections 138.1 and 148 in respect of the interest for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year.

Paragraph 94.2(11)(b) generally provides that, where a taxpayer (other than an exempt taxpayer) holds an interest in a foreign insurance policy, for the purposes of subsections 94.2(1) to (3) and paragraph (4)(a) (and a corresponding foreign property reporting rule in subsection 233.3(1)) the particular interest is deemed to be a participating interest in a non-resident entity. However, the mark-to-market regime under subsection 94.2(4) applies differently to insurance policies in three respects:

- first, no deferral amount is calculated with regard to insurance policies,
- second, losses are not deductible, but instead can be used to offset future income amounts otherwise arising under subsection 94.2(4) (as to the treatment of losses, see the commentary on the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection 94.2(1)), and
- third, the interest will not be a participating interest for the purposes of subsection 94.2(20), so that paragraph 94.4(2)(b) will not apply to amounts determined under the mark-to-market formula in respect of the interest.

Paragraph 94.2(11)(b) applies to treat an interest in an insurance policy as a participating interest only for the limited purposes identified in that paragraph (i.e., subsections 94.2(1) to (3), paragraph (4)(a) and the corresponding foreign property reporting rule in subsection 233.3(1)). For example, the interest will not be a participating interest for the purpose of subsection 94.2(19) or, as mentioned above, for the purpose of 94.2(20).

Paragraph 94.2(11)(c) provides that paragraphs 94.2(11)(a) and (b) do not apply to a taxpayer in respect of an insurance policy in the following situations:

- Where the taxpayer is an individual and the interest in the policy was acquired more than five years before the taxpayer became resident in Canada. However, this exception does not apply if premiums in excess of the level originally contemplated under the policy have been paid within 5 years of the policyholder becoming resident in Canada or while the policyholder was resident in Canada.

- Under the terms and conditions of the policy, the policyholder is entitled to receive only benefits payable as a consequence of the occurrence of the risks insured under the policy, an experience rated refund of premiums for a year and a return of premiums previously paid upon the surrender, cancellation or termination of the policy.
- The taxpayer can establish to the satisfaction of the Minister of National Revenue that
  - the interest in the policy was, on the anniversary day (as defined in subsection 12.2(11)) of the policy that occurs in the taxation year, an exempt policy (as defined in subsection 12.2(11)) or a prescribed annuity contract (as defined in section 304 of the Income Tax Regulations — in this regard, it is intended that amendments be proposed to section 304 of the Regulations to reflect this change), or
  - an appropriate amount of income has been included in the taxpayer's income under section 12.2 in respect of the policy.

In the event that subsection (4) applies to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year in respect of an interest in an insurance policy held by the taxpayer at the beginning of the particular taxation year and subsection (4) did not apply to that taxpayer in respect of that interest in the taxpayer's preceding taxation year, paragraph 94.2(11)(d) provides that the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the interest in the insurance policy at the beginning of the particular taxation year at a cost equal to the fair market value of the interest at the beginning of the particular taxation year plus (where the taxpayer elects) the amount by which

- the total of all amounts each of which is a premium paid before the beginning of the particular taxation year in respect of the interest by the taxpayer, to the extent that the premium was
  - paid at a time when the taxpayer was resident in Canada and not an exempt taxpayer,
  - cannot be refunded (otherwise than on termination or cancellation of the policy), and
  - not paid in respect of a benefit described in any of subparagraphs (c)(i) to (vii) of the definition "premium",

exceeds

- the total of
  - the fair market value at the beginning of the particular taxation year of the interest, and
  - the total of all amounts each of which is an amount received before the beginning of the particular taxation year in respect of the interest by the taxpayer at a time when the taxpayer was resident in Canada and not an exempt taxpayer.

New paragraph 94.2(11)(e) provides that for the purposes of the subsection and subsections 94.2(1) to (4), certain amounts in respect of an interest in an insurance policy are to be determined without reference to benefits under the policy that are paid, payable or anticipated to be payable as a consequence only of the occurrence of the risks insured under the policy. Those amounts are

- the fair market value of the interest,
- the proceeds of disposition of the interest, and
- each amount paid to a beneficiary in respect of the interest.

Paragraph 94.2(11)(f) provides, for the purposes of subsection 94.2(1) to (4) that:

- a payment of a premium under an insurance policy by the taxpayer is deemed to be an acquisition of a Part of an interest in the policy to the extent that the premium cannot be refunded and is not a premium in respect of a benefit described in any of subparagraphs (c)(i) to (vii) of the definition premium in subsection 148(9),
- a payment made by the taxpayer in respect of a principal amount of a loan made under the policy is deemed to be an acquisition of a part of an interest in the policy to the extent that the loan was included in the amount in respect of the interest determined for (c) in applying the definition mark-to-market formula in subsection (1) for the year in which the loan was made, and
- any other amount paid by the taxpayer to acquire an interest in an insurance policy from any other entity or individual is deemed to be an acquisition of an interest in an insurance policy.

Paragraph 94.2(11)(g) provides that for the purposes of subsections 94.2(1) and (4), if paragraph 94.2(11)(d) has deemed the taxpayer to have acquired an interest at a particular time, in computing the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition from the taxpayer's first disposition of the interest after the particular time, the taxpayer is deemed, in addition to any other proceeds of disposition from the disposition of the interest, to be entitled to receive an amount of proceeds from the disposition of the interest equal to the amount by which

- the total of the fair market value of the interest at the particular time and the total of all amounts received before the particular time in respect of the interest by the taxpayer at a time when the taxpayer was resident in Canada and not an exempt taxpayer,

exceeds

- the total of all premiums paid before the particular time in respect of the interest by the taxpayer (to the extent that the premiums were paid at a time when the taxpayer was resident in Canada and not an exempt taxpayer, cannot be refunded and were not paid in respect of a benefit described in any of subparagraphs (c)(i) to (vii) of the definition "premium" in subsection 148(9).

Paragraph 94.2(11)(h) provides that if the interest in an insurance policy is held by the taxpayer at the end of a particular taxation year, subsection 94.2(4) applies for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the interest and subsection 94.2(4) does not apply for the following taxation year, the cost to the taxpayer of the participating interest at or after the beginning of the following taxation year shall be determined as if the taxpayer had acquired the participating interest at the beginning of the following taxation year at a cost equal to the amount by which

- the sum of
  - the fair market value at the end of the particular taxation year of the interest, and
  - the amount determined under subparagraph 94.2(4)(a)(ii) in respect of the interest for the particular taxation year if that subparagraph were read without its clause (A),

exceeds

- the amount that would, if paragraph 94.2(11)(g) had applied at the end of the particular taxation year in respect of the interest, be determined at the end of the particular taxation year in respect of the interest by the formula under that paragraph.

Subsections 94.2(10) and (11) apply for taxation years that begin after 2006.

Example

Assume that David, a long-term resident of Canada, pays premiums of $10,000 to an offshore insurer for a life insurance policy in 2002. The policy's fair market value is $9,000 and $10,700 at the end of 2007 and 2008 (respectively).

Results

1. For 2007, no income amount is determined under paragraph 94.2(4)(a) because the cost of the policy exceeds the fair market value at the end of 2007. The cost to David of the policy is deemed to be $10,000 ($9,000 + $1,000).

2. The loss for the year 2007 is $1,000. ($9,000 - $10,000). No claim in respect of the loss is permitted under clause 94.2(4)(a)(ii)(A). The amount of the denied loss is equal to $1,000 and is included under G in the mark-to-market formula in subsection 94.2(1) in year 2008.

3. For 2008, the amount included in income under paragraph 94.2(4)(a) (after the application of the mark-to-market formula) is $700 (= $10,700 ("B"), minus $9,000 ("F"), minus $1,000 ("G")). It is possible that the cash surrender value of a policy may be less than its fair market value.

Related Provisions: 12.2(11) — Definitions "anniversary day" and "exempt policy" apply to 94.2(11)(c)(ii)(A); 94.2(3)(a) — Application of mark-to-market method; 96(1)(d)(iii)(I), (J) — Election by partnership; 233.3(1)"specified foreign property"(d.1) — Annual information reporting re interest in insurance policy; 257 — Formulas cannot calculate to less than zero.

Regulations: 304 (prescribed annuity contract; to be prescribed).

(12) Adjustments where mark-to-market system no longer applies — If a participating interest in a non-resident entity is held by a taxpayer at the end of a particular taxation year of the taxpayer, subsection (4) applies for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the participating interest, and that subsection does not apply (otherwise than solely because the taxpayer became an exempt taxpayer or ceased to reside in Canada) for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's following taxation year (in this paragraph referred to as "the following taxation year") in respect of the participating interest

(a) the taxpayer's cost of the participating interest at any time after the end of the particular taxation year is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount that would, if this Act were read without reference to this section, be determined to be the taxpayer's cost of the participating interest at the end of the particular taxation year,

B is the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under subparagraph 94.4(2)(a)(ii) in respect of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for the particular taxation year exceeds the amount determined under paragraph 94.4(2)(a) in respect of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for the particular taxation year, and

C is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of

(A) the amount determined under paragraph 94.4(2)(a) in respect of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for the particular taxation year, and

(B) the amount determined under clause 94.4(2)(a)(ii)(B) in respect of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for the particular taxation year,

exceeds

(ii) the amount determined under clause 94.4(2)(a)(ii)(A) in respect of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for the particular taxation year; and

(b) in computing, at any time after the end of the particular taxation year, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the participating interest, paragraph 94.4(2)(b) shall not apply to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(12) provides rules for determining the cost of a participating interest held by a taxpayer in a non-resident entity where the taxpayer holds the participating interest at the end of a particular taxation year and subsection 94.2(4) applied for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for that particular taxation year in respect of the participating interest and subsection 94.2(4) does not apply for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the following taxation year in respect of the participating interest. In general terms, the cost of the participating interest is the amount that would be the taxpayer's cost plus or minus the amounts included or deducted in computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the participating interest under the foreign investment entity rules.

More specifically, where subsection 94.2(12) applies, the cost of the participating interest to the taxpayer, at all relevant times in the future, is deemed to be the amount, if any, by which

- the total of
  - the cost of the participating interest to the taxpayer, otherwise determined, and
  - the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under subparagraph 94.4(2)(a)(ii) in respect of the participating interest for the taxpayer's last taxation year to which subsection 94.2(4) applies to the participating interest exceeds the amount determined under paragraph 94.4(2)(a) in respect of the particular interest for the particular taxation year,

exceeds

- the amount, if any, by which
  - the total of the amount determined under paragraph 94.4(2)(a) and clause 94.4(2)(a)(ii)(B) for the particular year in respect of the participating interest, exceeds
    - the amount determined under clause 94.4(2)(a)(ii)(A) for the particular year in respect of the participating interest.

In addition, subsection 94.2(12) provides that in computing, after the end of the particular year in respect of the participating interest, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the particular interest, paragraph 94.4(2)(b) shall not apply to the taxpayer in respect of the particular interest.

For more detail, see the commentary on paragraphs 53(1)(m.1) and 53(2)(w), the definitions "deferral amount", "mark-to-market formula" and "reconciliation amount" in subsection 94.2(1), and subsection 94.2(4).

Related Provisions: 53(1)(m), (m.1) — Addition to ACB; 53(2)(w) — Deduction from ACB; 94.1(2)(t) — Authorized foreign bank deemed resident in Canada; 94.2(1)"reconciliation amount" — Calculation where para. (a) applies; 94.2(15) — Fresh start re change of status of entity; 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

(13) Cost adjustment where disposition in year mark-to-market system applies — If a taxpayer's participating interest in a non-resident entity is disposed of by the taxpayer at a particular time in a taxation year (other than a disposition deemed to arise because of subsection 128.1(4) or 149(10)) and subsection (4) applies for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest, the taxpayer's cost of the participating interest immediately before the particular time is deemed to be (except for the purpose of this section) its fair market value at the particular time.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(13) provides a rule for determining the cost of a participating interest in an entity that is disposed of (other than a disposition deemed to arise because of subsection 128.1(4) or 149(10)) by the taxpayer in a taxation year. This new subsection applies in cases where subsection 94.2(4) applies to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for the taxation year in which the participating interest is disposed of.

New subsection 94.2(13) provides that the cost of the participating interest to the taxpayer is deemed to be (except for the purpose of section 94.2) the fair market value of the property at the time of the disposition. In identifying property for these purposes, identical properties of a taxpayer are considered to be disposed of on a "first in, first out" basis, as a consequence of the application of paragraph 94.1(2)(u). Where a participating interest is disposed of in a taxation year and subsection 94.2(4) does not apply to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for that taxation year, the cost to the taxpayer of the participating interest is determined under subsection 94.2(12).

Under new paragraph (c.2) of the definition "cost amount" in subsection 248(1), the cost determined at a particular time for a property under subsection 94.2(13) is also the "cost amount" of the property at the particular time.

Related Provisions: 248(1)"cost amount"(c.2) — Cost amount applies for entire Act.

(14) Deferral amount where same interest reacquired — Subject to subsections (15) to (18), if a taxpayer disposes of a participating interest in an entity at any time in a taxation year of the taxpayer and subsection (4) applies for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of the participating interest, in applying subsection (4) to a disposition after that time by the taxpayer of the participating interest, the deferral amount of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest is nil.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(14) generally provides that a "deferral amount" in respect of a property of a taxpayer is deemed to be nil, after the property has been disposed of by the taxpayer at a time when the mark-to-market rules in subsection 94.2(4) applied to the property. This is of relevance to property that is reacquired by a taxpayer. However, subsection 94.2(14) is subject to the rules in subsections 94.2(15) to (18).

It should be noted that identical properties of a taxpayer are considered to be disposed of on a "first in, first out" basis as a consequence of the application of paragraph 94.1(2)(u).

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamation — continuing corporation.

(15) Deferral amount — fresh start re change of status of entity — If subsection (12) has applied to determine the cost at any particular time after the end of a particular taxation year to a taxpayer of a participating interest, in applying subsection (4) for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the participating interest for a taxation year that is after the particular taxation year, the deferral amount of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest shall be determined

(a) for the purpose of subparagraph (a)(iii) of the description of B in the definition "deferral amount" in subsection (1), as if subsection (4) had not applied to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for taxation years that began before the particular time; and

(b) without reference to the application of subsection (14) with regard to dispositions that occurred before the particular time.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(15) applies where a taxpayer's participating interest in an entity was initially subject to the rules in subsection 94.2(4) and ceases to be subject to those rules (otherwise than because of the taxpayer having become an "exempt taxpayer"). For example, subsection 94.2(15) could apply where an entity ceases to be a FIE.

In these circumstances, the deferral amount in respect of the participating interest is determined without reference to previous applications of subsections 94.2(4) and (14). This rule is relevant only in the event that the same participating interest of the taxpayer again becomes subject to the rules in subsection 94.2(4).

Parallel "fresh-start" rules are contained in subsection 94.2(16) and (17). All of these "fresh-start" rules are expected to be only rarely involved, given that more than one change in status of an investment or a taxpayer is required for the rules to become relevant. For more information on the "deferral amount" defined in subsection 94.2(1), see the commentary on that definition.

(16) Deferral amount — fresh start after emigration of taxpayer — If a taxpayer ceases at a particular time to be resident in Canada, in applying subsection (4) to a disposition after the particular time by the taxpayer of a participating interest and to an election made after the particular time by the taxpayer under subparagraph (a)(iii) of the description of D in the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection (1) for a taxation year in respect of the participating interest, the deferral amount of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest shall be determined

(a) for the purpose of subparagraph (a)(iii) of the description of B in the definition "deferral amount" in subsection (1), as if subsection (4) had not applied to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for taxation years that began before the particular time; and

(b) without reference to the application of subsection (14) with regard to dispositions that occurred before the particular time.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(16) affects the calculation of the "deferral amount" in respect of a participating interest in an entity for a taxpayer who has ceased to reside in Canada. It is relevant in the event that, at a subsequent time, the taxpayer becomes resident in Canada again.

In these circumstances, the deferral amounts in respect of the taxpayer's FIE interests are determined without reference to the previous application of subsections 94.2(4) and (14).

For further detail, see the commentary on the related fresh-start rule in subsection 94.2(15).

(17) Deferral amount — fresh start on becoming an exempt taxpayer — If a taxpayer is an exempt taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer because of the application of paragraph (a) or (b) of the definition "exempt taxpayer" in subsection 94.1(1), and the taxpayer was not an exempt taxpayer for the taxation year of the taxpayer that preceded the particular taxation year, in applying subsection (4) to a disposition after the particular taxation year by the taxpayer of a participating interest and to an election made after the particular taxation year by the taxpayer under subparagraph (a)(iii) of the description of D in the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection (1) for a taxation year in respect of the participating interest, the deferral amount of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest shall be determined

(a) for the purpose of subparagraph (a)(iii) of the description of B in the definition "deferral amount" in subsection (1), as if subsection (4) had not applied to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for taxation years that ended before the particular taxation year; and

(b) without reference to the application of subsection (14) with regard to dispositions that occurred before the particular taxation year.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(17) affects the calculation of the "deferral amount" in respect of an interest in an entity for a taxpayer that initially was not an "exempt taxpayer" under paragraph (a) or (b) of that definition in subsection 94.1(1) and then subsequently obtains that status.

In these circumstances, the deferral amounts in respect of the FIE interests of the taxpayer are determined without reference to previous applications of subsections 94.2(4) and (14).

For further context, see the commentary on the related fresh-start rule in subsection 94.2(15). In addition, it should be noted that amended subsection 149(10) applies to changes of tax-exempt status for taxpayers that are corporations. Where subsection 149(10) applies, the rules in subsection 94.2(17) do not apply.

(18) Superficial dispositions — If a taxpayer disposes of a participating interest, the deferral amount in respect of the participating interest would otherwise be a negative amount, and the disposition would, if the participating interest were a capital property and a loss arose on the disposition, give rise to a superficial loss (within the meaning that would be assigned by section 54 if the definition "superficial loss" in that section were read without the reference to subsection 40(3.4) in paragraph (h) of that definition),

(a) except for the purpose of applying paragraph (b) in respect of the disposition, the deferral amount of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest is deemed to be nil; and

(b) the deferral amount of the taxpayer in respect of the property that would be the substituted property referred to in that definition if the assumptions described in this subsection applied is deemed to be equal to the deferral amount of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(18) applies where a taxpayer disposes of a participating interest in an entity in respect of which a negative amount is determined under the description of D in the formula in subsection 94.2(4). This would be the case where there is a negative deferral amount associated with the interest. In these circumstances, the deferral amount is instead generally deemed to be nil if, during the period beginning 30 days before the disposition and ending 30 days after the disposition, identical property is acquired by the taxpayer or certain related persons.

Subsection 94.2(18) operates in a manner similar to the "superficial loss" rules for capital properties and is intended to prevent the premature realization of losses in respect of a property in which a taxpayer effectively retains an economic interest. "Superficial loss" has the same meaning as assigned in section 54, except that the definition for the purposes of subsection 94.2(18) does not contain the exception for transactions covered by subsection 40(3.4).

Property substituted for the particular property is, in these circumstances, considered to have the deferral amount associated with the property disposed of.

(19) Determination of capital dividend account — If an amount has been included or deducted under paragraph (4)(a) in computing the income of a corporation resident in Canada for a taxation year in respect of a participating interest, in computing the capital dividend account of the corporation

(a) the corporation is deemed to have

(i) a capital gain from a disposition at the end of the taxation year of property equal to twice the amount of the taxable capital gain determined under subparagraph (ii), and

(ii) a taxable capital gain from the disposition at the end of the taxation year of property equal to the lesser of

(A) the positive amount, if any, that is the amount determined for D in applying the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection (1) for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest (where the gross-up factor for the deferral amount in respect of the participating interest is 2), and

(B) the amount included in computing the income of the corporation for the taxation year under subsection (4); and

(b) the corporation is deemed to have

(i) a capital loss from a disposition at the end of the taxation year of property equal to twice the amount of the allowable capital loss determined under subparagraph (ii), and

(ii) an allowable capital loss from the disposition at the end of the taxation year of property equal to the lesser of

(A) the absolute value of the negative amount, if any, that is the amount determined for D in applying the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection (1) for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest (where the gross-up factor for the deferral amount in respect of the participating interest is 2), and

(B) the amount deducted in computing the income of the corporation for the taxation year under subsection (4).

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(19) provides rules that deem a positive or negative deferral amount in respect of a disposition of what would, but for section 94.2, be a capital property of a taxpayer that is a corporation resident in Canada, to be a taxable capital gain or an allowable capital loss, as the case may be, and twice such an amount to be a capital gain or capital loss of the corporation, as the case may be, for the purposes of computing the capital dividend account of the corporation. This rule ensures that ½ of a capital gain or a capital loss that is attributable to a deferral amount is reflected in the capital dividend account of a corporation.

Related Provisions: 95(2)(g.3)(viii) — Application to FAPI rules.

(20) Application of para. (4)(b) — This subsection applies for a taxation year of a taxpayer in respect of a participating interest, in a particular non-resident entity, held in the taxation year by the taxpayer, if

(a) the participating interest would, if paragraph 39(1)(a) and the definition "inventory" in subsection 248(1) were read without reference to this section, be a capital property of the taxpayer at the last time in the taxation year at which the taxpayer held the participating interest; and

(b) all or substantially all of the amount determined under the "mark-to-market formula" for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest can be attributed to

(i) capital gains or capital losses from the disposition of capital property (other than a participating interest in a foreign investment entity) by the particular non-resident entity or by any foreign investment entity in which the particular non-resident entity has a direct or indirect interest, and

(ii) increases or decreases in the fair market value of capital property (other than a participating interest in a foreign investment entity) of the particular non-resident entity or of any foreign investment entity in which the particular non-resident entity has a direct or indirect interest.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(20) provides a special rule that requires a taxpayer to report, as capital gains or losses under paragraph 94.2(4)(b) rather than as income or losses from property under paragraph 94.2(4)(a), amounts determined under the "mark-to-market formula" for a particular year in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity.

This rule applies where two conditions are met. The first condition is that the participating interest of the taxpayer would, if the Act were read without reference to section 94.2, be a capital property of the taxpayer at the last time in the particular taxation year at which the taxpayer held the participating interest.

The second condition is that all or substantially all of the amount required to be added or deducted under the mark-to-market formula for the taxation year in respect of the participating interest, in a particular non-resident entity, can be attributed to

- capital gains or capital losses from the disposition of capital property (other than a participating interest in a foreign investment entity) by the particular non-resident entity or by any foreign investment entity in which the particular non-resident entity has a direct or indirect interest, and
- increases or decreases in the fair market value of capital property (other than a participating interest in a foreign investment entity) of the particular non-resident entity or of any foreign investment entity in which the particular non-resident entity has a direct or indirect interest.

In the event that any entity in a chain or tier of entities holds capital properties that are particular participating interests in foreign investment entities, changes in value of the particular participating interests and gains or losses from the disposition of those interests are ignored in applying the "all or substantially all" requirement. Instead, the requirement would be computed with regard to gains or losses from the disposition of, or changes in value in, capital properties of the foreign investment entities. This is intended to prevent the use of intermediary entities, contrary to the intent of subsection 94.2(20), as a means of triggering the application of paragraph 94.2(4)(b).

Related Provisions: 39(1)(a)(ii.3) — Capital gain on property to which 94.2(20) applies; 70(3.1)(f) — "Rights or things" treatment on death; 94.2(4), (21) — Effect of subsection (20) applying.

(21) Disposition of interest — reconciliation — If a taxpayer's participating interest in a non-resident entity is disposed of by the taxpayer at a particular time in a particular taxation year, and subsection (4) applies for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the participating interest, in computing that income

(a) where subsection (20) does not apply for the particular taxation year, and has never applied for a preceding taxation year, in respect of the participating interest,

(i) there may be deducted, as a loss from property from a property that is the participating interest, the positive reconciliation amount, if any, at that time in respect of the participating interest, and

(ii) there shall be included, as income from property from a property that is the participating interest, the absolute value of the negative reconciliation amount, if any, at that time in respect of the participating interest; and

(b) in any other case,

(i) the taxpayer is deemed to have a capital loss for the particular taxation year from the disposition of capital property that is the participating interest in the particular taxation year equal to the positive reconciliation amount, if any, at that time in respect of the participating interest, and

(ii) the taxpayer is deemed to have a capital gain for the particular taxation year from the disposition of capital property that is the participating interest in the particular taxation year equal to the absolute value of the negative reconciliation amount, if any, at that time in respect of the participating interest.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(21) applies where a taxpayer disposes of an interest in a non-resident entity at a particular time in a particular taxation year. If subsection 94.2(4) applies for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the participating interest, in computing that income the taxpayer may be required to include an amount of income (or to have capital gains) or may be permitted to deduct as a loss (or to have capital losses) determined with regard to the reconciliation amount (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) at that time in respect of the participating interest.

More specifically, under paragraph 94.2(21)(a), where paragraph 94.2(4)(a) applies for the particular taxation year, and subsection 94.2(20) has never applied for a preceding taxation year, in respect of the participating interest,

- there may be deducted, as a loss from property from a property that is the participating interest, the positive reconciliation amount, if any, at that time in respect of the participating interest, and
- there shall be included, as income from property from a property that is the participating interest, the absolute value of the negative reconciliation amount, if any, at that time in respect of the participating interest.

In any other case where subsection 94.2(4) applies for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the participating interest, paragraph 94.2(21)(b) provides that

- the taxpayer is deemed to have a capital loss for the taxation year from the disposition in the taxation year of capital property that is the participating interest equal to the positive reconciliation amount, if any, in respect of the participating interest, and
- the taxpayer is deemed to have a capital gain for the taxation year from the disposition in the taxation year of capital property that is the participating interest equal to the absolute value of the negative reconciliation amount, if any, in respect of the participating interest.

Where a taxpayer disposes of a participating interest in a taxation year of the taxpayer and subsection 94.2(21) does not apply (i.e., because subsection 94.2(4) does not apply for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the participating interest), subsection 94.2(12) may apply to adjust, with reference to the reconciliation amount in respect of the interest, the taxpayer's adjusted cost base (or cost) of the interest.

For more detail, see the commentary on subsection 94.2(12) and the definition "reconciliation amount" in subsection 94.2(1).

94.3 Foreign investment entities — accrual — (1) Definitions — The definitions in subsections 94.1(1) and 94.2(1), and the definitions in this subsection, apply in this section.

Technical Notes: New section 94.3 sets out new rules for the taxation of interests in FIEs where subsections 94.1(4) and 94.2(3) do not apply.

Section 94.3 applies to taxation years that begin after 2006.

New subsection 94.3(1) sets out a number of definitions and provides that those definitions and the definitions in subsections 94.1(1) and 94.2(1) apply for the purposes of section 94.2.

"fresh-start year", of a non-resident entity in respect of a taxpayer, means a taxation year of the non-resident entity

(a) that ends in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2006 (or, where this definition applies in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins before 2007, that ends in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins on or after the first day of the first taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which this definition applies) if, at the end of the taxation year of the non-resident entity, the non-resident entity is a foreign investment entity and the taxpayer holds a participating interest, other than an exempt interest, in the non-resident entity; and

(b) that begins immediately after a preceding taxation year of the non-resident entity at the end of which the non-resident entity was not a foreign investment entity or the taxpayer did not hold a participating interest in the non-resident entity.

Technical Notes: The definition "fresh-start year" is relevant to calculating a taxpayer's "income allocation" (as defined in subsection 94.3(1)) in respect of a non-resident entity. In general terms, a fresh-start year of an entity in respect of a taxpayer that holds a participating interest in the entity means a taxation year of the entity at the end of which it becomes an entity in respect of which subsection 94.1(3) may apply to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest.

For more detail, see the commentary on subsection 94.3(4) and on the definition "income allocation" in subsection 94.3(1).

Related Provisions: 95(2)(g.3)(iv) — Application to FAPI rules; 96(1)(d)(iii)(C) — Application to partnership.

"income allocation", of a particular taxpayer in respect of a particular participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held by the particular taxpayer at the end of a particular taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in a taxation year of the taxpayer, means the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times B/C$$

where

A is the amount that would be the income of the non-resident entity for the particular taxation year if

(a) except for the purposes of subparagraph (2)(b)(ii), section 91, subsection 107.4(1) and paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1), the non-resident entity had been a taxpayer resident in Canada throughout its existence,

(b) each property held by the non-resident entity at the particular time that is the beginning of a fresh-start year of the non-resident entity in respect of the particular taxpayer had been

(i) disposed of by the non-resident entity immediately before the particular time for proceeds equal to its fair market value at the particular time, and

(ii) reacquired by the non-resident entity at the particular time at a cost equal to that fair market value,

(c) for a fresh-start year of the non-resident entity in respect of the particular taxpayer and for each following taxation year of the non-resident entity, each deduction in computing the non-resident entity's income that is contingent on a claim by the non-resident entity had been claimed by the non-resident entity to the extent, and only to the extent, designated by the particular taxpayer in prescribed form filed with the Minister with the particular taxpayer's return of income for the particular taxpayer's taxation year in which that fresh-start year or the following year, as the case may be, ends,

(d) the non-resident entity had deducted the greatest amounts that it could have claimed or deducted as a reserve under sections 20, 138 and 140 for its taxation year that precedes a fresh-start year of the non-resident entity in respect of the particular taxpayer,

(e) in applying sections 37, 65 to 66.4 and 66.7, the non-resident entity had not existed before a fresh-start year of the non-resident entity in respect of the particular taxpayer,

(f) this Act were read without reference to subsections 20(11) and (12) and 104(4) to (6),

(g) where the non-resident entity holds at any time in the particular taxation year a participating interest in another non-resident entity, the description of D in the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection 94.2(1) did not apply in respect of that interest,

(h) paragraph (a) of the definition "exempt interest" in subsection 94.1(1) were read without reference to subparagraph (i) of that paragraph,

(i) the amount included in computing the non-resident entity's income for the particular taxation year in respect of capital gains were the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(i) exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(ii) in respect of the non-resident entity for the particular taxation year,

(j) the amount deducted in computing the non-resident entity's income for the particular taxation year in respect of capital losses (other than business investment losses) were the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(ii) exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(i) in respect of the non-resident entity for the particular taxation year, and

(k) the amount deducted in computing the non-resident entity's income for the particular taxation year in respect of business investment losses were the amount of its allowable business investment losses for the particular taxation year;

B is the amount that is the fair market value, at the end of the particular taxation year, of the particular participating interest; and

C is the fair market value, at the end of the particular taxation year, of all of the participating interests in the non-resident entity (other than an interest that would not be a participating interest, in the non-resident entity, if the definition "participating interest" in subsection 94.1(1) were read without reference to paragraph (d) of that definition).

Technical Notes: The definition "income allocation" applies in determining the amount to be included, under "A" of the formula in subsection 94.3(4), in computing a taxpayer's income or loss for the taxpayer's taxation year in respect of a property that is a participating interest of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity.

A taxpayer's income allocation (in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity held by the taxpayer at the end of a particular taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in a taxation year of the taxpayer) is determined by the formula set out in that definition. In general terms, the taxpayer's income allocation is the proportion of the non-resident entity's income for the particular taxation year ("A" in the formula) that the fair market value of the interest ("B" in the formula) is of the fair market value of all participating interests in the non-resident entity ("C" in the formula). (Note that subsection 94.3(4) is unavailable in respect of a particular interest that would not be a participating interest if the definition "participating interest" in subsection 94.1(1) were read without reference to its paragraph (d).)

The calculation of a taxpayer's income allocation in respect of a non-resident entity depends on a calculation of income for the non-resident entity in accordance with rules set out in paragraphs (a) to (l) of "A" in the formula. This permits taxpayers to make independent calculations of a non-resident entity's income for the purpose of determining income allocations under section 94.3 for the non-resident entity's "fresh-start year" (as defined in subsection 94.3(1)) in respect of the taxpayer and subsequent years.

The special rules that apply in calculating a non-resident entity's income in respect of a taxpayer that is a participating interest holder for the non-resident entity's fresh-start year and subsequent years are as follows:

(a) Subject to three exceptions, the non-resident entity is generally treated as having been a taxpayer resident of Canada throughout its existence. First, this rule does not apply for the purposes of subsection 107.4(1) and paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1), with the result that where the non-resident entity is a trust, property that is transferred to the non-resident entity is considered to have been transferred to the non-resident entity under subsection 69(1) at its fair market value. Second, this rule does not apply for the purpose of section 91, with the result that the non-resident entity will not itself be required to include an amount in respect of foreign accrual property income in computing the non-resident entity's income under the "income allocation" definition. It should be noted, however, that the non-resident entity will not be able to rely on subparagraph (a)(i) of the definition "exempt interest" in section 94.1 as a basis for an exemption from the FIE regime for a participating interest of the non-resident entity in a controlled foreign affiliate of it or of the investor taxpayer. Thus the non-resident entity will have FIE income for purposes of the "income allocation" definition in respect of its participating interest in the controlled foreign affiliate. Third, this rule does not apply for the purpose of subparagraph 94.3(2)(b)(ii) with the result that subsection 94.1(4) or 94.2(4) (rather than section 94.3) potentially applies in computing its income in the event that the non-resident entity owns a participating interest in another non-resident entity that is a FIE.

(b) Each property held by the non-resident entity at the beginning of the fresh-start year is deemed to have been disposed of for its fair market value immediately before that time and reacquired for the same amount at that time.

(c) Each discretionary deduction permitted in computing the non-resident entity's income for its fresh-start year and subsequent taxation years is deemed to have been claimed to the extent designated by the investor taxpayer. Thus, in calculating an income allocation in respect of the non-resident entity, the investor taxpayer will be permitted to claim deductions such as capital cost allowance.

(d) The non-resident entity is assumed to have deducted the greatest amounts permissible, for its taxation year preceding the fresh-start year, under sections 20, 138 and 140. These amounts are added in computing the non-resident entity's income for the fresh-start year, but appropriate deductions under these sections can be claimed for the fresh-start year and subsequent taxation years. In the context of the reserve for life insurers under subsection 138(3), it is intended that paragraph (c) of the definition "reported reserve" in subsection 1408(1) of the Regulations be amended so that the non-resident entity can have a "reported reserve".

(e) The non-resident entity is deemed not to have been in existence before the fresh-start year for the purposes of sections 37, 65 to 66.4 and 66.7. As a consequence, the scientific research and resource expenditure pools to which these sections refer are ignored, to the extent that these pools were generated before the fresh-start year.

(f) The non-resident entity is not permitted to deduct any amount under subsection 20(11) or (12) in respect of its foreign tax. However, foreign tax will be taken into account because the non-resident entity's specified tax allocation (as defined under subsection 94.3(1)) can offset amounts otherwise included in income under subsection 94.3(4). Further, if the non-resident entity is a trust, no amount is considered deductible under subsection 104(6) in determining its income for the year. Double taxation for the investor taxpayer is avoided through the application of new section 94.4. In addition, no deemed disposition day under subsection 104(4) is determined in respect of the trust, whether the non-resident entity falls outside the restricted meaning of "trust" for this purpose under subsection 108(1) or not.

(g) Where the non-resident entity has an interest in another non-resident entity, there is no "deferral amount" taken into account in computing the non-resident entity's income pursuant to new subsection 94.2(4). (The fresh-start rule described above eliminates the need for a "deferral amount".)

(h) Participating interests in controlled foreign affiliates of the investor taxpayer or of the non-resident entity are not treated as "exempt interests" of the non-resident entity. As a result, the FIE rules and not the FAPI rules apply in respect of such interests in computing the non-resident's income under the income allocation rules.

(i) Where the non-resident entity has net capital gains for the particular taxation year, the amount to be included in computing the non-resident entity's income in respect of the capital gains is the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(i) exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(ii) in respect of the non-resident entity for the year.

(j) Where the non-resident entity has net capital losses for the particular taxation year the amount deductible in computing the non-resident entity's income in respect of capital losses (other business investment losses) is the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(ii) exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(i) in respect of the non-resident entity for the year.

(k) Where the non-resident entity has business investment losses for the year the amount deducted in computing the non-resident entity's income for the year in respect of business investment losses is the amount of its allowable business investment losses for the year.

For further details, see the related commentary on the definitions "foreign investment entity", "non-resident entity" and "exempt interest" in subsection 94.1(1) and "loss allocation" and "specified tax allocation" in subsection 94.3(1).

Related Provisions: 96(1)(d)(iii)(I), (J) — Where designation made by partnership.

"loss allocation", of a particular taxpayer in respect of a participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held by the taxpayer at the end of a particular taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in a taxation year of the taxpayer, means the amount determined by the formula

$$(A - B) \times C/D$$

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is

(a) an amount that would, if paragraphs (a) to (h) of the description of A in the definition "income allocation" applied in respect of the particular taxpayer and the participating interest, be a loss of the non-resident entity for the particular taxation year from a business or property,

(b) the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(ii) exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(i) in respect of the non-resident entity for the particular taxation year, or

(c) an allowable business investment loss of the non-resident entity for the particular taxation year;

B is the amount that would, if paragraphs (a) to (h) of the description of A in the definition "income allocation" applied in respect of the particular taxpayer and the participating interest, be determined under paragraph 3(c) in respect of the entity for the particular taxation year;

C is the amount that is the fair market value, at the end of the particular taxation year, of the participating interest; and

D is the fair market value, at the end of the particular taxation year, of all of the participating interests in the non-resident entity (other than an interest that would not be a participating interest, in the non-resident entity, if the definition "participating interest" in subsection 94.1(1) were read without reference to paragraph (d) of that definition).

Technical Notes: The definition "loss allocation" applies in determining the amount to be included, under "B" of the formula in subsection 94.3(4), in computing a taxpayer's income or loss for the taxpayer's taxation year in respect of a property that is a participating interest of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity. A taxpayer is entitled, under the formula in subsection 94.3(4), to deduct the taxpayer's loss allocation in respect the participating interest.

In general, a taxpayer's loss allocation in respect of a participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held by the taxpayer at the end of a particular taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in a taxation year of the taxpayer, is the proportion of the non-resident entity's net loss for the particular taxation year that the fair market value of the taxpayer's participating interest in the non-resident entity is of the fair market value of all participating interests in the non-resident entity. More specifically, a taxpayer's loss allocation is determined as follows:

- ADD the amount of the entity's total losses for the particular taxation year from businesses and properties, the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(ii) exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph 3(b)(i) in respect of the entity for the particular taxation year, and the amount of the entity's allowable business investment losses for the particular taxation year,
- SUBTRACT the amount determined under paragraph 3(c) for the entity for the particular taxation year (i.e., the total amount of its income from businesses and properties and taxable capital gains in excess of allowable capital losses, for the particular taxation year), and
- MULTIPLY any positive remainder by the percentage that the fair market value of the interest represents of the fair market value of all participating interests in the entity. (Note that subsection 94.3(4) is unavailable in respect of a particular interest that would not be a participating interest if the definition "participating interest" in subsection 94.1(1) were read without reference to its paragraph (d).)

The determination of a taxpayer's loss allocation is subject to the same special rules that apply for the purposes of computing a taxpayer's "income allocation" (as defined in subsection 94.3(1)). For more detail, see the commentary on the definition "income allocation".

Related Provisions: 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

"specified tax allocation", of a taxpayer in respect of a participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held by the taxpayer at the end of a particular taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in a taxation year of the taxpayer, means the total of all amounts each of which is the amount determined, in respect of the particular taxation year, by the formula

$$A \times (B/C) \times D$$

where

A is

(a) if that taxation year of the taxpayer begins after 2006 (or, where this definition applies in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins before 2007, if that taxation year of the taxpayer begins on or after the first day of the first taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which this definition applies), the income or profits tax paid by the non-resident entity in respect of the particular taxation year, to the extent that that tax can reasonably be considered to be in respect of the income or profits of the non-resident entity included in computing the amount determined in respect of the non-resident entity and the participating interest under the description of A in the definition "income allocation" for the particular taxation year or any of the five taxation years of the non-resident entity that precede the particular taxation year and that end after 2006, and

(b) in any other case, nil;

B is the amount that is the fair market value, at the end of the particular taxation year, of the participating interest;

C is the fair market value, at the end of the particular taxation year, of all of the participating interests in the non-resident entity (other than an interest that would not be a participating interest, in the non-resident entity, if the definition "participating interest" in subsection 94.1(1) were read without reference to paragraph (d) of that definition); and

D is the taxpayer's relevant tax factor (as defined by subsection 95(1)) for that taxation year of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes: The definition "specified tax allocation" applies in determining the amount to be included, under "C" of the formula in subsection 94.3(4), in computing a taxpayer's income or loss for the taxpayer's taxation year in respect of a property that is a participating interest of the taxpayer in a non-resident entity. A taxpayer is entitled to deduct, under C of the formula in subsection 94.3(4), the taxpayer's specified tax allocation in respect of the participating interest

A taxpayer's specified tax allocation in respect of a participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held by the taxpayer at the end of a particular taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in a taxation year of the taxpayer, means the total of all amounts each of which is the amount determined, in respect of the particular taxation year, by the formula set out in the definition.

More specifically, the taxpayer's specified tax allocation is the product obtained by the following:

- MULTIPLY, if the taxation year of the taxpayer begins after 2006, the income or profits tax paid by the non-resident entity in respect of the particular taxation year, to the extent that that tax can reasonably be considered to be in respect of the income or profits of the non-resident entity included in computing the amount determined in respect of the non-resident entity and the participating interest under the description of "A" in the definition "income allocation" for the particular taxation year or any of the 5 taxation years of the non-resident entity that precede the particular taxation year and that end after 2006, BY
- the percentage that the fair market value of the interest represents of the fair market value of all participating interests in the entity. (Note that subsection 94.3(4) is unavailable in respect of a particular interest that would not be a participating interest if the definition "participating interest" in subsection 94.1(1) were read without reference to its paragraph (d), AND
- MULTIPLY any positive remainder by the taxpayer's relevant tax factor (as defined by subsection 95(1)) for that taxation year of the taxpayer.

Income or profits tax is normally expected to be tax that is paid by an entity to a foreign government. However, it could also include income tax paid to the government of Canada or a province with respect to income earned by the entity from Canadian sources. In each case, only income or profits tax payable for taxation years of entities that end in a taxation year of a taxpayer that begins after 2006 is taken into account.

(2) Rules of application — In this section,

(a) subsection 94.1(2) applies; and

(b) subsection (3) does not apply to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a particular participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held in the particular taxation year by the taxpayer (and in respect of any other participating interests, in the non-resident entity, that are identical to the particular participating interest and that are held in the particular taxation year by the taxpayer) if

(i) subsection 94.2(3) applies to the taxpayer for the particular taxation year in respect of the particular participating interest,

(ii) the taxpayer is a foreign investment entity at the end of the particular taxation year,

(iii) the Minister sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to determine whether an amount with respect to the particular participating interest would be required under subsection (4) to be added (or permitted under subsection (4) to be deducted) in computing the income of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year, and information that may reasonably be considered to be satisfactory to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within any longer period that is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand,

(iv) the particular participating interest is an interest that would not, at each time in the particular taxation year at which the taxpayer held the particular participating interest (or any of the other participating interests) and at which a taxation year of the non-resident entity ends, be a participating interest, in the non-resident entity, if the definition "participating interest" in subsection 94.1(1) were read without reference to paragraph (d) of that definition,

(v) subsection (3)

(A) applied for a taxation year (referred to in this subparagraph as the "preceding taxation year") that ended before the particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of the particular participating interest, and

(B) did not apply for a taxation year of the taxpayer that was after the preceding taxation year and before the particular taxation year in respect of the particular participating interest,

(vi) subsection 94.2(9) applies to the taxpayer for the particular taxation year in respect of the particular participating interest,

(vii) any of the participating interests in the non-resident entity (other than an interest that would not be a participating interest, in the non-resident entity, if the definition "participating interest" in subsection 94.1(1) were read without reference to paragraph (d) of that definition) are not identical to the particular participating interest, or

(viii) where the non-resident entity is a trust, any amount of income or capital of the trust that any entity or individual may receive directly from the trust at any time as a beneficiary under the trust depends on the exercise by any entity or individual of, or the failure by any entity or individual to exercise, a discretionary power.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.3(2) sets out rules that apply in applying section 94.3.

Paragraph 94.3(2)(a) provides that the rules of application in subsection 94.1(2) apply in section 94.3.

Paragraph 94.3(2)(b) identifies a number of circumstances in which subsection 94.3(3) (and hence subsection 94.3(4)) is not available, even though the conditions in paragraphs 94.3(3)(a) to (e) may be met, for a particular taxation year of a taxpayer in respect of a particular participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held in the particular taxation year by the taxpayer. More specifically those circumstances are:

- where, either of subsection 94.2(3) or subsection 94.2(9) (tracked interests) applies to the taxpayer in respect of the particular participating interest for the particular taxation year,
- where the taxpayer is itself a FIE,
- where the Minister of National Revenue sends a written demand to the taxpayer requesting additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to determine if an amount with respect to the particular participating interest would be required under subsection 94.3(4) to be added (or permitted under that subsection to be deducted) in computing the income of the taxpayer for the taxation year, and information sufficient to make the determination is not received by the Minister within 120 days (or within such longer period as is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand,

- where the particular participating interest is an interest that would not, at each time at which a taxation year of the non-resident entity ends, be a participating interest, in the non-resident entity, if the definition "participating interest" were read without reference to paragraph (d) of that definition — that is, without reference to the rule which deems a property that is convertible into, exchangeable for, or confers a right to acquire a participating interest in a FIE or a property the fair market value of which is determined primarily by reference to the fair market value of participating interests in the FIE, to be a participating interest,
- where subsection 94.3(3) applied for a taxation year (the "preceding taxation year") that ended before the particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of the particular participating interest, and did not apply for a taxation year of the taxpayer that was after the preceding taxation year and before the particular taxation year in respect of the particular participating interest. For example, where a taxpayer has sufficient information to apply the accrual regime in one year and in the subsequent year does not. The accrual regime would be unavailable to the taxpayer in respect of the interest and any identical interests in the subsequent year (because of paragraph 94.3(3)(e)) and any of the following years (because of subparagraph 94.3(2)(b)(v)),
- where any of the participating interests in the non-resident entity in respect of which the accrual regime might otherwise be available are not identical to the particular participating interest — that is, the accrual regime is available in respect of participating interests in a non-resident entity only to the extent that all participating interests in the non-resident entity are identical (ignoring interests that are participating interests in the non-resident entity solely because of paragraph (d) of the definition "participating interest" in subsection 94.1(1)), or
- where any amount of income or capital of the trust that any entity or individual may receive directly from the trust at any time as a beneficiary under the trust depends on the exercise by any entity or individual of, or the failure by any entity or individual to exercise, a discretionary power.

Related Provisions: 94.1(4)(a)(ii)(II) — Application of 94.3(2)(b)(ii) to partnership; 248(12) — Identical properties.

(3) Where accrual method applies — Subject to paragraph (2)(b), this subsection applies to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a particular participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held in the particular taxation year by the taxpayer if

(a) subsection 94.1(3) applies to the taxpayer for the particular taxation year in respect of the particular participating interest;

(b) either

(i) this subsection applied in respect of an identical participating interest that was held by the taxpayer at any time when the taxpayer held the particular participating interest, or

(ii) the taxpayer has elected that this subsection apply in respect of the particular participating interest, by notifying the Minister in writing in the taxpayer's return of income filed on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the first taxation year of the taxpayer for which

(A) subsection 94.1(3) applies to the taxpayer in respect of the particular participating interest, or

(B) subsection 94.2(9) does not apply to the taxpayer in respect of the particular participating interest and that immediately follows a taxation year for which subsection 94.2(9) applied to the taxpayer in respect of the particular participating interest;

(c) neither subsection 94.1(4) nor 94.2(3) applied to the taxpayer for a taxation year (referred to in this paragraph as the "preceding taxation year") that ended before the particular taxation year in respect of the particular participating interest (or in respect of an identical participating interest that was held by the taxpayer at any time when the taxpayer held the particular participating interest), unless subsection 94.2(9) applied for that preceding taxation year to the taxpayer in respect of the particular participating interest (or the identical participating interest);

(d) the particular participating interest is, at each time in the particular taxation year at which the taxpayer held the particular participating interest and at which a taxation year of the non-resident entity ends, capital property of the taxpayer; and

(e) the taxpayer files, with the taxpayer's return of income filed on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the particular taxation year, prescribed information in prescribed form.

Technical Notes: Subsection 94.3(3) provides that the accrual regime is available, subject to the limitations set out in paragraph 94.3(2)(b), to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a particular participating interest, in a non-resident entity, held in the particular taxation year by the taxpayer if

- subsection 94.1(3) applies to the taxpayer for the particular taxation year in respect of the particular participating interest;
- either
  - subsection 94.3(3) applied in respect of an identical participating interest that was held by the taxpayer at any time when the taxpayer held the particular participating interest, or
  - the taxpayer has elected that subsection 94.3(3) apply in respect of the particular participating interest, by notifying the Minister in writing in the taxpayer's return of income filed on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the first taxation year of the taxpayer for which
    - subsection 94.1(3) applies to the taxpayer in respect of the particular participating interest, or
    - subsection 94.2(9) does not apply to the taxpayer in respect of the particular participating interest and that immediately follows a taxation year for which subsection 94.2(9) applied to the taxpayer in respect of the particular participating interest;
- neither subsection 94.1(4) (i.e., the prescribed rate regime) nor 94.2(3) (i.e., the mark-to-market regime) applied to the taxpayer for a taxation year (referred to in this commentary as the "preceding taxation year") that ended before the particular taxation year in respect of the particular participating interest (or in respect of an identical participating interest that was held by the taxpayer at any time when the taxpayer held the particular participating interest), unless subsection 94.2(9) applied for that preceding taxation year to the taxpayer in respect of the particular participating interest (or the identical participating interests);
- the particular participating interest is, at each time in the particular taxation year at which the taxpayer held the particular participating interest and at which a taxation year of the non-resident entity ends, capital property of the taxpayer; and
- the taxpayer files, with the taxpayer's return of income filed on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the particular taxation year, prescribed information in prescribed form. It is contemplated that the prescribed information required would include: the entity's financial statements (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)); capital cost allowance schedules, capital gains and capital loss calculations; a detailed calculation of the taxpayer's specified tax allocation and any income allocation or loss allocation; a reconciliation of the entity's income reported in its financial statement income with its income computed under "A" of the formula in the "income allocation" provisions; and a description of reserves claimed.

Related Provisions: 94.2(3)(b)(iv) — Application of mark-to-market method; 94.3(2)(b) — Application of 94.3(3); 94.3(4) — Effect of subsection applying 94.4(2) — Prevention of double taxation; 96(1)(d)(iii)(I), (J) — Notification or designation by partnership; 96(3) — Election under 94.3(3)(b) by a partner; 149(10)(c) — Where corporation becomes or ceases to be exempt; 248(12) — Identical properties.

(4) Income inclusion or deduction — accrual method — If subsection (3) applies to a taxpayer resident in Canada for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity, in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year

(a) there shall be added, as income from property from a property that is the participating interest, the positive amount, if any, determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the taxpayer's income allocation in respect of the participating interest for each taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the particular taxation year,

B is the total of all amounts each of which is the taxpayer's loss allocation in respect of the participating interest for each taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the particular taxation year,

C is the total of all amounts each of which is the specified tax allocation of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for each taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the particular taxation year, and

D is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount determined under subparagraph (b)(i) in respect of the taxpayer and the participating interest for the taxation year (referred to in this paragraph as the "preceding taxation year") of the taxpayer that immediately preceded the particular taxation year

exceeds

(ii) the amount determined under subparagraph (b)(ii) in respect of the taxpayer and the participating interest for the preceding taxation year; and

(b) there may be deducted, as a loss from a property that is the participating interest, the lesser of

(i) the absolute value of the negative amount, if any, determined by the formula in paragraph (a) in respect of the taxpayer and the participating interest for the particular taxation year, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts added under paragraph (a) in computing the taxpayer's income, from a property that is the participating interest, for a taxation year of the taxpayer that ended before the particular taxation year

(B) the total of all amounts deductible under this paragraph in computing the taxpayer's income, from a property that is the participating interest, for a taxation year of the taxpayer that ended before the particular taxation year.

Technical Notes: If subsection (3) applies to a taxpayer resident in Canada for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity, in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year, subsection 94.3(4) will apply in computing the taxpayer's income or loss for the particular taxation year from property from a property that is the participating interest. More specifically, under paragraph 94.3(4)(a), the taxpayer's income from property from a property that is the participating interest, is the positive amount, if any, determined as follows:

- ADD the taxpayer's "income allocation" in respect of the participating interest for each taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the particular taxation year;
- SUBTRACT the taxpayer's "loss allocation" in respect of the participating interest for each taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the particular taxation year;
- SUBTRACT the taxpayer's specified tax allocation in respect of the participating interest for each taxation year of the non-resident entity that ends in the particular taxation year; and
- SUBTRACT the net cumulative positive balance determined under paragraph 94.3(4)(b) in respect of the taxpayer for such property in respect of preceding taxation years of the non-resident entity.

Where a negative amount results in applying the formula under paragraph 94.3(4)(a), paragraph 94.3(4)(b) may permit a deduction of the negative amount, as a loss from property from a property that is the participating interest, in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year. However, the deduction is limited by net cumulative positive balance determined under subparagraph 94.3(4)(b)(ii) in respect of the taxpayer for such property in respect of preceding taxation years of the non-resident entity.

An unused loss allocation is treated as a loss from property and is carried forward to offset the total amount otherwise required to be included in computing the taxpayer's income from property under subsection 94.3(4) for a subsequent taxation year of the non-resident entity. For more detail, see the commentary on the definition "loss allocation" in subsection 94.3(1).

The following examples illustrate the operation of subsection 94.3(4).

Example 1

Canco owns shares in the capital stock of FIE-1, which like Canco has a calendar taxation year. Canco's income (loss) allocations for 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010 and 2011 are ($100), $25, $90, ($20) and $50, respectively. FIE-1 pays no income or profits taxes.

Results

1 The amount included under paragraph 94.3(4)(a) in Canco's income for 2007 is nil (B = $100). The amount determined under paragraph 94.3(4)(b) for 2007 is $100, which can be carried forward to 2008.

2. The amount included under paragraph 94.3(4)(a) in Canco's income for 2008 is nil (A = $25, D = $100). The amount determined under paragraph 94.3(4)(b) for 2008 is $75, which can be carried forward to 2009.

3. The amount included under paragraph 94.3(4)(a) in Canco's income for 2009 is $15 (A = $90, D = $75). The amount determined under paragraph 94.3(4)(b) for 2009 is nil.

4. The amount included under paragraph 94.3(4)(a) in Canco's income for 2010 is nil (B = $20, D = $0). The amount deductible under paragraph 94.3(4)(b) is $15 (= the lesser of $20 and $15). The remaining $5 unused loss allocation can be carried forward to 2011.

5. The amount included under paragraph 94.3(4)(a) in Canco's income for 2011 is $45 (A = $50, D = $5).

Example 2

Canco owns shares in the capital stock of FIE-1, which like Canco has a calendar taxation year. Canco's income (loss) allocations for, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010 and 2011 are: ($100), ($125), ($175), $300 and $150. FIE-1 pays no income or profits taxes.

Results

1. The amount included under paragraph 94.3(4)(a) in Canco's income for 2007 is nil (B = $100). The amount determined under subparagraph 94.3(4)(b)(i) for 2007 is $100 (= B), which can be carried forward to 2008.

2. The amount included under paragraph 94.3(4)(a) in Canco's income for 2008 is nil (B = $125,D = $100). The amount determined under subparagraph 94.3(4)(b)(i) for 2008 is $225 (= B+D), which can be carried forward to 2009.

3. The amount included under paragraph 94.3(4)(a) in Canco's income for 2009 is nil (B = $175, D = $225). The amount determined under subparagraph 94.3(4)(b)(i) for 2009 is $400 (= B+D).

4. The amount included under paragraph 94.3(4)(a) in Canco's income for 2010 is nil (A = $300, D = $400). The amount deductible under paragraph 94.3(4)(b) is nil (= the lesser of $100 and nil). The remaining $100 unused loss allocation (= D - A) can be carried forward to 2011.

5. The amount included under paragraph 94.3(4)(a) in Canco's income for 2011 is $50 (A = $150, D = $100).

Example 3

1. Canco, FIE-1 and ABC Inc. each have taxation years that coincide with calendar years and each issue only one class of shares.

2. Canco is a corporation resident in Canada that holds 20% of the shares of the capital stock of FIE-1.

3. FIE-1 owns 75% of the shares of the capital stock of ABC Inc.

4. ABC Inc. is not a FIE, but would be a controlled foreign affiliate of FIE-1 if FIE-1 were resident in Canada. Although ABC Inc. is a foreign affiliate of Canco, it is not a controlled foreign affiliate of Canco.

5. FIE-1 earns $5,000 in interest income in 2007. It also receives a dividend of $1,000 from ABC Inc. FIE-1 pays no income or profits taxes.

6. The fair market value of FIE-1's shares in ABC Inc. increases by $6,500 in 2007.

Results

1. Under the definition "income allocation" in subsection 94.3(1), Canco is required to compute its share of FIE-1's income. For this purpose, FIE-1's income is generally computed as if FIE-1 were resident in Canada. Canco is required, under "A" of the formula in paragraph 94.3(4)(a), to include in computing income its income allocation in respect of its shares in the capital stock of FIE-1.

2. FIE-1's income, in computing Canco's income allocation, includes the $5,000 of interest income (as per paragraph 12(1)(c)). However, the $1,000 dividend from ABC Inc. is disregarded because of paragraph (g) of "A" in the definition "income allocation".

3. Section 91 is not applicable in computing Canco's income allocation in respect of its shares in FIE-1 because of paragraph (a) of "A" in the definition "income allocation".

4. Since ABC Inc. is not a FIE, sections 94.1 to 94.4 are not applicable to FIE-1's interest in ABC Inc. in computing Canco's income allocation in respect of is shares in FIE-1.

5. Canco's income allocation, therefore, is $1,000 (i.e., 20% × $5,000). This amount is included under "A" of the formula in paragraph 94.3(4)(a).

Example 4

Same facts as in example 3, except that ABC Inc. is itself a FIE.

Results

1. Because of subparagraph 94.3(2)(b)(ii), the accrual regime will not apply in the calculation of FIE-1's income in respect of its interest in ABC Inc. Instead,

FIE-1 may rely upon subsections 94.2(3) and (4), and if not applicable, subsection 94.1(4). Assume that FIE-1 qualifies, and so elects, to have subsection 94.2(3) apply to it in respect of its interest in ABC Inc. Thus, the mark-to-market regime under subsection 94.2(4) will apply to determine its FIE income from the interest.

2. For the purpose of computing Canco's income allocation in respect of its shares in FIE-1, FIE-1's income would include the $5,000 of interest (as per example 3), but not include any share of foreign accrual property income (as per example 3). However, FIE-1's income would include the $1,000 dividend paid in addition to its gain determined under subsection 94.2(4) in respect of its participating interest in ABC Inc. This gain so determined is $7,500, which is equal to the $6,500 increase in the value of the shares plus the $1,000 dividend paid. However, for the purposes of computing Canco's income allocation, a deduction for the $1,000 dividend is permitted for FIE-1 because section 94.4 would have permitted the deduction if FIE-1 had been resident in Canada.

3. Consequently, Canco's income allocation in respect of its shares of the capital stock of FIE-1 is equal to $2,500 [i.e., ($5,000 + $7,500 + $1,000 - $1,000) × 20%)]. This amount is required to be included in computing Canco's income under subsection 94.3(4).

Example 5

In 1999, Mireille (a resident of Canada) purchased a 30% participating interest in an entity (FIE-1) that is a FIE. The rate of foreign tax applicable to FIE-1's income is 20%. FIE-1's taxation years coincide with calendar years. For the purposes of computing Mireille's income or loss in respect of the interest under subsection 94.3(4), the income (loss) and the foreign tax of FIE-1 for taxation years 2007 to 2010 are as follows:

Year	2007	2008	2009	2010	Total
Income (loss)	$100,000	*($120,000)	$95,000	$130,000	$205,000
*Foreign tax paid	$20,000	Nil	Nil	$21,000	$41,000

Table notes:

* Assume foreign tax paid in the same taxation year as liability arose.

 Assume that an equivalent amount is carried forward under the laws of the relevant foreign jurisdiction to reduce FIE-1's tax liabilities after 2008.

Mireille's income allocations, loss allocations and specified tax allocations are shown in the table below, as are the resulting income inclusions and deductions under subsection 94.3(4). The specified tax allocations in the table below are obtained by multiplying the related figures in the above table by 30% (Mireille's percentage interest) and 2.2 (specified tax factor for Mireille). For example, for 2007, Mireille's specified tax allocation is $13,200 ($20,000 × 30% × 2.2)

(5) Adjusted cost base — In computing at any time the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of a participating interest in a non-resident entity

(a) there shall be added the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) the amount added (or that would have been added if this Act were read without reference to subsection 56(4.1) and sections 74.1 to 75), as income from a property that is the participating interest, under paragraph (4)(a) in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year of the taxpayer that ended before, or includes, that time, and

(ii) the product obtained when the amount determined under paragraph (i) of the description of A in the definition "income allocation" in subsection (1) in respect of the taxpayer and the participating interest for a particular taxation year of the non-resident entity that ended in a taxation year of the taxpayer that ended before, or includes, that time and at the end of which particular taxation year the taxpayer held the participating interest is multiplied by the amount that is determined by the fraction B/C described in the formula in that definition and that was used in computing the taxpayer's income allocation in respect of the participating interest for the particular taxation year; and

(b) there shall be deducted the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) the amount deducted (or that would have been deducted if this Act were read without reference to subsection 56(4.1) and sections 74.1 to 75), as a loss from a property that is the participating interest, under paragraph (4)(b) in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year of the taxpayer that ended before, or includes, that time,

(ii) the product obtained when the amount determined under paragraph (j) of the description of A in the definition "income allocation" in subsection (1) in respect of the taxpayer and the participating interest for a particular taxation year of the non-resident entity that ended in a taxation year of the taxpayer that ended before, or includes, that time and at the end of which particular taxation year the taxpayer held the participating interest is multiplied by the amount that is determined by the fraction C/D described in the formula in the definition "loss allocation" in subsection (1) that was used in computing the taxpayer's loss allocation in respect of the participating interest for the particular taxation year, and

(iii) the product obtained when the amount determined under paragraph (k) of the description of A in the definition "income allocation" in subsection (1) in respect of the taxpayer and the participating interest for a particular taxation year of the non-resident entity that ended in a taxation year of the taxpayer that ended before, or includes, that time and at the end of which particular taxation year the taxpayer held the participating interest is multiplied by the amount determined by the fraction C/D described in the formula in the definition "loss allocation" in subsection (1) that was used in computing the taxpayer's loss allocation in respect of the participating interest for the particular taxation year.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.3(5) provides for adjustments to the adjusted cost base (ACB) of a participating interest in an entity held by a taxpayer.

Paragraph 94.3(5)(a) provides for an addition to the ACB of a taxpayer of a participating interest, in a non-resident entity, at any time of the amount that is the total of the amount included in computing the taxpayer's income under paragraph 94.3(4)(a) for a taxation year of the taxpayer that ended before that time and the product obtained when the amount determined under paragraph (i) of the description of "A" in the definition "income allocation" in subsection 94.3(1) (taxable capital gains of the non-resident entity) in respect of the taxpayer and the participating interest for a particular taxation year of the non-resident entity that ended in a taxation year of the taxpayer that ended before that time and at the end of which particular taxation year the taxpayer held the participating interest is multiplied by the percentage that the fair market value of the interest represents of the fair market value of all participating interests in the entity.

Conversely, paragraph 94.3(5)(b) provides for a reduction to the ACB of a taxpayer of a participating interest, in a non-resident entity, at any time, of the total of three amounts. The first is the amount deducted, as a loss from a property that is the participating interest, under paragraph (4)(b) in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year of the taxpayer that ended before that time. The second and third amounts are the product obtained when the amount determined under paragraph (j) or (k), as the case may be, of the description of A in the definition "income allocation" (allowable capital losses of the non-resident entity and allowable business investment losses of the non-resident entity) in respect of the taxpayer and the participating interest for a particular taxation year of the non-resident entity that ended in a taxation year of the taxpayer that ended before that time and at the end of which particular taxation year the taxpayer held the participating interest is multiplied by the percentage that the fair market value of the interest represents of the fair market value of all participating interests in the entity.

94.4 Foreign investment entities — relief from double taxation — (1) Definitions and rules of application — In this section,

(a) the definitions in subsection 94.1(1) and 94.2(1) apply; and

(b) subsection 94.1(2) applies.

Technical Notes: New section 94.4 provides rules to eliminate double taxation of income where an amount of income of a non-resident entity, in respect of which any of sections 94.1 to 94.3 has applied in calculating the income for a year of a holder of an interest in the non-resident entity, becomes payable (determined by reference to paragraph 94.1(2)(o)) to that interest holder.

Subsection 94.4(1) provides that the definitions in subsections 94.1(1) and 94.2(1), and the rules of application in subsection 94.1(2), apply in section 94.4.

(2) Prevention of double taxation — If one or more amounts become, at a particular time in a particular taxation year of a taxpayer that begins after 2006 (or, where this subsection applies in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins before 2007, in a particular taxation year of the taxpayer that begins on or after the first day of the first taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which this subsection applies) or in a preceding taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2006 (or, where this subsection applies to the taxpayer in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins before 2007, in a preceding taxation year of the taxpayer that begins on or after the first day of the first taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which this subsection applies), payable or allocated to the taxpayer by a particular entity or another entity in respect of a participating interest in the particular entity (other than an amount that is proceeds of disposition from a disposition of the participating interest or of a part of it), and the taxpayer is at the particular time resident in Canada,

(a) there may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the participating interest the lesser of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that is in respect of any of those amounts payable or allocated and that is included (otherwise than because of the description of C in the definition "mark-to-market formula" in subsection 94.2(1)) in computing the taxpayer's income for any of those taxation years

exceeds

(B) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount, in respect of the participating interest,

(I) that is deducted under this paragraph in computing the taxpayer's income for any of those preceding taxation years, or

(II) where subsection 94.3(3) applied to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for any of those taxation years, that would, if the amount determined for D in applying the definition "specified tax allocation" in subsection 94.3(1) were the taxpayer's relevant tax factor (as defined in subsection 95(1)) minus 1, be the specified tax allocation of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for each taxation year of the particular entity that ends in one of those taxation years for which subsection 94.3(3) applied to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is

(I) an amount, in respect of the participating interest, that is, or would have been, if this Act were read without reference to subsection 94.2(20), included under subsection 94.1(4) or 94.2(4) in computing the taxpayer's income for any of those taxation years, or

(II) the amount required by paragraph 94.3(5)(a) to be added in computing at the particular time the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the participating interest,

exceeds

(B) the total of all amounts each of which is

(I) the amount required by paragraph 94.3(5)(b) to be deducted in computing at the particular time the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the participating interest,

(II) an amount, in respect of the participating interest that is, or would have been, if this Act were read without reference to subsection 94.2(20), deducted under subsection 94.2(4) in computing the taxpayer's income for any of those taxation years,

(III) an amount, in respect of the participating interest that is deducted under this paragraph in computing the taxpayer's income for any of those preceding taxation years, or

(IV) the total of all amounts, each of which is an amount that was claimed by the taxpayer under paragraph (4)(a) or (b) in respect of the participating interest for any of those taxation years; and

(b) in computing after the particular time the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the participating interest there shall be deducted the amount deductible under paragraph (a) in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the participating interest.

Technical Notes: Under subsection 94.4(2), where an amount becomes payable (at a particular time in a particular taxation year of a taxpayer that begins after 2006 or in a preceding taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2006) to the taxpayer from a non-resident entity in respect of a participating interest in the entity held by the taxpayer (otherwise than as consideration for the disposition of the interest), and the taxpayer is resident in Canada at the particular time, a deduction is permitted to offset (against any income included in respect of the interest under subsection 94.1(4), 94.2(4) or 94.3(4)) any net income inclusion resulting from the amount payable.

The permitted deduction under subsection 94.4(2) for the taxpayer's taxation year is equal to the lesser of two amounts. The first amount is the amount, if any, by which the total of those amounts payable that are included in computing the taxpayer's income for any of those years, exceeds the total of all amounts each of which

- is deductible in respect of the participating interest in any of those preceding years under paragraph 94.4(2)(a), or
- would, if subsection 94.3(3) applies to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for any of those taxation years, and the value of D in the definition "specified tax allocation" in subsection 94.3(1) were the taxpayer's relevant tax factor (as defined by subsection 95(1)) minus 1, be the specified tax allocation of the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest for each taxation year of the particular entity that ends in one of those taxation years for which subsection 94.3(3) applied to the taxpayer in respect of the participating interest.

As a result, in computing the portion of the amounts payable that may be used in computing a deduction under subsection 94.4(2), an adjustment is made to account for the extent to which the accrual system under the FIE regime has already recognized a possible incidence of taxation at Canadian-equivalent rates in the non-resident entity.

The second amount is the amount, if any, by which the total of

- the amounts included (or that, but for subsection 94.2(20), would have been included) in respect of the participating interest under subsection 94.1(4) or 94.2(4) in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year or a preceding taxation year, and
- the amounts required by paragraph 94.3(5)(a) to be added in computing at the particular time the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the participating interest exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is an amount, in respect of the participating interest,

- that is required by paragraph 94.3(5)(b) to be deducted in computing at the particular time the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the participating interest,
- that is deducted (or that, but for subsection 94.2(20), would have been deducted) under subsection 94.2(4) in computing the taxpayer's income for any of those taxation years, or
- that is deducted under paragraph 94.4(2)(a) in computing the taxpayer's income for any of those preceding taxation years.

The amount deductible from income under paragraph 94.4(2)(a) in respect of the interest must also be deducted in computing after the particular time the adjusted cost base of the interest. For more information, see the commentary on new paragraph 53(2)(w).

The example below illustrates the operation of subsection 94.4(2).

Example

1. A taxpayer resident in Canada, Canco, purchases a 20% interest in Foreignco, a non-resident corporation. Foreignco is a FIE. Participating interests in Foreignco do not qualify as "exempt interests". Both Canco and Foreignco have taxation years that coincide with calendar years. Subsection 94.1(4) applies to Canco in respect of the interest.

2. Canco's income under subsection 94.1(4) in respect of its participating interest in Foreignco for 2007 is $100,000. Foreignco pays a dividend of $50,000 to Canco in 2007. Canco includes the dividend in income pursuant to section 90 and claims a deduction of $20,000 in computing its taxable income pursuant to subsection 113(1). No foreign withholding taxes were paid by Canco on the $50,000 dividend.

Results

1. Canco's deduction from income under subsection 94.4(2) is equal to $50,000, being the lesser of the income inclusion as a result of the payment ($50,000) and the amount of the income inclusion under subsection 94.1(4) ($100,000).

2. The result would generally be the same if the $50,000 dividend were instead paid in a subsequent year.

(3) Prevention of double taxation — foreign tax credit unavailable — If one or more particular amounts become payable or allocated to a taxpayer in a particular taxation year of the taxpayer, the taxpayer includes the particular amounts in computing its income for the particular taxation year, and the particular amounts are included in computing, in respect of a particular participating interest of the taxpayer, an amount deducted by the taxpayer under subsection (2) in computing its income for the particular taxation year, the taxpayer may deduct in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the participating interest the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times B$$

where

A is

(a) nil, if the taxpayer is a corporation and the particular amounts are income from a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, and

(b) the taxpayer's relevant tax factor (as defined by subsection 95(1)) for the particular taxation year, in any other case; and

B is the lesser of

(a) 15% of the total of all amounts, if any, determined under subparagraph (2)(a)(ii) in computing the amount deductible by the taxpayer, in respect of the particular participating interest and the particular amounts, under subsection (2) in computing its income for the particular taxation year, and

(b) the amount that

(i) is the part of the non-business income tax (as defined by subsection 126(7)) paid by the taxpayer for the particular taxation year to a government of a country other than Canada that is in respect of the particular amounts, and

(ii) would be deductible under subsection 126(1) by the taxpayer from the tax for the particular taxation year otherwise payable under this Part (within the meaning assigned by paragraph (a) of the definition "tax for the taxation year otherwise payable under this Part" in subsection 126(7)) by the taxpayer if

(A) the taxpayer had not deducted an amount, in respect of the particular amounts, under subsection (2), and

(B) paragraph 126(1.2)(a) did not apply.

Technical Notes: Subsection 94.4(3) is designed to provide relief in circumstances where — because of having made, in computing its income for a taxation year, a deduction under subsection 94.4(2) in respect of a distribution from a FIE — a taxpayer does not have sufficient Part I tax payable for the year against which to claim a foreign tax credit under subsection 126(1) in respect of taxes paid to the government of a foreign country on that amount distributed from the FIE. Subsection 94.4(3) is applicable if

- one or more particular amounts become payable to a taxpayer in a taxation year of the taxpayer,
- the taxpayer includes the particular amounts in computing its income for the taxation year, and
- the particular amounts are included in computing, in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer, an amount deducted by the taxpayer under subsection 94.4(2) in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year.

Where these conditions are met, subsection 94.4(3) provides that the taxpayer may deduct in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year the amount of the product determined by the formula "A × B" set out in subsection 94.4(3).

Under the formula, A will generally be the taxpayer's relevant tax factor (as defined by subsection 95(1)) for the taxation year. However, A is nil where the taxpayer is a corporation and the particular amounts are income from a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer; in effect, the deduction under subsection 94.4(3) is not available in these circumstances, as the extent of any relief available to the taxpayer is not otherwise determined under section 126, but rather section 113.

Variable B in the formula is the lesser of two amounts. The first amount is 15% of the total of all amounts, if any, determined under subparagraph (2)(a)(ii) in computing the amount deductible by the taxpayer, in respect of the particular participating interest and the particular amounts, under subsection (2) in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year. In general terms, this will be the amount by which, in respect of the participating interest, income inclusions under the FIE regime for the taxation year exceed deductions from income made under the FIE regime for the taxation year. The second amount is the portion of the foreign tax paid in respect of the particular amounts that would — if the taxpayer had not made a deduction under subsection 94.4(2) — otherwise have been creditable by the taxpayer under subsection 126(1) for the taxation year.

Subsection 94.4(3) is relevant where a FIE distribution is made in respect of a taxpayer's participating interest and the distribution is subject to non-business income tax imposed by the government of a country in which the FIE is resident. Because of new subsection 126(1.2), described in the commentary below, a taxpayer is not entitled to a tax credit under subsection 126(1) in respect of non-business income tax paid by a taxpayer in respect of the distribution if the taxpayer made a deduction under subsection 94.4(3) in respect of the amount distributed.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamation — continuing corporation; 149(10)(c) — Where corporation becomes or ceases to be exempt.

(4) Transitional — If subsection 94.1(4), 94.2(4) or 94.3(4) (as that subsection read in its application to taxation years beginning after 2006) applied to a taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer that began before 2007 (each such year referred to in this subsection as a "pre-2007 taxation year") in respect of a participating interest of the taxpayer in a foreign investment entity

(a) there may be deducted, in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxpayer's first taxation year beginning after 2006, such amount as the taxpayer may claim not exceeding the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount included in computing the taxpayer's income in a pre-2007 taxation year in respect of the participating interest because of subsection 94.1(4), 94.2(4) or 94.3(4)

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted in computing the taxpayer's income in a pre-2007 taxation year in respect of the participating interest because of subsection 94.2(4), 94.3(4) or 94.4(2) or (3);

(b) there may be added, in computing the taxpayer's capital loss from the disposition of a capital property for the taxpayer's first taxation year beginning after 2006, such amount as the taxpayer may claim not exceeding the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount included in computing the taxpayer's capital gain for a pre-2007 taxation year in respect of the participating interest because of subsection 94.2(4)

exceeds

(ii) the total of

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount included in computing the taxpayer's capital loss in a pre-2007 taxation year in respect of the participating interest because of subsection 94.2(4), and

(B) the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under subparagraph (a)(ii) exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph (a)(i) in respect of the participating interest; and

(c) in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer at any time after the taxpayer's first taxation year beginning after 2006, there is to be deducted the total of all amounts each of which is an amount claimed by the taxpayer under paragraph (a) or (b) to the extent that the amount claimed was deducted in computing the taxpayer's income or added in computing the taxpayer's capital loss from the disposition of a capital property.

(a) it also applies to

(i) taxation years of a taxpayer that begin after any of 2002, 2003, 2004 or 2005 if the taxpayer elects, in writing, to have ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxation years of the taxpayer that begin after the year specified in the election and files the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year in which Bill C-10 is assented to,

(ii) fiscal periods of a partnership that begin after any of 2002, 2003, 2004 or 2005 if a member of the partnership, who has authority to act for the partnership, elects, in writing, to have ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the fiscal periods of the partnership that begin after the year specified in the election and files the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the member's filing-due date for the member's taxation year in which Bill C-10 is assented to, and

(iii) taxation years of the foreign affiliates of a taxpayer that begin after any of 2002, 2003, 2004 or 2005 if the taxpayer elects, in writing, to have ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxation years of the foreign affiliates of the taxpayer that begin after the year specified in the election and files the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year in which Bill C-10 is assented to;

(b) any election or form referred to in any of ss. 94.1 to 94.3 made by a taxpayer is deemed to have been filed with the Minister of National Revenue

(i) on a timely basis if it is filed with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the day on which Bill C-10 is assented to, and

(ii) in the taxpayer's return of income for the taxpayer's taxation year identified by the taxpayer in the election, if it is filed with the Minister of National Revenue in writing in the taxpayer's return of income for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the day on which Bill C-10 is assented to;

(c) for taxation years that begin before October 30, 2003 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), subparagraph (a)(ii) of the definition "exempt interest" in subsec. 94.1(1) is to be read as follows:

(ii) a qualifying entity, or

(d) for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), subpara. (a)(ii) of the definition "exempt interest" in subsec. 94.1(1) is to be read without reference to "(other than a controlled foreign affiliate)";

(e) for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), the definition "investment property" in subsec. 94.1(1) is to be read without reference to its para. (k);

(f) for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), para. (c) of the definition "significant interest" in subsec. 94.1(1) is to be read as follows:

(c) if the other entity is a non-discretionary trust (as defined in subsection 17(15)), an interest as a beneficiary under the trust, if at that time the particular entity, or the particular entity together with entities related (otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular entity, holds such interests under the trust that have a fair market value of 25% or more of the fair market value of all the interests as beneficiaries under the trust.

(g) for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), subpara. (b)(i) of the definition "specified interest" in subsec. 94.1(1) is to be read as follows:

(i) the entity or individual is at that time a successor beneficiary (as defined by subsection 94(1)) under the trust, or

(h) for taxation years that end before November 9, 2006 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), subpara. (b)(ii) of the definition "specified interest" in subsec. 94.1(1) is to be read as follows:

(ii) every amount of income and capital of the trust that the entity or individual may receive at or after that time depends on the exercise by any entity or individual of, or the failure by any entity or individual to exercise, a discretionary power.

(i) para. 94.1(2)(c) does not apply, in respect of a taxpayer and a participating interest of the taxpayer in a trust for each of the taxpayer's taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), unless the taxpayer elects, by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the day on which this Act is assented to, that this paragraph not apply in respect of the taxpayer and the participating interest;

(j) for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), subsec. 94.1(2) is to be read without reference to its paragraph (t);

(k) for taxation years that begin on or before November 9, 2006 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), para. 94.1(2)(w) is to be read without reference to its subpara. (i);

(l) for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), para. 94.2(9)(d) is to be read without reference to the expression "(whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretion by any entity or individual)";

(m) for taxation years that end before November 9, 2006 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), para. 94.2(11)(c) is to be read as follows:

(c) paragraphs (a) and (b) do not apply to the taxpayer for the particular taxation year in respect of the interest if

(i) the taxpayer is an individual and the interest was acquired by the individual more than 60 months before the individual last became resident in Canada unless, at any particular time in the period that begins 60 months before the day on which the individual first became resident in Canada and that ends at the end of the particular taxation year, the total amount of premiums paid in respect of the policy is more than the total amount of premiums that can reasonably be considered to have been contemplated — at the time the policy was first issued — to be paid in respect of the policy as of the particular time,

(ii) under the terms and conditions of the insurance policy, the taxpayer is entitled to receive only

(A) benefits payable as a consequence of the occurrence of risks insured under the policy,

(B) an experience-rated refund of premiums for a year, or

(C) a return of premiums previously paid upon the surrender, cancellation or termination of the insurance policy, or

(iii) the taxpayer can establish to the satisfaction of the Minister that

(A) the interest in the policy was, on the anniversary day of the policy that occurs in the particular taxation year,

(I) an exempt policy, or

(II) a prescribed annuity contract, or

(B) the taxpayer has included in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year the amount, if any, required under section 12.2 to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the interest;

(n) for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), the description of A in the definition "income allocation" in subsec. 94.3(1) is to be read as if its para. (f) were replaced by the following:

(f) this Act were read without reference to subsections 20(11) and (12) and 104(4) to (6),

(f.1) in the case where the particular taxpayer is a corporation resident in Canada, dividends received by the non-resident entity in the particular taxation year from a foreign affiliate of the particular taxpayer were included in computing the income of the non-resident entity for the particular taxation year only where

(i) the particular taxpayer did not have a qualifying interest (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 95(2)(m)) in the foreign affiliate at the time the dividends were received, or

(ii) taking into account the application of paragraphs (a) and (h), subsection 94.2(4) applied for the purpose of computing the non-resident entity's income for the particular taxation year in respect of the non-resident entity's participating interest in the foreign affiliate,

(o) for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), para. (h) of the description of A in the definition "income allocation" in subsec. 94.3(1) is to be read as follows:

(h) the expression "controlled foreign affiliate" in paragraph (a) of the definition "exempt interest" in subsection 94.1(1) referred to a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular taxpayer and not to a controlled foreign affiliate of the non-resident entity,

(p) for taxation years that begin on or before July 18, 2005 (where ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to the taxpayer for the taxation year), subparas. 94.3(2)(b)(v) to (viii) are to be read as follows:

(v) subsection (3)

(A) applied for a taxation year (referred to in this subparagraph as the "preceding taxation year") that ended before the particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of the particular participating interest, and

(B) did not apply for a taxation year of the taxpayer that was after the preceding taxation year and before the particular taxation year in respect of the particular participating interest, or

(vi) subsection 94.2(9) applies to the taxpayer for the particular taxation year in respect of the particular participating interest.

(From 2000 until Nov. 9, 2006, these rules were expected to come into force Jan. 1, 2003. Brian Ernewein of the Dept. of Finance indicated at the Cdn Tax Foundation annual conference on Nov. 28, 2006 that taxpayers who filed in past years based on the new rules should be allowed to refile under the old rules, and that Finance would support an amendment permitting this.)

The definitions "arm's length interest" and "exempt interest" in subsec. 94.1(1) amended to substitute "designated stock exchange" for "prescribed stock exchange" by S.C. 2007, c. 35 (Bill C-28, Royal Assent December 14, 2007), para. 100(2)(c), applicable after December 13, 2007.

The definitions "readily obtainable fair market value" and "trading day" in subsec. 94.2(1) and para. 94.2(2)(b) amended to substitute "designated stock exchange" for "prescribed stock exchange" by the said c. 35, para. 100(2)(d), applicable after December 13, 2007.

Notice of Ways and Means Motion, federal budget, Feb. 16, 1999: Non-resident trusts and foreign-based investment funds

(8) That the provisions of the Act governing the taxation of

(a) trust beneficiaries and non-resident trusts, and

(b) taxpayers resident in Canada who hold interests in foreign-based investment funds

be modified in accordance with proposals described in the budget documents tabled by the Minister of Finance in the House of Commons on February 16, 1999.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, Feb. 16, 1999: Non-resident trust and foreign-based investment fund rules

Canadians have significantly increased their holdings of investments in foreign countries over the past ten years. This reflects the globalization of capital markets and recognizes the benefits of portfolio diversification. However, tax planning techniques have developed to create advantages from using foreign-based investment funds and non-resident trusts in comparison with Canadian-based investment vehicles.

The Income Tax Act contains provisions that are designed to prevent the use by taxpayers of foreign-based investment funds and non-resident trusts to avoid Canadian tax. The purpose of the rules is to ensure that an appropriate amount of Canadian tax is paid on the foreign investment income earned by taxpayers through such vehicles in order to provide a level playing field with Canadian-based investment vehicles.

There is growing evidence that the objectives of the current provisions of the Act are not being fully met and that high-income individuals are able, in some cases, to avoid Canadian tax by investing in foreign-based investment funds and by contributing property to non-resident trusts. Such an outcome is inconsistent with a fair and neutral tax system, erodes the Canadian tax base and is contrary to the policy intent of the current rules.

Background

Canadian investment funds are taxed annually on the income and capital gains accumulated in the funds but not allocated to investors. Investors in such funds are taxed annually on the income and capital gains of the funds allocated to them, as well as on any taxable capital gains arising on the disposition of their interest in the fund. As a result, the Canadian tax base is protected.

Investment funds located outside Canada are generally not subject to tax in Canada. Where such funds face little or no tax in their country of residence, Canadian investors holding interests in such vehicles may benefit from a significant deferral of tax on income and realized capital gains retained in the funds over the years. Furthermore, on the disposition of their interest in a foreign- based investment fund, investors may also be able to convert ordinary income to capital gains, which are taxed at a lower rate. These tax advantages have resulted in a growing number of Canadians investing in foreign-based funds.

Issue

The Income Tax Act contains rules that attempt to eliminate these tax advantages. Where a Canadian makes an investment in a foreign-based investment fund and one of the main reasons for acquiring, holding or having the interest in such property is to avoid Canadian tax, a notional annual allocation of income is imputed to the taxpayer and subject to tax. This notional amount is determined by multiplying the cost of the taxpayer's interest in the fund by a prescribed interest rate.

The current provision, however, has rarely been applied. Revenue Canada has had difficulty in enforcing this provision because of the frequent lack of information and the challenge of establishing that the interest in the foreign-based investment fund was acquired primarily to avoid Canadian tax. Although the provision may have been effective when first introduced in 1984, its impact has weakened over the years. When the provision has been applied, it has been criticized as subjecting to tax an arbitrary amount that may bear no relationship to the actual income accruing in the fund.

These deficiencies and the resulting erosion of the Canadian tax base necessitate the actions that the government is proposing in this budget.

Proposal

The budget sets forth an approach to address the deficiencies in the current rules governing foreign-based investment funds and non-resident trusts. The objective of the proposals is to enhance fairness in the tax system in relation to the taxation of income earned from investing in foreign-based investment funds and contributing property to non-resident trusts on the one hand, and income earned from investing in similar entities resident in Canada. These proposals would not prevent Canadians from investing in foreign-based investment funds or from contributing property to non-resident trusts, but are intended to ensure that there is no tax advantage in doing so.

Consultations will be initiated on the following proposed modifications to the tax rules governing foreign-based investment funds:

- That the proposed rules apply to interests in a foreign-based investment fund, subject to a number of exceptions noted below. Taxpayers would be subject, annually, to tax on their pro-rata share of all the undistributed income of the foreign-based investment fund where they have access to sufficient information about the income of the fund (the income accrual approach that applies in respect of controlled foreign affiliates of Canadian taxpayers), subject to a foreign tax credit for foreign income taxes paid by the fund. Alternatively, taxpayers would be required to add to or deduct from their income, as the case may be, the annual increase or decrease in the market value of their interest in the fund (the "mark-to-market" approach). These rules would replace the tax motivation test that "one of the main reasons for the taxpayer acquiring, holding or having an interest in a foreign-based investment fund was to avoid Canadian taxation". The rules would not apply where the foreign-based investment fund annually distributes or allocates to Canadian investors all of the fund's income to which those investors are entitled.

- That a foreign-based investment fund be defined as any non-resident corporation, trust, fund or other entity where more than 50 per cent of the cost of the entity's assets are investment properties. Look-through rules would apply in respect of significant investments in other entities for the purpose of making this determination. Where trusts are subject to the proposed non-resident trust rules, such trusts would not be subject to these rules.
- That investment funds situated in the United States not be subject to these rules since tax avoidance and deferral opportunities are not a concern through the use of such vehicles.
- That a five-year exception for temporary residents and new immigrants apply. Additional exemptions could be contemplated to remove from the rules foreign-based investment funds that are clearly not used to avoid or defer Canadian tax.
- That the proposed rules apply to any taxation year commencing after 1999, with respect to any interest in a foreign-based investment fund (in which the taxpayer does not already own an interest) not covered by the exceptions, acquired by a Canadian resident on or after February 16, 1999. All interests in any foreign-based investment fund not covered by the exceptions would be subject to the proposed rules for taxation years commencing after 2000.

95. (1) Definitions for this subdivision — In this subdivision,

Proposed Amendment — 95(1) opening words

95. (1) Definitions re foreign affiliates — In this subdivision (other than in sections 94 to 94.4),

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007, requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 19(1), will amend the opening words of subsec. 95(1) to read as above, applicable to taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after 2006, except that they also apply to a taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer that begins before 2007 if ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to that taxation year of the foreign affiliate.

Technical Notes: Subsection 95(1) sets out definitions that are relevant for the purposes of sections 90 to 95.

Subsection 95(1) is amended so that these definitions do not apply for the purposes of sections 94 to 94.4, except where the definition applies for the purposes of the Act as a whole because of subsection 248(1). This amendment applies to taxation years that begin after 2006.

As set out below, various definitions in subsection 95(1) are also being amended.

"active business" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer means any business carried on by the foreign affiliate other than

(a) an investment business carried on by the foreign affiliate,

(b) a business that is deemed by subsection (2) to be a business other than an active business carried on by the foreign affiliate, or

(c) a non-qualifying business of the foreign affiliate;

Related Provisions: 95(1)"income from an active business" — What income included; 248(1) — Meanings of "active business" and "business".

History: The definition "active business" in subsec. 95(1) amended by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(1), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95. The definition formerly read:

> "active business" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer means any business carried on by the affiliate other than
> (a) an investment business carried on by the affiliate, or
> (b) a business that is deemed by subsection (2) to be a business other than an active business carried on by the affiliate;

The definition "active business" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new definition applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

> (a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or
> (b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

Proposed Addition — 95(1)"antecedent corporation"

"antecedent corporation" of a particular corporation means

(a) a predecessor corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) in respect of an amalgamation to which subsection 87(11) applied and by which the particular corporation was formed,

(b) a predecessor corporation (within the meaning of subsection 87(1)) of the corporation (referred to in this definition as the "first amalco") that was formed on an amalgamation of the predecessor corporation and another corporation, where

> (i) shares of the capital stock of the predecessor corporation that were not owned by the other corporation, or by a corporation of which the other corporation is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation, were exchanged on the amalgamation for shares of the capital stock of the first amalco that were, during the series of transactions or events that includes the amalgamation, redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the first amalco for money,
> (ii) the first amalco was a predecessor corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) in respect of an amalgamation to which subsection 87(11) applied and by which the particular corporation was formed, and
> (iii) the amalgamation referred to in subparagraph (i) occurred in a series of transactions or events that included the amalgamation referred to in subparagraph (ii),

(c) a corporation that was wound-up into the particular corporation in a winding-up to which subsection 88(1) applied, or

(d) an antecedent corporation of an antecedent corporation of the particular corporation;

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 25(1), will add the definition "antecedent corporation" to subsec. 95(1), applicable to taxation years of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer that begin after October 2, 2007. However,

> [amending bill, s. 25(1)(c)] if the taxpayer elects in writing in respect of all of its foreign affiliates and files the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's "election day", the amendment also applies to taxation years of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that begin before October 2, 2007 and after the date chosen by the taxpayer under paragraph (d) below; and
> (d) to be valid, an election must include the identification by the taxpayer of its choice of one of the following dates:
> (i) December 31, 1994,
> (ii) December 20, 2002, or
> (iii) February 27, 2004.

For purposes of the above [and for new 95(1)"calculating currency", "designated acquired corporation", "specified person or partnership", "specified predecessor corporation", 95(2)(f)-(f.15) and 95(2.6)], the taxpayer's "election day" is the later of the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the day on which this amendment is assented to, and the day that is one year after that day.

Notwithstanding subsecs. 152(4) to (5), any assessment of a taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for any taxation year shall be made that is necessary to take into account this amendment.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The definitions "antecedent corporation", "calculating currency", "designated acquired corporation" and "specified person or partnership" are added to subsection 95(1). For detail about those new definitions, readers may refer to the commentary for new paragraphs 95(2)(f) to (f.15).

Related Provisions: 248(10) — Series of transactions or events.

Proposed Addition — 95(1)"calculating currency"

"calculating currency" for a taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer means

(a) the currency of the country in which the foreign affiliate is resident at the end of the taxation year, or

(b) any currency that the taxpayer demonstrates to be reasonable in the circumstances;

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 25(1), will add the definition "calculating currency" to subsec. 95(1), applicable on the same basis as 95(1)"antecedent corporation".

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): See under 95(1)"antecedent corporation".

Related Provisions: 261 — Functional currency reporting.

"controlled foreign affiliate", at any time, of a taxpayer resident in Canada, means

(a) a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that is, at that time, controlled by the taxpayer, or

(b) a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that would, at that time, be controlled by the taxpayer if the taxpayer owned

(i) all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by the taxpayer,

(ii) all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons who do not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer,

(iii) all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by the persons (each of whom is referred to in this definition as a "relevant Canadian shareholder"), in any set of persons not exceeding four (which set of persons shall be determined without reference to the existence of or the absence of any relationship, connection or action in concert between those persons), who

(A) are resident in Canada,

(B) are not the taxpayer or a person described in subparagraph (ii), and

(C) own, at that time, shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate, and

(iv) all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons who do not deal at arm's length with any relevant Canadian shareholder;

Proposed Amendment — 95(1)"controlled foreign affiliate"

"controlled foreign affiliate", at any time, of a taxpayer resident in Canada, means

(a) a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that is, at that time, controlled by the taxpayer,

(b) a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that would, at that time, be controlled by the taxpayer if the taxpayer owned

(i) all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by the taxpayer,

(ii) all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons who do not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer,

(iii) all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by the persons (each of whom is referred to in this definition as a "relevant Canadian shareholder"), in any set of persons not exceeding four (which set of persons shall be determined without reference to the existence of or the absence of any relationship, connection or action in concert between those persons), who

(A) are resident in Canada,

(B) are not the taxpayer or a person described in subparagraph (ii), and

(C) own, at that time, shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate, and

(iv) all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons who do not deal at arm's length with any relevant Canadian shareholder, or

(c) a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that is, at that time, a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer because of paragraph 94.1(2)(h);

Application: S.C. 2007, c. 35 (Bill C-28, Royal Assent December 14, 2007), subsec. 94(1), has repealed a proposed amendment that was to have been made to the definition "controlled foreign affiliate" in subsec. 95(1) by Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 19(2) (by repealing that subsec. before it is enacted); and subsec. 94(2) will instead amend the definition to read as above once Bill C-10 receives Royal Assent, applicable to taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after 1995, except that

(a) for taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after 2002 and on or before February 27, 2004, the definition is to be read as follows:

"controlled foreign affiliate", at any time, of a taxpayer resident in Canada, means

(a) a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that is, at that time, controlled

(i) by the taxpayer,

(ii) by the taxpayer and not more than four other persons resident in Canada, or

(iii) by not more than four persons resident in Canada, other than the taxpayer,

(b) a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that would, at that time, be controlled by the taxpayer if the taxpayer owned

(i) all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by the taxpayer,

(ii) all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons who do not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer,

(iii) all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by the persons (each of whom is referred to in this definition as a "relevant Canadian shareholder"), in any set of persons not exceeding four (which set of persons shall be determined without reference to the existence of or the absence of any relationship, connection or action in concert between those persons), who

(A) are resident in Canada,

(B) are not the taxpayer or a person described in subparagraph (ii), and

(C) own, at that time, shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate, and

(iv) all of the shares of the capital stock of the foreign affiliate that are owned at that time by persons who do not deal at arm's length with any relevant Canadian shareholder, or

(c) a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that is, at that time, a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer because of paragraph 94.1(2)(h);

(b) for taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after 1995 and before 2003, the definition is to be read as follows:

"controlled foreign affiliate", at any time of a taxpayer resident in Canada, means a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer that

(a) is, at that time, controlled

(i) by the taxpayer,

(ii) by the taxpayer and not more than four other persons resident in Canada, or

(iii) by not more than four persons resident in Canada, other than the taxpayer, or

(b) would, at that time, be controlled by the taxpayer if the taxpayer owned

(i) each share of the capital stock of a corporation that is owned at that time by the taxpayer and each share of the capital stock of a corporation that is owned at that time by any of not more than four other persons resident in Canada,

(ii) each share of the capital stock of a corporation that is owned at that time by any of not more than four persons resident in Canada (other than the taxpayer), and

(iii) each share of the capital stock of a corporation that is owned at that time by the taxpayer and each share of the capital stock of a corporation that is owned at that time by any person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length.

Technical Notes: In computing the income for a taxation year of a taxpayer resident in Canada, subsection 91(1) requires the inclusion of a specified percentage of the foreign accrual property income (FAPI) of any controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer. In order to eliminate overlap between the FAPI rules and the rules for foreign investment entities in sections 94.1 to 94.4, the latter rules generally do not apply in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a controlled foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada. An election is provided under new paragraph 94.1(2)(h) under which a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer can be treated as the taxpayer's controlled foreign affiliate.

The definition "controlled foreign affiliate" is amended to refer to foreign affiliates that are deemed by paragraph 94.1(2)(h) to be controlled foreign affiliates.

Related Provisions: 17(15)"controlled foreign affiliate" — Application of definition to loan by corporation to non-resident; 94(3)(a)(x) [proposed] — Application to trust deemed resident in Canada; 94.1(1)"exempt interest"(a)(i) — CFA excluded from foreign investment entity (FIE) rules; 94.1(2)(h) — Where entity deemed to be CFA and thus excluded from FIE rules; 95(2.01), (2.02) — Shares held through holding companies, partnerships and trusts; 128.1(1)(d) — Foreign affiliate becoming resident in Canada deemed to have been controlled foreign affiliate; 233.4(4) — Reporting requirements; 248(1)"controlled foreign affiliate" — Definition applies to entire Act; 256(6), (6.1) — Meaning of "controlled"; Art. XXIX:5(a) — U.S. "S" corporation may be deemed to be CFA.

History: The definition "controlled foreign affiliate" in subsec. 95(1) amended by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(1), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95. The definition formerly read:

> "controlled foreign affiliate", at any time, of a taxpayer resident in Canada means a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that was, at that time, controlled by
> (a) the taxpayer,
> (b) the taxpayer and not more than four other persons resident in Canada,
> (c) not more than 4 persons resident in Canada, other than the taxpayer,
> (d) a person or persons with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, or
> (e) the taxpayer and a person or persons with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length;

Paras. (c) to (e) of "controlled foreign affiliate" in subsec. 95(1) substituted for para. (c) by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 71(1), applicable to taxation years commencing after July 13, 1990. Para. (c) formerly read:

> (c) a related group of which the taxpayer was a member;

Proposed Addition — 95(1)"designated acquired corporation"

"designated acquired corporation" of a taxpayer means a particular antecedent corporation of the taxpayer if

(a) the taxpayer or another antecedent corporation of the taxpayer acquired control of

(i) the particular antecedent corporation, or

(ii) a corporation (referred to in this definition as a "successor corporation") of which the particular antecedent corporation is an antecedent corporation, and

(b) immediately before the acquisition of control or a series of transactions or events that includes the acquisition of control, the taxpayer, the other antecedent corporation or a corporation resident in Canada of which the taxpayer or the other antecedent corporation is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation, as the case may be, dealt at arm's length (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) with the particular antecedent corporation or the successor corporation, as the case may be;

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 25(1), will add the definition "designated acquired corporation" to subsec. 95(1), applicable on the same basis as 95(1)"antecedent corporation".

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): See under 95(1)"antecedent corporation".

Related Provisions: 248(10) — Series of transactions or events.

"eligible trust", at any time, means a trust, other than a trust

(a) created or maintained for charitable purposes,

(b) governed by an employee benefit plan,

(c) described in paragraph (a.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1),

(d) governed by a salary deferral arrangement,

(e) operated for the purpose of administering or providing superannuation, pension, retirement or employee benefits, or

(f) where the amount of income or capital that any entity may receive directly from the trust at any time as a beneficiary under the trust depends on the exercise by any entity of, or the failure by any entity to exercise, a discretionary power;

History: The definition "eligible trust" in subsec. 95(1) added by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(9), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95.

"entity" includes an association, a corporation, a fund, a natural person, a joint venture, an organization, a partnership, a syndicate and a trust;

History: The definition "entity" in subsec. 95(1) added by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(9), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95.

"excluded property", at a particular time, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer means any property of the foreign affiliate that is

(a) used or held by the foreign affiliate principally for the purpose of gaining or producing income from an active business carried on by it,

(b) shares of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer where all or substantially all of the fair market value of the property of the other foreign affiliate is attributable to property, of that other foreign affiliate, that is excluded property,

(c) property all or substantially all of the income from which is, or would be, if there were income from the property, income from an active business (which, for this purpose, includes income that would be deemed to be income from an active business by paragraph (2)(a) if that paragraph were read without reference to subparagraph (v)), or

(c.1) property arising under or as a result of an agreement that

(i) provides for the purchase, sale or exchange of currency, and

(ii) either

(A) can reasonably be considered to have been made by the affiliate to reduce its risk, with respect to an amount that was receivable under an agreement that relates to the sale of excluded property or with respect to an amount that was receivable and was a property described in paragraph (c), of fluctuations in the value of the currency in which the amount receivable was denominated, or

(B) can reasonably be considered to have been made by the affiliate to reduce its risk, with respect to any of the following amounts, of fluctuations in the value of the currency in which that amount was denominated:

(I) an amount that was payable under an agreement that relates to the purchase of property that (at all times between the time of the acquisition of the property and the particular time) is excluded property of the affiliate,

(II) an amount of indebtedness, to the extent that the proceeds derived from the issuance or incurring of the indebtedness can reasonably be considered to have been used to acquire property that (at all times between the time of the acquisition of that property and the particular time) is excluded property of the affiliate, or

(III) an amount of indebtedness, to the extent that the proceeds derived from the issuance or incurring of the indebtedness can reasonably be considered to have been used to repay the outstanding balance of

1. an amount that, immediately before the time of that repayment, is described by subclause (I),

2. an amount of indebtedness of the affiliate that, immediately before the time of that repayment, is described by subclause (II), or

3. an amount of indebtedness of the affiliate that, immediately before the time of that repayment, is described by this subclause,

and, for the purposes of the definitions "foreign affiliate" in this subsection and "direct equity percentage" in subsection (4) as they apply to this definition, where at any time a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer has an interest in a partnership,

(d) the partnership shall be deemed to be a non-resident corporation having capital stock of a single class divided into 100 issued shares, and

(e) the affiliate shall be deemed to own at that time that proportion of the issued shares of that class that

(i) the fair market value of the affiliate's interest in the partnership at that time

is of

(ii) the fair market value of all interests in the partnership at that time;

Related Provisions: 85.1(4)(a) — Exception to share-for-share exchange rules where foreign affiliate's property is substantially all excluded property; 94.1(1)"exempt property"(b)(ii) — Excluded property exempt from foreign investment entity rules; Reg. 5907(5.1) — Rules on disposition of excluded property by FA.

History: The opening words and paras. (a) to (c) of the definition "excluded property" in subsec. 95(1) amended and para. (c.1) added by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(2), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95. That portion formerly read:

"excluded property" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer means any property of the foreign affiliate that is

(a) used or held by the foreign affiliate principally for the purpose of gaining or producing income from an active business,

(b) shares of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer where all or substantially all of the property of the other foreign affiliate is excluded property, or

(c) an amount receivable the interest on which is, or would be if interest were payable thereon, income from an active business by virtue of subparagraph (2)(a)(ii),

That portion of the definition "excluded property" following para. (c) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 71(2), applicable after 1989. That portion formerly read:

and for the purpose of this definition, where a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer has an interest in a partnership and the fair market value of the interest is equal to or greater than 10% of the fair market value of all interests in the partnership, the partnership shall be deemed to be another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer and the interest of the foreign affiliate in the partnership shall be deemed to be shares of the capital stock of that other foreign affiliate;

"exempt trust", at a particular time in respect of a taxpayer resident in Canada, means a trust that, at that time, is a trust under which the interest of each beneficiary under the trust is, at all times that the interest exists during the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time, a specified fixed interest of the beneficiary in the trust, if at the particular time

(a) the trust is an eligible trust,

(b) there are at least 150 beneficiaries each of whom holds a specified fixed interest, in the trust, that has a fair market value of at least $500, and

(c) the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value of an interest as a beneficiary under the trust held by a specified purchaser in respect of the taxpayer is not more than 10% of the total fair market value of all interests as a beneficiary under the trust;

History: The definition "exempt trust" in subsec. 95(1) added by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(9), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95.

"foreign accrual property income" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, for any taxation year of the affiliate, means the amount determined by the formula

$$(A + A.1 + A.2 + B + C) - (D + E + F + G + H)$$

Proposed Amendment — 95(1)"foreign accrual property income" formula

$$(A + A.1 + A.2 + B) - (D + E + F + G + H)$$

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 19(3), will amend the formula in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) to read as above, applicable to taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after 2006, except that they also apply to a taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer that begins before 2007 if ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to that taxation year of the foreign affiliate.

Technical Notes: The FAPI of a controlled foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada must be allocated to the taxpayer in accordance with subsection 91(1). Under its definition in subsection 95(1), FAPI includes certain amounts that would be included in the affiliate's income under existing subsection 94.1(1) if that subsection were read in the manner specified in the description of C of the definition.

Existing section 94.1 is being repealed. Accordingly, the description of C in the definition "foreign accrual property income" is also repealed. There are, however, special rules in new paragraph 95(2)(g.3) with regard to the application of sections 94.1 to 94.4 to a foreign affiliate. Amounts determined under paragraph 95(2)(g.3) will be included in FAPI under the description of "A" in the definition "foreign accrual property income". For detail on paragraph 95(2)(g.3), see the commentary on that paragraph.

A is the amount that would, if section 80 did not apply to the affiliate for the year or a preceding taxation year, be the total of all amounts, each of which is the affiliate's income for the year from property, the affiliate's income for the year from a business other than an active business or the affiliate's income for the year from a non-qualifying business of the affiliate, in each case that amount being determined as if each amount described in clause (2)(a)(ii)(D) that was paid or payable, directly or indirectly, by the affiliate to another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer or of a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length were nil where an amount in respect of the income derived by the other foreign affiliate from that amount that was paid or payable to it by the affiliate was added in computing its income from an active business, other than

(a) interest that would, by virtue of paragraph 81(1)(m), not be included in computing the income of the affiliate if it were resident in Canada,

(b) a dividend from another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer,

(c) a taxable dividend to the extent that the amount thereof would, if the dividend were received by the taxpayer, be deductible by the taxpayer under section 112, or

(d) any amount included because of subsection 80.4(2) in the affiliate's income in respect of indebtedness to another corporation that is a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer or of a person resident in Canada with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length,

A.1 is twice the total of all amounts included in computing the affiliate's income from property or businesses (other than active businesses) for the year because of subsection 80(13),

A.2 is the amount determined for G in respect of the affiliate for the preceding taxation year,

B is such portion of the affiliate's taxable capital gains for the year from dispositions of property, other than dispositions of excluded property to which none of paragraphs (2)(c), (d) and (e) apply, as may reasonably be considered to have accrued after its 1975 taxation year,

Proposed Amendment — 95(1)"foreign accrual property income"B

B is the portion of the affiliate's income (to the extent that the income is not included under the description of A), or of the affiliate's taxable capital gains that can reasonably be considered to have accrued after its 1975 taxation year, as the case may be, for the year

(a) from the dispositions of property other than dispositions of excluded property,

(b) from dispositions of excluded property to which any of paragraphs (2)(c), (c.2), (d), (d.1), (e), (e.1), (e.3) to (e.5) and (f.4) and 88(3)(a) applies, or

(c) arising because of a gain under subsection 40(3) in respect of a share because of a dividend on the share referred to in subparagraph (2)(e.3)(iv) or (e.4)(v),

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 133(3), will amend the description of B in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) to read as above, applicable in respect of taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that end after December 19, 2002.

Technical Notes: The definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsection 95(1) is relevant for the purposes of section 91 and for the purposes of computing the tax surpluses and deficits of the foreign affiliate of a taxpayer. Section 91 provides rules for determining amounts that a taxpayer resident in Canada is to include in computing that taxpayer's income for a particular year as income from a share of a controlled foreign affiliate of that taxpayer.

First, the description of B in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsection 95(1) is amended to include income (other than income included in the description of A in the definition "foreign accrual property income") and capital gains, as the case may be,

- from dispositions of excluded property where any of paragraphs 88(3)(a) and 95(2)(c), (c.2), (d), (d.1), (e), (e.1), (e.3) to (e.5) and (f.4) applies in respect of the disposition and, and
- gains arising under subsection 40(3) in respect of a share because of a dividend referred to in subparagraph 95(2)(e.3)(iv) or (e.4)(v) on the share, which income or capital gain can reasonably be considered to have accrued after the affiliate's 1975 taxation year.

Second, the description of E in the definition of "foreign accrual property income" is amended to remove the reference to dispositions of excluded property to which none of paragraphs 95(2)(c), (d) or (e) apply, and replace it with a reference to dispositions of excluded property.

C is, where the affiliate is a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, the amount that would be required to be included in computing its income for the year if

(a) subsection 94.1(1) were applicable in computing that income,

(b) the words "earned directly by the taxpayer" in that subsection were replaced by the words "earned by the person resident in Canada in respect of whom the taxpayer is a foreign affiliate",

(c) the words "other than a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer or a prescribed non-resident entity" in paragraph 94.1(1)(a) were replaced by the words "other than a prescribed non-resident entity or a controlled foreign affiliate of a person resident in Canada of whom the taxpayer is a controlled foreign affiliate", and

(d) the words "other than a capital gain" in paragraph 94.1(1)(g) were replaced by the words "other than any income that would not be included in the taxpayer's foreign accrual property income for the year if the value of C in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsection 95(1) were nil and other than a capital gain",

Proposed Repeal — 95(1)"foreign accrual property income"C

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 19(4), will repeal the description of C in the definition "foreign accrual property income", applicable to taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after 2006, except that they also apply to a taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer that begins before 2007 if ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to that taxation year of the foreign affiliate.

Technical Notes: See under 95(1)"foreign accrual property income" formula above.

D is the total of all amounts, each of which is the affiliate's loss for the year from property, the affiliate's loss for the year from a business other than an active business of the affiliate or the affiliate's loss for the year from a non-qualifying business of the affiliate, in each case that amount being determined as if there were not included in the affiliate's income any amount described in any of paragraphs (a) to (d) of the description of A and as if each amount described in clause (2)(a)(ii)(D) that was paid or payable, directly or indirectly, by the affiliate to another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer or of a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length were nil where an amount in respect of the income derived by the other foreign affiliate from that amount that was paid or payable to it by the affiliate was added in computing its income from an active business,

E is the amount of the affiliate's allowable capital losses for the year from dispositions of property (other than excluded property) that can reasonably be considered to have accrued after its 1975 taxation year,

F is the amount claimed by the taxpayer, which amount may not be greater than the amount prescribed to be the deductible loss of the affiliate for the year,

G is the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of amounts determined for A.1 and A.2 in respect of the affiliate for the year

exceeds

(b) the total of all amounts determined for D to F in respect of the affiliate for the year, and

H is

(a) where the affiliate was a member of a partnership at the end of the fiscal period of the partnership that ended in the year and the partnership received a dividend at a particular time in that fiscal period from a corporation that was, for the purposes of sections 93 and 113, a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer at that particular time, the portion of the amount of that dividend that is included in the value of A in respect of the affiliate for the year and that is deemed by paragraph 93.1(2)(a) to have been received by the affiliate for the purposes of sections 93 and 113, and

(b) in any other case, nil;

Related Provisions: 40(3)(d) — Deemed gain where ACB would become negative; 53(1)(m) — ACB of offshore investment fund property; 95(2) — Determination of certain components of FAPI; 152(6.1) — Reassessment to apply FAPI loss carryback; 248(1)"foreign accrual property income" — Definition applies to entire Act; 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero; 261(6.1), (7)(a)(i) — Application when functional currency election made; Art. XXIX:5(b) — U.S. "S" corporation income may be deemed to be FAPI.

History: The opening words of the description of A in the definition "foreign accrual property income" amended by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(3), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95. The opening words formerly read:

A is the amount that would, if section 80 did not apply to the affiliate for the year or a preceding taxation year, be the total of the affiliate's incomes for the year from property and businesses (other than active businesses) determined as if each amount described in clause (2)(a)(ii)(D) that was paid or payable, directly or indirectly, by the affiliate to another foreign affiliate of either the taxpayer or a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length were nil where an amount in respect of the income derived by the other foreign affiliate from that amount that was paid or payable to it by the affiliate was added in computing its income from an active business, other than

The description of D in the definition "foreign accrual property income" amended by the said c. 35, subsec. 26(4), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95. The description formerly read:

D is the total of the affiliate's losses for the year from property and businesses (other than active businesses) determined as if there were not included in the affiliate's income any amount described in any of paragraphs (a) to (d) of the description of A and as if each amount described in clause (2)(a)(ii)(D) that was paid or payable, directly or indirectly, by the affiliate to another foreign affiliate of either the taxpayer or a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length were nil where an amount in respect of the income derived by the other foreign affiliate from that amount that was paid or payable to it by the affiliate was added in computing its income from an active business,

The description of E in the definition "foreign accrual property income" amended by the said c. 35, subsec. 26(5), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95. The description formerly read:

E is such portion of the affiliate's allowable capital losses for the year from dispositions of property, other than dispositions of excluded property to which none of paragraphs (2)(c), (d) and (e) apply, as may reasonably be considered to have accrued after its 1975 taxation year,

The formula in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) amended to add "+ H" by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 73(1), applicable after November 1999.

The description of A.1 in the definition "foreign accrual property income" amended by the said c. 17, subsec. 73(2) to replace the reference to the expression "4/3 of" with a reference to the word "twice", applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000 except that, where a taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer includes February 28, 2000 or October 17, 2000, or began after February 28, 2000 and ended before October 17, 2000, the reference to the word "twice" shall be read as a reference to the expression "the fraction that is the reciprocal of the fraction in para. 38(a), as amended by 2001, c. 17, that applies to the foreign affiliate for the year, multiplied by".

The description of F in the definition "foreign accrual property income" amended by the said c. 17, subsec. 73(3), applicable to foreign affiliates' taxation years that begin after November 1999. The description of F formerly read:

F is the amount prescribed to be the deductible loss of the affiliate for the year and the five immediately preceding taxation years, and

The description of H in the definition "foreign accrual property income" added by the said c. 17, subsec. 73(4), applicable after November 1999.

Paras. (c) and (d) added to the description of C in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 122(2), para. (c) applicable to taxation years that end after November 1991, para. (d) applicable to taxation years that begin after June 19, 1996.

The formula in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) amended, and the descriptions of A.1 and A.2 added, by 1995, c. 21, subsecs. 32(1), (2), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994. The formula formerly read:

$$(A + B + C) - (D + E + F)$$

The opening words of the description of A in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 78(2), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the amended description of A applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation year of such foreign affiliate.

In these instances, for taxation years that end after February 21, 1994, the opening words of the description of A should be read as follows (1995, c. 21, subsec. 78(1)):

A is the amount that would, if section 80 did not apply to the affiliate for the year or a preceding taxation year, be the total of the affiliate's incomes for the year from property and businesses (other than active businesses), other than

The opening words of the description of A formerly read:

A is the total of the affiliate's incomes for the year from property and businesses other than active businesses, other than

The description of D in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(2), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the amended legislation applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

The description of D formerly read:

D is the total of the affiliate's losses for the year from property and businesses (other than active businesses) determined as if there were not included in the affiliate's income any amount described in any of paragraphs (a) to (d) of the description of A,

The description of G added to the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 32(3), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994.

Para. (d) of the description of A in "foreign accrual property income" added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 71(3), applicable to 1987 et seq.

The description of D in "foreign accrual property income" amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 71(4), to parenthesize "other than active businesses" and to substitute "paragraphs (a) to (d)" for "paragraphs (a), (b) or (c)", applicable to 1987 et seq.

"foreign accrual tax" applicable to any amount included in computing a taxpayer's income by virtue of subsection 91(1) for a taxation year in respect of a particular foreign affiliate of the taxpayer means

(a) the portion of any income or profits tax that was paid by

(i) the particular affiliate, or

(ii) any other foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of a dividend received from the particular affiliate and that may reasonably be regarded as applicable to that amount, and

(b) any amount prescribed in respect of the particular affiliate to be foreign accrual tax applicable to that amount;

Regulations: 5907(1.3) (prescribed foreign accrual tax).

"foreign affiliate", at any time, of a taxpayer resident in Canada means a non-resident corporation in which, at that time,

(a) the taxpayer's equity percentage is not less than 1%, and

(b) the total of the equity percentages in the corporation of the taxpayer and of each person related to the taxpayer (where each such equity percentage is determined as if the determinations under paragraph (b) of the definition "equity percentage" in subsection (4) were made without reference to the equity percentage of any person in the taxpayer or in any person related to the taxpayer) is not less than 10%, except that a corporation is not a foreign affiliate of a non-resident-owned investment corporation;

History: The definition "foreign affiliate" in subsec. 95(1) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(1), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the amended legislation applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

The definition formerly read:

"foreign affiliate", at any time, of a taxpayer (other than a non-resident-owned investment corporation) resident in Canada means a corporation (other than a corporation resident in Canada), in which, at that time, the taxpayer's equity percentage was not less than 10%;

Selected Cases [subsec. 95(1)"foreign affiliate"]: Old HW-GW Ltd. v. Canada, [1993] 1 C.T.C. 363 (FCA); leave to appeal to SCC refused (Sept. 30, 1993), Doc. 23591 (SCC) (Puerto Rico separate country from US under subsecs. 5907(10) and (11) of Regulations; incentive to promote sales from Puerto Rico to US was "export" incentive; dividends from foreign affiliate in Puerto Rico not from "exempt surplus").

"foreign bank" means an entity that would be a foreign bank within the meaning assigned by the definition of that expression in section 2 of the Bank Act if

(a) that definition were read without reference to the portion thereof after paragraph (g) thereof, and

(b) the entity had not been exempt under section 12 of that Act from being a foreign bank;

Related Provisions: 94.1(1)"exempt business"(a) — Foreign bank exempt from foreign investment entity rules.

History: The definition "foreign bank" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new definition applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

"income from a non-qualifying business" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada for a taxation year includes the foreign affiliate's income for the taxation year that pertains to or is incident to that non-qualifying business, but does not include

(a) the foreign affiliate's income from property for the taxation year, or

(b) the foreign affiliate's income for the taxation year from a business that is deemed by subsection (2) to be a business other than an active business of the foreign affiliate;

History: The definition "income from a non-qualifying business" in subsec. 95(1) added by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(9), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95.

"income from an active business" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer for a taxation year includes the foreign affiliate's income for the taxation year that pertains to or is incident to that active business but does not include

(a) the foreign affiliate's income from property for the taxation year,

(b) the foreign affiliate's income for the taxation year from a business that is deemed by subsection (2) to be a business other than an active business of the foreign affiliate, or

(c) the foreign affiliate's income from a non-qualifying business of the foreign affiliate for the taxation year;

Related Provisions: 95(1)"active business" — Businesses excluded; 95(1)"income from property" — Extended meaning of income from property.

History: The definition "income from an active business" amended by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(1), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95. The definition formerly read:

"income from an active business" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer for a taxation year includes, for greater certainty, any income of the affiliate for the year that pertains to or is incident to that business but does not include

(a) other income that is its income from property for the year, or

(b) its income for the year from a business that is deemed by subsection (2) to be a business other than an active business carried on by the affiliate;

The definition "income from an active business" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new definition applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

"income from property" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer for a taxation year includes the foreign affiliate's income for the taxation year from an investment business and the foreign affiliate's income for the taxation year from an adventure or concern in the nature of trade, but does not include

(a) the foreign affiliate's income for the taxation year from a business that is deemed by subsection (2) to be a business other than an active business of the foreign affiliate, or

(b) the foreign affiliate's income for the taxation year that pertains to or is incident to

(i) an active business of the foreign affiliate, or

(ii) a non-qualifying business of the foreign affiliate;

Related Provisions: 9(1) — Determination of income from property; 95(1)"investment business" — Meaning of investment business; 95(2)(l) — Income from trading or dealing in indebtedness.

History: The definition "income from property" amended by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(1), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95. The definition formerly read:

"income from property" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer for a taxation year includes its income for the year from an investment business and its income for the year from an adventure or concern in the nature of trade, but, for greater certainty, does not include its income for the year that is because of subsection (2) included in its income from an active business or in its income from a business other than an active business;

The definition "income from property" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new definition applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

"investment business" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer means a business carried on by the foreign affiliate in a taxation year (other than a business deemed by subsection (2) to be a business other than an active business carried on by the foreign affiliate and other than a non-qualifying business of the foreign affiliate) the principal purpose of which is to derive income from property (including interest, dividends, rents, royalties or any similar returns or substitutes for such interest, dividends, rents, royalties or returns), income from the insurance or reinsurance of risks, income from the factoring of trade accounts receivable, or profits from the disposition of investment property, unless it is established by the taxpayer or the foreign affiliate that, throughout the period in the taxation year during which the business was carried on by the foreign affiliate,

(a) the business (other than any business conducted principally with persons with whom the affiliate does not deal at arm's length) is

(i) a business carried on by it as a foreign bank, a trust company, a credit union, an insurance corporation or a trader or dealer in securities or commodities, the activities of which are regulated under the laws

(A) of each country in which the business is carried on through a permanent establishment (as defined by regulation) in that country and of the country under whose laws the affiliate is governed and any of exists, was (unless the affiliate was continued in any jurisdiction) formed or organized, or was last continued,

(B) of the country in which the business is principally carried on, or

(C) if the affiliate is related to a non-resident corporation, of the country under whose laws that non-resident corporation is governed and any of exists, was (unless that non-resident corporation was continued in any jurisdiction) formed or organized, or was last continued, if those regulating laws are recognized under the laws of the country in which the business is principally carried on and all of those countries are members of the European Union, or

(ii) the development of real estate for sale, the lending of money, the leasing or licensing of property or the insurance or reinsurance of risks,

Proposed Amendment — 95(1)"investment business"(a)(ii)

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 3 — bijuralism), subsec. 232(1), will amend subpara. (a)(ii) of the definition "investment business" in subsec. 95(1) by substituting "real property or immovables" for "real estate", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

(b) either

(i) the affiliate (otherwise than as a member of a partnership) carries on the business (the affiliate being, in respect of those times, in that period of the year, that it so carries on the business, referred to in paragraph (c) as the "operator"), or

(ii) the affiliate carries on the business as a qualifying member of a partnership (the partnership being, in respect of those times, in that period of the year, that the affiliate so carries on the business, referred to in paragraph (c) as the "operator"), and

(c) the operator employs

(i) more than five employees full time in the active conduct of the business, or

(ii) the equivalent of more than five employees full time in the active conduct of the business taking into consideration only

(A) the services provided by employees of the operator, and

(B) the services provided outside Canada to the operator by any one or more persons each of whom is, during the time at which the services were performed by the person, an employee of

(I) a corporation related to the affiliate (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)),

(II) in the case where the operator is the affiliate,

1. a corporation (referred to in this subparagraph as a "providing shareholder") that is a qualifying shareholder of the affiliate,

2. a designated corporation in respect of the affiliate, or

3. a designated partnership in respect of the affiliate, and

(III) in the case where the operator is the partnership described in subparagraph (b)(ii),

1. any person (referred to in this subparagraph as a "providing member") who is a qualifying member of that partnership,

2. a designated corporation in respect of the affiliate, or

3. a designated partnership in respect of the affiliate,

if the corporations referred to in subclause (B)(I) and the designated corporations, designated partnerships, providing shareholders or providing members referred to in subclauses (B)(II) and (III) receive compensation from the operator for the services provided to the operator by those employees the value of which is not less than the cost to those corporations, partnerships, shareholders or members of the compensation paid or accruing to the benefit of those employees that performed the services during the time at which the services were performed by those employees;

Related Provisions: 95(1)"active business"(a) — Investment business excluded from active business; 95(2)(a.2) — Income from insurance business; 95(2)(s) — Designated corporation; 95(2)(t) — Designated partnership; 95(2)(u) — Tiers of partnerships; 95(2.1) — Whether dealing with foreign affiliate at arm's length; 125(7) — Analogous definition of "specified investment business" for small business deduction purposes.

History: Opening words of the definition "investment business" amended by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(6), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95. The opening words formerly read:

"investment business" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer means a business carried on by the affiliate in a taxation year (other than a business deemed by subsection (2) to be a business other than an active business carried on by the affiliate) the principal purpose of which is to derive income from property (including interest, dividends, rents, royalties or any similar returns or substitutes therefor), income from the insurance or reinsurance of risks, income from the factoring of trade accounts receivable, or profits from the disposition of investment property, unless it is established by the taxpayer or the affiliate that, throughout the period in the year during which the business was carried on by the affiliate,

Subpara. (a)(i) of the definition "investment business" amended by the said c. 35, subsec. 26(7), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95. The subpara. formerly read:

(i) a business carried on by it as a foreign bank, a trust company, a credit union, an insurance corporation or a trader or dealer in securities or commodities, the activities of which are regulated in the country in which the business is principally carried on, or

Para. (b) of the definition "investment business" amended and para. (c) added by the said c. 35, subsec. 26(8), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95. Para. (b) formerly read:

(b) the affiliate or, where the affiliate carries on the business as a member of a partnership (except where the affiliate is a specified member of the partnership in a fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year), the partnership employs

(i) more than 5 employees full time in the active conduct of the business, or

(ii) the equivalent of more than 5 employees full time in the active conduct of the business taking into consideration only the services provided by its employees and the services provided outside Canada to the affiliate or the partnership by the employees of

(A) a corporation related to the affiliate (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)), or

(B) members of the partnership (other than a member of the partnership that was a specified member of the partnership in a fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year)

where the corporation or members referred to in clause (A) or (B) receive compensation from the affiliate or the partnership for the services provided to the affiliate or the partnership by those employees the value of which is not less than the cost to such corporation or members of the compensation paid or accruing to the benefit of those employees that performed the services during the time the services were performed by those employees;

The definition "investment business" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new definition applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

Regulations: 8202 (meaning of "permanent establishment").

"investment property" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer includes

(a) a share of the capital stock of a corporation other than a share of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that is excluded property of the affiliate,

(b) an interest in a partnership other than an interest in a partnership that is excluded property of the affiliate,

(c) an interest in a trust other than an interest in a trust that is excluded property of the affiliate,

(d) indebtedness or annuities,

(e) commodities or commodities futures purchased or sold, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, on a commodities or commodities futures exchange (except commodities manufactured, produced, grown, extracted or processed by the affiliate or a person to whom the affiliate is related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) or commodities futures in respect of such commodities),

(f) currency,

(g) real estate,

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 3 — bijuralism), subsec. 232(2), will amend para. (g) of the definition "investment property" in subsec. 95(1) by substituting "real property or immovables" for "real estate", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

(h) Canadian and foreign resource properties,

(i) interests in funds or entities other than corporations, partnerships and trusts, and

(j) interests or options in respect of property that is included in any of paragraphs (a) to (i);

Proposed Amendment — 95(1)"investment property"(j)

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 3 — bijuralism), subsec. 232(3), will amend para. (j) of the definition "investment property" in subsec. 95(1) by substituting "interests in, or for civil law rights in, or options in respect of," for "interests or options in respect of", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

History: The definition "investment property" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new definition applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

"lease obligation" of a person includes an obligation under an agreement that authorizes the use of or the production or reproduction of property including information or any other thing;

History: The definition "lease obligation" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new definition applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

"lending of money" by a person (for the purpose of this definition referred to as the "lender") includes

(a) the acquisition by the lender of trade accounts receivable (other than trade accounts receivable owing by a person with whom the lender does not deal at arm's length) from another person or the acquisition by the lender of any interest in any such accounts receivable,

(b) the acquisition by the lender of loans made by and lending assets (other than loans or lending assets owing by a person with whom the lender does not deal at arm's length) of another person or the acquisition by the lender of any interest in such a loan or lending asset,

(c) the acquisition by the lender of a foreign resource property (other than a foreign resource property that is a rental or royalty payable by a person with whom the lender does not deal at arm's length) of another person, and

(d) the sale by the lender of loans or lending assets (other than loans or lending assets owing by a person with whom the lender does not deal at arm's length) or the sale by the lender of any interest in such loans or lending assets;

and for the purpose of this definition, the definition "lending asset" in subsection 248(1) shall be read without the words "but does not include a prescribed property";

History: Closing words added to the definition "lending of money" in subsec. 95(1) by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 122(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994, but where there was a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the amendment applies to taxation years of the foreign affiliate that end after 1994 unless

(a) the foreign affiliate had requested the change in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which the foreign affiliate was resident and subject to income taxation, or

(b) the foreign affiliate's first taxation year that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time when that taxation year would have begun if the change had not occurred, except that, for taxation years of a foreign affiliate that ended before October 1997, the closing words of the definition "lending of money" shall be read as follows:

and for the purpose of this definition, the definition "lending asset" in subsection 248(1) shall be read without the words "but does not include a prescribed security";

The definition "lending of money" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new definition applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

"licensing of property" includes authorizing the use of or the production or reproduction of property including information or any other thing;

History: The definition "licensing of property" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new definition applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

"non-qualifying business" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer at any time means a business carried on by the foreign affiliate through a permanent establishment in a jurisdiction that, at the end of the foreign affiliate's taxation year that includes that time, is a non-qualifying country, other than

(a) an investment business of the foreign affiliate, or

(b) a business that is deemed by subsection (2) to be a business other than an active business of the foreign affiliate;

History: The definition "non-qualifying business" in subsec. 95(1) added by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(9), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95.

"non-qualifying country" at any time means a country or other jurisdiction with which

(a) Canada neither has a tax treaty at that time nor has, before that time, signed an agreement that will, on coming into effect, be a tax treaty,

(b) Canada does not have a comprehensive tax information exchange agreement that is in force and has effect at that time, and

(c) Canada has, more than 60 months before that time, either

(i) begun negotiations for a comprehensive tax information exchange agreement (unless that time is before 2014 and Canada was, on March 19, 2007, in the course of negotiating a comprehensive tax information exchange agreement with that jurisdiction), or

(ii) sought, by written invitation, to enter into negotiations for a comprehensive tax information exchange agreement (unless that time is before 2014 and Canada was, on March 19, 2007, in the course of negotiating a comprehensive tax information exchange agreement with that jurisdiction);

History: The definition "non-qualifying country" in subsec. 95(1) added by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(9), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95.

"participating percentage" of a particular share owned by a taxpayer of the capital stock of a corporation in respect of any foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that was, at the end of its taxation year, a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer is

(a) where the foreign accrual property income of the affiliate for that year is $5,000 or less, nil, and

(b) where the foreign accrual property income of the affiliate for that year exceeds $5,000,

(i) where the affiliate and each corporation that is relevant to the determination of the taxpayer's equity percentage in the affiliate has only one class of issued shares at the end of that taxation year of the affiliate, the percentage that would be the taxpayer's equity percentage in the affiliate at that time on the assumption that the taxpayer owned no shares other than the particular share (but in no case shall that assumption be made for the purpose of determining whether or not a corporation is a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer), and

(ii) in any other case, the percentage determined in prescribed manner;

Related Provisions: 95(1) — Foreign accrual property income; 95(1) — Foreign affiliate; 95(4) — Equity percentage.

Regulations: 5904 (prescribed manner).

"relevant tax factor" means

(a) where the taxpayer is an individual, 2, or

(b) where the taxpayer is a corporation, the quotient obtained when one is divided by the percentage set out in paragraph 123(1)(a);

Proposed Amendment — 95(1)"relevant tax factor"

"relevant tax factor", of a person or partnership for a taxation year, means

(a) in the case of a corporation, or of a partnership all the members of which, other than non-resident persons, are corporations, the quotient obtained by the formula

$$1/(A - B)$$

where

A is the percentage set out in paragraph 123(1)(a), and

B is

(i) in the case of a corporation, the percentage that is the corporation's general rate reduction percentage (as defined by section 123.4) for the taxation year, and

(ii) in the case of a partnership, the percentage that would be determined under subparagraph (i) in respect of the partnership if the partnership were a corporation whose taxation year is the partnership's fiscal period, and

(b) in any other case, 2.2;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 19(5), will amend the definition "relevant tax factor" in subsec. 95(1) to read as above, applicable to 2002 et seq.

Technical Notes: The definition "relevant tax factor" in subsection 95(1) is used in determining the Canadian tax relief provided in respect of foreign taxes imposed on the earnings of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer or a foreign investment entity in which the taxpayer has a "participating interest" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)). The existing definition provides that the relevant tax factor for a corporation (or a partnership all the resident members of which are corporations) is the reciprocal of the basic corporate tax rate (i.e., 1/.38, or 2.63). The factor for individuals and other partnerships is 2.

As part of a series of amendments reflecting recent and planned reductions in income tax rates, the definition "relevant tax factor" is amended. The relevant tax factor for a corporation (or a partnership all the resident members of which are corporations) will take account of the "general rate reduction percentage" provided in section 123.4. For example, if a corporation's taxation year is the calendar year, its relevant tax factor for 2003 will be 1/(.38 - .05), or 3.03.

Similarly, to take account of decreasing personal income tax rates, the relevant tax factor for individuals and other partnerships is increased to 2.2.

"specified fixed interest", at any time, of an entity in a trust, means an interest of the entity as a beneficiary under the trust if

(a) the interest includes, at that time, rights of the entity as a beneficiary under the trust to receive, at or after that time and directly from the trust, income and capital of the trust,

(b) the interest was issued by the trust, at or before that time, to an entity, in exchange for consideration and the fair market value, at the time at which the interest was issued, of that consideration was equal to the fair market value, at the time at which it was issued, of the interest,

(c) the only manner in which any part of the interest may cease to be the entity's is by way of a disposition (determined without reference to paragraph (i) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1) and paragraph 248(8)(c)) by the entity of that part, and

(d) no amount of income or capital of the trust that any entity may receive directly from the trust at any time as a beneficiary under the trust depends on the exercise by any entity of, or the failure by any entity to exercise, a discretionary power;

History: The definition "specified fixed interest" in subsec. 95(1) added by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(9), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95.

Proposed Addition — 95(1)"specified person or partnership"

"specified person or partnership", in respect of a taxpayer, at any time means the taxpayer or a person (other than a designated acquired corporation of the taxpayer), or a partnership, that is at that time

(a) a person (other than a partnership) that is resident in Canada and does not, at that time, deal at arm's length with the taxpayer,

(b) a specified predecessor corporation of the taxpayer or of a specified person or partnership in respect of the taxpayer,

(c) a foreign affiliate of

(i) the taxpayer,

(ii) a person that is at that time a specified person or partnership in respect of the taxpayer under this definition because of paragraph (a) or (b), or

(iii) a partnership that is at that time a specified person or partnership in respect of the taxpayer under this definition because of paragraph (d), or

(d) a partnership a member of which is at that time a specified person or partnership in respect of the taxpayer under this definition because of any of paragraphs (a) to (c);

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 25(1), will add the definition "specified person or partnership" to subsec. 95(1), applicable on the same basis as 95(1)"antecedent corporation".

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): See under 95(1)"antecedent corporation".

Related Provisions: 95(2.6) — Interpretation rule for definition.

Proposed Addition — 95(1)"specified predecessor corporation"

"specified predecessor corporation" of a particular corporation means

(a) an antecedent corporation of the particular corporation,

(b) a predecessor corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) in respect of an amalgamation by which the particular corporation was formed, or

(c) a specified predecessor corporation of a specified predecessor corporation of the particular corporation;

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 25(1), will add the definition "specified predecessor corporation" to subsec. 95(1), applicable on the same basis as 95(1)"antecedent corporation".

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): See under 95(1)"antecedent corporation".

"specified purchaser", at any time, in respect of a particular taxpayer resident in Canada, means an entity that is, at that time,

(a) the particular taxpayer,

(b) an entity resident in Canada with which the particular taxpayer does not deal at arm's length,

(c) a foreign affiliate of an entity described in any of paragraphs (a) and (b) and (d) to (f),

(d) a trust (other than an exempt trust) in which an entity described in any of paragraphs (a) to (c) and (e) and (f) is beneficially interested,

(e) a partnership of which an entity described in any of paragraphs (a) to (d) and (f) is a member, or

(f) an entity (other than an entity described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e)) with which an entity described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) does not deal at arm's length;

History: The definition "specified purchaser" in subsec. 95(1) added by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 26(9), applicable as described in the History at the end of s. 95.

"surplus entitlement percentage", at any time, of a taxpayer in respect of a foreign affiliate has the meaning assigned by regulation; and Regulations: 5905(13).

Proposed Addition — 95(1)"taxable Canadian business"

"taxable Canadian business", at any time, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada or of a partnership of which a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada is a member (which foreign affiliate or partnership is referred to in this definition as the "operator"), means a business the foreign affiliate's portion of the operator's income from which would, if there were income from the business,

(a) be included in computing the foreign affiliate's taxable income earned in Canada for a taxation year under subparagraph 115(1)(a)(ii), and

(b) not be exempt, because of a tax treaty with a country, from tax under this Part;

Application: The October 2, 2007 draft legislation (budget/technical), subsec. 16(9), will add the definition "taxable Canadian business" to subsec. 95(1), applicable in respect of taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after December 20, 2002 (and subject to the Fresh Start section 95 election described below).

Technical Notes (Feb. 2004): Subsection 95(1) is amended to add the new definition "taxable Canadian business". This expression is used in new paragraphs 95(2)(j.1), (k), (k.2) and (k.4). For more detail, see the commentaries to those paragraphs.

A "taxable Canadian business", at any time of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada or of a partnership of which a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada is a member (which foreign affiliate or partnership is referred to in that definition as the "operator"), is a business the income from which, for the operator's taxation year or fiscal period that includes that time, is income

- that is included in computing the foreign affiliate's taxable income earned in Canada under subparagraph 115(1)(a)(ii), and
- that is not, because of a tax treaty with a country, exempt from tax under Part I of the Act.

In connection with the application of the definition "taxable Canadian business", note the rules in proposed new paragraph 95(2)(k.7). For more detail, see the commentary to that paragraph.

The amendment to add the new definition "taxable Canadian business" applies to taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after December 20, 2002. This amendment is included in the Fresh Start Section 95 Election package described [below — ed.]

Also note that the definition "tax treaty" in subsection 248(1) is applicable to the 1998 and subsequent taxation years. Accordingly, these amendments ensure, in effect, that, in applying the definition "taxable Canadian business" for the 1997 and prior taxation years of all foreign affiliates of the taxpayer in the case where a taxpayer has made a Fresh Start Section 95 Election, the reference in paragraph (b) of the definition "taxable Canadian business" to the expression "tax treaty" is to be read as a reference to a "comprehensive agreement or convention for the elimination of double taxation on income, between the Government of Canada and the government of another country, which has the force of law in Canada at that time".

Fresh Start Section 95 Election

This set of proposals contains a number of amendments to section 95 of the Act, and to section 5907 of the Regulations, that apply to taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after December 20, 2002. However, where a taxpayer so elects in writing and files the election (referred to in this commentary as the "Fresh Start Section 95 Election") with the Minister of National Revenue before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the day on which these amendments are assented to, all of those amendments apply to taxation years of all foreign affiliates, of the taxpayer, that begin after 1994. This set of proposals provides that, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), the Minister of National Revenue can make any assessment of a taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for any taxation year that is necessary to take the election into account.

Note that the Global Section 95 Election [see under 95(2)(a) — ed.] and the Fresh Start Section 95 Election are separate elections.

The following amendments to the Act and to the Regulations are covered by the Fresh Start Section 95 Election package:

- the definition "taxable Canadian business" in subsection 95(1),
- paragraphs 95(2)(j.1) and (j.2) and 95(2)(k), (k.1) and (k.4) to [(k.6)], and
- subsections 5907(2.9) and (2.91) of the Regulations.

See the commentary to paragraph 95(2)(k) for additional information with respect to transitional provisions.

Note that this set of proposals provides for the possibility of a total revocation of the Fresh Start Section 95 Election. If a taxpayer has made what would otherwise be a valid Fresh Start Section 95 Election, and the taxpayer has, on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the day that is the third anniversary of the day on which the amending legislation enacting this set of proposals is assented to, filed with the Minister of National Revenue a notice in writing to revoke the election, the election is deemed never to have been made. This set of proposals provides that, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), the Minister of National Revenue can make any assessment of a taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for any taxation year that is necessary to take the revocation into account.

Related Provisions: 95(2)(j.1), (k), (k.2) — Application to FAPI rules; 95(2)(u) — Tiers of partnerships.

"taxation year" in relation to a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer means the period for which the accounts of the foreign affiliate have been ordinarily made up, but no such period may exceed 53 weeks.

Related Provisions: 95(1) — Foreign affiliate; 249 — Taxation year.

"trust company" includes a corporation that is resident in Canada and that is a loan company as defined in subsection 2(1) of the Canadian Payments Association Act [now the Canadian Payments Act — ed.].

History: The definition "trust company" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 122(4), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there was a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the amendment applies to taxation years of the foreign affiliate that end after 1994 unless

(a) the foreign affiliate had requested the change in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which the foreign affiliate was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the foreign affiliate's first taxation year that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time when that taxation year would have begun if the change had not occurred.

(2) Determination of certain components of foreign accrual property income — For the purposes of this subdivision,

Proposed Amendment — 95(2) opening words

(2) Application — foreign affiliates — For the purposes of this subdivision (other than sections 94 to 94.4),

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 19(6), will amend the opening words of subsec. 95(2) to read as above, applicable to taxation years, of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, that begin after 2006, except that they also apply to a taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer that begins before 2007 if ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to that taxation year of the foreign affiliate.

Technical Notes: Subsection 95(2) provides rules for determining the income of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada. Subsection 95(2) is amended to clarify that these rules do not apply in applying sections 94 to 94.4.

(a) [income related to active business] — in computing the income or loss from an active business for a taxation year of a particular foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest throughout the year or that is a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer throughout the year, there shall be included any income or loss of the particular foreign affiliate for the year from sources in a country other than Canada that would otherwise be income or loss from property of the particular foreign affiliate for the year to the extent that

(i) the income or loss

(A) is derived by the particular foreign affiliate from activities that can reasonably be considered to be directly related to active business activities carried on in a country other than Canada by

(I) another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest throughout the year, or

(II) a life insurance corporation that is resident in Canada throughout the year and that is

1. the taxpayer,

2. a person who controls the taxpayer,

3. a person controlled by the taxpayer, or

4. a person controlled by a person who controls the taxpayer, and

(B) would be included in computing the amount prescribed to be the earnings or loss, from an active business carried on in a country other than Canada, of

(I) that other foreign affiliate referred to in subclause (A)(I) if the income were earned by it, or

(II) the life insurance corporation referred to in subclause (A)(II) if that life insurance corporation were a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer and the income were earned by it,

(ii) the income or loss is derived from amounts that were paid or payable, directly or indirectly, to the particular foreign affiliate or a partnership of which the particular foreign affiliate was a member

(A) by a life insurance corporation that is resident in Canada and that is the taxpayer, a person who controls the taxpayer, a person controlled by the taxpayer or a person controlled by a person who controls the taxpayer, to the extent that those amounts that were paid or payable were for expenditures that are deductible in a taxation year of the life insurance corporation by the life insurance corporation in computing its income or loss for a taxation year from carrying on its life insurance business outside Canada and are not deductible in computing its income or loss for a taxation year from carrying on its life insurance business in Canada,

(B) by

(I) another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest throughout the year, to the extent that those amounts that were paid or payable are for expenditures that were deductible by that other foreign affiliate in computing the amounts prescribed to be its earnings or loss for a taxation year from an active business (other than an active business carried on in Canada), or

(II) a partnership of which another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (in respect of which other foreign affiliate the taxpayer has a qualifying interest throughout the year) is a qualifying member throughout each period, in the fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year, in which that other foreign affiliate was a member of the partnership, to the extent that those amounts that were paid or payable are for expenditures that are deductible by the partnership in computing that other foreign affiliate's share of any income or loss of the partnership, for a fiscal period, that is included in computing the amounts prescribed to be that other foreign affiliate's earnings or loss for a taxation year from an active business (other than an active business carried on in Canada),

(C) by a partnership of which the particular foreign affiliate is a qualifying member throughout each period, in the fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year, in which the particular foreign affiliate was a member of the partnership, to the extent that those amounts that were paid or payable are for expenditures that are deductible by the partnership in computing the particular foreign affiliate's share of any income or loss of the partnership, for a fiscal period, that is included in computing the amounts prescribed to be the particular foreign affiliate's earnings or loss for a taxation year from an active business (other than an active business carried on in Canada), or
